OPTIMISTIC FORECAST OF BUSINESS FOR YEAR 1923

Economists, Bankers and Business Men Assert a Distinctly Cheerful Undertone is in Evidence—Belief is General That the Present Revival Will Increase in Vigor During the Next Several Months—Steady or Higher Commodity Prices Are Predicted—Secretary Hoover Says the World Begins the Year With Greater Economic Strength Than a Year Ago.

New York, Dec. 31.—(By the A. P.)—As the year closes and the country's leading economists, bankers and business men review the past twelve months and attempt to forecast the future, a distinctly cheerful undertone is in evidence. It is generally recognized that the past year has been materially better than expected, that the business revival has developed unforeseen vigor. Thus it is pointed out that the country has enjoyed an unprecedented building boom that the steel industry has outstripped all previous years in the matter of the rate of production and that buying of automobiles has set a new high record. Deflation of prices has ceased and has been succeeded by a distinct firming up, employment is full and purchasing power in the suburban and industrial districts is high.

In expressing a belief that the present revival will continue with a moderate increase in vigor during the next several months, business leaders do not hesitate to point out that the skies are not cloudless. It is realized, for example, that the farmer's position is not yet wholly satisfactory. In many districts, and the northwest in particular, farmers still are heavily in debt and are securing but modest returns for their crops. Some observers think that it will be fully two years before the situation in those districts will be restored to something like normal. The view is held, however, that conditions are gradually on the mend and the marked improvement which has occurred in the south as a result of the high prices obtained from the present cotton crop is cited as an example of what might happen in the grain growing districts if prices should take a decisive turn for the better.

In this connection much emphasis is laid on the importance of the European situation. The economists point out that roughly one-third of the country's wheat must be sold abroad and that the price of wheat is determined in the world market. As Europe is the chief customer for our wheat, it follows, so the argument runs, that our farmers cannot receive advantageous prices for their grain as long as European purchasing power remains depleted. There is a very general agreement among bankers that the question of whether or not the country is to have a return of full prosperity depends on the progress which is made in restoring peace and commercial stability in Europe. Opinions differ as to the precise steps which this country should take but there is unanimity of opinion on the point that the countries welfare is involved and that business like steps should be taken to improve the situation. With regard to European prospects, the attitude seems to be one of cautious hopefulness. Conditions now are thought to be more favorable to a settlement of the reparations but it is realized that progress in this matter heretofore has been slow and that the revival in European trade probably will be gradual.

Considerable emphasis is laid on the shortage of labor. Industrialists assert that labor conditions already were uncomfortable during the past fall and that a revival of the trouble is quite within the bounds of possibility during the coming year. Some go as far as to say that bidding for labor may result in high wages and low efficiency, thus raising production costs and so favoring an inflation which might result in a speculative boom with unpleasant after effects. Others consider that the outcome of the shopmen's strike has had a sobering effect and that serious difficulties are not probable.

Expectations of steady or higher commodity prices are in the majority. Absence of excessive stocks of materials, the labor shortage, the tariff and the existing tendency all are offered as evidence supporting this view. At the same time it is thought that money will remain relatively plentiful, although there is a preponderance of opinion to the effect that rates will rise if the revival makes further marked progress.

Railroad executives do not expect any material changes in rates and wages during the coming year. The railroad companies are stated to be making progress in restoring the physical condition of the properties to normal and there is a general wish that the transportation act be given a fair trial. As to whether a serious car shortage will develop there is much difference of opinion. On the one hand it is pointed out that the roads have been unable to buy the usual amount of rolling stock for a number of years and that the volume of traffic in prospect promises to be one of the largest in history; while on the other hand, it is set forth that the carriers will have a certain amount of new equipment on hand in 1923 and that they should be able to give much better service than during the past autumn, when they were struggling to overcome the effects of the strikes. All the railroad men point out that the roads must be permitted to earn profits if they are to serve the public efficiently, and this point of view is supported by the bankers and economists. Barring strikes and given maintenance of the present level of rates and wages, and the continuation of the business revival, it is believed that earnings will be sufficient to maintain the volume of equipment and rail buying of the past year.

Although realizing that there are still many sources of uncertainty and that it is difficult to see further than from three to six months ahead, the countries business observers evidently find much in the situation to create hopefulness and cheerfulness. Self restraint and prudence are virtues which are likely to have great practical utility during the coming year, but there is a general disposition to declare that the present volume of general business speaks for itself.

SECY HOOVER DISCERNS GREATER ECONOMIC STRENGTH

Washington, Dec. 31.—The story of 1923 is one of world economic progress, and the prospects are favorable for 1923, Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce declared in a statement tonight in which he reviewed the past and hazarded a forecast of the future year. His statement, compiled from reports of special investigators in all parts of the earth, expressed complete confidence concerning the remodeling of the delicate economic machine so badly wrecked by the World war.

"The world begins the year with greater economic strength than a year ago," Mr. Hoover said. "Production and trade are upon a larger and more substantial basis, with the single exception of the core spot in central Europe. The healing forces of business and commerce has gained substantial ascendancy over destructive political and social forces. There is ample reason why there should be continued progress during the next twelve months."

Gain in Social Stability.

The secretary declared that outside of "three or four states in central Europe" the whole world has shaken itself free from the great after-the-war slump. Social stability has gained, he said, urging that the exceptions in Europe be not allowed to obscure "the profound forces of progress elsewhere over the whole world." In the main, he added, even in the areas referred to as "sore spots," the difficulties are to a large extent fiscal and political rather than commercial and industrial.

In addition to the social betterment, Mr. Hoover mentioned as other net gains for the year 1922 and guide lines to 1923 the following:

"Bolshevism has greatly diminished, and even in Russia has been replaced by a mixture of socialism and individualism.

"Active war, at least, has ceased for the first time since 1914.

"Famine and distress have diminished to much less numbers this winter than at any time since the great war began.

"Production has increased greatly during the year.

"International commerce is increasing.

"The world is now pretty generally purchasing its commodities by the normal exchange of service and goods, a fact which in itself marks an enormous step in recovery from the strained movements of credit and gold which followed the war."

Economic wounds of Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia coming from the war, Mr. Hoover said, were more the sympathetic reaction from slump in the combatant states than from direct injury and they thus are recovering quickly. Their commerce, his reports showed, has reached levels above pre-war days and their production has grown apace.

Outstanding Problems of Europe.

"The continued maintenance of armies on a greater than pre-war basis in the old allied states," Mr. Hoover continued, "maintains political uncertainty, lowers productivity and retards the balancing of budgets, with consequent cessation of direct or indirect inflation. Disarmament and the constructive settlement of German reparations and the economic relations of states in southeastern Europe are the outstanding problems of Europe."

Discussing European conditions, the secretary said England, with the old neutral nations, is making steady progress in production and is diminishing unemployment. He reported that some of the combatant states, while slower in recovery, "have shown progress all along the line in commercial, industrial and agricultural fields, although the harvests suffered in some spots."

Dangerous Symptoms.

As for Germany and some of the minor states in southeastern Europe, Mr. Hoover noted dangerous symptoms. They still cause anxiety, he explained, because financial difficulties and political problems of their governments "threaten to overwhelm the commercial and industrial recuperation already made."

The secrtary dealt with conditions in the United States only briefly. He called attention to an economic level of comparatively great comfort in every direction except for the lag in recovery of some branches of agriculture. He said, however, that even in this field there had been improvement in prices and expressed the opinion that its troubles were mostly due to overproduction in some lines.

"Our manufacturing industries are mostly engaged well up to the available labor," Mr. Hoover said. "Industrial production has enormously increased over last year, and real wages and savings are at a high level. Our transportation and housing show great gains in construction, though we are yet behind in these equipments. Both our exports and imports are again increasing after the great depression and are today far above pre-war levels."

INVITES CITIZENS' HELP TOWARDS GOOD GOVERNMENT
MAYOR J. F. MURRAY, NEW LONDON

The city government extends to all the people very best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year. To the end that harmony and prosperity be present in all city affairs, the help and interest of all people is asked for therein. Good government in the city, the goal of all, will thereby be attained. The city's prosperity and success are the rewards of every citizen's attention to and right-minded participation in the city government. The circumstances of our government now require concerted and vigorous effort to so organize our affairs that the fullest possible benefits to all people may be obtained. With that result in mind, criticism can be constructive and helpful and benefitting to us in our efforts to give the best and most economical government to all of our people.

A considerable amount of organizing still remains to be done in order to put the present charter in full operation. Constant studying and discussion is required to fully determine how this organization should be brought about. Amendments to our charter must be sought from the legislature so that doubtful language in the charter may be made clear and mistakes in language and methods be corrected, and so that necessary additions may be made to permit the functioning of government with proper, orderly and economical organization.

JOHN F. MURRAY,
Mayor of New London.

Public Debt Reduced Billion in Fiscal Year

Secretary Mellon Appeals for Economy in Governmental Expenditures in 1923.

Washington, Dec. 31.—An appeal for further economy in governmental expenditures and for greater saving among the people was made in a New Year's statement tonight by Secretary Mellon. The statement, announced as a summary of the treasury's accomplishments for the last fiscal year, a reduction of about one billion dollars in the public debt, a balance in the budget and successful refunding operations which have reduced the early maturing debt to manageable proportions.

"Let us make 1923 a better and more prosperous year than 1922 the treasury secretary urged. "It can be done if all of us will unite to save more and waste less."

Asserting that the federal government has been taking, and will continue to take the lead in saving, Mr. Mellon said it would be "little short of a national calamity if the lessons of thrift and sound investment, learned during the war, should be lost in these days of re-construction when the need of avoiding waste and extravagance is as great as ever." The federal government, he declared, in cutting its expenditures "to the limit" to balance its budget and reduce the burden of taxation.

"But much still remains to be done," the statement continued. "On January 1, 1923, about $625,000,000 of 1918 war savings stamps come due and must be paid or exchanged into other government securities, and on May 20, 1923, the remaining Victory notes, amounting to $850,000,000 will become payable while Victory notes called for redemption December 15, still remaining outstanding amount to about $250,000,000, it is a matter of first importance that these great securities, representing largely the savings of the people, should not be dissipated in idle or wasteful expenditure or in worthless securities. The treasury accordingly is bending every effort to encourage the reinvestment of these funds in sound securities, particularly in those of the government itself."

By investment in the government securities, Mr. Mellon declared, the lessons learned in the wartime liberty loan and war savings campaigns will be perpetuated. The great body of investors created then, he said, in appealing for a renewal of their investments in government securities, will not only aid the government in handling the war debt if they reinvest but will be building "the foundation for future financial independence and success."

PISTOL SHOTS AT CLOSING SESSION MEXICAN CONGRESS

The long existing fued between the co-operatistas and the partido liberal constitutionalists broke out, and the opposite sides of the chamber exchanged all sorts of personalities. No one seemed to be concerned with several important bills which failed to pass because of the turn of affairs.

FRANCE REJECTS GERMAN PROPOSAL FOR NON-WAR PACT

Fact Disclosed by German Chancellor Wilhelm Cuno During a Speech Before the Hamburg Bourse—French Experts Have Drawn Up a Plan for Reparations to Present to the Meeting of Premiers in Paris Tomorrow—It is Expected the Conference Will Continue at Least Until Saturday.

Hamburg, Dec. 31 (By the A. P.)—The Franco-German non-war pact proposed by Germany to France, through the mediation of a neutral power has been rejected by Premier Poincare, This statement was made by the German chancellor, Wilhelm Cuno, in the course of a significant speech before the Hamburg bourse today.

The chancellor's revelation was the first official admission that the German government had recently undertaken serious steps to placate German war apprehensions, and incidentally dispose of the recurrent French accusations that Germany was arming for a new war.

The German New Year's non-war pact was proposed to France through the medium of an unnamed power, probably either Switzerland or Holland, and provided for a solemn pledge by all the powers interested in the Rhine that none of them should wage war on the others for a generation, without active authorization of their people as expressed through a popular referendum in all the countries involved.

The German government stipulated that a world power which was not interested in the Rhine should be guardian or trustee of this pledge. Such an obligation, Chancellor Cuno stated, would commit each nation which was a party to the pact to a peace policy and would afford the most secure guarantee conceivable.

"To my regret," said the chancellor, "France has seen fit to reject our proposal."

The major part of the chancellor's speech was devoted to a discussion of reparations and their effect on the national and international situation. He gave the barest outlines of the new German proposals, declaring that the government had decided to name a definite sum which it is believed it would be able to pay off through the aid of a system of domestic and foreign loans. He expressed strong approval of the sentiments voiced by the American secretary of state at New Haven and believed that Mr. Hughes' views closely tallied with those entertained by the Germans.

TRUE HAPPINESS BY SERVICE IN NEW YEAR —MAYOR C. A. GATES, WILLIMANTIC

New Year greetings to the people of Willimantic—Another milestone in our life is just ahead of us. Last night saw the old year pass away and 1923 with smiling face and all the strength and joy of youth now stands on the threshold to greet us. It is my heartfelt wish that this year may bring to all of you the very best that life can bring, that every one of you may find it full to overflowing of the blessings that make for health, prosperity and happiness; that 1923 may be so bright and cheerful that when it has also faded away you will feel that it was the best and sunniest year that ever came to you. It is rather trite to repeat the old adage that the one way to find happiness in this world is to make some one else happy, but the adage is so true that perhaps it cannot be brought to our mind too often. Let us act on it throughout the new year and do our best for those who need our help. Let us try to be of real service to our community and do all in our power for the welfare of Willimantic. Let us gladly welcome the new year and face whatever it brings with hope, courage and charity towards all. Once more I wish you one and all the happiest of New Years.

CHARLES A. GATES,
Mayor of Willimantic.

FRANCE TO SUBMIT PLAN TO CONFERENCE OF PREMIERS

Paris, Dec. 31.—(By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare today presided over a cabinet council and presented to the ministers the plan which he will submit to the conference of premiers next Tuesday on the question of reparations.

The plan, drawn up by M. Barthou, president of the reparations commission, assisted by technical experts, is reported to have been definitely adopted as the basis on which the Paris conference will begin.

AN EVASIVE REPLY MADE BY MR. BONAR LAW

Paris, Dec. 31 (By the A. P.)—When Mr. Bonar Law, the British prime minister and the members of the British delegation, armed with portfolios and handbags filled with documents, alighted from the Calais train at 6.30 this evening, Mr. Bonar Law was asked: "Do you think the conference will be a success?"

He laughed and exclaimed: "What a question!" He repeated it in French to the representatives of the French foreign office, who merely smiled and shrugged.

Lord Crewe, the new British ambassador to France, met the prime minister, and the party proceeded to carriages amid a blaze of flashlights from photographers and thence to the Hotel Crillon.

REPARATIONS CONFERENCE MAY LAST FULL WEEK

Paris, Dec. 31 By the A. P.)—The official opening of the premier's conference on reparations is set for Tuesday with the expectation that it will continue at least until Saturday, if not far into the following week. The length of time will depend entirely on the rapidity and progress of the negotiations. So far there has been no request from the British prime minister, Mr. Bonar Law, for a meeting with Premier Poincare before the opening session.

The main fact would appear to be that the conference will proceed with greater calm than similar conferences, if the mutual expressions of good will between the British and French premiers count for anything.

The great question is whether the British plan for reduction of the German debt and granting a moratorium will prevail or whether the French will have their way and enter the Ruhr. The preliminaries of the conference would seem to show that the French will not be all their old arguments against those put forward by the British though whether they will insist upon occupying the Ruhr is doubtful.

While the absence of Premier Mussolini of Italy from the conference is hardly commented upon by the French newspapers there are running through their editorials the thought that the United States may in some intangible manner clear up the situation by a reduction of its credits, coupled with similar action by Great Britain.

CONFLICTING PHILOSOPHIES OF INDUSTRIAL LIFE

Cleveland, Dec. 31.—Conflicting philosophies of American economic and industrial life are revealed in an exchange of personal letters made public here today between Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war and now president of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, which is to reveal their views of the open shop as opposed to the closed union shop.

Mr. Gompers' first letter, dated August 10, expresses the shock he experienced when he learned that Mr. Baker had been "converted to the open shop policy." The correspondence, apparently is closed with a third letter from Mr. Baker, November 23, in which he pleads for peace in industrial relations and expresses his belief that conflict in the industrial field has proved futile, both to capital and labor, and disastrous to the public.

Mr. Gompers in his letter argues that the open shop policy is but a cloak to shield the operations of ungenerous employers who wish to discriminate against organized labor, and that, in fact, the open shop tends to become the closed non union shop.

He concedes Mr. Baker's point that strikes sometimes operate to the inconvenience of the public, but urges in answer, "better temporary inconvenience than permanent injustice."

Mr. Baker develops the argument that public interest is paramount and that even now, after the long struggle carried on by the unions, they have made little more than a beginning in the work of bringing about the closed union shops. Some better means of progress he concludes, must be found.

A Pierce-Arrow five-ton delivery truck and 14,000 loaves of bread went up in smoke early Saturday morning on the state highway in Columbia and a short distance from the Watrous place and about a mile and a half from the city line. Joseph Barbar of Springfield, the driver of the truck, was trapped in the cab and received burns about the face and body and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where he received treatment and was later discharged.

At the spot designated the truck was stopped and Barber and his assistant, Arthur Greene, proceded to fill the gasoline tank from a five-gallon reserve tank which they had with them, when without noticeable cause and warning the gasoline suddenly burst into flames which soon enveloped the whole truck. The flames first flicked out through the flooring and set Barber's clothes on fire. He jumped from the cab and Greene threw his overcoat over the man to extinguish the flames. It seems likely that gasoline dripped from the tank while it was being poured out and leaked dithrough the floor boards onto the hot exhaust pipe, causing it to burst out into flames.

In a few minutes the truck was a roaring blaze which could be seen for miles around. The two men walked to the nearest house and called the Leonard Bros. garage who soon answered the call and brought the men to this city.

For over an hour the burning truck stood in the middle of the road and blockaded a number of machines, some of them containing Willimantic people who were returning from a Pythian gathering at Manchester. As the bread burned an appetizing aroma of toast pervaded the surrounding air.

New Year's Day will be another quiet holiday in Willimantic. As is customary the local manufacturing industries and practically all business will be closed for the day and there will be no deliveries of mail in the city by the carriers and the rural carriers will also enjoy a vacation. Business men and patrons renting boxes can secure mail by calling at the postoffice letter carriers' window between 7 and 11 a. m. Other departments will be closed, however mail will be collected as usual.

In the entertainment line there will be the matinee and evening performances at the moving picture houses, a dance in the afternoon under the auspices of Company C, 19th Infantry at the state armory, and a basketball game in the evening which will bring together the Rectors of Bridgeport and the American Thread A. A. No doubt a number of young local people will journey to South Coventry New Year's night to enjoy the dance there under the auspices of the Earl W. Green Post No. 52, American Legion.

The Children of Mary Society of St. Joseph's church held a delightful Christmas tree social the other afternoon and carried out a brief but very enjoyable program. Refreshments were served and surprise gifts were given those present. President Tharsilla Sullivan was in charge. The program was as follows: Piano solo, Evening Crimes, by Miss Mildred Merchant; piano duet, The Dragon Fly, by the Misses Eileen Murphy and Marcella Curran; story by Miss Irene Colgan; piano solo, Schubert's Scherzo in B flat by Miss Bernice Grimley; recitation, Easter Morning, a poem by Miss Claire Moley; piano duet, Narcissus, by the Misses Eileen Murphy and Marcella Curran.

The year 1923 was tendered a rousing welcome in Willimantic by hundreds of Elks and their lady friends who attended the midnight frolic at the state armory under the auspices of the B. P. E. lodge No. 1311 of local Elks. With plenty of entertainment, fun and dancing the frolic commenced at midnight Sunday and continued until Monday, New Year's morning. The hall was decorated with American flags, pine trees and B. P. O. E. banners. Fronting the stage was the large New Year's "Welcome" banner in red letters and white background and at the opposite end of the hall was an artistic tea garden where refreshments were served under the direction of Morris S. Leonard. T. D. Donohue was decorator.

A concert by the Peerless orchestra and vocal selections by Michael Farrell of Storrs and Mrs. Henry Mathieu of this city were rendered for the benefit of the early comers from 11 to 12 o'clock. The exalted grand ruler, R. Ernest Melody of the local lodge, read the eleventh hour toast and the well known John Collins of Chaplin favored the audience with a talk on topics of the day and rendered a number of harmonious selections. The big entertainment feature of the night consisted of six high class vaudeville acts by the John C. Quidley theatrical agency of Boston. Joseph M. Perard was chairman of the entertainment committee. The frolic reached a climax when hundreds of favors in the form of paper hats, horns, cow bells, etc., were distributed among the dancers by Gilbert P. Flynn.

Frank L. Alpaugh, who is one of the long term employes of the American Thread Company, resigned Saturday after thirty years of service. Mr. Alpaugh has been with the company since 1893 at which time it was known as the Willimantic Linen Company. He became pattern maker and from 1912 to 1918 he was master carpenter in the wrks department of the concern. For the past four years he had charge of repairs and care of the company's tenements.

Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer Stanton L. Briggs and officers of the local police department raided the store and home of Stanley O'Bara, No. 67 Main street, Saturday afternoon n search for contraband liquor. The officers came into the store just in time to see a man pick up a jug and run down the cellar stairs. They hurried after him and got the jug before it could be destroyed. It was found to be filled with moonshine and in a bedroom of O'Bara was found a case of Jamaica ginger. The liquor and ginger was confiscated and O'Bara was notified to appear before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson at Norwich, Friday, Jan. 5.

Hill made the presentation speech. Miss Gordon stated that she had accepted a position with a Hartford firm.

In the local police court Saturday morning the continued case of Joseph T. Lessard was heard. Lessard is charged with non-support of his wife Margaret and their four-months-old child. Mrs. Lessard made the declaration Saturday morning that she would not remove to Moosup with her husband as she feared that he would desert her again. In his turn Lessard stated that he was willing to get a job in this city and remain here to support his wife and family. Mrs. Lessard consented to this on condition that he stop drinking and abusing her other children. The case was continued until Saturday, January 27.

The board of assessors are hard at work in making up the tax lists of the east and west divisions of the town and are finding the work troublesome on account of the classification of automobiles, which each fluctuates according to the assessable values of cars. As there is an average of one car to every dozen people in the town of Windham the list of car owners is a long one.

"The same old trick" apparently did not work out very well Saturday night when three Jewett City young men made an attempt to get away from an ice cream parlor without paying for their drinks. Lieutenant McArthur of the local police force was called in and the young men told a story about giving their money for the drinks to one of their friends who had since disappeared and gone back to the dance at the state armory without paying the clerk. They did not hesitate very long however before they paid the bill and settled the trouble.

PANTHERS OUTPLAY STANFORD IN THRILLING FOOTBALL CLASSIC

Stadium, Stanford University, Cal., Dec. 31—The Panther football team from the university of Pittsburgh had little trouble in defeating Stanford university, 16 to 7, here yesterday in the second East-West game of the season. The visitors outclassed the Cardinals throughout the game, and except for a few minutes during the last period, were on the offensive.

Only a vicious Stanford defense prevented the score from being higher. Six times the Pitt backfield, with its crack fullback, Hewitt, and its star halfback, Flanagan, doing most of the work by line bucks and forward passes carried the ball to within hte Stanford 20-yard line and six times Stanford held and punted out to safety.

It was one Warner-trained team playing against another and the most experienced eleven won, Glenn Warner, who is coach of the Panthers is also advisory coach of the Stanford team and comes to take full charge of the eleven in 1924.

Both teams were crippled by the absence of stars. On the Stanford side, Are Wilcox, former captain, was out with injuries while hte Pitt team played for all but three minutes without Holleran, its captain. Holleran entered the game for the last three minutes of play.

Costly Stanford fumbles helped Pitt run up its score today although it is probable th tathe scores would have been made anyway for the Panther backfield tore thdoough the line almost at will during part of the game.

Approximately 10,000 persons attended the game. A much larged crowd was expected but threatening clouds kept many away. The lineup:

Pittsburgh		Stanford

Golf Shows Marked Increase in 1922

Two of the most trustworthy ways of approximately getting at the increased number of golfers, the past season, by guaging the amount of additional space given to the sport by the newspapers and noting the tremendous jump in the number of accidents incidental to the game. More than four times as large telegraphic tolls on the two principal national championships were registered in 1922 as in 1913 and from a careful record kept of injuries incurred during play, the past season, at least thrice the casualties of any previous year are indicated.

It is only logical to compare the press file of this year's title struggles with that of nine seasons ago as 1913 marked the real beginning of international rivalry. That year, it will be recalled, Vardon and Ray made a dead-set for United States open title and Francis [illegible] amateur gained a niche in golfing hall of fame by tieing with the Britishers and then beating them decisively. That was about 11 months before the world war began which inevitably brought a long break to international sporting relations. It was at Brookline where the national amateur was held, last September, that Ouimet, nine years since, held the pass, not unlike Leonidas at Thermopylae, which makes a comparison of the telegraphic copy sent to newspapers only the easier.

There was a lifting of eyebrows, nine years ago last fall, when it was officially stated that something in excess of a quarter of a million words were wired from the Clyde park course in five days besides 28 thousand words by cable. What shall be said then, when it is now authoritatively given out for the first time that 1,260,344 words were "juiced" over the metallic strands during the seven days beginning September 1st, last, skipping the Sunday following. This year however, the cablegrams were less, totaling 15,000 words, due to the fact that no Britisher reached the semi-final.

A little thought will convince anyone that the discrepancy between 1913 and 1922 at Brookline was even greater than appears at first sight for the first named, an open championship, was at stroke play where each figure counts as a word, while the amateur affair is a hole play, making the bulk of the count upon the ordinary business basis.

During the national open event in July at Skokie, the file ran slightly more than 1,000,000 words because of the stroke play, which represented far less copy than was ground out at Brookline. Furthermore, Skokie being four to five times as far from Chicago as Brookline is from Boston, delivery by messenger was impossible except on night copy.

The telephone file at Skokie and Brookline, this year, is believed to have reached six figures, otherwise both totals would have been materially swelled. One news association, for instance relied exclusively upon the telephone.

Not so much "file" fell by the wayside at Brookline, last fall, as usual, it should be added, for the service was unusually efficient. In that connection it would be interesting to spring the deadly parallel between the insignificant totals in 1920 at Toledo, (where the service on the national open was so wretched as to be farcial) and the tolls at Washington in 1921, also those at Skokie, last summer. In all three, strong Britishers competed.

Undoubtedly, too, the co-operation lent the scribes at the Hub by the club management, led by Messrs Felton and Weeks, swelled the aggregate.

To get down to brass rivets 274,354 words were telegraphed to day papers and 985,888 words to morning sheets. New York naturally topped the list with 101,144 words of night copy and 130,000 by day. That did not include Brooklyn with 36,917 words at night and 10,500 words by day. Pittsburgh received 41,715 words after 7 p. m.; Chicago had 58,358 words by night and 19,425 by day; Washington 65,668 by night and 3,074 words by day; Philadelphia 43,715 by night and 5,000 by day; Cleveland 17,394 by night and 14,632 by day; Atlanta 19,987 by night and 2,000 by day.

All the night Boston copy was carried into town, but 39,512 words were wired by day.

Western Union executives of long experience in handling sporting championships of all sorts believe that full figures 500,000 words more of news reports were printed on the last national amateur than any previous United States fixture. Sixteen wires were in commission from early morning until nearly midnight, except for passing troubles such as storms, while about 40 operators served by relays, a showing that caused some spectators who figured in the championship of 20 years ago to gasp with surprise as they surveyed the open press tent.

Excepting one Briton who came over to play on the International team all the cabling, last fall, was entrusted to the resident New York correspondents of the British press, so there was less of incident at Brookline in the way of untoward developments and far less tea was imbibed.

It is recalled that nine years ago, when Vardon holed his putt on the 72nd green on the memorable Friday, an Englishman strolled into the press room and sent a cable to the effect that the Yankee field had been vanquished and in consequence Vardon and Ray would the morrow play off their tie to see which name should be engraved on the cup. Meantime, Ouimet was seven holes behind, apparently without a gambler's chance. However his long putt for a three on the 71st green saved the youngster.

The next day the aforementioned British correspondent did not start for the wire until Ouimet had sunk his final putt on the last hole, although the latter had previously clinched his victory which accordingly had been flashed toward the other side of the world several minutes earlier.

An American representing a foreign news agency wigwagged a signal to an assistant near the key when Vardon and Ray drove into the rough from the 18th tee, while Ouimet, four strokes to the good with a perfect lie in the center of the fair green stood waiting for his opponents to play the odd.

Close to a flivver load of papers was consumed during the battle, for with good wires well manned, not more than two or three sentences were written on each sheet of day copy from noon forward in order that they might be railroaded to the waiting operators. Only belt carriers could have appreciably expedited the service.

LEWIS SAYS PAPERS HAVE BEEN SIGNED

San Francisco, Cal., December 31—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world's champion heavyweight wrestler, announced yesterday that arrangements had been completed for a mixed match between Jack Dempsey, heavyweight pugilistic title holder and himself. Lewis produced signed articles covering the match which were drawn at Wichita, Kansas, and carried the signature of Jack Kearns, manager for Dempsey.

The articles, a sporting writer observed, "contained one million rules as how the two are to behave themselves."

Lewis said: "We have made this match. There are only a few details to be worked out. You can think what you want about it, but when I meet the champion of the world in the first line he will learn he is meeting the champion of the world in the fist-combat that doesn't call for putting on gloves.

"I do not want to boast, but if I am thrown against the firing line with the world's champion pugilist, the people who like sports will get the same shock they received when Siki whipped Carpentier."

The date and place of the match were not announced.

CRACK BASKETBALL PLAYER PAID $12,000

Hugh Borland, former Lane Tech of Chicago, Ill., athlete, is America's highest priced player. The Chicago chalked-court star, recently refused an offer of $10,000 to perform for the New York Nationals, pro outfit members of the Interstate circuit. In order to secure their "prize" player, one of the fleetest to grace the wooden floors, the Metropolitan five advanced another offer of $12,000 and the speedy Chicago lad accepted.

Borland is the youngster who startled the track fans by his registering a 9 4-5 seconds for the 100 yards distance while a member of the Lane Tech track team. While at school he played on the basketball, football, baseball and track teams and was one of the school's main winners.

Playing for the Edison, Ill., Big Five a professional outfit, members of the pro league, Borland established what is believed to be a world's record for caging baskets, the former schoolboy caging the leather sixty baskets in a game against Wheaton. The Edisons won the game, 185 to 30.

JAP ATHLETES TO INVADE AMERICA IN 1923

New York, Dec. 31—The first note in international tennis play for 1923 was sounded in announcement by the United States Lawn Tennis Association that Ichiya Kumagae and Seichiro Kashio, Japanese stars who have gained fame in this country in past seasons will return soon to prepare for the coming season on American courts.

Several young Japanese players of promise will accompany Kumagae and Kashio and play in most of the important tournaments to gain experience which is expected to lift them eventually for Davis Cup competition. One of the newcomers, whose play will be watched with special interest, will be Fukuda, winner of the Panasese national championship last fall, an event in which Kumagae and Kashio did not compete.

Japan is planning to challenge again in 1923 for the Davis Cup and will have a formidable team. Besides Kashio and Kumagae, Zenzo Shimizu, who gained high rank in American competition last season, is also available.

GROWTH OF TRAFFIC THROUGH PANAMA CANAL

Washington, Dec. 31.—Completion of the Panama canal and protection offered by the coastwise laws of the United States are largely responsible for the fact that the amount of idle privately owned American tonnage is not much greater than it is at present, according to an analysis of the interoastal movement made public tonight by the shipping board. The board's bureau of research estimated the present movement at the rate of 3,500,000 tons a year, with every prospect of a steady increase.

During last August, September and October, cargo movements from the Atlantic and Gulf coasts to the Pacific coast totalled 393,940 tons, exclusive of oil in bulk. During the same period the movement in the reverse direction was 442,826 tons, exclusive of oil, making total intercoastal shipments through the canal for the three months 836,766 tons, or at the rate of nearly 3,500,000 tons a year.

Engaged in this service during the period covered by the analysis were 98 vessels aggregating about 900,000 deadweight tons.

200TH ANNIVERSARY OLD NORTH CHURCH BOSTON

Boston, Dec. 31.—The Old North church of Boston, in whose belfry lanterns were hung for Paul Revere's ride, is of more influence than the greatest cathedral in America in teaching the traditions of the nation's birth to a growing foreign population, Bishop William Lawrence of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts said in a sermon today commemorating the 200th anniversary of the historic building, officially known as Christ church.

Boston, England, joined with Boston, Mass., in today's exercises. The bishop, presiding at the ceremony, dedicated historic treasures presented to the Old North church by the mayor of the English city. These included bricks from cells in the Guildhall at Boston, England, where were imprisoned some of the Pilgrim fathers who later emigrated to America, and a flagstone taken from in front of a door leading from the lower hall of the Guildhall to the cells.

WEST LEADS EAST IN NUMBER OF INTERSECTIONAL GAMES WON

San Francisco, Dec. 31—Western college football teams hold the lead in the list of east vs. west games held each New Year's Day at Pasadena, Cal., where the University of Southern California and Pennsylvania State College meet tomorrow in the sixth intercollegiate intersectional contest.

Since 1916, when the first Pasadena east-west game was played, the western representatives have won three, the eastern teams have won one and one game has been tied.

In the first game, Washington State College, representing the west, defeated Brown University 14-0, and in 1917 the University of Oregon won from Pennsylvania University by the same score. In 1918 there was no game and in 1919 contest between the Great Lakes Naval Training Station and the Mare Island Marine team, won by the former 17-0 was substituted.

The third game, probably the most famous of all, came in 1920 when a great Oregon machine went down to defeat 7-6 by a greater team from Harvard University. In 1921, the University of California, playing its first east-west game, defeated Ohio State Big Ten champion, 28-0. Last year California again was selected and played a tie with Washington and Jefferson.

California won the coast championship again this year but declined to be a candidate for the honor of representing the west, so the Pacific Coast Conference selected Southern California, which had held the champion Bears to 12-0, the lowest score of any game won by California during the season.

Southern California has had a good season, winning every game except the California contest. In tomorrow's game, the Trojans will be playing against the Bezdek style of football, something the westerners have not met this season. Hugo Bezdek, coach of the Penn state team, formerly coached at Oregon but has been in the east several years.

SIKI FILES SUIT FOR RESTORATION OF TITLE

Paris, Dec. 31—"Battling" Siki filed a suit in the civil courts yesterday against Paul Rosseau, president of the French boxing federation, for annulment of his nine months' disqualification and for restoration of his title of European heavyweight champion which he won from Georges Carpentier.

The suit is a result of Rosseau's failure to answer a formal summons served upon him last week directing him to produce within three days the records upon which Siki was disqualified. The Senegalese boxer reasserts, in the action begun today, that the federation's action was illegal because he was not allowed to give his testimony.

Battery B Seconds Play

The basketball team that will play at the state armory this afternoon is the Battery B second team and not the former Crescent A. C. team that played under the battery name last week. The Battery B seconds are fast players and a good game is expected.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Detroit fans expect Derrill Pratt, who comes to Detroit from the Red Sox, will be a big help to the Tigers.

Having won eleven six-day bicycle races during his career as a long distance rider, Al Goullet may lay claim to being the world's champion.

The Baltic Wanderers won a rough game from the Pawtucket Five on Friday evening by a score of 37 to 23. Two Baltic players were injured.

Duffy Lewis, Pacific Coast league manager and player, was a recent visitor to New York and Boston as a big leaguer for many years.

Lightweight Maxie Green has been signed to meet Pep O'Briend at Scranton, Pa., Jan. 11. Green is also signed to meet some good opponent at the Commonwealth club, Jan. 20.

Eddie Egan, the Yale heavyweight, continues to show his high-class boxing at Oxford. He has won both the light heavyweight and the heavyweight championships of the English university.

Tommy Murphy, of Poughkeepsie, has proved to be one of the greatest drivers of light harness horses ever produced in this country and has won more than $1,000,000 in purses during the past fourteen years on the tracks.

Sid Bernard, former Brooklyn high school student, who is at present in Los Angeles, Cal., has been signed for two matches on the Pacific coast. At Hollywood and Vernon, Cal., he will meet the best opponents obtainable within the next two weeks.

Frankie Jerome has been matched to try conclusions with the newly arrived Filipino, Mike Balarino, in a 12 round contest to be staged at Madison Square Garden Jan. 5. Pepper Martin is paired with Jack Bernstein in the stellar event of 15 rounds.

"Buck" Herzog, former major league star, who was mentioned in the "Rube" Benton case, now before baseball commissioner Landis, wants the affair reopened and has retained Charles H. Knapp as his attorney. Knapp is well known in baseball having served as Jack Dunn's legal adviser for years.

A special New Year's day show will be staged at the Broadway Exhibition club of Brooklyn on Monday afternoon that will bring together Vincent Pepper Martin and Frankie Edwards in a return match of 12 rounds. Martin earned the verdict over Edwards in a sensational bout at that club a month ago.

In Pittsburgh, where Harry Greb is an idol, they say that Harry, acting as his own manager, has asked for $30,000 to meet Tom Gibbons in a no decision bout. He wants $40,000 to meet Gene Tunney in the same kind of a scrap, which seems to be an indication that he thinks Gene is tougher than Tom.

Matchmaker George Dwyer is busy trying to arrange the semi-final bout for his show in Meriden on January 15. He said today he was thinking about using Tracy Ferguson with some good boy and he might also send Young Silverberg of Ansonia against a classy performer. "I really haven't decided, but I have a lot of good material from which to pick a runner-up to the Kaplan-Travers bout," remarked the well-known matchmaker.

Gene Tunney, former light heavyweight king, will take Champion Harry Greb's place against Jimmy Delaney at Oklahoma City Jan. 8. Gene was scheduled to meet Harry Foley at Omaha, Neb., on that date, but had the bout put back until Jan. 15. Tunney will also hook up with Chuck Wiggins at New Orleans on Jan. 22.

The show for the Pioneer club, New York, for next Tuesday evening has been completed. In the three star 10 round bouts Billy Shade will tackle Wolf Larsen, George Shade will oppose Mike Burke and Danny Ross will tackle Al Boyle. In a special six round contest Alex Sclair, the former A. A. U. light heavyweight champ, makes his professional debut against Jerry Kenny.

TEXAS LED ALL STATES IN NUMBER OF LYNCHINGS

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 31.—The state of Texas led the nation in the number of lynchings during 1922, with Georgia second and Mississippi third according to statistics compiled [illegible] public here today by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute.

Fifty-seven persons were lynched during the year—51 negroes and 6 whites, the report said, seven less than the 64 in 1921.

The report further stated that there were 58 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Fourteen of these instances were in northern states and 44 were in southern states.

Faber Stands Out As Leading Pitcher

Urban C. Faber, the Chicago White Sox veteran, is the leading American League pitcher for this year, as he was in 1921, according to the official averages. In the season just ended he led all rivals in hurling complete games, 31; held opponents to the lowest average of earned runs per game, 2.81; worked the most innings, 353; won 21 games, the fourth largest number of victories, and fanned 148 opponents, one less than Urban J. Shocker of St. Louis, who led in strikeouts with 149.

Joe Bush of the New York Yankees garnered 26 victories and lost only 7 games, leading the League in percentage of games won and lost, with an average of .788. Opponents scored 3.32 earned runs a game off his delivery. Rommel of the Philadelphia Athletics won 27 games for his seventh-place team, a truly remarkable record.

Owing to the increasing practice of changing pitchers, the pitchers have been divided into groups.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT'S BUSINESS SURVEY.

Highly gratifying are the industrial and business conditions in eastern Connecticut as disclosed by the annual survey of The Bulletin. It displays unmistakable evidence of the emergence from the period of depression and a return of the much desired prosperity.

The figures are of course only satisfying proof of the indications that have been manifest in all directions with mills and factories running full and some overtime, with unemployment a thing of the past and with the building trades unusually active.

The two counties have not established a new record this year, except that it be a new record under more normal conditions. There is a welcome growth in outdoor mercantile as well as residential, there has been a larger wage disbursement while the bank turnovers reflects the increased volume of business activities, and the substantial gains in the savings banks deposits indicate that there is ability as well as a disposition to save.

It is a healthy and consistent progress that eastern Connecticut reports for 1922. The growth reflects the appreciation of the advantages and facilities of this end of the state.

One of the impressive factors locally is the amount of residential building which stands out prominently in contrast with the previous few years. It shows confidence and means a response to one of the great needs of the city.

Industrially, changes of importance have taken place here during the past year, all of which give promise of even better results during 1923. While there was much to be elated over during the twelve months just past all indications point to that showing being exceeded during the new year.

In connection with some of our problems President Leroy of the chamber of commerce properly declares "The success of any community, in these days of active competition for business, lies in the willingness, the goodwill and the spirit of the people to work in unison for the advancement of the town, in order to successfully compete with other towns throughout the state."

And when he calls attention to the fact that "We are faced with a tax rate that is unjust, and a system that is archaic. Our schools need our immediate attention. . . . We need good transportation and we should be keenly alive to our possibilities and interests. The Thames river should be made a valuable asset to our facilities for providing good transportation," he states facts which should be apparent to every member of the community and they in turn should be eager to aid in their solution. It makes an excellent goal for the new year.

There are the best of reasons for working for the development of Norwich in every direction, and through the cooperation of the cities and towns of this part of the state to give the two counties the recognition of its facilities and the growth that it is entitled to.

BORAH PULLS IN HORNS.

Senator Borah has recalled his amendment to the naval appropriation bill which would have authorized the president to call an international conference to deal with the European economic situation. He did this after it became apparent that there was strong opposition to it, that it was superfluous, that it dealt with matters which the president had for some time been taking up with foreign countries and that it was an amendment that could be and was regarded by the president as embarrassing.

Naturally there are certain preliminaries which have to be gone through in connection with any such conference. Matters of such a nature rest with the president. The inference to be gained from the move made by Senator Borah was that he didn't think the president was up to his job but instead of finding out in the proper way he undertook to tell the world that he was the one to give the president the proper prompting. From all indications he didn't think that he would encounter such a situation, and even after he did and had been told that what he proposed had already been undertaken by the president he was reluctant to do other than insist that his proposal be pushed through.

Senator Borah may be entirely sincere in the move that he made, but he should realize by this time that it would have been a much more creditable move had he attempted to find out whether anything was being done. Inasmuch as it is the duty of the president to deal with such matters such a course would have been entirely justified before making such a display which indicates anything but the cooperation that ought to be expected from him. There is too much business before congress needing constructive action without occupying the attention of the senate with matters which are already being attended to through the proper channel. Next time the senator from Idaho attempts to meddle in such matters he may remember to make inquiries. He gets a setback from this that does him no credit.

UNREDEEMED VICTORY NOTES.

When the treasury department at Washington announces that there are about a quarter of a billion dollars worth of Victory notes which have not been redeemed, although they were called for payment December 15 and interest on them ceased at that time, it certainly indicates that the holders are not afraid they will not get their money, but it is entirely possible in spite of the publicity that has been given to the matter that there are those who fail to appreciate the fact that the bonds they hold should be turned in.

For the most part this sum is probably made up of small holdings, but it should be remembered that while the bonds are as good as gold, and the principal and interest to the 15th of December will be paid, they are not now drawing interest and will get no further interest. It is therefore time that they were collected and banked, or invested in other government securities, or elsewhere.

LARGER STATE POLICE FORCE.

No one knows what the general assembly is going to do in the way of meeting the demands that are certain to be made upon it at the coming session. It isn't to be expected that there will be any radical departure from the policy of economy that has been in vogue, but there are demands which are certain to get serious consideration because of a recognition of their merit.

Among this number there will undoubtedly be included the request for an increase in the state police force. Whether or not it will be more than doubled remains to be seen, but in view of what has been accomplished and the service that is expected from this organization the effort in behalf of an increase in the force must be looked upon as reasonable.

Much excellent work has been done and a most favorable impression has been created by the state police department as the result of the present organization. It was reorganized for the purpose of more efficiently meeting the needs of the outlying communities and it has done it to the extent that has been possible under existing conditions.

For a department of 50 men to cover the state of Connecticut means that they must be subject to the call of a wide territory and that matters of vital importance to the small communities cannot get the attention that they need with an inadequate force.

There are many laws which the state police department is expected to enforce in addition to giving attention to crimes that may be committed and which require a more thorough investigation that the small town authorities are prepared to make.

Having displayed an efficiency during the period since reorganization that is praiseworthy and demonstrated the advantage of such protection to the outlying communities where little other active enforcement of law and order exists a strong sentiment in behalf of a larger state police force will not be surprising.

PATENT OFFICE NEEDS.

Approval has been given by the director of the budget to the request for an increase of $120,000 for the patent office that there may be an enlargement of the staff of experts who deal with the applications for patents.

It was not many months ago that the need of making additional provision for this important government office was brought to the attention of congress. This was because the force was inadequate to take care of the business and because experts who had been trained in the office and become proficient in their work and were invaluable to the department were being drawn away by the attractive offers they received from corporations which were in a position to pay salaries far in excess of the government.

So great was the delay in handling the patent office business at that time that an increased appropriation for the patent office was granted. It has helped the situation but it has not succeeded in overcoming the handicaps prevailing there. This can be realized when it is stated that those employes who examine the claims for patents are six months behind in their work, and that there is an average of 9,000 claims a month, while in addition the office is a month in arrears on its correspondence.

What this means to inventors who are trying to get some article patented, or those who are seeking information from the office concerning other patents, can be readily appreciated. With the director of the budget approving the increase sought, for a department that is more than self supporting, there ought to be no question of favorable action.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is a quick leap from the old to the new.

Have you equipped your car with the new and necessary registration tag?

No one would object if Senator Borah wanted to wish Europe a happy New Year.

Of course new resolutions that last but one day might just as well not have been made.

This is the one day when the new resolutions will come the nearest to being lived up to.

The man on the corner says: Much depends on you as to whether it is going to be a happy new year.

The storm of rain, sleet and snow slid up the coast and beyond without any evidence of having had chains on.

Striking the bottom of the bin is a decidedly different matter this winter in comparison with some in the past.

Probably Senator Borah will be proud of the democratic support he was getting in his effort to embarrass the president.

Those declaring 85 per cent of the liquor being sold to be bad would make it 100 per cent if they were prohibitionists.

May the new year contain a full measure of happiness and prosperity for each and every reader is the wish of The Bulletin.

These are the days when the friends of the birds are seeing to it that they can get that which will prevent them from starving to death.

It is suggested that a treaty between Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany not to make war for 30 years would help some. But why not make it a hundred and really do something.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Coffee may be used as the liquid in spice or ginger cakes. It gives an interesting flavor.

Orange sauce brings out the real flavor of roast venison.

An excellent dessert course is frozen fruit served on lettuce with cream dressing. The fruit may be frozen in the can, then cut into cubes and piled on the lettuce hearts.

It is best not to wash eggs until ready to use, as washing makes the shells porous and they absorb the odor of strong foods.

If the bottom crust of the fruit tart is rubbed with the white of an egg it will prevent the juice from soaking into it.

So often the extract and other small bottles in the kitchen have accidents to the corks and when we are in a hurry the cork is obstinate and must be dug out with a fork. Buy some small screweyes and fasten one of these in each of the corks. They can be changed as the bottle is emptied and you will be pleased at the time and trouble saved by this novel cork puller.

When you are making hash and find you are lacking enough potato, try using ground bread crumbs. An improvement over all potato.

Veal steak and port chops are greatly improved by being dipped into a dish of bread crumbs before frying. If first dipped in beaten egg they are especially good, but will do very well without egg.

Fine ashes, moistened with turpentine, are excellent for cleaning steel and brass.

Tinned foods should be chosen with care. Reject any which bulge, as this is a sign of fermentation, and rusty tin, denotes age, or storage in a damp place, so should be avoided.

As dust works through carpets and so tends to wear the pile, it is important that they should be taken up fairly frequently, so that the dust underneath may be removed.

When the bacon bone or beef bone has yielded up its scraps, add them to a couple of cups of well boiled rice that have been fried up with a shredded onion. Mix the while together well, heat up, season and serve.

CHEERFUL KITCHEN

There are more things to consider in a kitchen than ever its usefulness, convenience and hygiene. Remember that it is always possible to add attractive touches without making it less serviceable and less hygienic. It may have an attractive oilcloth kept bright by frequent applications of oilcloth varnish. It may have any sort of curtains at the window so long as they are substantial and washable, and even the old kitchen chair may be painted a bright, pleasing color.

CARE OF BROOMS

Corn brooms may be washed in hot soapsuds, but care must be taken not to let the water rust the wire which holds the straws to the handle. Among cleaning materials which it is well to keep on hand are ammonia, borax, washing soda, lye, kerosene, floor oils, turpentine, cleaning powders and abrasives, furniture polish and floor wax.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

For thin lashes and brows rub vaseline into the brows and lashes every evening, rubbing with the growth of the hair and not the opposite direction.

Curd soap is a good cheap soap for bathing and shampoo. Castile is better and only slightly more expensive Unscented oatmeal bleaches the skin, keeping it soft and white. Tar soap is inexpensive and delightful as a shampoo. None of these cost very much.

Masks have always been effective in treating wrinkles, many of the effeminate French kings used pink face creams and silk oiled masks of various delicate colors. But something more comfortable and something more often effective, is a bit of silk court plaster, pasted over the wrinkle, after the wrinkle has been gently smoothed out with the fingers.

The trouble with most eyelashes is that the color does not go the full length of the hair, so that only a third or half of them can be seen. Theatrical people, of course, make up their lashes, they have to, and so have credit for a lengthened thickness they do not possess. But it is bad taste to use makeup like this for the drawing room or street.

TO CLEAN BOTTLES

The best method of cleaning water bottles is with a handful of fine, white gravel kept for the purpose. Others use the same amount of crushed eggshells, from which the inner lining or film inside the shell has been taken. Shot is also excellent.

Fill the bottle half full with hot soapsuds after setting it in hot water and shake the shells, gravel or shot around in the suds to remove any marks inside. Rinse it well in hot water and drain it upside down. Polish the glass outside with a glass towel while the bottle is hot.

CASTOR OIL HELPS LEATHER

Leather furniture coverings last much longer and look better if rubbed occasionally with castor oil, to restore the oil that gradually dries out. The liquid should be well rubbed in and any excess carefully wiped off, so that no film remains to gather dust and so darken the leather.

CROSS PATCH IN COLORS

Cross patch, the knitted fabric that was introduced in solid colors only last year, is shown this year in twenty varieties of two-toned effects. Its possibilities as a cape or skirt medium for sports wear are more tempting than ever.

In the same breath, velvet deserves mention. Chiffon velvet, with its soft, luscious lines so beautifully adaptable to the draped silhouette now so completely in favor, appears everywhere. Seven out of ten of the costumes worn in one of the most fashionably costumed plays of the season were developed in chiffons velvet.

CHINA FLOWER POTS

Small china flower pots with china flowers apparently growing in them have unusual charm and would make original little favors. There are little pots, plain and decorated, and single flowers to strew upon the table or to place in the shallow bowls to popular at present.

A HOUSEHOLD HELP

Few housewives realize the many uses to which turpentine may be put. A little of it in the suds on wash day lightens the laundry labor and a teaspoonful to a quart of water, if applied to plants once a week, will make the leaves greener and cause the blossoms to become brighter. It is a sure preventive against moths by just dropping a trifle in the bottom of chests, drawers and cupboards.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Neck furs have undergone a curious change. While animal scarfs still are in good taste today, the newer neckpieces extend downward in back till they are of the proportions and shape of a small cape.

In a gown of black rep, a long godet of white broadcloth is held in place by an ornament of ivory and tortoise shell.

Veils are in greater demand than they had been for several seasons.

Brown stockings, in the middle shades, such as caramel and cocoa, are in good style for cold weather wear.

An evening gown of silver cloth is adorned with peacock tails of pearls and rhinestones, and has a slender train topped by a narrow banding of jewels.

Lingerie made of a crinkled silk crepe comes in several shades of delicate rose, blue, lavender and honey dew. It is attractively packed in boxes for Christmas gifts.

A plain back velvet band, very deep, fastened invisibly round the neck, is one of the most becoming things for a woman with a long throat to wear, and it is always smart.

Green and silver is one of the fashionable color schemes of midseason.

A recent idea in evening bandeaux is the straight, narrow band of imitation seashells. Worn with an ocean green costume, foaming into lace, it is especially attractive. The shells are very tiny and of the scallop variety, made of stiff bits of varnished ribbon.

Shoes with bows, rosettes, cockades, and other conventional designs or ribbons—metallic, Paisley or in the plain or two-tone colors, are growing in popularity. To be absolutely in the mode one must have an attractive buckle with a ribbon decoration.

Linings for evening cloaks are still sumptuous lengths of brocade, but linings for the less dressy outer garments have toned down considerably from the wild colors of the past season. Printed satins are the favorites today in shades of gray, blue or sand.

A designer who is noted for his artistic sense has a word to say for the kind of hat that should be worn with the fashionable draped skirt. If the skirt is draped on the left hip, he says, wear a hat that slants to the right side of the head or one which has trimming massed on the right side.

VEIL NOVELTIES

The lorgnette veil is the leader just now. This is a circular veil in a very large silk mesh, and is intended to hang just over the eyes in front and at the back. It may be had in gold, silver, caramel, navy, black and brown.

Another novelty of the more extreme order is the apron veil, which is meant to hang down in front about six inches below the waist but can also be worn with the plain section over the face and with the embroidered part in ripples at the back.

Exceedingly popular is the square veil with octagonal mesh and scroll border. This scroll border, by the way, is confined to the square veils almost entirely and is rarely found in those by the yard.

Spanish lace is said to be in demand in veils about two yards long and 18 inches wide. Another type which is shown for which there is some call is the steamer veil of chiffon with the net center for the face.

In veils by the yard chenille dots are the favored form of decoration, either evenly scattered or in groups. They are liked most in self color. But there is also some call for such contrasts as taupe and Copenhagen, and navy and black.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

If you keep a crochet needle in your work basket it will save you a great deal of time and bother when the end of a drawing string or tape disappears within its casing. It can easily be drawn out with the hook.

Very old thin blankets will make splendid bed covers if stitched together and covered with pretty chintz or cretonne. One blanket and a layer of cotton wool is the ideal combination for bedspreads of this description should not be heavy, especially where young children are concerned.

One clever and practical housewife who sews a good deal always keeps the top drawer of her sewing machine empty and when sewing she pulls the drawer out a trifle and drops all trimmings, basting threads and scraps into it. Her floor is always free from scraps and she can leave her sewing hurriedly without the reproach of a disordered-looking room.

Old sweaters, discarded by the bigger boys of a family, may easily be cut down for little ones' overalls for winter-time. Tape securely just above where the cut is to come, otherwise the wool frays.

STRIKING EFFECTS IN EMBROIDERY

The mode for embroidery on knitted costumes is one which offers unlimited opportunities to the clever designer, and though the spring season brought forth many and varied developments of the idea, the possibilities have been by no means exhausted. A particularly attractive series of knitted frocks in pure silk embroidered in colors was recently shown.

One model with an opening down the front is represented in this group, and is particularly interesting in contrast with the dresses of last season which had no opening beyond that of a round or V neck. This model has embroidery simulating a vest, in the middle of which the opening is set, and shows the convertible collar, and Russian sleeves slit above the wrist.

A reversal of the usual type of knitted silk dress, in which the bodice is plain and the skirt trimmed, is found in a dress of delicate Paris blue with the bodice covered with embroidery and the skirt plain, except for an embroidered border at the hem. Another effective use of embroidery appears on a midnight blue dress, where it is confined to leaf motifs in brilliant crimson on the sleeves and around the hem.

Wool dresses show the same general type of embroidery, and have long gathered capes to match, with standing collars of fur. One two-piece suit is in a mixture of fiber silk and wool, with stripes of fiber silk sewed on and little conventional motifs knitted in self colors.

TO CLEAN DUSTERS.

Dustless dusters should be washed frequently, and the oil in them may be easily renewed by rinsing the cloths in water containing one tablespoon kerosene. The heavy woolen cloths used in polishing floors may be soaked for an hour or more in hot water, using three tablespoons of soda to a gallon of water, then wash in hot soapsuds and finally rinse in hot water, hang out in the sun to dry.

CONCERNING WOMEN

England has nearly 900 women magistrates.

Mrs. Sue R. Wermis, appointed a deputy sheriff of Gloucester county, is the first woman to occupy that office in New Jersey.

Mrs. Margaret C. Montville of Kansas City has been granted a patient on an improved foot rest to be used in shoe shining parlors.

Under a new ruling, women employed in the government printing office in Washington who perform the same operations as men are to receive the same pay.

One and a quarter million dollars is the sum which the Illinois Women's Athletic club plans to spend in the building and equipment of its new clubhouse in Chicago.

BOOKHOLDER

A book holder of huckaback or some other serviceable material makes a novel yet inexpensive gift. It has handles which slip easily over the arm and it may be more or less embroidered.

MONOGRAMS

The wearer's monogram is the distinctive touch to many of the winter frocks and blouses. In the ready-to-wear shops the monogram is frequently unintelligible, taking the form of a Chinese design or a tantalizing hieroglyphic.

RECIPES

Potato Biscuits—Boil without peeling six medium-sized white potatoes, remove from the water when soft enough to be pierced with a fork, and drain dry on a towel. Remove the skins and mash the potatoes with a tablespoon of butter and a warmed pint of sweet milk. Beat with a fork until light and free from lumps, then beat in one egg. Let the mixture cool, and add a yeast cake, dissolved in half a cup of warm water sifted flour to make a stiff dough. Let this rise, and when nearly double in bulk, pull off pieces the size of an egg and lightly roll into balls. Put these in a biscuit pan, leaving room between for further rising, and let stand in a warm place for half an hour, then brush the tops with sweet milk and make.

Prune Chocolate Layer Cake—Cream a heaping tablespoon of butter with a cup of powdered sugar add the beaten yolks of four eggs, a gill of cream and two cups of flour that has been sifted together with a heaping teaspoon of baking powder. Last of all fold in lightly the whites of the four eggs beaten very stiff. Bake the cake in layer tins.

The chocolate filling: Put one cup of milk in a double boiler. When it reaches the boiling point, stir in three tablespoons of grated chocolate and two teaspoons of cornstarch wet with two tablespoons of cold milk. Cook, stirring steadily until smooth, then remove from the fire and pour a little at a time, upon the yolk of an egg that has been beaten light with half a cup of sugar. Return to the saucepan and cook, stirring constantly for about ten minutes, or until the mixture is thick and smooth. When cold spread the chocolate upon the cake layers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Further Explanation by Ms. Capell.

Mr. Editor: In a former letter to The Bulletin, I said, in substance, that sincere Christians may disagree regarding the Bible and its teachings. Mr. Miller's letter which appeared recently in The Bulletin confirms my statement. It does not follow that if sin, disease, and death are not real, we must "discard the teachings of the Bible, and Christ's teachings with the rest." This deduction of Mr. Miller's prompts me to explain further the unreality of disease and death as taught in Christian Science.

Should a child believe that two and two are five, and express his belief upon the blackboard, the incorrect statement would appear true and real to him, but to the teacher it would be apparent as an error—the expression of a mathematical unreality. The child's mathematical healing, so to speak, would take place when he learned that two and two are four.

Disease is an error of the carnal mind physically manifest. The false belief producing disease is always due to the lack of spiritual understanding. And because disease is the product of false belief, it cannot be actually real, although it may seem to be very real to the suffering mortal. A man completely healed by spiritual understanding of fear, ignorance, and sin, would be able to prove the unreality of disease and death, as Jesus did, by healing the sick and raising the dead.

Mr. Miller is wrong in thinking that I believe that the daughter of Jairus was sleeping as the disciples thought Lazarus was. I was simply endeavoring to show that Jesus did not regard death as a reality, while those who "laughed him to scorn," did. Christian Scientists understand that Jesus proved by His resurrection the unreality of death. And in II Timothy 1.10, Paul refers to Christ Jesus in these words: "Who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel."

Yours sincerely,
WILLIAM CAPELL,
Christian Science Committee on Publication.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Today is the forty-third birthday anniversary of King Vagiravudh, the progressive ruler of Siam. He was proclaimed Crown Prince in 1895 and succeeded to the throne in 1910. His education was conducted on the most modern lines. For five years he remained in Siam, studying the affairs of his own country as well as the languages and laws of others, for law is one of the things ranked as an absolutely necessary study in Simese court circles. At the expiration of five years, the Crown Prince was allowed to visit Germany and France with his tutors. Through travel and study he has become thoroughly acquainted with the languages, customs and instructions of western Europe. Since he ascended the throne the young king has given evidence of the liberal tendencies of his mind by instituting many reforms. The country over which he rules has an area of about 200,000 square miles and a population of six and a quarter millions. Bangkok, the capital, is a city of more than 400,000.

GROUP WATCH NIGHT
SERVICE AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Members of the First Baptist church, United Congregational church, German Lutheran church, Christ Episcopal church, Trinity Episcopal church, and the Federated church attended the group Watch Night service held Sunday night at the Central Baptist church.

The programme of the evening opened at 7.30 o'clock in charge of Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, who made a short address of welcome. Then followed a group of selections from The Messiah, rendered in a most perfect manner by the members of the choir. The song service and numbers were:

Overture, organ; Comfort Ye My People, tenor; Behold, a Virgin, contralto; But Thou That Tellest, contralto and chorus; For Behold Darkness Shall Cover the Earth; Pastoral Symphony, organ; And the Angel of the Lord, soprano; And Suddenly There Was With Them, soprano; Glory to God in the Highest, chorus; air, Rejoice Greatly, soprano, Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind, contralto; He Shall Feed His Flock, soprano; Come Unto Him, contralto; Hallelujah Chorus, organ.

The quartette consisted of Mrs. Beatrice Ashe-Maher, soprano; Mrs. Reuben P. Potter, contralto; Arthur R. Blackledge, tenor; Charles D. Geer, barlton and director; with Miss Louise Fuller, organist.

Following the song service the stereoptican pictures on The New Exodus of the Negro Race were shown while Rev. Dr. Pitt read the story as told by the pictures. The story told of the conditions of the negro race in the south and in the north since the new exodus, especially the part that the Baptist Mission work has to do with in these two sections of the country.

Following the lectures a social hour was enjoyed in Bushnell chapel during which time Christmas carols were played on a Brunswick loaned for the occasion by the Talking Machine Shop, and by radio, operated by Carl W. Brown. There were also light refreshments served by the young people of the church, Miss Eugenie Dean, chairman.

At 10 o'clock the watch night service began, this also being in charge of the young people. The feature of the watch night service was the address of Rev. Joseph Palmer of Hartford, who in his talk gave out considerable food for thought during the coming year. Rev. Mr. Palmer, who is a forceful speaker, had the attention of his large audience throughout his inspiring address.

Just prior to the end of the year of 1922 there was a short session of prayer and after the New Year of 1923 had been born, the service came to a close.

TELEPHONE BUILDINGS WOULD FILL FOUR CITY BLOCKS

If all the buildings owned by The Southern New England Telephone Company were placed in one section of a city, they would fill about four city blocks. If the buildings rented, wholly or in large part, were gathered the same way, the result would add about three full city blocks to the group. There would be a ten-story and numerous other large and smaller office structures, great garages, and about as fine a selection of residences, converted into central offices in small towns, as can be found anywhere.

With land and buildings owned in thirty-five towns of the state, the book valuation of this reality is close to the $3,000,000 mark. The company's buildings have a wide range of value, from $200 upward to $800,000, with floor space of about 500,000 square feet.

The company's first property purchase was in New Haven in 1878 and consisted of a plot of land which now is the site of the general office building.

Today, some forty-one years after the formation of the company, it owns land and buildings located in thirty-five towns of our state, and rents 58 buildings in 51 towns.

In Hartford approximately $51,000 is vested in telephone realty; New Haven rates second with $733,000; Stamford third with $221,000; Bridgeport fourth with $225,000 and Waterbury fifth with $127,000.

Of company owned buildings, there are 34 central offices, four garages, two headquarters' buildings, one operators' dwelling, one shop and buildings for other uses, while the company owns seven plots of land, held for future central offices.

The company rents 44 buildings, wholly or partially, for operating or commercial purposes or both, nine buildings for stockrooms, four garages and one for division offices.

The tallest telephone building is in New Haven. The largest is in Hartford, costing about $314,000 and having approximately 46,634 square feet.

BOY HURT SLIDING ON CONNELL STREET

Robert Eccleston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eccleston of 402 West Main street was painfully injured at 10 o'clock Saturday morning while sliding on Connell street. The sled on which the boy was riding had evidently gained too great a speed and he could not make the corner at the foot of the steep grade, and crashed into the fence around the street cutting a long gash in his head.

Dr. Harrison Gray was called and immediately took the boy to the Backus hospital where fifteen stitches were used to close the wound. The boy was discharged from the hospital Sunday and returned to his home where he was resting Sunday evening as comfortably as could be expected.

HELD FOR CRIMINAL COURT ON CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, Dec. 31.—Moses Tatro, charged with manslaughter, was brought by the state police department, before Justice of the Peace William R. Palmer, at a court held in Voluntown, Saturday. The charges against Tatro, which are summed up in manslaughter, specify in detail, that "negligently and with gross misconduct, said Tatro did strike and run over with a motor vehicle, one Thomas McGuire, being then and there on said highway, and did cause the loss of the life of said McGuire."

Tatro, admitting running over the man, entered a plea of not guilty, to the charge of manslaughter.

Two witnesses were called that were with Tatro in the car; Joseph Desrosiers and Charles Miller. They were closely questioned by the court and by the state police. A number of facts were brought out and set forth, that cause the general complexion of the case to be viewed somewhat differently than it was a week ago.

Outstanding among them are two—Tatro and his party were "feeling good," also, the front lights on the Tatro machine were not burning, as required by law. Judge Palmer asked what he meant by "feeling good" to which he replied, "Well, you know what kind of stuff we have to drink now."

Tatro was bound over for trial in the next criminal term of the court of common pleas, under $1000 bonds. John N. Lewis of Voluntown guaranteed the bond.

COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY GETS INDIAN COLLECTION

The New London County Historical society has received a gift of 156 Indian relics, sent by Prof. Warren K. Moorehead, curator of the museum at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. These were sent because of the co-operation of the society with the academy, when plans were being perfected last winter, for the surveys to examine the Indian remains of New England.

Among these articles are hammer stones, axes, grinding stone, notched club head, pestles, portions of adze blades, notched pebbles used as sinkers, three unfinished knives, fragments of broken pottery, arrow points, spear head, black flint reamer, half of bone needle.

Professor Moorhead recently spent a portion of one afternoon at the Shaw Mansion helping to list these articles which have now properly marked, and arranged for exhibition.

Since the beginning of the society year in September, the membership has been steadily increasing. The following have joined: Louis P. Allyn of Mystic, Richard E. Belden, Mrs. Richard E. Belden, Miss Anne Campbell, Miss Mary E. Coates, of Mystic, Mrs. F. A. Coates of Mystic, Miss Charlotte Trumbull Gilman of Norwich Town, Miss Charlotte Molyneaux Holloway, Robert S. Holt of Summit, N. J., Miss Marietta Jackson, Dr. George S. B. Leonard of Mystic, Mrs. Leroy Ludwig of Stonington, George G. Miner of Groton, Mrs. George G. Miner of Groton, Miss Henriette T. CANTERBURY POULTRY CLUB INCREASING ITS MEMBERSHIP

The second meeting of the club held in Grange hall, Canterbury showed a membership of twenty-one or a representation of nearly 10,000 birds. It is their ambition to go over that number if possible.

Prof. Jones looked over the records brought in and after making comparisons and discussing both good and weak points, gave a very interesting talk on simple and economical feeding and watering devices.

Each member brought up his or her most difficult problems and a great deal of interest was shown in the discussions.

Chicken pox has been very prevalent among some of the flocks throughout the county, and the subject of vaccination was taken up and conceded by those who had used it to be very successful.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 18th in Grange hall and the county agent and Prof. Jones of Storrs expect to be present.

MANY LOOKING FOR STATE POLICE BERTHS

That a place in the state police department holds attractions for a large number of Connecticut men is shown by the fact that more than 1,000 applications for appointment to the force have been received by Superintendent Robert T. Hurley in the last few months. The department at present is at its maximum strength of 50 men, which number is fixed by statute, and although there are no openings to be filled the applications have been put on file.

Superintendent Hurley said that the applications came from a variety of candidates. The majority have had military experience, he said, but few have had practical police training.

Some of the applicants were as young as 19 years, he said.

Since announcement was made that the state police commission had recommended in its annual report to the legislature, that the present force of 50 men be increased to 175 men there has been a further rush of applicants to bring their qualifications for the places before the department.

THREE DEAD FROM MONOXIDE GAS

Arthur P. Spencer, 34, his wife, Emma R., 32, and their four-months-old son, Harry Arthur, were found dead Sunday in a kitchenette in their apartments at 82 Berkeley avenue, New London. The bodies were discovered by the landlady, Mrs. Ellen G. Jones, who lived in the apartments over the Spencers. Mrs. Jones said that about 9.30 o'clock Sunday morning, she found steam and hot water coming into a flush tank in her apartments. She went downstairs to investigate and found all the doors of the Spencer apartment locked. She opened a window to the apartment and went in, finding the three bodies in the kitchenette.

Mrs. Jonas said she found the gas under the hot water heater lighted. Both Mr. and Mrs. Spencer were partly disrobed.

Dr. H. H. Heyer, the medical examiner, was called and after viewing the bodies sent for Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich. The doctor and coroner later gave it as their opinion that the deaths were caused by monoxide gas poisoning.

Dr. Heyer said he believed the Spencer family had been dead for several hours. The theory is that Mr. and Mrs. Spencer got up in the night to heat some food or water for the baby.

The family arrived in New London Saturday afternoon from Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. Spencer was to take charge of the New London plant of the Standard Oil company, on Tuesday.

Mr. Spencer was for some time in the employ of the Standard Oil company in Japan and returned to this country about five months ago, living in Brooklyn where their child was born.

The couple were blessed with 15 children, fourteen being born in the vicinity of Boswell avenue. The following children survive: Michael H., and Joseph F. Kelleher of New York city, Edward C. Kelleher of Norwich, Mrs. J. W. Miller of California, Misses Mary J., Margaret L., and Julia F. Kelleher of this city. There is one grandson, Joseph C. Collins, son of the late John T. Collins, and there are also grandchildren in New York city. There is one sister in New York, Mrs. Edward Donnelly.

Mrs. Kelleher preserved her faculties until the end and daily assisted in the household work. She kept up with the times in reading, and her knowledge of Norwich in the old days was great.

Her home was her first thought, and her love for her husband and children was the shining light of her long life. No service was too great for her to perform for her children and they repaid in her later life, giving her all possible attention until the end.

NORWICH TOWN

So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom. Psalms 90.12, was the text at the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church. The sermon by the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, was most appropriate for the closing Sunday of the year. The annual meeting of the Sunday school of the First Congregational church, with election of officers, reports, etc., was held during the Sunday school session at noon on Sunday. Miss Mary E. Wattles, secretary and treasurer, reported that the receipts for the year 1922, were $361. The school has given $140 for benevolences and the remainder has been used in the expense of the school. Among those to receive benevolences were—Near East relief, Newfoundland fishermen, Frederick Werking, in charge of a colored school in Lexington, Ky., and Rev. Edward H. Smith, a missionary in Ing Hok, China.

Those who reported for the various branches of the school were librarian, Frank S. Avery; library committee, Miss Mary E. Wattles, chairman; home department, Miss Jennie G. Bonney, and for the following organized classes: W. I. T.'s, Theodore Sterry, secretary; Men's Forum, Thomas P. Bacheler, president One Aim, Miss Susie Hyde, teacher Drop-in-Class, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery teacher.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of Dwight W. Avery as superintendent of the school, he being re-elected for the thirteenth year. For assistant superintendents, Henry T. Frazier was elected first and Clyde M. Beebe second. Miss Mary E. Wattles was re-elected secretary and treasurer for the twenty-seventh year. Frank S. Avery was re-elected librarian. Miss Jennie G. Bonney was re-elected assistant librarian, also superintendent of the home department. Frank E. Sterry was re-elected chorister and also assistant secretary and treasurer. The library committee is the same as last year, Mrs. Sarah Chapin Miss Mary E. Wattles and Miss M. Jennie Case.

It was voted that the distribution of funds for 1923 be left in the hands of the executive committee, which includes the church pastor, Rev. Mr. Bailey and all officers of the school.

Miss Gertrude Avery was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 5.30. The topic was A New Year's Psalm. Ps. 90:1-17.

Today (Monday) the annual festivities of the church will be held. Commencing at 3 o'clock, there will be a meeting for church members, and at 6 o'clock Organist Herbert L. Yerrington will give his forty-second annual organ recital. These recitals for many years have been attended by lovers of music and friends of Organist Yerrington and the church parish.

The New Year supper given by the parish will take place at 6 o'clock. Those who have been solicited are expected to have their contribution at the chapel as early in the afternoon as convenient.

Sunday morning at the First Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. James B Aldrich preached on the Three "Es."

The Young Men's class, Miss Florence M. Bennett, teacher, were in charge of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 5 o'clock, each one having taken an important part. This was followed by a watch night service, at which the speaker was Rev. Edward J. Ayers of Norwich.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

James Thompson, oldest resident of the town of Killingly, died during Saturday night at his home in Attawaugan where he had been making his home with his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Blackburn. Mr. Thompson was born in Moneide, Ireland, January 25, 1826, and as a matter of fact was one of the oldest residents of the state of Connecticut. His wife, who was Miss Mary Cassidy and who survives him, was 88 years old at her last birthday and they were the oldest married couple in this section of New England, having been married 74 years ago in Ireland.

Both were still young when they came to this country. Mr. Thompson was engaged as a tailor in New York for several years before coming here. This was prior to the outbreak of the Civil war, which upset business and Mr. Thompson came into this territory and since has been a resident of the town of Killingly. He was engaged at tailoring during the first few years of his residence in Killingly, but has been retired for many years and has been one of the wonder men of this part of the country, living along and enjoying the friendships and the good will of all those who knew him and in every instance was honor d.

Mr. Thompson became ill several weeks ago. He was so desperately ill during the early part of the month that his life was despaired of, but he rallied and lived with promise of lengthening out his long life until Saturday night, when the spark of life flickered and he passed out to such a reward as all hope awaits those who were as good and kindly as was Mr. Thompson. He leaves six sons, two sons, John F. of Pittsburg, and William J. of Central Village, also his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Blackburn at whose home he died at Attawaugan.

Danielson's business year ended in a rush of trade and good will for the ending year. Elsewhere in this issue will be found a review of the business year in Danielson and it is more than pleasing to those who are interested in the welfare of Danielson. The borough has grown amazingly in business interests and industrially in the last decade and the opening of 1923 should be hailed with delight with the average person who is concerned at all with the development of this section of the state. The year that is now today holds as much promise to any that has dawned for the present generation and for that special reason it will be a particularly happy holiday for the multitude, although there will always be those who on such festive occasions are weighted down by sorrow and the unfortunate experiences of the period.

No driving this morning January 1, 1923. That is the edict of the state motor vehicle department. Sunday morning the office in Meriden of the local police department received a telegram from Hartford reiterating that no cars would be allowed to run after Sunday with 1922 numbers. This decision is final. All of those who go out today with last year's numbers on their cars are likely inviting arrest. There can be and will be no exceptions to this ruling. The police have no option. If you go out today running on old numbers you will take your chances. If an officer sees you he will pick you up. And don't cheek the officer. He is acting under orders. He has no option. The state motor vehicle department has repeatedly announced that December 31 would mark the end of the period for driving under 1922 numbers. Those who failed to observe the warnings have only themselves to blame. The new numbers must be worn 1923 motors on your car today or leave it in the garage.

Public and parochial schools in the town of Killingly will reopen for the winter term tomorrow (Tuesday) morning. The pupils of these schools have had a fine holiday period, with coasting and skating in full measure, and the majority of the young people will be pleased to be back at their studies.

Amateur plays, dancing, basketball and other diversions are presented today for the enjoyment of the Danielson people and those of the surrounding towns.

And Tuesday is another—when everyone will be back on the job—trying to forget the second holiday period within ten days.

PUTNAM

According to superior court records eight Windham county couples will start the new year in the divorce court. Petitions for divorce recently filed with the clerk of court include a petition by Carrie L. Cady of Killingly who wants a separation from her husband, Harrison H. Cady, also of Killingly, on the ground of intolerable cruelty. She also seeks the custody of H. C. Cady, Jr., and alimony.

Another petitioner is Mrs. Alice E. Slater of East Brooklyn who asks for a divorce from William A. Slater on the ground of intolerable cruelty and requests that the custody of two minor children be assigned to her.

Mrs. Delia Ratte of Putnam also alleges that her husband, Peter J. Ratte, was cruel and abusive and asks a decree on these grounds and the custody of their child and alomany.

Delia M. Denelli of Willimantic seeks a divorce from Harvey S. Denelli of ort Wright, N. Y., alleging habitual intemperance and cruelty.

Horace D. Spencer of Willimantic asks for his decree on the ground of desertion. His wife is Agnes Spencer and they were married in 1894.

Lena C. Keefe, also of Willimantic, alleges that her husband, Joseph F. Keefe of the League Island Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, has deserted her. They were married in May, 1919.

Putnam Lodge of Elks held open house New YeYar's eve. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Jasper Holmes, Grand View, has returned from Saco, Me., where she was called by the death of her niece, Mrs. Alexander, wife of the postmaster of Saco, who died Christmas morning.

All of the stores and mills will cease business today in observance of the New Year.

In place of John G. Johnson, who refused to serve as alderman-at-large, Charles A. Richard was elected. Whether he will accept or not has not been decided. He states that the election was against his express wishes. He has not definitely declined the position but at present has the office under consideration. Mr. Richard has served two terms as alderman from the fourth ward.

Putnam police, headed by Sergeant George Laird acting captain during the absence of Captain Reynie Delage, made a visit to the pool room of Arthur Vanpose on Canal street, Friday night armed with a search warrant for intoxicating liquor. The officers came away with eight half pint bottles and three pint bottles which they allege contain contraband liquid. Vanpose has been ordered to appear in the city court on Tuesday morning.

Rev. Simeon E. Cozad, who has accepted a call to become pastor of the Second Congregational church of Putnam, will come to this city from East Bridgewater, Mass., the latter part of the week and will occupy the pulpit of his new pastorate next Sunday. The church has been without a regular pastor for nearly a year and the congregation will extend a warm welcome to Mr. Cozad.

Representatives and senators-elect of Windham county gathered at the Putnam Inn, Saturday, and were entertained at a luncheon by State Central Committeeman G. Harold Gilpatric of Putnam and Charles A. Gates of Willimantic. It was the regular gathering preceding the opening of the general assembly at which time preferences for committees are made known and the general situation regarding the forthcoming session talked over. County officers were also present.

As far as can be learned there is little opposition to showing moving pictures in Putnam in which Roscoe Arbuckle is featured. Whether or not the releases will be shown here will depend upon the attitude of the public according to managers of the local theatres. Mayor Chapdelaine has no intention of taking any action. He takes the view that the comedian having been exonerated of charges preferred against him has the same right to follow his profession as has any other man. The mayor, however will bring the matter to the attention of the common council at the meeting Tuesday night to afford the executive body an opportunity to take action if so desired.

Maurice McIntyre, a former Putnam boy, recently came face to face with members of the Ku-Klux-Klan in full regalia in the southern town where he is making his home. The visit of the Klan was, however, a friendly one. In a letter to his home in this city Mr. McIntyre writes of the Klan's visit as follows from Crichton, Alabama: "We had a party or social up at the church last Friday night to help the Sunday school raise some money and right in the middle of it in marched the Ku-Klux-Klan and they were in full regalia and it sure gave everybody a funny feeling, but nothing was said and one of them handed Miss Driver a letter and she opened it and she read it and they had sent fifteen dollars to help put the Sunday school on its feet. They then turned around and marched out without a word being spoken. I saw the note and it had the Klan seal on it so it was the real thing. They are pretty strong here."

Although the recent snow was heavy it has drifted somewhat and the state department and town road departments have had to get out the road scrapers to make the roads safely passable in some places. People arriving from Pomfret have had to make a detour through vacant lots in one or two places. An automobile stalled in the snow on the Putnam Heights road has made it necessary to detour around it.

New Year's eve falling on Sunday, the usual dances and parties could not be held. There were watch services at som eof the churches and in clubs and societies members gathered and sat about until 1922 made its appearance.

Putnam attorneys will be in Willimantic Tuesday to attend the criminal session of the superior court. The list of new cases is much smaller than at the November session.

RING OUT, WILD BELLS

Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky,
The flying cloud, the frosty light;
The year is dying in the night;
Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

Ring out the old, ring in the new,
Ring, happy bells, across the snow;
The year is going, let him go;
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out the grief that saps the mind,
For those that here we see no more;
Ring out the feud of rich and poor;
Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring out a slowly dying cause,
And ancient forms of party strife;
Ring in the nobler modes of life,
With sweeter manners, purer laws.

Ring out false pride in place and blood.
The civic slander and the spite;
Ring in the love of truth and right,
Ring in the common love of good.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease,
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace.

Keith Vaudeville is New Year's Attraction at the Broadway.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville scheduled for the Broadway consists of the following five acts:

Ward Sisters and McComa, in a novel offering. Delgin and Adams, comedians. Alice Thornton and Gil Squires in their comedy offering called "In the Swim." Maxine and Bobby in a novelty act, and Winifred and Brown in "China," a comedy specialty.

Not so long ago Fannie Hurst, famous woman novelist, startled American society with the announcement that though she and her husband had been married for years, they always had lived apart, maintaining their separate establishments and seeing as little of each other as possible for the express purpose of perpetuating the happiness of their married life. When the secret of their marriage finally became known Miss Hurst explained that they had secretly lived together in wedlock those many years because their marriage not only did not concern their friends and the public, but also that she and her husband were convinced that the average married couple see so much of each other that it is but a matter of time before the glamor of life wears away and leaves them both in a tired and bored attitude toward each other.

Such was Miss Hurst's idea of the ideal marriage and the plan was so novel at the time and attracted such world-wide attention that at least one producing company of moion picures decided it was fit material for a screen play. The Elaine Hammerstein picture which began a three day engagement at the Broadway theatre today is fashioned after just such a thought. "Why Announce Your Marriage?" is its title and aside from presenting this unusual phase of marital life, the production incorporates much comedy and altogether proves a splendid vehicle for the talents of the star.

Breed Theatre.

One of the best photoplays of the season yet presented on the screen of the Breed theatre is "Trifling Women," the Rex Ingram production for Metro which was seen for the first time yesterday. The remarkable young director, whose recent photoplays have lifted him to the front ranks of picture producers, has in his latest work maintained the high standard of his earlier photoplays' success wherever it is shown.

"Trifling Women" should enjoy The story of "Trifling Women" was written and adapted by Mr. Ingram himself. It concerns a mysteriously fascinating siren, a crystal gazer—Zareda by name—who lures men on by her beauty. Father and son enter competition for her favors, and friends conspire against each other for her love. An illicit affair between the woman and her young suitor is brought to a terrible end when her husband discovers them in the embrace of each other. They are imprisoned in Sorcerer's Token a wierd room to which they have been led by a vision which Zareda saw. It is here, too, that the wronged husband meets his end, when desire for revenge has been satisfied.

Players seen in earlier Ingram photoplays have the leading roles in "Trifling Women." Lewis Stone, Barbara La Marr, Ramon Novarro and Edward Connelly, all in "The Prisoner of Zenda," have important parts in this picture. Others are Pomeroy Cannon, Hughie Mack and Gene Pouyet.

"Trifling Women" will be shown at the Breed theatre again today, Tuesday and wednesday and the Pathe News will complete the bill. Continuous show today from 1:30 to 10:15.

Two Star Features is New Year's Attraction at the Strand.

Flappers may come, and flappers may go, but you have never seen anything like "The Country Flapper." The Country Fapper is one of the features at the Strand theatre for the first half of this week. Dorothy Gish is the star wherein she assumes the role of a country flapper and then the fun starts. Five reels of riotous fun follows.

The second feature is a picture as distinctive as it is unusual—one rich with human emotions, and pulsating with vital drama is "Flesh and Blood," an Irving Cummings production, featuring Lon Chaney, the man "of a thousand faces," supported by an all-star cast that includes Edith Roberts as his leading woman. The picture will be the attraction at the Strand theatre for three days beginning today. It was directed by Mr. Cummings from a story by Louis Duyrea Lighton, and tells of an escaped convict who found his way to liberty—who found ample compensation for his pent-up sorrow by realising that his daughter had found happiness. Chaney plays the convict and gives a performance that will live long in the memory. The exceptional study of this prisoner, forced to become a fake cripple to avoid detection is one that stamps Chaney as the most gifted character actor on the screen. How he triumphs through he returns to serve his term is told in five reels of smashing, crashing pulsating drama—the kind of drama that carries a heart and soul. Don't miss it.

MYSTIC

Mystic friends will be glad to hear of a former resident celebrating his 75th anniversary, I. Walter Miner, now of Omaha, Nebraska. Mr. Miner entertained at luncheon Dec. 15. He was born three-quarters of a century ago on Mystic bridge. He was in the cradle when John Quincy Adams was in congress, and he is now the oldest active member of the Elks in the city in which he resides. He was a member of the Providence conference seminary as a cadet at East Greenwich, R. I., and when Abraham Lincoln was buried he marched as a cadet in a parade through the streets of the city.

He left school in 1867 and took up bookkeeping and later he was city editor of the Worcester Evening Gazette and in 1870 his father purchased the Mystic Journal and he ran the newspaper one year. While out west there he remembered many Indians. He also states in his letter, that Phineas W. Hitchcock, republican United States senator, Casper E. Yost, postmaster, W. W. Bartlett, collector of internal revenue, Watson B. Smith, clerk of the United States district court, and Chauncey Watz surveyor general of the state, in the fall of 1870 brought into existence the Omaha Tribune. The men were the publisher of the Springfield Republican to recommend someone, which proved to be Charles E. Thomas, editor of the Worcester Gazette, who was chosen on February 1871 and as he did not care to change we [illegible] Mr. Miner at Mystic. So he sold his paper to J. S. Anderson, who is still running the Mystic Journal and Stonington Mariner. He was advised not to go to Omaha by some of his friends, as the west was something fierce out there. So 22 years he landed in Omaha, April 8, 1871. In June, 1871, the Omaha Republican, which was a rival paper, and the Tribune consolidated into the Tribune-Republican. Isaac Miner was now city editor, proofreader, and he wrote 10 columns of local matter in the first issue. Then came the Omaha Bee which was published as a program for the Academy of Music, Omaha's leading theater. 1885 The Tribune-Republican was sold to S. P. Rounds and Caleb Taylor for $115,000 and became the Omaha Republican.

From 1871 to 1878 Mr. Miner was city editor and then served in the business and advertising departments until it was sold. He was clerk in the general passenger office of the Union Pacific railroad. Mr. Miner was secretary for a stone company which built the exposition building which was completed in 1898. The June festival was given as a loss to the stock company of $5000. After Adelina Patti sang the manager for an engagement and she wanted $5000. The manager of the exposition building says he has to pay $4000 for a first [illegible] and the Omaha National Bank. Her receipts were $11,732.

In 1921 he retired from active work as secretary and is one of the four oldest members of the lodge and a charter member. [illegible] 22 years was secretary emeritus. The salary was increased $300 when he resigned and for the remainder of his years he will draw $1,800 from the lodge he serves. He is at the lodge room daily. The order is to move into a $100,000 clubhouse in 1924 and Mr. Miner says he expects to be right [illegible]

The older friends of Mr. Miner will be pleased to hear from him. The letter was written by Mr. Miner to a friend [illegible] Mystic.

COLONEL HARVEY TALKS INFORMALLY WITH REPORTERS

New York, Dec. 31.—(By The A. P.)—Colonel George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, returned home [illegible] the steamship Leviathan [illegible] to report to Washington on information he was deemed to get from London [illegible]

"I will not and cannot grant an interview [illegible] to newspapermen. That I [illegible] a guest of the ship was [illegible] I was, of course informally [illegible] there was a question of [illegible] debt to the United States [illegible] I had come home to [illegible] information on the subject to President Harding.

"I am [illegible] coming home to report to my boss, my chief and my managing editor, he said, and am really nothing but a messenger boy. I can say this, however, the present English government plans to come and to pay its debt to America. But it is a delicate job it will require careful handling.

"I believe the men on the American mission and those named on the British mission which is now en route here will reach a decision in any one can. They face the biggest financial transaction the world has ever known, but they face it as the best men that could possibly handle it.

"Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer who heads the mission, is a remarkable man. He is extremely able, in fact, he is one of the ablest men in British public life. Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, while of retiring disposition, is a man of ability and power."

That was all Colonel Harvey would say about affairs of state.

"Now what else can I talk about?" he asked.

Someone suggested speeches. He turned that off by saying he had made seven speeches in eight days—and all I got for it was influenza, in Manchester," he added with a smile.

Colonel Harvey said he had no intention of making any speeches here. His mission he said, was to go to Washington when they wanted him to go, tell what he knew, and await orders.

The ambassador's last word t othe reporters was that economic conditians in England were better—growing better every day.

"There is some unemployment," he went on, "but not much. There is some dissatisfaction, but very little. Conditions are better, much better. And while I am talking, let me say that the best friend America has in all Europe is Lord Curzon. He believes in America.

"And I think that is all I can say. I used to be a ship news reporter myself and the happiest six weeks I can remember was spent in meeting liners coming into this harbor. Thanks for coming down to meet me in such a fog."

IRISH ACHIEVEMENTS ABE REVIEWED BY COSGRAVE

London, Dec. 31.—William Cosgrave president of the Dail Eireann, today contributes a long article to the Times in which he reviews the Irish achievements during the past year and since the treaty was signed. The article, in addition to dealing with the resistance of the irregular forces, and the necessity to use stern measures for their repression, treats in considerable detail toward the enlightment of the British public on the question of Ulster and the boundary commission.

Mr. Cosgrave expresses satisfaction that, notwithstanding the difficulties with regard to the irregulars and the boundary question the New Year finds Ireland in a condition of greatres peace and security than she has enjoyed in a long time, with the formation of the Free State firmly laid and with the Free States possession status and authority equal to those of any of the great free nations composing the British commonwealth.

Pointing out that there are many indications of a return to peaceful and law abiding conditions, Mr. Cosgrave says the greatest essential now to an enduring peace, not only in Ireland, but also in the British commonwealth and in America, is the restoration of the natural unity of the Irish nation, now artificially severed by statute. He says it is well nigh impossible to express the intense and deep rooted antipathy to partition existing among the Irish people, or the extraordinarily deep emotion it stirs up; and he fears that until unity is achieved there will be a permanent sinister obstacle to peace, ever bristling with dangers and awful periods.

Repudiating any desire to force a controversy on the subject and making full allowances for the difficulties of the Ulster government, Mr. Cosgrave remarks that the fact that five of the nine counties comprising Ulster favor being governed by the Free State and four by the northern government makes it more correct to speak of the "partition of Ulster" rather than partition of Ireland. He admits that the boundary commission is not a perfect cure, but expresses the fear that Premier Craig's definite nonpossumus attitude leaves no alternative.

Mr. Cosgrave sees a very great fiscal difficulty, "because, no matter how friendly we wish to be with the north, we cannot forego our large fiscal independence in order to meet the north, while on the contrary Great Britain cannot afford to endow the north with sufficient fiscal power to enable her to meet us, as the cardinal principles of the British government is 'no representation without taxation,' and it might be too dangerous and far reaching a precedent to establish."

Mr. Cosgrave in conclusion strongly emphasises that this problem must be solved on an enduring basis before lasting peace in Ireland or the British commonwealth can be attained.

A man may be able to trade his reputation for money, but he can't trade back.

W. B. LEEDS AND WIFE ARRIVED ON BERENGARIA

New York, Dec. 31.—William B. Leeds and his wife, Princes Xenia of Russia, arrived in America today on the Cunard Liner, Berengaria, two days late, but happy to be here.

They went at once to the Ambassador hotel, where they will meet Leeds' mother, Princess Anastasia, formerly Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of the "Tin Plate King," who arrived recently with her husband, Prince Christopher, brother of Ex-King Constantine, of Greece.

Princess Xenia is the 18 year old daughter of the late Grand Duke George Mikhailovitch of Russia and Princess Marie, sister of Ex-King Constantine.

They were married last year during a series of three nuptial ceremonies, the first of which was solemnized October 5, 1921, at Paris.

"I am here to visit," said Mr. Leeds, "but I don't know who or what until I see my mother. I don't know anything about Greece, and my knowledge of European affairs is, to say the least, limited."

His wife, gazing for the first time on the statue of Liberty refused to say anything.

"I've decided to like America," was her only word, and that was uttered through her husband.

HIGHWAYMEN GET $800 FROM AGED MAN IN WOODBURY

Woodbury, Conn., Dec. 31. — While Richard Fowler, 72, was on his way to his home from a drug store in the center late today, he was accosted by four men, who are believed to have been waiting for him. The men, after knocking him down and beating him severely, robbed him of $800, he alleges. The men escaped in an automobile which they had nearby. Fowler is at his home in a serious condition from his injuries.

About the busiest thing on earth is an idle rumor.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, Dec. 30.—Stock prices were lifted up vigorously during the greater part of today's half-holiday session of the market, the last of the year, but values were shaded somewhat just before noon on extensive profit taking.

Predictions of further business prosperity during the coming year from divers sources combined with the more hopeful outlook for a settlement of the reparations problem influenced bullish sentiment. Virtual cessation of gas selling and an increase of 25 cents a barrel in the price of Pennsylvania crude oil also added speculators for the advance in their efforts to mark up prices.

New high records for the year were established by North American, at 1066 1-4, Kaidcott-Johnson at 94 7-8, Cosden at 54, and Stewart-Warner Speedometer at 79, the net gains being 8-8, 1, 3 5-8, and 4 3-4 points of the 25 per cent. stock dividend, which came off the stock yesterday.

Oil shares were in active demand. Standard Oil of California closed at 121, a net gain of 2 3-4 points, and Standard Oil of New Jersey, new stock sold at 41 5-8, up 3 1-4. Strength of Sinclair, which improved fractionally, was predicated on speculative expectation of increase dividends next year.

Heavy accumulation of Continental Can, which advanced 4 points, was based on increased earnings, while the activity in Mallinson Silk, which improved nearly a point, accompanied reports of buying by new interests and a reduction in bank loans. Recent increases in tire and tube prices were reflected in a gain of 2 1-2 points in Kelly-Springfield. Other strong spots included Westinghouse Air Brake, American Express, Dupont, Chicago & Northwestern preferred, and Market Street Railway second preferred, all up 3 to nearly 6 points.

Atchison preferred, which dropped a point, was the only outstanding weak spot, although U. S. Steel common, Republic Steel, General Motors, Consolidated Gas and Lehigh Valley were among the popular shares to register the losses on the day.

Foreign exchange business in sterling, francs and marks was quite active with irregular and nominal changes in rates.

The clearing house statement showed increases of $140,453,000 in loans, discounts and investments, $29,075,000 in reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank, and $174,696,000 in net demand deposits. Aggregate reserve totaled $564,5966,000 and excess reserve $24,943,120, an increase of $6,054,080 over last week.

BOND MARKET

New York, Dec. 30.—Bond prices tended upward in today's early dealings on the New York Stock Exchange with the strength of St. Paul issues and some of the U. S. government bonds as the note worthy features.

St. Paul Convertible 4 1-2's moved up 2 1-8, the Puget Sound 4s 2 3-8 and the Convertible 5's, L. Atlantic Coast Line 4's and "Katy" 5's, when issued, improved fractionally, while Southern Pacific 4's and International & Great Northern adjustment 5's yielded slightly.

In the foreign list substantial fractional gains were recorded by Seine 7's, Rio de Janeiro 8's, Fransegian 7 1-2's and Cuba Railroad 5's, but Norwegian 8's were inclined to ease.

Liberty 3 1-2's touched 101.30, or 20 cents above last night close and the highest price in more than two months. The first and fourth 4 1-4's gained 10 cents each and the other issues of that group were unchanged in the early dealings.

A 2 point gain in Cerro De Pasco 8's was the chief development in the industrial and Public Utility divisions. New England Telephone 7's and Interborough Rapid Transit Refunding 5's being among the other popular issues to move to higher levels. Interborough Refunding 5's certificates dropped a point and American Sugar 6's 1-2.

Before long our northwest lands unsuited to agriculture may maintain buffalo for food purposes. A western packer now has a herd of 1,000 of these animals on 25,000 acres of wild grass country between the Yakima and Columbia rivers; they were brought by train from South Dakota, the price being $300 to $400 each. Every year a certain number will be slaughtered for the market, and the experiment will be watched with interest.—Scientific American.

POETRY

A SONG FOR NEW YEAR'S EVE

Standing at my window—moment stay—
Say Oh the good Old Year.
So it's compelled of our way
Shaken hands and leaves us here.
Oh, stay, oh, stay,
One little hour and then away.

The years whose hopes were high and strong,
Have vanished all his store.
Yet one look more of fear and song
For his familiar sake.
Oh, stay, oh, stay,
One minute hour and then away.

The kindly year, his liberal hands
Have lavished all his store.
And shall we turn from where he stands,
Because he gives no more?
Oh, stay, oh, stay,
One grateful hour, and then away.

Days brightly came and calmly went
While yet he was our guest.
How cheerfully the week was spent!
How sweet the seventh day's rest!
Oh, stay, oh, stay,
One golden hour, and then away.

Even while we sing, he stiffens his task,
And leaves our sphere behind.
The good old year is with the past;
Oh, be the new as kind!
Oh, stay, oh, stay,
One parting strain, and then away.
—William Cullen Bryant.

NEW YEAR'S DAY.

Just pack away your troubles,
And throw that grouch away;
This is no time to grunt and growl,
For it is New Year's Day!

Just try to smile a little while,
And drive all gloom away;
And greet your neighbors cheerily,
For it is New Year's Day!

Just wish them all the good you can—
Let the wish come from your heart—
Forget it if you owe a grudge,
And with a clean page start.

Don't start by making trouble,
For everyone you see;
Just spread a little sunshine
Wherever you may be.

Just say a kind word when you can,
And drive off woes and fears;
Just turn the dark clouds inside out,
Make smiles take place of tears.

Just welcome in the New Year
With wishes good and true,
With word, and deeds of kindness,
You'll find 'twill pay you to.

So pack away your troubles,
And start anew life's years,
By wishing all a Glad New Year—
And wish yourself the same!
—Herbert A. Bladen.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

The difference between a baseball "strike" and a labor strike is that the former isn't an "error," while the latter often is.—Boston Transcript.

"Which of them got the divorce?"

"Oh, it seems to have been one of those Paris mutuals."—Life.

Office Manager—Am I starting too late for you?

New Stenographer—Gradume. You're slow!—Judge.

Wife—Before we were married you used to swear you would love me always—now you only swear.—Boston Transcript.

"In French, pays means country," announces a well informed contemporary. In German, the word has no meaning.—London Opinion.

May (watching ball game)—Where do they keep the extra bases?

Ray—What for?

May—Well, that man just stole third base.—Dry Goods Economist.

Bobby—You're three-quarters of an hour late. What do you mean by keeping me standing around like a fool?

The Wife—I can't help the way you stand, Chauncey.

"What are you doing, Marjorie?"

"I'm writing a letter to Lily Smith."

"But, darling, you don't know how to write."

Prisoner charged with check-raising said hooting whiskey made him see double.

"How long have you been in jail?" asked the judge.

"Ten days."

"Ten days more," said the court, "and see double, too."—Los Angeles Examiner.

The visitor was examining the class. "Can any little boy tell me what a fishnet is made of?" he inquired.

"A lot of little holes tied together with strings," smiled the never-failing bright boy.—Wesleyan Advance.

Jimmie—What seems to be the matter of ya, Georgie?

Georgie (in bed)—I dunno, but I think I got ingrippy, 'n' smallpox.

Jimmie—Yea? I was a little leary about comin' at first, cause I thought maybe ya had tonsils.—Life.

"Jack and Emily are going to be married."

"So did Jack."—Harvard Lampoon.

Stranger (to office boy)—I wanna see the editor.

Office Boy—What editor? We got all kinds of editors around this joint, pardon but editors; just like the Magician says all generals and no privates.—Washington Times.

Decay of leaves and woodland vegetation forms rich and fertile soils in the forests in which conditions are favorable for the development of new tree growths, says the School Book of Forestry, issued by the American Tree Association, Washington, D. C. When living tree seeds are exposed to proper amounts of moisture, warmth and air, in a fertile soil, they will sprout and grow. A root develops which pushes its way down into the soil, while the leaf-bud of the plant, which springs from the other end of the seed, works its way upward the light and air. The leafy part of the plant finally forms the stem of the tree.

FIRE IN LINEN STOREROOM OF CUNARD LINER ANTONIA

Plymouth, Dec. 31 (By the A. P.)—Fire occurred aboard the Cunard liner Antonia, bound from New York, two days after the Christmas celebrations. The fire originated from some unknown cause in the linen storeroom, with only a steel bulkhead separating this compartment from the oil fuel storage.

The officers and members of the crew worked heroically and were able to subdue the fire, and the passengers were unaware that anything was serious because on that day dinner was served late. All the while the liner was racing heavily in terrible seas on which no lifeboats could have lived.

NEW YEARS EVE PASSED QUIETLY AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Dec. 31.—New Year's eve passed quietly for President Harding. He spent the evening at the White House with Mrs. Harding, who had moved about little since her recent illness. The only callers during the day and evening were personal friends.

Formal receptions which have characterized the holiday season in previous years at the White House were called off this year, because of Mrs. Harding's convalescence, and there was every indication that tomorrow would be a very quiet holiday at the executive mansion.

The president probably will go to his office as he usually does on holidays, for informal inspection of mail and reports.

SAFE CRACKERS CAUSED FIRE LOSS OF $25,000 IN BATH.

Bath, N. Y., Dec. 31.—Safe crackers blew a safe in a store here early today, secured $1,600 in coupon bonds and set the Shannon business block afire, causing $25,000 damage.

TAFTVILLE

Numerous Gatherings and Parties Throughout the Town Welcomed the New Year In. One of the largest affairs was the celebration at the Maennerchor club, where 250 people gathered early Sunday evening to watch the old year out. A radio concert was enjoyed following which were drills and marches by the Turning Section, including work on the parallel bars and horizontal bars. There was also a short comedy sketch, which called for great applause. A supper was served from 10 to 12. The menu:

Fruit Cocktail
Roast Chicken with Dressing
Roast Beef Roast Pork
Mashed Potatoes, Gravy
Cranberries Celery Mixed Pickles
Coffee Fancy Cakes
Cigars

Promptly at 12 the celebration began, with dancing for which Eckstein's orchestra of six pieces played, at 1 until early morning. The club house was most attractively decorated for the affair. The committee in charge included Martin Krause, Charles Klaus, Erhardt Bauer, Fred Radtke and John Seidel.

Another pleasing affair was the celebration at the German Shooting club in Taftville which was attended by the members and their families. Until midnight a concert by a Hawaiian orchestra was enjoyed, after which there was dancing until morning.

The ideal orchestra gave a large supper and dance at the Casino, the dancing starting a minstrel. This was attended by about one hundred people, many coming from out of town. The decorations added to the success of the affair.

Postmaster D. C. Murphy calls attention to the hours to be observed at the local postoffice on January 3rd, which will be as follows: 7 to 8 a. m.; 12 m. to 12:30 p. m.; and 6:15 to 7:30 p. m.

Miss Roberta Crowe who has been passing the holiday vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crowe of South A street, has returned teaching in South Manchester.

Mrs. Napoleon T. Parent and Rev. Parent of South Second avenue were returned from a few days' stay in Providence and Woodsocket, R. I.

Men employed by the Ponemah mills were out early Saturday morning putting down on the village sidewalks, and a great deal of trouble Friday.

Joseph Blair, Dennis and Jack Murphy were in New Britain Saturday night, playing with the American Thread basketball team of Willimantic.

Thomas Provost of the Ponemah Mills is spending the week-end at his home in North Grosvenordale.

Mrs. Annie Crawford Copeland, wife of Hugh Copeland of Norwich avenue, died Sunday morning in Norwich after an illness of few days. Mrs. Copeland was born in Rutherglen, Scotland, 58 years ago, the daughter of Wilson and Susan Crawford and came to this country about 15 years ago. Twelve years ago she was united in marriage with Hugh Copeland by Rev. Donald D. McLane, at that time pastor of the Taftville Congregational church. Up to the time of her illness Mrs. Copeland was an active worker in the Taftville Congregational church. For many years she sang in the choir and taught a class in the Sunday school. Her genial manner and willingness to serve made a host of friends throughout the town who mourn her loss. She was the best wife mother and neighbor, always placing the interests of others above her own. During her long illness she was a patient sufferer and her death is a great loss to the community. She is survived by her husband and two children, Jeanne Maxwell Copeland and Charles Wilson Copeland, and one sister, Mrs. Daniel McDonald of Ruthergien, Scotland.

Alphonse Thibeault of Baltic was a caller in town Saturday.

Miss Doris Palmer, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis of North Third avenue, has returned to her home in Passaic, N. J.

A number of automobiles were seen about the village with both 1922 and 1923 number plates.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Linderson of Grosvenordale are spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Yerrington of South Second avenue.

Court Wequonnoc, No. 88, Foresters of America, gave an enjoyable smoker Saturday evening at their rooms in St. Louis hall which was attended by about 200 members of the order. Sandwiches and coffee were served by the following committee, Willis mBrown, Frank Durr, David Lambert, James Fletcher, Henry Blanchette, Louis Leroux and Joseph E. Renac. The new laws which have just been printed were distributed at the smoker.

Miss Anne Dailey was pleasantly surprised at her home on Merchants avenue Friday evening the occasion being her 20th birthday. She was presented a manicure set by Miss Marie Rose Caron. The company then went down to a delicious lunch which was served by Mrs. James Dailey, assisted by Miss Mary Shea. Guests were present from Norwich and Baltic.

BELL ALARM FOR KITCHEN FIRE IN ASYLUM STREET HOUSE

At 11.20 o'clock Saturday night the fire department responded to a bell alarm from Box 321, Asylum and Starr street, for a fire in the house at No. 320 Asylum street, owned and occupied by Albert Socha. The fire was caused by a collection of soot lodged in what was formerly used as an open fire place. The fire had been covered with wainscotting instead of being bricked up when the house was remodeled.

The burning soot burned a hole through the half inch wainscotting and and set fire to a pile of wood which had been placed in back of the kitchen stove. The fire also burned up the wooden partitions to the ceiling and started to spread over the interior of the kitchen.

Mr. Socha had just retired when he smelled smoke and investigating found the kitchen on fire. The alarm was pulled and in the meantime buckets of water from a tub of water which had been left in the kitchen were thrown on the fire. The fire was practically out when the firemen who made a fast run, arrived. Nine gallons of chemical were used on the flames.

During the month of December the fire department responded to two bell alarms, fourteen telephone calls and one local alarm.

GOOD SIZED ATTENDANCE AT Y. M. C. A. MEETING

There was a good sized attendance at the weekly "get together" held Sunday afternoon at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. The meeting was opened with music by Swahn's orchestra. This was followed by a wide-awake song service of ten minutes and Scripture reading and prayer which was offered by Emery H. Davis, the boys' secretary of the association. Moving pictures showing the last half of the impressive story of Joseph were shown, and these proved of deep interest to the audience.

Between the reels, the general secretary, Edwin Hill, made a brief address, and among other things the speaker said that Sunday was called attention to the spirit of jealousy which seemed to control the brothers of Joseph, leading them to threaten his life, and sell him into slavery; also to the fact that the spirit of jealousy is a too prevalent sin in our days. Today a will take a degree of the fruits of jealousy and the grands of rightcousness as shown by Joseph. In the long run the man who is controlled by jealousy will end up an undesirable character. He may get on for a while with this spirit controlling him in due time we will reap awful fruitage, in fact sin in any form will finally cheat us. It is interesting to note the contrast in the story of Joseph and that of his brothers; the one was led by the spirit of love, the other by the spirit of jealousy, and the one was a blessing while the other was a curse. Joseph and his brothers, by the providence of God came to him for help, not knowing to whom they came, and instead of condemning them he met them with the food they so much needed.

Much Joseph was led about [illegible] being accused [illegible] reading position in the land, and it did it with honor and fidelity. We are on the threshold between the old year and the new, and as we take an inventory of the past twelve months we will doubtless find that we will be [illegible] wanting when we strike a balance for we have done the things we should not have done and we have left undone the things we should have done. As we look out into the new year which will open in a few hours we look on into great possibilities, for whatever position we occupy, there are great possibilities ahead of us. We may not be rich, we may not be prominent, the greatest achievement is not to accumulate money or to become prominent, but to [illegible] achievement is to live a Godly life.

Shall we enter the new year possessed by the spirit that possessed Joseph, or by the spirit that dominated his brothers? Joseph was what he was not in his own strength, but by the power of God in his life. Let us enter the new year controlled by the spirit of Jesus Christ, and then if God spares us to see the last day of 1923, the record of our lives will doubtless be more pleasing to us than it is for the year just closing. I wish for you, and yours a most happy new year.

MOTOR VEHICLES BRANCH HANDLES $10,000 A DAY

During the past few days the motor vehicle branch office in New London has taken in a daily average of $10,000 in motor vehicle registrations for 1923. The last half of the week was an extremely busy one at the branch office. Many scores of auto owners have been forced to stand in line at the office waiting their turn from one to two hours at a time. Many Norwich people went to New London to get their 1923 registrations instead of going to or sending to Hartford.

The crowds have been handled courteously and expeditiously by the increased force of clerks, and two policemen have been detailed to keep the crowd in line and moving.

Many people get a number of registration for others. It is said that on Friday a Norwich man went down with applications for 45 who wished new registration.

As an illustration of what some of the larger truck owners have to pay the state for the privilege of operating on the highways, it might be mentioned that a well known Waterford man went to the branch with a bundle of bills aggregating about $680 to pay for several large motor trucks. That is quite a payment in itself for one business concern for a license to use his motors. The branch is taking in a large amount of money each day.

The branch will be open all day Monday, New Year's day, from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., to accommodate late comers, but after Jan. 3, it will be absolutely unsafe to operate under the old registration plates.

A similar rush is reported at the other branch offices and at the main office in Hartford. Four state policemen have been assigned to guard duty in the motor vehicle department at the capitol during the rush for registration. The receipts are averaging $60,000 a day. The average daily receipts for the four branch offices, in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury and New London combined reached over $40,000 the past few days, making the total receipts approximately $1000000 a day. The fees for all 1923 registrations issued to date has passed the million dollar mark.

CHECKS ARRIVE FOR WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Several hundred letters were received at the local postoffice Sunday from the Federal Reserve bank of Boston addressed to Norwich people. The letters, no doubt, contain checks for the war savings stamps recently forwarded to the bank by the local postoffice.

A large number of applicants called Saturday at the local office with stamps. They will be forwarded today (Monday) and checks received for same in a few days. There are at present several thousand registered cards in the office awaiting the presentation of the stamps and holders of some may call any time at the office with them. The system for paying in the future will be that the postmaster will forward daily to New Haven what cards he receives and they will receive the cash for same in the local office ten days after depositing them in the office.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH UNDER TROLLEY WHEELS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Plainfield, Dec. 31.—Miss Laura Curcot of this place narrowly escaped death Saturday afternoon when she attempted to board a moving trolley car, and was thrown to the ground beside the car.

Miss Curcot had evidently waited too long before boarding the trolley, on which her sister was a passenger, and as the trolley started north towards Central Village she ran alongside the second of the three cars and jumped for the step. Evidently she did not catch hold of the handle on the steps, for she slipped and was thrown between the edge of the railroad platform and the wheels of the third car.

People near by rushed to her aid as soon as possible, but when she was picked up she was unconscious. Dr. A. C. Chase was summoned and with Miss Kate Brown, a nurse, rendered medical assistance. The Backus hospital at Norwich was notified and immediately sent the ambulance, which conveyed Miss Curcot to that institution.

It was found that the young woman had suffered a compound fracture of the left arm and had three painful scalp wounds. Her condition at the hospital was reported as not serious.

Those who witnessed the accident state that only a miracle saved her from going beneath the wheels of the third car and being ground to death. Miss Curcot is the daughter of Eldar Curcot of this place and is employed at Goodyear.

POLICE ARREST MAN ON "PEEPING" CHARGE

John Hayes of Lebanon was arrested on Washington street Saturday night by Sergeant A. C. Mathews after a complaint had been received that the man had been "peeping" at a house on lower Washington street. A man who was passing made the complaint and gave the police a description on which Hayes was arrested.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK SAYS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE LETTER

The present business activity in all lines bids fair to extend well into 1923, says the December membership letter of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce which has just been mailed out to the chamber members by Secretary John J. O'Rourke. Continuing the letter says:

Declining wages have stopped; unemployment has ceased, in fact there exists a scarcity of labor; manufacturing output is normal or nearly so; transportation has become hampered because of increased shipments. These things indicate prosperity.

The prevailing unsettled conditions in Europe affects prosperity. Some believe a reaction will ensue, others that the present conditions will continue at least until next summer, while others are confident of continuous prosperity throughout the coming year. It appears that the majority of our national business leaders believe that the present continue at least through the first half of the coming year.

Locally the situation is indeed hopeful. The diversity of our industry and the sagacity of our industrial and mercantile leaders, creates a feeling of security. Norwich was blessed with a goodly share of prosperity during the past year and she faces 1923 with a hopeful aspect.

Thames River.

Major Peterson, who conducted our local hearing on Nov. 24th, has not yet made his report on the preliminary survey of the Thames river from Allyn's Point to Norwich to the war department, as far as we know.

The war department has adopted the policy of recommending appropriations for the development of rivers and harbors only when such development will benefit a section and not a community. Your organization made careful plans and did all that was possible to present our case by statements of facts with the ultimate hope of securing favorable action.

Communications were sent to every manufacturer in eastern Connecticut; to our representatives in Washington; to the United States Chamber of Commerce, and to the National Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington, requesting their support.

Should the report to Major Peterson be favorable, other well defined plans are ready to further the project in Washington.

Your attention is called to one outstanding fact—that the competition of water-borne traffic with railroad traffic creates a healthy situation affecting our transportation facilities and rates, which cannot but be beneficial to every person in Norwich and vicinity. We boast of our transportation facilities, and justly so, but we must do something more than mere boast; we must work earnestly and persistently to maintain and improve our present facilities. Your officers seek your moral support, your suggestions, your criticisms in this matter.

Eighth Street Improvement.

Through the efforts of our honored citizen, G. Warren Davis and others, a petition, bearing over 300 signatures, caused a public hearing to be held by the Public Utilities Commission relative to the dangerous conditions existing at Eighth street railroad crossing.

The streets committee of your organization has given consideration to all the Greeneville crossings for some time. Early in October a conference was held with Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., to discuss the possibilities of removing the dangerous conditions pertaining to the three crossings in Greeneville. On October 20th, Counsel Shields appeared before the Public Utilities Commission in Hartford requesting a public hearing on these crossings which was refused on the ground that they were private crossings. As a matter of fact South Golden street crossing is the only private crossing in that section.

The sad fatality that occurred at the Eighth street crossing during the latter part of November stirred the people using that particular crossing to action, and the commissioners were compelled to listen to the people of Norwich.

With the idea of presenting a unified front to the commissioners, a conference was called in the offices of the chamber with representatives of the petitioners, the city government, and our street committee. Our activities were made known to those present and a plan of presenting the arguments of Norwich in favor of the abolition of this grade crossing was prepared. The results were successful and that particular crossing will be guarded by a watchman from 7 a. m. until 11 p. m. daily, with the ultimate hope of abolition of this dangerous crossing.

Norwich Free Academy.

We believe our members are sufficiently informed of the overcrowded conditions existing in the academy, from reading the newspapers and last month's letter to learn of the necessity of taking some immediate action in order that the increasing number of our high school pupils can be accommodated. Your officers are awaiting the passing of the holiday season before presenting a petition for a special town meeting to take action on this problem. In all probability this meeting will be held during January or the early part of February.

This matter deserves your earnest consideration and your presence at the meeting. The question as to whether the town should build and control its high school, or continue the present arrangement with the trustees of the academy on a greatly enlarged per capita basis without control, is one of the most important matters that has confronted Norwich for many years.

The time has gone when Norwich can secure its high school education at $80 per capita.

HELD BY POLICE FOR HAVING GAMBLING DEVICE

Charged with having ownership of a gambling device at his store on Boswell avenue near St. Mary's cemetery, John Dutkowski, 58, was arrested there Saturday night by Officer P. Driscoll and a punch board was seized as evidence. A young man was operating the board when the officer entered the place. The board contained several articles that had not yet been won by those who played it while several blank spaces showed where articles had been taken off. Dutkowski gave $100 bail for his appearance in court.

THE MAGNITUDE OF THEIR BUSINESS INTERESTS CLEARLY SHOWN

In securing the figures herewith The Bulletin is indebted to the custodians of the accounts, and thanks them for their prompt and obliging responses. Except in a few instances there was a ready response from those approached for information, but where estimates had to be made, they were carefully figured.

The greater part of the figures were based upon amounts actually taken from the books of the business houses. The promise to disclose no business secrets will explain why in a number of instances it has been necessary to assemble several lines into one sum. The immense figures reached must be a surprise to all as it is to The Bulletin, and the residents of the cities and towns of the two counties can well feel a pardonable pride in the magnitude of their business interests as here shown.

GRAND TOTAL OF $1,151,886,344 IN BANKING, MANUFACTURING, JOBBING

FIGURES $154,778,306 MORE THAN 1921

Total in New London County Business Transactions Was $807,648,707—Windham County Showed $344,237,637—Banking Figures in This Territory More Than a Year Ago—Much Building and Contracting Work Sent That Total Ahead of Former Year.

After a year of slackened industry in New London and Windham counties in 1921, business conditions came back towards normal in 1922 over the Eastern Connecticut territory, with the result that the figures assembled by the Bulletin this year justify predictions of a year ago that the upward trend in business would be on its way in 1922.

The grand business total in manufacturing, banking, building and jobbing lines for 1922 in New London and Windham counties was $1,151,886,344, a gain of $154,778,306 over 1921 when the figure was $997,108,038. Neither year, of course, reached the peak figure of $1,214,827,353 for 1920 which was the greatest ever recorded for Eastern Connecticut.

For the 1922 business total New London county gave $807,648,707, where it had been $747,929,351 in 1921, and Windham gave $344,237,637 for 1922 in comparison with $249,178,687 in 1921.

Total wage disbursements from New London county manufacturing plants, which were $16,015,178 in 1921, increased to $18,-431,653 in 1922, while in Windham county the wages paid were $6,937,139 in 1921, which grew to $8,593,000 in 1921.

On this showing total wages increased from $22,952,317 in 1921 to $27,024,653 in 1922.

Total banking in 1921 was $801,371,318, of which $626,736,867 was in New London county and $174,634,451 in Windham county. Total banking for 1922 was $923,961,160, consisting of $672,879,960 in New London county and $251,081,200 in Windham county.

Of the total building operations in 1922 which were $3,655,275, New London county had $2,855,275 and Windham county $800,000. In 1921 the building total was $2,593,585, consisting of $1,993,585 in New London county and $600,000 in Windham county.

Norwich Factories and Mills Did Better Business

With its diversified line of manufacturing interests, the most varied of any community in Eastern Connecticut, Norwich in 1922 maintained its industrial activity at a good level which even showed gains in a number of lines.

The wage distribution for the year was $8,409,067, which exceeded that of 1921, when the figure was $7,552,406. This was accomplished with the employment of 8,274 workers in 1922, where the number was 7,919 in 1921, a gain of 655. Value of product in 1922 was $31,260,550, a gain of over 1921 when it was $28,389,568.

Among the cotton mills where 2,688 were given employment, as compared to 2,700 in 1921, the wages were $2,560,000 and value of product $7,987,000 as against $2,475,000 and $7,576,000 respectively in 1921. The big woolen industry had a busy year which accounted for a wage distribution of $1,500,000 and value of product of $4,875,000, these having been $1,100,000 and $4,430,000 in 1921. More workers were given employment as there were 1,740 in 1922, as contrasted with 1,295 in 1921. In another important textile line, silks and velvets, business was shown at about the same as last year when the 1922 figures of 1,200 employes, $1,261,716 wages and $7,720,000 value of product are compared with 1,117 workers, $1,284,450 wages and $7,032,000 product in 1921.

Largely through decreased business in one of the large Norwich paper mills, there are smaller figures for 1922 in paper and belting, although gains were recorded by some of the belting and paper industries. In 1922, they gave employment to 335 with total wages of $325,214 and total value of product of $2,383,103. In 1921 these figures were 425 employes, $442,155 in wages and $2,574,944 in product.

Foundry and iron work showed gains over a year ago, reporting for 1922 a total of 225 workers, $290,000 in wages and $921,180 in product. This compared with 206 workers, $213,000 in wages and $490,000 in product in 1921.

Manufacturers of metal goods gave employment in 1922 to 201, had wages of $180,381 and product of $556,267, where in 1921 they employed 185, paid wages of $186,701, and produced goods to the value of $455,000. In the firearms and cutlery lines in 1922 the two years were about the same, showing 432 employes, $488,000 in wages, and $955,000 in product in 1922, as against 459 workers, $524,500 in wages and $950,500 in product in 1921.

Miscellaneous industries recorded a gain in their lines. In 1922 they employed 1,453, distributed wages of $1,803,-756 and turned out product of $5,863,000, where they employed 1,232 in 1921 to whom $1,343,100 in wages was distributed and the product value was $4,850,924.

Better Business Year In Willimantic Industries

A better business year for Willimantic's manufacturing plants was experienced in 1922 than in 1921, and a greater wage distribution was the result. In 1921 there was a total of $3,064,062 in wages and $11,983,037 in value of product. In 1922 these figures went to $3,530,290 for wages and $12,432,187 for product value. There were about 4,500 employed where there were 4,444 the year before.

In the cotton industry in 1922 the total of $318,801 was paid out in wages, with a product value of $1,098,048, which had been respectively $219,319 and $737,413 in 1921. Silk and velvet mills had $390,000 in wages and $2,365,000 in product, in 1921, which increased to $405,000 in wages and $2,400,000 in product in 1922. Machinery and foundry work were at a lesser figure on the showing of $171,313 in wages and $347,139 in product for 1922, as compared with $206,633 in wages and $549,624 in product in 1921. Among miscellaneous industries there were totals of $2,635,176 in wages and $8,587,000 in product for 1922 as compared with $2,148,110 in wages, and $8,331,000 in product in 1921.

Better Business Year In Putnam Manufacturing

Putnam's mill industries, which were experiencing slack times in 1921, came back into their own in 1922, which enables them to report greater volume of business for the past year. Total wages in 1921 were reported at $780,000, with product value of $4,005,000. In 1922 these were at $847,000 for wages and $14,663,000 for value of product.

In the cotton lines where wages in 1921 were $200,000 and product value $35,000 they were $150,000 in wages and $8,065,000 in product in 1922. The woolen industry disbursed in wages in 1921 a total of $295,000 and turned out product of $1,210,000 which were respectively $284,-000 and $1,115,000 in 1922. Silk mills which in 1921 showed a wage figure of $105,000 and product value of $900,000 brought this to $128,500 in wages and $1,000,000 in product in 1922. Other industries recorded the generally better business conditions, reporting $285,000 in wages and $4,493,000 in product for 1922, where they had $189,000 in wages and $1,000,000 product value in 1921.

New London Recovered From Depression Period

New London suffered keenly from business depression in its manufacturing plants in 1921, but the past year has seen a return of busy times which recorded gains over the preceding twelve months. Where in 1921, there were 4,044 employees with a wage distribution of $4,612,967 and product value of $15,315,162, these figures jumped to 4,501 employes, $5,073,073 in wages and $15,231,143 in product value in 1922.

In firms doing boiler and iron work, there were 70 workers in 1922, with total wages at $75,500, and total product value at $160,500, which compared with 56 employes, $66,944 in wages, and $178,000 in product in 1921. Machinery and marine work, which had 1,358 workers, $2,562,425 in wages and $4,670,000 in product in 1921, sent these figures in 1922 to 1,585 workers, $2,468,446 in wages and $4,150,000 in product in 1922.

Manufacturers of metal goods and iron products, which in 1921 had 420 employes, $515,000 in wages, and $2,100,000 in product, showed 565 employes, $537,000 in wages, and $2,235,000 in product in 1922.

Textile lines, including silks and comfortables manufacturers shared in the general improvement in 1922, employing 1,475, with wages of $1,220,000, and product of $6,319,000 as against 1,443 employed, $1,020,000 wages and $6,005,000 product value in 1921. In miscellaneous lines the years compared as follows: 750 employes $709,126 in wages and $2,052,642 in product in 1922; 712 employes, $658,598 in wages and $2,012,162 product in 1921.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT BANKING WAS AT GREAT FIGURE IN 1922

National Banks of New London and Windham Counties Recorded Large Volume of Transactions—Savings Bank Deposits Have Increased in Year.

Eastern Connecticut banking business in 1922 showed a gain over the year before, giving an indication of the generally good business conditions that were maintained throughout the twelve months.

Total bank transactions in New London and Windham counties in 1922 were $923,961,160 while in 1921 they were shown at the figure of $801,371,318.

Reflecting the fact that New England thrift and habits of saving are not lost sight of, and that the people have had money to put away during 1922 are the figures for savings bank deposits. These grew to $59,846,124 in New London county and $10,990,842 in Windham county, a total of $70,797,266, where they had shown a total of $67,053,403 in 1921, of which $57,494,483 was in the savings banks of New London county and $9,558,920 in Windham county.

Norwich Bank Transactions and Savings Deposits Gain

Total national bank transactions of $333,206,300 in 1922 as compared with a total of $254,439,957, in 1921, with total savings bank deposits of $34,765,200 on hand, December 30, 1922, as compared with $33,637,803 on hand Dec. 30, 1921, give an indication of the past year in banking in Norwich and is an index of the general business conditions, which are shown to have been well sustained. Norwich bankers agree that the signs are for a good year ahead.

Among the national banks a normal to good year is reported with commercial deposits holding at a good level. In the early part of the year strikes in the big industrial plants outside Norwich which

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE VIEW YEAR AS RETURN TO PROSPEROUS PERIOD

Largely Realized Expectations at Beginning of 1922—Cities in Eastern Connecticut, with Adjoining Territory, Had Encouraging Business Twelve Months—Advances in Civic, Economic and Social Conditions are Aims for 1923.

Realization of the expectation at the beginning of 1922 that business conditions in the year would again be on the upward road is voiced by the officers and members of the Chamber of Commerce of Eastern Connecticut. Manufacturers, merchants and workers have shared in the generally busy year during which unemployment has been a word scarcely mentioned in this territory, and it can be said that business has again reached a stabilized condition which promises well for the incoming year.

In each community the Chambers of Commerce are alert to further and improve civic, economic and social conditions so that advance steps in these may be recorded at the close of 1923.

Norwich Fortunate in Industry in Past Year

The result of the business depression which was universal during the early part of the year 1922 should prove conclusively that Norwich is a good city to live in, and that we should be proud of our community.

Due to the exceptionally good diversity of her industries, and the business acumen of her industrial leaders, Norwich felt the depressing results of readjustment very little in comparison with other cities throughout the country. In fact commercial salesmen were wont to say that Norwich was particularly fortunate in its industrial affairs.

The prosperity and the growth of an industrial community, such as Norwich, depends upon the manufacturers, coupled with the vision and the courage to do and dare in the face of a depressing situation. Thanks to our industrial leaders, the factories of Norwich and its immediate vicinity met the situation squarely and without trepidation. Consequently labor was kept constantly employed with but few exceptions, and we have succeeded beyond the lot of the average city in choice; the past year with a maximum degree of prosperity. Today we have the happy situation of full employment in all phases of our industrial life which augurs well for the future.

H. M. LEROY

The mercantile life of Norwich has suffered but little during the depression because of the general employment maintained throughout the year. Several new stores have been added to our business life and many important improvements have been made, and are being made, in our business section. Again this proves that business men are powerful, courageous, and have abundant faith in the future of Norwich. Norwich has every reason to be proud of her last year's experience and we may look hopefully and with assurance of continued prosperity into the coming years.

Like every community Norwich has her problems to face. The success of any community, in these days of active competition for business, lies in the willingness, the good will and the spirit of the people to work in unison for the advancement of the town, in order to successfully compete with other towns throughout the state. We cannot hand with a tax rate that is unjust and a system that is archaic. Our councils call for immediate attention and we must face this question immediately. We need good transportation and we should be keenly alive to our possibilities and our interests. The Thames river should be made a valuable asset to our facilities for providing good transportation. Better health, public recreation, good housing, protected by adequate building regulations, are all factors that go to make Norwich a vigorous, enterprising and a modern town. The ideals of our own should be the same as those of all good towns, namely, beauty, health, intelligence and industry.

The number of new dwellings that have been erected during the past year indicate a healthy, conservative growth. As the greater number of these dwellings are single family houses it augurs well for the stability of our population. Norwich is in fact a town of individual home owners. This is rated by economists as the highest type of town.

The Chamber of Commerce is organized to promote these ideals. The organization attempts at all times to meet questions pertaining to this community's welfare in an unbiased honest effort to place these matters intelligently before the people. Working always for the best interests of the town, and its people, it hopes to secure the goodwill, the cooperation and the moral support of every person regardless of race, creed, or color that has the true welfare of our goodly city at heart.

We have much to be thankful for; much to work for, and strong competition from neighboring cities to meet. Like our financial and mercantile leaders the rank and file of our citizenry should take a new courage, a firm determination to succeed, and a greater interest in our civic affairs. Norwich must become a city of industry, health, intelligence and industry and it will attain that goal through the united efforts of each of us working in unison to reach that end.

Norwich is a goodly city. Her problems will be met squarely, and fearlessly by her people and her people are proud of Norwich. Norwich is home and where home is there the heart lies.

H. M. Leroy,
President,
Norwich Chamber of Commerce.

New London Prosperous and Busy in Past Year

New London looks back over the closing year of 1922 with a degree of satisfaction and measurable pride; not that we believe that we attained the millennium, far from it, but we do believe that considerable progress has been made as compared with the results attained in the preceding year of 1921. New London will not, however, be content to rest upon her laurels of past achievements, but will be spurred on to greater endeavor.

Practically all of our industrial activities are operating, some of them overtime. There is no unemployment, in fact, New London industries could use to advantage additional numbers of skilled machinists and experienced female stitchers at the present time. We are particularly pleased that a new spirit possesses our workers. They realize that their interest in the success of their work and the quality of their production more than ever, has to do directly with the continuance of the operation of the plant employing them and thus directly contributes to their own progress. There is a total absence of any spirit of discontent or ominous agitation that bred labor difficulties in the past. We are united in common

Notwithstanding industrial and financial conditions this past year, New London, happily, failed to register a single failure, and we look into the future smilingly hopeful and assured of the dawn of a new era of steady, secure and merited prosperity.

New London's maritime activities have held up splendidly this past year, particularly the Connecticut state pier under the energetic direction of F. LeRoy Harwood and Waldo E. Clarke, chairman and superintending engineer respectively of the Connecticut rivers, bridge and harbor commission. The state pier has transacted a volume of business bringing revenue to the state of Connecticut equal, if not exceeding, any year since its completion. There has been an average of one ocean-going vessel loading several months. Most of the vessels are loading Canadian and western flour for Medite-ranean, and North European ports. This activity at the state pier has given employment to hundreds of men.

New London has been favored in possessing elements of transportation far superior to that of the average New England city, and notwithstanding the discriminatory and preferential freight rates established by the interstate commerce commission, favoring southern ports, the port of New London is making steady and sure progress forward. Speaking of the subject of port development, it is to be hoped that Connecticut's representatives in Washington will exert every effort to see that the report of Major Peterson on the advisability of deepening and widening the Thames River to develop more water-born commerce for Eastern Connecticut receives every attention. New London shares with Norwich the sincere desire for the completion of this project.

A local connecting transportation link, completion of the trolley line across the Thames River bridge, now gives us the advantage of a through trolley service from Westerly, Stonington Mystic, Noank Groton into the center of New London's busy shopping district. The final completion of this Groton and Stonington line was underwritten by the New London Chamber of Commerce, members of which went among the Chamber membership and the merchants of New London and secured sufficient sale of bonds to satisfy the court as to the real need of its operation. This new trolley service is giving splendid satisfaction.

Retail and commercial trade circles in this vicinity report a very healthy turn over for the past few months, particularly the six weeks preceding the holidays. There is a new tone of distinct optimism evident on all sides which augers well for the future.

New London extends to its sister city, Norwich, further and sincere assurance of co-operation in every movement for the common good, for the success of one is the success of the other. We are all building and working in the common cause. Eastern Connecticut belongs to all of us, ours is a splendid and unmatched heritage of nature. Let us all go forward constructively and in harmonious unison for a greater state and nation.

The New London Chamber of Commerce extends to its Norwich neighbors and friends the very best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year, and for all the years to come.

J. P. T. Armstrong, President.
James G. Hammond, Secretary.
New London Chamber of Commerce.

Willimantic Looks Towards New Year With Confidence

In looking back over the years I find the Chamber of Commerce here; as it is elsewhere, the outlet through which the business and professional men may express and put into action, the vital things which go to make a better understanding among people, to further the civic welfare of the community and to improve the industrial and business affairs of the town.

VALENTINE L. MURPHY

The Willimantic Chamber of Commerce proposes to continue along these lines, so as to make Willimantic a better place to live in, to increase the desire and facility to do business and to keep awake the moral conscience of the town, in order that we may always march not only forward but keep a step ahead of the procession.

The business conditions in the town were much improved during the latter part of the year now drawing to a close and we are looking forward to the new year with increasing confidence that 1923 will pay us large dividends, in a social civic or business way, if we coordinate our activities to render service in the largest sense to the nation, the state and to our city.

With this end in view our Chamber is marching steadily and confidently onward, undiscouraged and undismayed by any mistakes that we may make, stopping only long enough to correct them and then picking up the threads again to weave them into the finer and better fabric that we visualize for the Willimantic of the future.

Valentine L. Murphy,
President,
Willimantic Chamber of Commerce.

Norwich Rotarians Hope For Service Opportunities

At this festive season of the year when men and women everywhere are thinking most earnestly of "Peace on earth and good-will toward men" the Rotary club of Norwich would extend to each individual of this vicinity its most sincere wishes for a joyous and happy New Year and trusts that through the months before us each one will find greater opportunities for usefulness and service.

The question is often asked, "What is Rotary?" The following definition answers the question clearly and concisely: "Rotary is a fraternity without ritual, pass-word or secrets; a business organization without commercialism or personal gain, a religion of service and good fellowship without church or creed".

For the benefit of those who would know more concerning the ideals of Rotary it seems fitting that the Rotary code of ethics should be inserted here. Let us apply the spirit of the Golden Rule in our business as well as our social life to the end that the spirit of good will may last throughout the coming year.

The Rotary Code of Ethics.

My business standards shall have for them a note of sympathy for our common humanity. My business dealings, ambitions and relations shall always cause me to take into consideration my highest duties as a member of society. In every position in business life, in every responsibility that comes before me, my chief thought shall be to fill that responsibility and discharge that duty so when I have ended each of them I shall have lifted the level of human ideals and achievements a little higher than I found it. As a Rotarian it is my duty:

WILLIAM G. PARK
President Norwich Rotary Club.

FIRST: To consider my vocation worthy, and as affording me distinct opportunity to serve society.

SECOND: To improve myself, increase my efficiency and enlarge my service, and by so doing attest my faith in the fundamental principle of Rotary that he profits most who serves best.

THIRD: To realize that I am a business man and ambitious to succeed; but that I am first an ethical man, and wish no success that is not founded on the highest justice and morality.

FOURTH: To hold that the exchange of my goods, my service and my ideas for profit is legitimate and ethical, provided that all parties in the exchange are benefited thereby.

FIFTH: To use my best endeavors to elevate the standards of the vocation in which I am engaged, and so to conduct my affairs that others in my vocation may find it wise, profitable and conducive to happiness to emulate my example.

SIXTH: To conduct my business in such a manner that I may give a perfect service equal to or even better than my competitor, and when in doubt to give added service beyond the strict measure of debt or obligation.

SEVENTH: To understand that one of the greatest assets of a professional or of a business man is his friends and that any advantage gained by reason of friendship is eminently ethical and proper.

EIGHTH: To hold that true friends demand nothing of one another and that any abuse of the confidences of friendship for profit is foreign to the spirit of Rotary, and in violation of its code of ethics.

NINTH: To consider no personal success legitimate or ethical which is secured by taking unfair advantage of certain opportunities in the social order that are absolutely denied others, nor will I take advantage of opportunities to achieve material success that others will not take because of the questionable morality involved.

TENTH: To be not more obligated to a brother Rotarian than I am to every other man in human society; because the genius of Rotary is not in its competition but in its co-operation; for professionalism can never have a place in an institution like Rotary, and Rotarians assert that human rights are not confined to Rotary clubs but are as deep and as broad as the race itself, and for these high purposes does Rotary exist to educate all men and all institutions.

ELEVENTH: Finally, believing in the universality of the Golden Rule, All things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them, we contend that society best holds together when equal opportunity is accorded all men in the natural resources of this planet.

WILLIAM G. PARK,
President Norwich Rotary Club.

New London Rotarians Extend Season's Greetings

The New London Rotary club looks upon the past year as one of encouraging business experience for its home city and this section of the state, giving hopes for continued prosperity.

It is glad to extend, through The Bulletin, the greetings of the season to the Norwich Rotary club and through them in turn to the people of Norwich.

JAMES P. SULLIVAN,
President New London Rotary Club.

ADDITION AT AIRLIE MILLS, HANOVER.

AIRLIE MILLS AT HANOVER ADD THREE STORY BUILDING TO PLANT

At Approximate Cost of $300,000—Is 226 Feet Long by 62 Feet Wide—For Carding and Picking, Mule Spinning, Weaving and Warping—Is Equipped With 42 Looms—Electric Power Will Operate Machinery.

The Airlie Mills at Hanover, manufacturers of dress goods and fine suitings, have been adding a fine new mill building during the past year, erected at an approximate cost of $300,000.

The building is three stories, 226 feet long by 62 feet wide, with saw-tooth roof and tapestry brick front. It is connected to the present mill building by a concrete tunnel. The first floor contains the carding and picking machinery, the second is for mule spinning and the third for weaving and warping. Toilets are installed on either side of the stair tower on each floor.

The machinery equipment is to be Cashiko cards with tape condensers, Johnson & Bassett mules, and 42 Crompton & Knowles looms.

Electric power is to be used throughout, partly provided through a generator connected to the present waterwheel, and the balance of power to be bought from the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. A complete heating and automatic sprinkler system is included in the equipment of the mill.

The cornestone was laid December 14, 1921, by Angus Park, treasurer and general manager of the company, of which James W. Eadie is president and William G. Park vice president and secretary. Under the stone was placed the lease given to Angus Park by the family of the late Ethan Allen, dated August 8, 1899; also a copy of the December 14th edition of The Norwich Bulletin.

have their dealings with the Norwich national banks meant a slackening in industry which showed its effect in volume of bank business temporarily, but these were adjusted and the industrial life of this territory has been a busy and uninterrupted one ever since.

On the savings bank side it has been a year of growth in number and amount of deposits, all three of the Norwich Savings banks reporting this as their experience. The people have had money to lay away, there has been plenty of work for those who wanted to work, and the wage earners have been increasing their savings bank deposits. The Norwich Savings Society reports deposits the largest in their history. The Chelsea Savings bank and the Dime Savings bank each report good increases. In the last month the redemption of Victory notes by the government and the maturity of war savings stamps, has brought a lot of money into the family pocketbooks, but a large proportion of this has been put into savings bank accounts. The dividend rate on savings deposits has been at 4 per cent throughout the year.

Development and encouragement of the habit of thrift and saving money has been a feature of the year with two of the banks, the Norwich Savings Society and the Chelsea Savings bank. Their efforts have been rewarded with a notably fine response. Through the Norwich Savings Society school savings clubs were started in the Norwich public schools. Twenty-one of the banks through which stamps are bought have been installed. Once started, the children are persistent savers of their pennies, and over 3,200 accounts have been started this way.

The Chelsea Savings bank has promoted thrift clubs in manufacturing plants and school children's savings in districts in the surrounding territory. It has 29 industrial thrift clubs enrolled, with a membership of about 1,000, and school clubs in 20 school buildings, all sustaining their regular weekly payments with remarkable persistency. Of those who start, few drop out. The Christmas club of the Chelsea Savings has been another incentive to saving money at least temporarily. This year it distributed to its depositors about $60,000, more of which was doubtless used in Christmas purchasing to the benefit of the general business life, but some stayed in the bank on regular savings accounts. There are also 39 stores in Norwich interested in its mercantile reserves and a small membership in the boys and girls' club and in the vacation club.

Schoolclubs in all schools of the following towns are in the list operated by the Chelsea bank: Bozrah, Canterbury, Columbia, Franklin, Lebanon Ledyard Lisbon, North Stonington, Preston Sprague, Sterling, Voluntown, and also at St. Joseph's Parochial school, Baltic, Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic, Lyman High school, Lebanon, Wheeler High school, North Stonington, making 90 schools in all.

The Bankers Trust Co., which completed its first year on December 14, was likewise a stimulator of the thrift movement. It came to the close of its first year with a very satisfactory experience in general banking lines.

The new Winthrop Trust Company opened its doors for business the latter part of March and has shown a remarkable growth. The institution now has commercial deposits amounting to over $400,000, and has done a successful bidder for the city of Norwich and also for the bonds issued by the city during the year.

The deposits in the savings departments of the National Bank of Commerce and the New London City National Bank now amount to approximately $2,000,000. The competition of these banks for savings has undoubtedly checked the growth of the two mutual savings banks.

The distribution of the Christmas clubs of the Mariners Savings Bank, the Savings Bank of New London, and the New London City National Bank amounted this year to nearly $200,000, and must have been a large factor in the Christmas business of the merchants. A very large part of this money however, is not expended but it is added to the savings accounts. Thousands of people through the Christmas clubs have learned to save regularly a part of their earnings and it has been a very beneficial development in banking.

The payment of war savings certificates on January 1st, 1923 of a large part of the Fifth Liberty Loan has put a large amount of money in circulation and has materially increased the deposits of the banks. Probably a very small percentage of this money is reinvested in government securities.

Danielson Banks Forged Ahead Fast in 1922

Danielson's banking institutions have forged ahead at a remarkable pace during 1922, making continued and surprising gains in deposits, piling up greater surplus accounts and generally fortifying their position in the financial world.

What has been done by Danielson's banks has really been very surprising even to some of those on the official boards of the institutions. These banks have applied intensive methods for attracting business. While never deviating a hair's breadth from careful and conservative banking methods, as to the handling and investment of funds entrusted to their care, they have gone after business, much the same as a commercial house of modern efficiency goes after increased business, and have not been content to follow the conservative policy of awaiting what might come to them.

That their activities have been fruitful is indicated by their statements at the close of 1922. In the three institutions that have savings departments in Danielson, the increase in these deposits during the past twelve months presses close upon $700,000. Similar growth in deposits is manifested in the commercial departments of local banks.

Sharp competition for business among the Danielson banks serving not only the town of Killingly, but many neighboring communities as well, has brought splendid results. The banks have benefited by largely increased assets and their customers have been given the most courteous and efficient service. The public has not been slow to appreciate that Danielson's banks, keenly competing for the business of their territory, are serving wonderfully well.

An outstanding feature of the financial activities of Danielson during the year 1922 was the observance by the Windham County National bank of its 100th anniversary. The bank made much of its rounding out of a century of successful business and to show its appreciation of the patronage bestowed upon it by thousands of customers has paid dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. in its savings department. Beautiful souvenirs in the form of silver pencils and other gifts were given to those having commercial accounts and there were other things to feature the century year. Incidentally the bank's assets increased by $700,000 during 1922, and now stand at $2,500,000.

Surprising growth marked the business of The Danielson Trust Company during 1922. This youngest of Danielson's banks established only since 1914, has run its assets up to $1,200,000 in the brief period of eight years, showing steady and consistent gains each year since its establishment. In its savings department particularly has this bank shown surprising increases. The savings department was not opened until November, 1921, and had $100,000 in deposits at the beginning of 1922. In the past twelve months the gain in savings accounts has been in excess of $200,000, and this bank's savings accounts are now approaching the third of a million mark.

Right in line with Danielson's other banks doing both a commercial and a savings business is the Brooklyn Savings bank. This institution, one of the strongest in the eastern part of the state and always commanding the utmost confidence, devotes itself entirely to handling savings accounts. Since its removal from Brooklyn, where it was established in 1872, to Danielson a few years ago it has grown amazingly and with the beginning of 1923, it has deposits in excess of $2,500,000 and a surplus and undivided profits of $250,000, putting it in the $3,000,000 class. Its gain in deposits during 1922 was in excess of $200,000.

What has been done in the banking field in Danielson during the past decade may be indicated by pointing to the fact that the assets of three of Danielson's banks are now approximately $7,750,000 and will cross the $8,000,000 mark during the first month of this year. This is a remarkable growth when consideration is given the fact that only ten years ago Danielson's one commercial bank had total assets of only $500,000. Thus has extensive banking brought wonderful results toward making Danielson as important a banking center as is to be found in Connecticut in a place of Danielson's size.

Willimantic Banks Had Year of Growing Business

Growth in commercial and savings banks lines has been the record of the past year in Willimantic, according to the report of its strong and thrifty financial institutions, the Windham National bank, Willimantic Savings Institute, and Willimantic Trust Co.

The most noticeable feature of the growth of the Windham National bank in 1922 has been that the savings department. This branch of business was started on March 1st, 1921, after the bank had remodelled its building and by the first of January, 1923, the savings deposits had reached the figure of $465,149.97. During the year of 1922 the growth has been phenomenal, the total figure at present being $922,426.89, practically double that of January first last year.

That the commercial department has had a busy year due to the renewed activity of industry in the city is shown by the figure representing the total of the business in this department for the year. The total transaction has been $144,706,000. The commercial deposits have increased over $200,000.

The business in the safe deposit department has been about the same as last year.

The bank has taken care of the transfer, exchange, or redemption of a large share of the U. S. government bonds of the city and vicinity.

Prosperous Putnam Banks Will Occupy New Homes

Overshadowing the fact that Putnam's banks—the First National and the Putnam Savings—have enjoyed a prosperous year during 1922 is the decision of each of these institutions to place themselves in new banking homes during 1923. During the past month these banks have vacated the quarters they have occupied for all the years dating back through several decades in the building owned by the First National bank, at the corner of Main and Front streets and are temporarily located in quarters in what is known as the old Thompson bank building in Union street. There they will remain throughout the winter, while their new and beautiful quarters are being prepared for their occupancy.

The growth of the First National was the underlying cause for its decision to practically rebuild its old banking home into as beautiful and modern a financial structure as is to be found in any of the smaller cities or towns of Southern New England. Approximately $100,000 is to be expended in the rebuilding process and the work is now underway. Within the past three weeks the entire interior of the bank has been removed, leaving little more than the walls and even one of these—the north one—has been torn out in preparing to carry out the plans for the newer structure.

The new banking home of the First National is expected to be completed and ready for occupancy early in the spring. Work will proceed throughout the winter. The exterior is to have a stucco finish and marble, mahogany and bronze will enter into the interior construction. There is to be a mezzanine floor, most room for ladies and many other modern devices and conveniences for the clientele of the bank, which serves not only from Brooklyn, where it was established in 1872, to Danielson a few years ago it has grown amazingly and with the beginning of 1923, it has deposits in excess of $2,500,000 and a surplus and undivided profits of $250,000, putting it in the $3,000,000 class. Its gain in deposits during 1922 was in excess of $200,000.

What has been done in the banking field in Danielson during the past decade may be indicated by pointing to the fact that the assets of three of Danielson's banks are now approximately $7,750,000 and will cross the $8,000,000 mark during the first month of this year. This is a remarkable growth when consideration is given the fact that only ten years ago Danielson's one commercial bank had total assets of only $500,000. Thus has extensive banking brought wonderful results toward making Danielson as important a banking center as is to be found in Connecticut in a place of Danielson's size.

The First National bank of Putnam is particularly situated to serve the people in the extreme northeastern corner of the state and under the management of Charles G. Hatch, one patric, who also is the treasurer of the state of Connecticut, has and does serve them well. The bank has total resources of upwards of $3,000,000, as a commercial bank it occupies the Putnam field by itself and the manner in which it conducts business and holds the confidence of the public in it and its officers.

When its new home is completed it will be exclusively occupied by the First National.

In line with the changes brought about by the reconstruction of the First National bank building, which it had occupied for so many years, the Putnam Savings bank during the past few weeks removed by purchase what is known as the St. Onge block, on Main street, in the heart of the business section, to be the site for its new banking home. In the closing days of December the St. Onge block, a frame structure occupied in the basement and on the street level floors by business concerns and on the upper floor by the Arcanum club, was disposed of at auction by the Putnam Savings bank. Luther M. Keith was the purchaser and he took the building over with the expressed agreement that it would have to be removed by February 1, 1923, or such parts of it as remained would revert to

Putnam Savings bank's new home must be cleared during the present month of January and that preliminary operations looking toward the building of the new banking home will begin early in February.

Treasurer Daniel J. Byrne of the Putnam Savings bank has not indicated as yet what the plans for the new bank will be, but there is assurance that the structure will be a substantial one and will add beauty to the business section and will be a building of which the people of Putnam will be proud.

Established in 1862, the Putnam Savings bank has a list of depositors running into the thousands. The year just closed has been a very prosperous one for the bank, which is under the capable direction of Treasurer Daniel J. Byrne. Its deposits represent the savings of people in every section of northeastern Connecticut. Careful and conservative policies mark the administration of the bank's affairs and it is an institution of which Putnam and its people are proud.

In New London county, the cities of Norwich and New London showed increased figures over a year ago, and the county total was $2,855,275, as compared with $1,993,585 in 1921. Among the larger items of new building in New London county were a new ward at the Norwich state hospital, a large Main street business block in the city of Norwich, important additions to mercantile property in New London and a big addition to the Airlie mill at Hanover. Besides the work in the cities there was $565,000 in 1922 as compared with $350,000 in 1921 in the outside districts.

In Windham county the building figure showed an increase. For 1922 it represented a total of $700,000, as compared with $600,000 in 1921. Building was maintained at a normal volume in 1922 in Willimantic which showed $325,000 as against $300,000 the year before, while Putnam had $100,000 in 1921, as against $250,000 in 1922. Outside the cities the building total for 1922 was $225,000 as compared with $200,000 for 1921.

Greatest Building Figures in History of Norwich

Building activity in Norwich in the past year has been at unusual activity as indicated by the number of building permits issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton, whose records show that he never before issued so many for work within the city limits. These were 234, which exceeded the 178 permits for city construction in 1921, which had been the high-tide mark up to that time.

Approximate values represented in the construction work reached a total in the case of $785,600 to which are to be added $227,500 for buildings outside the city limits, and $250,000 for a new ward at the Norwich State Hospital, which brings the Norwich total to $1,263,100, which sets the high figure for all time. In 1921 the total was $1,170,400.

New Dwellings Make Record.

Significant in the building work has been the number of new buildings erected, a total of 198, of which 95 were new dwelling houses, which again is a record for the city and town. These have been erected generally throughout the city, while special activity in putting up new residences is to be noted in the Thamesville section, the East Great Plain neighborhood and at Yantic, where the American Woolen company has built a number of cottages for its employees.

New Disco Building.

Most notable of the new buildings in the business section has been the new Disco building at the corner of Main and Ferry streets, a modern fireproof five story store and office building which will be a fine addition to the business property.

Situated on one of the most desirable business corners in the heart of the business section, the plans made by the Disco Bros. insure a building that will be an ornament to its location and an important factor in modernizing the appearance of Franklin Square. It has a frontage of 55 feet on Main street and depth of 123 feet on Ferry street.

The new Disco building is the first of the type of modern steel-frame construction to be erected in this city and is completely fireproof. The floors are of reinforced concrete and fireproof tile, partitions of fireproof tile and outside walls of the same tiling inside the brick. The Main street front will make a particularly attractive appearance in granite with light buff terra cotta, worked out in decorative design. The Ferry steet side is in light tapestry brick with terra cotta window trim.

On the main floor will be the Disco Bros. store with entrance on Main street between the two big plate glass show windows. The corner of the building is a curved glass show window, this extending twenty-five feet down along the Ferry street side. The inside finish in the store, as well as in the offices and halls in the building, will be in mahogany, using birch stained to mahogany finish. Modern electric lighting effects will be carried out in the store for the display tables and in the ceiling lights.

The four upper floors which are reached by a stairway at the eastern end of the Main street front, will each contain fifteen offices, 12 x 20. A Pullman parlor elevator, finished in mahogany, will run from the main floor to the top. There is a freight elevator at the rear, where there are also steel stairways from the cellar to the top floor. The main stairway will be wainscotted in marble with tile floors in the halls.

The basement under the whole building will provide the stock room for the firm's store, and will also contain the twin-boiler heating plant, coal bin under the sidewalk and a janitor's room.

Many Changes in Store Property.

Many changes have been made to buildings in altering them over to mercantile use, or in improvements of their present fronts and interior arrangements.

During the year a new frame church was built by the congregation of the Polish National Catholic church, a building 44 x 85 feet, with basement.

New Buildings Occupied.

New buildings on which construction was begun in the preceding year but which were completed and occupied during the past twelve months include the Elizabeth street school, the Young Men's Christian Association building on Main street, and St. Mary's Memorial church at the corner of Central avenue and Prospect street.

Will Build Palace Theater.

For the year just beginning an important new building to be begun and completed at a probable approximate cost of $150,000 will be the Palace theater, to be erected by the Norwich Palace theater corporation on the so-called Vaughn foundry plot, between Rose place and Ferry street. This will be a modern playhouse in every respect, seating approximately 1,500, and fully equipped for giving all kinds of productions. It will have a stage 78 feet across and 23 feet deep, and it will be 95 feet from the front of the stage to the rear of the theater. Fireproof construction will be used and there will be six exits to the building. The whole will be finished to meet modern requirements for the comfort of its patrons and their pleasure in handsome interior fittings in marble, tileing and lighting effects.

New London's building record in 1922 went $353,990 ahead of 1921 in the approximate expenditures for new buildings, alterations and additions. In 1922, with 313 permits issued through building inspector Jacob Linicus, there was a total of $827,175 represented, while in 1921 on 305 permits the figure was $473,185.

The following summary shows the record for the year:

	Permits.	Valuation.
Industrial and mercantile	61	$319,350.00
Dwelling houses	35	370,000.00
Garages	101	47,075.00
Additions and alterations	66	90,750.00
Totals	313	$827,175.00

The increase was notable in industrial and commercial buildings and in new dwellings. Of the first named class there were 61, valued at $319,350, where in 1921 there were 52 valued at $184,450. In new dwelling houses there were permits for 35, valued at $370,000, as compared with 59 in 1921, valued at $213,080. Over 100 new garages were erected in each year, showing 101 in 1922 at a valuation of $47,075 against 113 in 1921 at a valuation of $39,450. Extensive changes in old buildings are indicated by the figures for alterations and addition. These were less in number in 1922 than in 1921, but greater in value. In 1921 there were 66, at a valuation of $90,750 as against 81 in 1921 with $36,285 in value.

Over $100,000 In Building In Jewett City In Year

During the year 1922 the building activity in Jewett City was considerable in volume, although much less in value, than when in preceding years the mills have built costly additions. Daniel Morgan has built a fine new two story house on the site where his old historic residence was destroyed by fire last August. There are two new houses on Oak street, one was built by Joseph Kosloski, the other is owned by a Polish man.

There have been three modern garages built. One by W. F. Bogue, of Norwich, which included the remodeling and refitting of the old "bank" building on South Main street, this being used for an automobile service station.

Two garages and service stations were built on Mathewson street and are occupied by Philip Malady and Adam Rojeski.

Thomas McBroome has built a new restaurant at Main street, with all the requirements of an up to date eating establishment.

On East Main street, three modern residences have been built, which add appreciably to the appearance of this attractive street. They are owned by E. E. Gilbert, Samuel Cathcart and Charles Butts. Other residences on Brown avenue and in that section of the town have been built by Joseph Couture.

Mr. Lagasse and Dona Jodoin built three cottage houses and lumber shed on Phillips street, also a new house has been built on Potts' Point at Tadpole.

A large brick business block is nearing completion at the junction of Soule and Railroad avenue, there will be two stores of modern construction, with one entrance on Soule street, and the other at the corner.

The Aspinook Co. have put in granolithic walks and roads, costing more than $15,000. This means that in their great mill yards, all the non-turfed sections are now paved in cement throughout.

Close to 50,000 square feet of granolithic walk have been made by property owners, within the borough, where they abut the highway. This includes over 12,000 feet by the Ashland Cotton Co. Reports from the lumber supply depots of Charles Phillips and Chapman and Tripp, show more shingles sold than during any preceeding year, all used for local reshingling. The figures show that well over 225,000 shingles were laid in the borough during 1922. At one time no less than 15 houses were being shingled at the same time.

The Eddie Gomes restaurant burned and was rebuilt, by its owner Chapman and Tripp. The Ashland Cotton house fronting the railroad off Anthony street, abandoned by them for better accommodations has been rebuilt for the Western Grain Co.

Last, but not least, W. A. Christopher built a house on an auto truck, recently reported from North Carolina.

Costs that are available as absolute, and estimates that are calculated on a regular construction basis, show that over $100,000 has been expended on building and improvements during the past year.

Putnam Has Had Greatest Building Boom in Decade

Building operations undertaken or projected in Putnam during 1922 will represent when completed well in excess of $250,000 and may reach the third of a million mark. This is the greatest building boom that the city has experienced in a decade and came about more or less unexpectedly.

Among the major projects underway are the construction of an addition at St. Mary's school that will involve the expenditure of upwards of $100,000. Work on this addition, which will provide many additional class rooms, was undertaken this fall and will be completed sometime during the coming spring or early summer.

With his parish free from debt and an accumulated surplus of $50,000 on hand, Rev. Charles F. Bedard has undertaken the important work of eplarging the city's parochial school that the more than 800 pupils who are studying there may have adequate quarters and a school modern and thoroughly equipped in every way.

Likewise the town during 1922 found it necessary to look to the subject of increasing its graded school facilities that the overcrowded condition of the Israel Putnam school on School street might be relieved. To this end a special meeting appropriated $30,000 for the erection of a 4-room addition at the southerly side of the present structure and work on the undertaking has been underway for several months. The addition will be completed and ready for occupancy in the spring.

Three new business blocks are included in the building achievements of Putnam during 1922. One of these is the two-story Wolf and Kaminsky building, a sightly structure completed on Main street, nearly opposite the Peloquin block, a few months ago, and now occupied with business concerns and other tenants. This building represents an investment of upwards of $30,000.

Another fine business structure completed in 1922 is the Robitaille block at the corner of Front and School streets and chiefly occupied by the Central Auto Supply Company. This building, which is of brick and attractive design, replaces wooden buildings that formerly occupied this desirable business site.

Just below the Robitaille building on Front street the Rawley block, of brick, is in course of construction. This, too, is a building that will greatly add to the appearance of the section where it is located and will contribute toward the formation of another business center in Putnam.

Near the close of the year two other important building projects were announced. The First National bank made known that it was ready to proceed with the practical reconstruction of its banking home, built in 1865, at the corner of Main and Front streets. Accordingly this bank moved out to temporary quarters during the past month, as did the Putnam Savings bank, occupying the upper floor of the First National's building, and wreckers at once started pulling the First National's building apart to make what is to be allowed to remain of it ready for the rebuilding operations. Reconstruction of this building will involve the expenditure of approximately $100,000, and will give Putnam one of the handsomest banking buildings of any

NEW DISCO BUILDING, NORWICH.

New Palace Theater in Norwich to be Erected in Present Year

At Cost of $150,000—Work to be Started This Month—Will be City's Finest Playhouse—Seating Capacity of 1,500—Stage 78 Feet Wide and 23 Feet Deep—Adequate for Everything from Movies to Highest Class Productions—Safety and Beauty Combined in Plans.

For many years Norwich has felt the need of a modern and entirely safe theatre and at last through the organization of the Norwich Palace Theatre Corporation such a playhouse is to be erected during the coming year. A. A. Spitz, president and treasurer of the S and B Amusement Co. of Providence came to Norwich a short time ago and interested local capital in the project, with the result that the new corporation was organized with Mr. Spitz as president E. W. Higgins of this city as secretary, and C. H. Stedman, of Cranston, R. I. as treasurer.

Work on the plans for the new theatre was started immediately, and a ninety-nine year lease on a parcel of land and buildings on Rose Place in the heart of the business district of Norwich was secured. Architects Cudworth and Thompson were given the contract for drawing up the plans for the theatre building with the result that the plans were accepted and as fine an amusement house as any in the state will be erected. The contract for the general construction was awarded to the H. Wales Lines Co. of Meriden, and work will start almost immediately.

The paramount idea of Mr. Spitz, who has had wide experience in the management of theatres, is "Safety First" and it is along these lines, as well as for beauty, that the new theatre will be built. The theatre will be built on the one floor plan extending from Rose place to Ferry street, with the main entrance on Rose place, but with eight exits leading directly to the street. It will cost approximately $150,000.

The front elevation of the building will be of buff tapestry brick with limestone trimmings. There will be a metal marquis with leaded glass trimming and decorations. In the front will also be a large leaded glass cathedral window. There will also be a small store to the right of the main entrance and this has already been leased. The lobby will be floored in white ceramic tile with a border of colored tile and a marble wainscoting will run entirely around the lobby. Ornamental plaster cornice will add to

FARM AND HOME BUREAU SERVED NEW LONDON COUNTY COMMUNITIES

Expert Leadership Given to Raise Standards and Bring About Better and More Profitable Conditions in Farming—Dairying, Poultry, Co-operative Buying, Orchard Improvement and Crop Raising Among the Projects in County Work.

The New London County Farm and Home Bureau had in 1922 a year that exceeded any other in the value of service rendered to the farmers and to the women in farm homes and communities.

The plans laid out at the beginning of the year under county agent Harold F. Johnson and the home demonstration agent, Miss Gladys Stratton, with the assistance of the town committees, covered helpful projects which have been carried out in many communities with much success. Results cannot fail to be shown through the instruction that has been given and the new methods that have been instituted for farm and home work.

That the value of this work is increasingly appreciated by those who can benefit by it is shown by the ready cooperation with the county agent and home demonstration agent by town committees and the leaders in community work.

Varied Work Done for Benefit of the Farmers

In outlining the program of work which has been followed during the past year, three factors were taken into careful consideration:—namely the program of the previous year, the important projects which had as yet been untouched in the county, and the amount of specialist assistance available from the Connecticut Agricultural College. In going over the program of the previous year it was found that practically no attempt had been made to interest the farmers in keeping records of their farm business. This is one of the most fundamental projects which the Extension Organization can undertake and it was decided to write a Farm Management project into the general project.

Project Activities and Results.

1. Eleven community committees functioned during the past year or at least there were eleven committees on paper and definite records have been secured to show that twenty-four out of the forty-eight members on these committees took some active interest in pushing across the particular project in their community. Practically all of the other members on these committees were running on their own farm some demonstration work so that while their interest was not exactly active they were nevertheless helping develop Extension work.

Soil Improvement Work.

Under the Soil Improvement Project the use of lime has received considerable attention.

Seventeen soil samples were taken on different farms and tested by the the Truog method at the office. Without exception they all show a lime requirement of one to four tons of ground lime stone per acre. During the previous year a number of soil samples were also tested so that at the present time a pretty good idea of lime requirements has been secured of this county.

Through the cooperative exchange pool fourteen carloads of lime were brought in. Three of these were cars of ground lime stone, while the other cars were high quality agricultural lime. There is no question but what considerable saving was made to the men who bought agricultural lime. An estimate of this saving might be made as follows, taking the average haul for farmers who bought this lime, at four miles, and figuring the cost of haul at $1.50 per ton, which is probably low. The average car contained 30 tons of lime which gives us a total of 360 tons of agricultural lime. An analysis of the agricultural lime as stated by the Eastern Bureau of the National Lime Association was 1745 pounds of effective oxides per ton. On the same basis there were 937 pounds of effective oxides per ton in the ground lime stone. At prices quoted last year ground lime stone at the plant cost $3.50 per ton, freight was $2.50 and with hauling estimated at $1.50, this would give us a cost of $7.50 per ton laid down on the farm.

The agricultural lime cost $7.50 at the plant and with the freight charge of $2.20 and the haul at $1.50 would cost $11.20 per ton, on the farm. Dividing 1745 pounds of effective oxides into $11.20 per ton would give us a cost of 65c per 100 pounds in the agricultural lime. Dividing 937 into $7.50 per ton would give us a cost of 73c per 100 pounds of ground lime stone. This is a difference of 13c per 100 pounds of effective oxides and if this is multiplied by the number of pounds of effective oxides into 360 tons which is 8758, we shall have $748.50 saved by buying high grade lime. It is probable, however, that by buying a high grade of lime there was more actual lime brought in than would otherwise have been the case with ground lime stone.

Use of Explosives.

Considerable interest has been shown in the use of explosives for blasting out rocks in fields and in blowing ditches for drainage. One such demonstration has been staged this year at which time a specialist from the Connecticut Agricultural College demonstrated the ways of securing the most effective use from a given amount of explosives. There are a large number of places in New London county where farmers are troubled with rocks in their mowing lands and also with wet places which might easily be drained by the use of a small amount of explosive. Work will also be undertaken if interest warrants to secure explosives in quantity. Local dealers are charging 45 to 60 cents per pound, whereas dynamite can be bought in quantity for cash direct at 18 to 25 cents less.

Clover.

Four rotation demonstrations on clover were started using the following plan:—

1. Clover seed was secured from an absolutely reliable source for these demonstrations.

2. A liberal amount of acid phosphate and potash was put in usually at the rate of 500 to 600 pounds of acid phosphate to 100 pounds of potash per acre. Where the clover was seeded in oats six or at the outside eight pecks of oats were used per acre for the nurse crop. (As a general practice in this locality twelve to sixteen pecks are used.)

3. Oats were cut for hay in all cases and a special effort was made to see that the cutter bar was set as high as possible so as to give the young clover a chance.

4. No clover was cut provided there was stand enough after the first of September.

5. There was no fall pasturing with cows.

6. Soil samples were taken on all fields and liberal application of lime used.

These briefly, were the precautions taken in putting in the rotation demonstrations. The seed used was secured from the G. L. F. Exchange at Syracuse, New York, as this concern would guarantee the seed and also stated exactly where the seed was grown.

Hope For Clover.

On two of the rotation demonstrations, small plots of Italian and French clover seeds have been put in at the same rate as red clover seed raised in the United States. As these demonstrations go into the winter, the stand on these plots where foreign clover seed was used, is very light compared with the rest. Careful weights will be taken another year on all the rotation demonstrations to determine the average yield and records will be kept over a period of four years at least through one rotation on this field to determine the value of good methods in crop production. When the field is plowed up a program will be worked out with the demonstrator for each crop which he puts in, until it is seeded down again. It is hoped by using these rotation demonstration fields which contain anywhere from one to three acres in the demonstration plot, that farmers will become interested in following out the right kind of practice in raising clover. If the right methods are carried out in this county no clover will be ruined as is evident at the present time on the lack of clover.

Potatoes.

1. Considerable work was done this year on the improvement of the potato crop, particularly with reference to the use of certified northern seed. The different demonstrations that were put in used, in most cases, four different sources of potato seed:—

(c) Northern seed from unknown sources. Uncertified.

Over 1800 bushels of certified Vermont seed was brought in through the cooperative exchange pool. According to figures secured in the demonstrations the difference between buying from local dealers who bought certified seed anywhere they could buy it cheap, and in buying directly from reputable growers averaged approximately 150 bushels more per acre in favor of buying from reputable dealers.

Early in October a potato field day of state-wide importance was staged on Preston Plains. In this particular locality there were four potato growers, three of whom had done an excellent piece of work in raising potatoes this year. One other man had done everything well except spraying and his field as a result was hit by blight the fore part of August and a very small yield resulted. The state-wide potato field day brought out a crowd of better than 150 men. On this day the first field visited was that on which there was a demonstration showing the value of good certified northern seed. The men were somewhat surprised to see the tremendous difference between the unsprayed field almost across the road from the sprayed field. A difference of around 200 bushels to the acre was shown as a result of good spraying. The following were the results secured on the different fields:

Each one present was given an outline of the method which each potato grower had used and on the last sheet were blank spaces which they filled in as the potatoes were dug and weighed, with the yield per acre. One particular instance proved somewhat amusing. The boss farmer of one of the large mills of Williamantic came down and before the potatoes were dug got into conversation with one of the demonstrators. He said that he remembered a few years ago that he had a particularly good potato season and secured a yield of better than 200 bushels per acre. It is very probable that his eyes were opened that day somewhat when he saw potatoes rolled out on one of the fields at the rate of 450 bushels per acre.

Pastures.

Pasture demonstrations were carried out this year the same as last putting in three new ones. The plan of treatment was much the same, using a combination of lime, acid phosphate and in most cases putting on a small strip of potash. Soil samples were taken in all cases and lime at the rate of one ton or more of agricultural lime, 600 of acid phosphate and 100 of potash per acre were applied. It was impossible to get any measured results but the consensus of opinion among the men who ran these demonstrations seemed to be "that the cows hung around these demonstration plots more than any other place in the pasture." After the cows were taken off this fall a visit was made to the plots and it was very easy to see a much better sod where the above treatment had been applied and in one or two cases the amount of clover which had come in was astonishing.

Corn.

Three different types of corn demonstrations have been carried out this year.

In the silage corn tests several different varieties of silage corn were put in and were secured from the following places: Sweepstakes from the International Record Association of Elmira, New York. This was sold this year by a local dealer at $5.00 per bushel. Genuine Sweepstakes from the West Branch Corn Growers Association at West Branch, Pa., $3.90 per bushel. Improved Leaming from local dealers. Leaming bought direct from farmers in southern Ohio, Mastadon from locally grown seed in Connecticut, Eureka from T. W. Woods & Son, Richmond, Va. The reason for using these different varieties may be outlined briefly. The International Record Association was putting on last spring a big drive to sell Sweepstake corn at $5.00 per bushel. Correspondence with men who were in a position to know conveyed the idea that this corn was a promotional scheme and that this corn was anything but exceptional. This was proved out in the demonstrations. The Sweepstakes from West Branch was known to be an absolutely reliable source and carried possibilities of being worth considering for silage in this section. This was proved out in the demonstrations. The same thing was proved in regard to Ohio Leaming bought direct from southern Ohio farmers. The Leaming corn grew taller, produced considerably more, weighed more than Leaming grown from seed secured from local dealers. Mastadon and Eureka are grown to some extent, Eureka to a considerable extent in this county. As a result of these demonstrations considerable time will be spent in interesting farmers in using Leaming seed bought direct from farmers in Ohio and West Branch Sweepstakes.

Very careful methods have been used in running corn demonstration work. Silage corn demonstrations and field corn demonstrations were all put in by hand, the seed being dropped five kernels to the hill and the same amount of fertilizer being used on each variety. Later after the seed had come up and the plants were six to seven inches high the corn was thinned in the case of silage corn two stalks to the hill. In the case of field corn, two stalks to the hill. In both cases corn was planted three feet each way.

Vegetable Growing.

Several demonstrations were worked out with the vegetable specialist, in tomatoes, beets and cabbages. Two demonstrations were put in using tomato seed secured from different sources. Two demonstrations were also put in, in which the young tomato plants were pruned back, in the hot house so as to give them many more branches. The tomatoes came exceptionally early, it was reported.

Two demonstrations were put in to determine the value of buying beet seed from certain growers who put out the very best and the same thing was done in connection with cabbage. Two demonstrations in the control of cabbage maggot were put in and the men reported that very few plants were lost from the maggott when they used the bichcloride of mercury treatment.

Fruit Work.

The fruit work in this county was lined up under three distinct heads this year, namely, (1) demonstration orchards, (2) the organization of a number of spray rings and (3) small fruits demonstrations.

Seven demonstrations were carried out this year the same as last year using the same plan, that of holding a pruning demonstration early in the winter and then having the owner prune the rest of his trees. A complete spray schedule was worked out with him and recomendations for fertilizer were also given using nitrate of soda from five to eight pounds per tree. The same difficulty presented itself this year as last, in that the fruit set was very small and only one or two of the demonstration orchards had anything worth while to report.

Spray Rings.

Four spray rings were organized this year. These were organized as entirely separate units from the Farm Bureau. The following are the localities in which these spray rings were organized, Rixing the number of members and approximate number of trees:—

	Members	Trees Sprayed
Waterford	6	110
Lebanon	12	550
Griswold	9	418
Norwich	19	700
Totals	46	1,778

No data as yet has been secured on the approximate yield from orchards which had a lot of fruit. A very careful attempt has been made to check up on what the members of these spray rings think of the proposition and we have secured a large number of opinions, only one man has been found and this man owns something like three or four trees, who is not well satisfied with the way that they operate.

Poultry.

During this year considerable work has been done on the poultry project. Two junior poultry clubs were organized last spring and the later re-organized with a larger number of members, each club having about ten members with around 200 birds represented in each. During June two caponizing demonstrations were given.

Another thing which is interesting poultrymen considerably are the house plans which were worked up by the poultry department at the College. These plans are supplied to the poultrymen either from the College or through the County Extension office. It is definitely known that eighteen houses have been built this year from plans furnished to the poultrymen. These houses are 20 x 30 and will accomodate from 150 to 200 birds depending on the size of the breed.

A small amount of time has been spent on getting men interested in certification and testing. To date four poultrymen in the county, have had their flocks certified and tested. It is estimated that one-half to two-thirds of the poultrymen are using standard ration of equal parts of bran, middlings, corn meal, ground oats, beef scrap and gluten, which is recommended by Connecticut Agricultural College.

Dairy.

In reviewing the work of the past year it would seem that not as much time has been spent on dairy work as should have been. A junior dairy and judging club was organized which ran for two months, during July and August, at which time eight boys in the county kept records on three or more cows, and attended a dairy field day in competition for a prize of a trip to the State Fair at Hartford, and to the Eastern States Exposition. This project was discontinued the first of September, but the boys showed so much interest that a county meeting was called for boys interested in working out a year round dairy project. Work is being done on a county club at the present time and five boys of this county and of an adjoining county are already lined up with several more prospective members on a county dairy club.

As this report is being gotten out plans for a complete dairy survey of the county have just been outlined.

As far as possible every farm in this county will be covered, each town being organized with a committee of three to six men depending on the size of the town.

Two dairy management demonstrations have been lined up for next year, the men agreeing to keep records on milk production of each cow through weighing three times per month. They will also have their milk tested once a month and will also keep a record of feed cost.

One meeting has been held in cooperation with the Dairy Specialist at the College to outline to a group of milk men who are large purchasers of cows the possibility of buying cows of exceptional quality in Wisconsin. The depreciation on cows bought by milk men in this county around Norwich and New London is tremendous and in the dairy survey about to be run an effort will be made to secure a large amount of information on this score.

Two meetings were held this past year on tuberculin testing.

In Norwich considerable cooperation was given to a Bread and Milk Campaign staged by the milk men and bakers, under the direction of a yeast company. The dairymen raised $200 for this campaign and through the schools, through advertisements and through a parade endeavored to put before the people the value of milk, specializing particularly on bread and milk, as the bakers wished to be a part of this program. The County Agent asked two or three members of the committee after the campaign was over, what seemed to be the attitude of the dairymen toward this campaign. They replied that most of the dairymen talked with, said they did not know how much good it did but almost in the same breath most of them said that they had never had a better demand for their milk than at just that time.

Cooperative Exchange Pool.

The outstanding feature of the cooperative buying and selling work done in this county has been the cooperative exchange pool, similar to the one carried out a year ago. One man was in charge of fertilizer, lime and seed potato orders and one other man had charge of the farm seed orders. All of these commodities were shipped in this last spring or 1922. It is impossible to state just what the saving was on fertilizers bought in this way. Out of the 758 tons of fertilizers bought through the cooperative exchange pool 641 tons were bought in the form of raw materials, and the remaining 117 tons were bought in the form of ready mixed goods.

At the cooperative buying pool meeting held this year to organize for the 1923 pool the men present were asked to state what they knew concerning prices on ready mixed 4-8-4 goods this last spring. One man said that he knew of one dealer who sold 4-8-4 from the same car to different men at prices ranging from $47 to $55 per ton. One other man knew that 4-8-4 was costing $50 per ton early in the spring but as soon as the exchange pool prices were made known, his prices dropped $40 per ton. The County Agent secured figures from another man who said that after the cooperative buying pool fertilizer had all been unloaded he bought a half ton from a local dealer, as he did not have quite enough for his own use of the raw materials, and paid $25 for half ton, and paid for hauling besides. It would seem from the figures which have been secured that it would be only fair to estimate the average price of 4-8-4 fertilizer at around $45 per ton. As near as can be estimated from the formulas used for mixing raw materials the majority of the men did not pay over $25 per ton for the same amount of plant food in the raw materials. This means that the men saved approximately $20 per ton between the two systems of buying, namely, buying cooperatively for cash and home mixing, or buying on the old plan of a ready mixed fertilizer on time, December 1st basis the same basis $45 per ton for 4-8-4 fertilizer and with the exchange charging $1.50 per ton in most cases for their commission over the $44.25 which the 4-8-4 ready mixed cost the exchange, the following table will estimate the approximate savings through the cooperative buying on fertilizers this year:—

Number of tons raw materials handled	641
Approximate savings per ton	$20.00
Total estimated savings on raw material	$12,820.00
Number of tons mixed fertilizers purchased through pool	117
Approximate savings per ton	$10.25

Over 1800 bushels of Northern certified seed potatoes were brought into New London County this year. One car was bought in the late fall of 1921 and the other the spring of this year. The men paid from $1.90 to $2.25 per bushel for these seed potatoes. The dealers were charging for certified seed an average of $2.50 per bushel. Taking $2.10 as an average this shows on 1800 bushels at a saving of forty cents per bushel $720 saving in cooperative pooling of orders besides being very sure that they are good seed.

In part Miss Stratton's annual report says:

In the program of work for 1922 the projects adopted were organization, clothing, health, nutrition, household management, junior clubs, miscellaneous.

An effort has been made to co-operate with existing community organizations, with parent-teachers' associations, school supervisors and nurses, granges and fair committees.

At the annual conference of the county and home demonstration agents held at the state college with state leaders and specialists, goals were set for work we hoped to accomplish during the year in each county. Following is the chart giving goals in home economics projects for New London county and results by groups:

Fields Tours
Annual Field Trip
Totals	147	173

Last year there were 36 communities working with 40 local leaders. This year we have 55 communities and 21 new leaders.

Field Tours.

Two tours were run in co-operation with the county agent and local demonstrators.

a. Lebanon-Franklin Tour—Group met at home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Jones; five groups represented, 111 women present. Mrs. Jones showed a home-made fireless cooker which has been in use about two years and has proved itself very worth while to the owner. Mrs. Jones showed several small utensils which she had found time or labor savers. The next stop was at E. H. McCall's farm, where Mrs. McCall had a home-made couch hammock which she had made at a cost of less than $7.00. The article would have cost her $22 to purchase. She had the frame made of piping by plumber. This was covered with canvas, slats were used to run chains through which went from frame to ceiling. She has found in making this one, some changes she would suggest in making another, but considers it a very worth while project and a real saving. Mrs. McCall also showed a chair she had upholstered in leather which was a very good looking piece of work. She explained how she did it and what it cost her as well as what it would have cost had she had it done by a regular upholsterer. The third stop was at Mr. and Mrs. B. T. York's, where the men went over to Mr. York's orchard which has done exceptionally well this year due to spraying. The women enjoyed seeing the demonstration given by the Junior Health club demonstration team from the Waterman school. The girls told about the work of the club and what the club members had done to get up to normal weight and demonstrated making spinach soup which was one of the foods they had learned to make at school. The next stop was at Mr. Charles Abell's to see a corn demonstration plot. The fifth stop at Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Foster's on Lebanon Green. Here everyone enjoyed lunch in Mr. Foster's barn as a shower came up just then. After lunch it had cleared off and the men looked over projects outside while Mrs. Foster showed the women her water system, recently installed, and explained her method of caring for old wooden floors which are one of the problems of most women who have the old home to live in. The sixth stop was made at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. J. E. Ayer in Franklin. Here Mrs. Ayer showed the women her heating and lighting system as well as her method of washing which has done away with lifting water in and out of machine and tubs. Sport were enjoyed by men and women before starting for home.

b. Preston-Stonington Tour—The start was made from the office in Norwich going to the farm of William Service in Preston first, where both men and women were interested in looking over his poultry and fine poultry houses. The next stop was made on Preston Plains at the potato demonstration plot of Messrs. Shedd and Dawley where the effect of efficient spraying and no spraying was shown. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Gray, the men saw the top dressing demonstration carried on by Mr. Gray and the women had a chance to see some of the work done by members of the class who worked on reseating chairs in cane, splint or hemp. Mrs. Gray had also a chair on exhibition in which she had done a sample of the six steps in cane seating to give people a better idea of how the work was done. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Avery the water system in home and barn was shown to both men and women as well as his dairy herd and orchard. The next stop was at the Fair Grounds where lunch was eaten. Mr. Irving Main's corn demonstration was next on the program, after which Mr. and Mrs. Harold Crichesson's place was visited. Here the men saw a poultry house made from an old building which has proved very satisfactory and Mrs. Crichesson gave the women a chance to see her fireless and pressure cookers and explained how they work easier for her as well as how both were used. Mrs. Crichesson is also using an auto vacuum ice cream freezer which she says makes it possible for them to have ice cream frequently as there is no churning to be done. After leaving the Crichesson place one more stop was made at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. York. The men and women were interested in Mrs. York's kitchen arrangements and conveniences as well as the water system. The water system includes a very modern bathroom on the first floor. In the kitchen Mrs. York had installed a white enamel bowl with the two faucets for the men to wash at, thus making it unnecessary for them to go to the kitchen sink to wash. She has her sink at the proper height for her to work at and has a stool to sit on while working at sink or bread shelf.

Food and Nutrition.

This work was taken up under three heads, food production, food preservation, and nutrition. With a successful bee club organized in Griswold under the first and individual work in canning done in five homes under the second. Not much was accomplished in the nutrition programme.

Boys' and Girls' Club Work—This year with the assistance of Miss Trabue, the assistane state club leader, junior clubs were organized in three communities early last spring.

Interest in junior clubs was stimulated in Lebanon by a talk given at the Goshen institute by Miss Trabue on what the girls were doing in club work in various parts of the state. A request followed for a Health club in the Waterman district and a cooking club in Goshen.

a. Health Club—Leader, Miss Rose Sullivan, teacher; committee, Mrs. E. V. Waterman; president, Lena Levitt; secretary, Bessie Jullo; place of meeting, Waterman school; members, 17 underweight children.

This group was weighed in November and a large percentage of underweights found. Inside of two months all the children but two had gained some; one had gained eight pounds and reached normal. At one of the meetings in answering the roll a they gave what they thought the reason why they had or had not gained. One girl said she thought she had a weight due to the fact that she had been able to rest more hours of her patients had been taking a part of her home work and then she was being carried to and from school instead of walking. Added to the fact that she was being given each daily she was trying to use more of the foods she should and was having a hot dish with her cold lunch at school.

The next girl answering did not care any to speak of throughout the months the club was running. Another was too much home work. The health club would like to continue their work at the Waterman school another year.

Cooking Club—Leader Mrs. B. T. York; committee, Mrs. E. H. McCall, Mrs. J. C. Thomas. Mrs. B. T. York; place of meeting, Mrs. York's home; members, 8 girls; president, Eunice Barrows, Leonard's Bridge; vice president, Annie Mitchell, Leonard's Bridge; secretary, Helen Weronik, Leonard's Bridge; treasurer, Sophie Gorski, Leonard's Bridge.

The group commenced work with Mrs. York in April. Besides four girls from American homes there were Polish girls. Much of the work taught by the course was entirely new to them and Mrs. York felt they were getting something to take home that they could get no other way, as cooking or home making was not being taught them in school.

When school closed the club work did not thrive. The Polish girls had to work and their parents did not think they should use time needed in farm or home work to attend the class. So the club was discontinued. This fall those girls all have an opportunity to go to the new school in Lebanon where they will be taught some cooking and other home making courses.

Canning Clubs.

Stonington—Through work carried on with women at the Wequetequock Community club, interest was created in club work for boys and girls. Miss Lucy

BUILT MANY HIGHWAYS AND NEW BRIDGE IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT

Over 74 Miles of Road Improved by State Highway Department at Expenditure of $2,796,728.80—Single Leaf Bascule Bridge Built at Mystic—Norwich to Westerly and New London to Hartford Trunk Lines Completed.

Over 74 miles of highway in Eastern Connecticut has been under construction in the past year at a total expenditure of $2,796,728.80 in New London, Windham and Tolland counties. Concrete, trap rock macadam, native stone macadam and bituminous macadam have been the types of construction most used by the state highway department of which A. W. Bushell of Norwich is division engineer on the work in these counties.

The new Mystic river bridge has been an important piece of work in the year, replacing the old steel bridge with a drawbridge of the single leaf bascule type, which has been built at a cost of approximately $289,179.33.

The two largest jobs of the year were in New London county on the completion of the Norwich-Westerly bituminous macadam road and the Hartford-New London concrete road. Both work into the trunk line system of the state and each is a link between interior points and the seashore.

In New London county the improvement and new road work was carried on over 59.45 miles of road and the expenditure was $2,505,094.02, which included the building of the Mystic river bridge.

In Windham county there were 12.37 miles of road on which $255,960.58 were spent and in Tolland county the expenditure was $35,674.20 on 2.45 miles of road.

There are nearly a dozen pieces of roadway which have been only partially completed, but remaining to be finished in the present year.

WOMEN OF NEW LONDON COUNTY ARE GIVEN HOME ECONOMICS INSTRUCTION

Crowley in on the committee for junior work in the community and she said she would take the leadership of a club.

Mr. Brundage, state leader, and Miss Gertrude Wing, assistant, organized the club for canning in June. There were eleven girls enrolled. These girls completed all the club requirements, each canned 25 jars of fruits or vegetables and exhibited at the North Stonington fair in September. This club was later organized into a clothing club.

Clothing Clubs.

Three were organized during the year and one more group has made the request for club work but has not yet been organized. These clubs are two in Baltic and one in Stonington.

Convent Group, Baltic—One club was organized with 15 girls enrolled in the convent at Baltic this fall to take the first year clothing course. Sister Xaveria acts as leader for this group.

Busy Bees club, Baltic—Leader, Mrs. J. G. Burr; organized in spring of 1922, through interest in clothing work with adult groups, some of the girls have attended these classes. The club was organized with eleven girls as members. By August all of the girls had completed the first year requirements. At the state fair at Hartford they exhibited pin balls, pin cushions, work baskets and dusters, taking seventeen prizes

Health.

This project includes:

a. Weighing and measuring of children and hot lunch and milk service.

b. Home nursing groups.

At the annual conference held in December, 1921, the goals set for this project were:

	Goals	Accomplished
Weighing and Measuring of Schools	29	26
School Lunches by School	7	1
Milk Service	1	3
Home Nursing Groups	8	6

a. Weighing and measuring of children and school lunch and milk service

This project was started in three towns last year and continued this year. In each town a hot lunch was served in one school during the cold months and milk service in the same schools during the warmer months.

In East Lyme, where there were 214 children weighed in November, 1921, and 223 in April, 1922, the percentages for the two weighings are as follows:

Nov., 1921, 40 per cent. normal weight, 9 per cent under weight, 31 per cent under nourished.

Apr., 1922, 51 per cent. normal weight, 19 per cent. under weight, 18 per cent under nourished.

34 children came up to normal.

Flanders—Total weighed, 88; normal or over, 39; under, 49; malnourished, 27.

Thus showing 44 per cent. of the children normal weight, 56 per cent. under weight and 30 per cent of them were 7 per cent. or more under weight.

At North Plains, in the town of Lyme, at the first weighing, November, 1921, the figures received were:

In April, 1922, they showed as follows:

North Plains—Total weighed, 20; normal, 10; under weight, 10; malnourished, 2; increase 6.

In comparing the percentages we have in November 20 per cent normal, 80 per cent under weight, and 40 per cent. malnourished. In April 50 per cent normal, 50 per cent. underweight, and 10 per cent. malnourished.

In twelve schools of Lebanon, 268 children were weighed in November, 1921, showing 136 normal, 132 underweight, 51 malnourished.

In the spring when the children were weighed in these same schools we found a decided improvement from the figures obtained in the fall. For we found in April 68 per cent. normal, against 48 per cent. normal in November; 32 per cent. underweight, against 51 per cent. underweight in November; 10 per cent. malnourished, against 19 per cent. malnourished in November; with 47 children reaching normal during that time.

Home Care of the Sick.

The communities requesting this project were nine in number, six received instruction, the others will have it after January 1st.

The course includes six talks and demonstrations which can be given as six half day meetings or three all day sessions with following subjects taken up:

The Patient and the Sick Room; Temperature, Pulse and Respiration; Preventative Measures; First Aid; Home Medicine Chest; Prenatal Care and the Nursing Period.

They were given in North Plains, attendance 88; Salem, attendance 54; Hanover, attendance 345; Wequetequock, attendance 147; Hamburg, attendance 156; Walnut Hill, East Lyme, attendance 72; total attendance 762. Reports received show that the people are using and passing on the information given them.

Clothing Project.

The clothing project continues to be one of the most popular projects and takes the most time to carry on. It includes work on pattern construction, garment making, tailored finishes and trimming, childrens' clothing, dress forms, renovation and millinery.

Pattern and Garment Construction.

This project was given in eight communities to eleven groups. The following are the communities reached: Groton, Poquetanoc, Baltic, Wequetequock, Cohensie, Ledyard, Gales Ferry and North Stonington. Nine women acted as leaders in their community and, eighty-six questionnaires were sent out of which thirty-four were answered and returned. The questions asked were on the use of patterns made in class and number of garments made using this pattern. One reported using it only occasionally, all the rest reported frequent use and greater ease in making garments resulting from having the fitted pattern. Each woman reporting averages six garments made or remodelled with pattern since the class work.

Finishes and Trimmings—The information given on making bound button holes, pockets, plackets, etc., has proved very helpful. The trimmings as taught the past year have been greatly used. Seven groups have been met with this work.

Renovation—Lebanon, Stonington and North Stonington have participated in this work. In Lebanon and Stonington, talks and demonstrations were given on the use of dyes.

Dress Forms—This is the second year the dress form project has been carried on in the county. During the last six months the demand has grown much less. At the present time there being only four new communities asking for the project. Last year 849 forms were made, this year 304 forms have been made in group work and 138 made by the groups without the help of the Agent, making 343 made this year and 492 made in the county, of which record has been made. The towns or communities represented in this project this year are Fitchville, Ledyard, Groton, Gales Ferry, North Plains, Palmertown, North Stonington, Norwich Town, Scotland Road, Been Hill, Baltic, Norwich, Wequetequock, Gilead, Cohanzie, Jordan and Preston City.

Millinery—For this project there is a long waiting list of hopeful communities. Meanwhile we have given the project in six communities this year, East Lyme, Norwich, Ledyard, Salem, Stonington, and two days were spent holding a county wide meeting at the extension office in Norwich.

Five local leaders assisted in arranging for these groups this year.

The report by year for towns is as follows:

Norwich—members 12; Hats new and old 15; Cost $51.70; Value $105.00; Saving $73.30.

Ledyard—members 30; Hats new and old 15; Cost $62.25; Value $152.25; Saving $100.00.

Salem—members 15; Hats new and old 15; Cost $28.14; Value $89.50; Saving $61.36.

Wequetequock—members 24; Hats new and old 26; Cost $55.29; Value $194.00; Saving $138.71.

East Lyme—members 26; Hats new and old 26; Cost $61.76; Value $156.00; Saving $92.30.

County meeting at farm bureau office—members 37; Hats new and old 33; Cost $73.60; Value $256.00; Saving $183.40.

This seems a small report to say 129 hats were made in group work during a year. But that is only the beginning. There is scarcely a member of these groups who has not made one or more hats at home after these meetings. Some are making hats for neighbors, who will bring in their materials and work with them during the day. Then the information is being passed on to others. Some are making the hats for a nominal fee for others, thereby making a little money for themselves.

The report comes from one woman who used material she had in the house only buying a frame, that her husband said it was the most becoming hat she had ever had and it alone was worth the $10 he paid for membership.

Another woman attended one of the groups and learned to make organdie hats. All summer she made organdie hats on request to match dresses, charging $2 for making, thus making a little something for herself.

One group, each member said the hats they made were the prettiest they had ever had and cost them the least

Home management—Under this project we include the following: a. Equipment, large and small, b. Installation of water, heat and lighting systems, c. Remodeling kitchens, d. Account Books, e. Planning Home grounds, f. Reseating chairs, g. Rug weaving.

Last year only a small portion of the agents and specialists time was given to the household management project. This year the time spent on the project has more than doubled and the number of communities interested in some part or parts of the project have trebled. We have had reported: 5 fireless cookers made, 7 fireless cookers purchased, 2 auto vacuum ice cream freezers, 4 pressure cookers purchased, 2 brooms, 2 mop pails with wringer attached, 1 knife sharpener for kitchen, 1 spatula, 9 canners. For the larger equipment, 3 vacuum cleaners, 3 electrically run washing machines.

During the year ten houses have been visited by the agent and specialist in reference to installation of water, heat and lighting, systems. The usual farm family puts off installing heat, light and water often because they do not know what kind of system they want to put in or what kind will work best on their place, under their special conditions. The specialist goes to them with the information they need regarding kinds of systems suitable for their conditions, the best system for the job, the most economical system which will do the work required, where it can be obtained and approximate cost. When the farmer goes to his local dealer to buy he has a better idea of what to demand and what to pay for the service. Out of ten homes visited, six pieces of work have been done of are under construction.

Three women have asked for assistance in remodelling kitchens and four women in the county are using account books obtained through the county office.

Planning Home Grounds—Last year a talk was given at one of our extension schools on beautifying the home grounds from which a request came for individual assistance in the town of Lebanon. Two leaders lined up the people who wished this help and sixteen homes were visited in the town. This year the interest continued to grow and fourteen more homes are being assisted with four waiting for the help.

Reseating Chairs—There has developed the past year requests from several groups for help in reseating chairs. Fourteen communities have this project as part of their program of work. It has been given in five communities this year.

The saving on 111 chairs seated amounts to $229.45 or $2.07 per chair, while the cost of doing 111 chairs comes to 57c per seat. Of course if we were counting the cost of our time on this work we might not feel we had made such a great saving. But much of this work is done in time that would not have produced any better value.

Rug Weaving—The rug weaving loom is loaned the home demonstration agents in the various counties by the state college and from our office travels about the county spending from two to three weeks in each community. It makes a splendid way for the women to use up rags and makes the cost of rugs only about 20c per yard, or the cost of the warp. The weaving is simple and quickly learned. The warping of the loom takes time and a large amount of patience. Some of the groups are fortunate in having one person among them who has done some weaving. If such is the case they are fortunate.

The loom has been in the following communities:—

Community	Yards woven	Number of rugs
Poquetanoc	14½	6
North Plains	7½	3
Gales Ferry	15½	11
North Stonington	29	15
Stonington	36	18 not complete
5 communities	102½	53

small city in New England. The work will be completed this spring, as it is steadily proceeding throughout the winter.

Having lost its home for many years, the Putnam Savings bank immediately took steps to procure a new location and late the past fall purchased the St. Onge block, which has since been sold at auction, to be razed, and is being vacated by the tenants. On its site in the heart of the business section the Putnam Savings bank will erect a new banking home, the cost of which has not been made public, but assurance given that the new building will be one in which the city will take pride. This structure will be ready for occupancy in the late spring or early summer, and in addition to quarters for the bank will provide business locations for some firms.

Aside from these major building projects numbers of new homes have been built within the limits of the city during the past year, many improvements have been made to structures that have stood there for a long time, so the year on the whole can be rated as an unusual one as to building activities.

Willimantic Building Was On Increasing Scale

Building permits issued by Fire Chief Wade U. Webster who is also building inspector for Willimantic totalled 81 during the year 1922, as compared with 66 issued in 1921. They represent a probable outlay in building operations of $325,000 in 1922. This number is almost three times the number in 1920 and six times the number issued in 1919. Probably the largest improvement made in the city during the year was the remodeling of the old Turner block by Herbert T. Clark. The block was faced with tapestry brick, with five handsome stores on the lower floor and a number of offices on the second story. A large number of alterations were made on business houses and private homes. The demand for more garage room was met by the building of eighteen garages with varied capacities and extensions of others. Permits for the building of twenty-two houses, seventeen of which were one tenement making a total housing capacity of 29? families including the tenement houses were in the list for the year. According to the record there were no permits issued during the first two months of the year. May was the big month with 14 permits, and August was a close second with 12 permits. Up to date December was the smallest month with only three permits issued.

Real Estate Transactions.

During the year past real estate transfers in Willimantic dropped to about $700,000 as compared with nearly a million dollars in 1921, and much over a million in 1919.

An important sale took place when large stables, sheds and two tenement houses situated off Main street between that and Meadow street were sold by Archibald W. Turner to Harry B. Morrison and James J. Lee.

Another important real estate sale occured when the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce Realty Company sold the large block on Main street to Hyman Rosenberg. The Chamber of Commerce rooms are on the second floor and the lower floor is made up into stores. Another sale of much interest was the sale of three houses on Walnut street by Lydia A. Card to the Salvation Army which will use one of the buildings for a hall and the work of remodeling the building has already begun.

Other important sales were the sale of the Laura Heath Hills block, which was considerably damaged by fire, to Willard L. Whittemore who has since caused extensive repairs to be made upon it; the sale of the business block on Church street known as the Clark block and owned by Herbert T. Clark to David H. Clark of New York and Katherine Rew of Windham. The sale of the Amos M. Hathaway residence on Prospect street to Kate H. D. Taylor; the sale of a wooden block on Church street, the lower floor of which is occupied by the buyer, Minot S. Fryer, plumbing contractor and also by the Holmes Paint shop, the upper floors are used for tenements, the sale of the George M. Harrington estate, residence on Church street to William E. Hendry.

Building in Danielson Maintained Normal Rate

Building operations in Danielson during 1922 were not marked by any thoroughly major operation, in contrast to the surprising building boom that it witnessed during the years from 1914 to 1922. Building programs that were halted by the country-wide business depression that developed in the fall of 1920 were not resumed in 1922, and some uncompleted projects are still awaiting the attention that it anticipated they may receive in 1923.

However, men in the building trades have not been idle. On the other hand they have experienced a very busy year and have been fully as active with small contracts as in other years with larger ones.

The chief instance of construction work in the borough this past year has been the erection of a parish house in connection with the Westfield Congregational church. The parish house is now nearing completion and with the improvements made to the church building, to which it is attached, the cost of the entire undertaking will be approximately $15,000.

The only manufacturing concern to enlarge its plant during 1922 was the Larkin Rock company, which built a small addition for housing its machine shop equipment and to use the space vacated for more reed manufacturing machinery.

Numbers of homes were built in Danielson during 1922, these being scattered at various points through the borough. The streets that benefited by these building operations are Broad, where three new dwellings were put under construction, two of them being completed, Hawkins, Maple and Dyer streets.

There were various remodeling operations in the course of which some of the older residences of Danielson were materially improved. A replacement job was the building of a fireproof structure for Joseph Bodo, in Union street, to take the place of a frame garage that was destroyed by fire early in 1922. An ice cream manufacturing concern, with headquarters in Providence, has taken a lease of the new Bodo structure.

A novelty in construction work here during 1922 was the erection of an attractive and ornamental filling station on a triangular bit of land that stood unused for years at the junction of Main, Water and Cottage streets.

RETIRES AFTER FIFTY YEARS AS STEAMBOAT MASTER AND PILOT

Capt. George C. Crocker Has Oldest License in New England —Served Apprenticeship of Ten Years Before the Mast —Enlisted in Navy to Chase Privateer Alabama—Silver Medal for Saving Lives of Two Women in Wreck of the City of Norwich—Was 21 Years a Block Island Pilot.

Having held a pilot's and master's license on steamboats for the last fifty years, which, so far as known, antedates any master's license in New England, Capt. George C. Crocker decided to put himself on permanent shore leave in October of 1922, settling down for a quiet life in his comfortable home off West Thames Street, below Bushnell place, where he overlooks a broad stretch of the Thames river.

Habits acquired in 60 years of seafaring, included 10 years in the hard life of a sailor before the mast and fifty years since he rose to be pilot and master, persist with the veteran of wind and wave. Half a dozen barometers and a regular ship's chronometer keep him in daily touch with time and weather conditions, while occasionally he untimbers his old ship's sextant from its case, going out into the yard to "shoot the sun", just to prove that his hand and eye are still true to form in that long familiar duty while in active service.

Pictures of some of the vessels he has known hang on the walls, including one of the U. S. S. frigate Sabine in which he saw his first service under the Union flag during the civil war in a vain search to sink and capture the Confederate privateer, Alabama.

Serving an apprenticeship of ten years before the mast, Capt. Crocker has been within 300 miles of Cape Farewell at the southern point of Greenland, has been around the Cape of Good Hope at the southern extremity of Africa, on a voyage to Australia, and has made numerous voyages in the packet service between New York and London. In this apprentice period he served on two sloops, two schooners, one bark and four square rigged ships, while the years as pilot and master have brought him service on 35 different steamboats in the Long Island sound and Atlantic coast territory.

Born in Greeneville, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Paine Crocker, seventy-six years ago on the first of this year, Capt. Crocker's home has always been in Norwich. His father's family line in New England started with one of six brothers who came over in the next ship after the Mayflower.

Early in 1861, when he was 14, he began his seafaring life by shipping on the sloop Van Buren, Capt Alonzo Lewis, of New London, sailing as a coal carrier between that port, Norwich and New York. After two or three trips he shipped on the packet Argo, running between Norwich and New York.

Enlisted in U. S. Navy.

One day in July, 1862, word came to Norwich that a United States man-of-war was at New London recruiting a crew for service in the Civil war. There was great excitement among the young men of the city whose imaginations were fired by visions of battle on the high seas, and young Crocker caught the infection. Setting out to enlist, he had to walk as far as Montville on the way to New London, stealing a ride on a freight train for the rest of the trip. He found the frigate Sabine at the wharf and immediately shipped for one of the crew of 500 that she carried. Alvin Fuller, Albert Tisdale and Teddy Dalton were three other Norwich boys who shipped on the Sabine, which cruised for a year from the Azores to the Cape of Good Hope in search for the privateer Alabama, but never catching a sight of this Confederate commerce destroyer.

Then, after a brief period on board the receiving ship North Carolina and the Vermont at New York, Crocker went with the gunboat Adelia, Capt Louis N. Stoddard, which was around Tarrytown and New York during the draft riots, then cruised outside the Virginia Capes and as far as Maine looking for the Confederate privateer Tacony. Taking the monitor Monadnock in tow to Hampton Roads, the gunboat went on the East Gulf blockading station for 18 months. One of the exploits in which Crocker participated was the burning of two blockade runners in Tampa bay by a boat party from the gunboat, that rowed up a small stream, crept overland to the position of the blockade runners, applied the torch and returned to the ship in safety although they had to do some shooting on the way back.

Then on the gunboat Little Ada he was on blockade duty off the mouth of the Cape Fear river, being there when a fleet of 50 Union vessels reduced Fort Fisher to a mass of ruins and this stronghold was captured. From there the Little Ada went to the Potomac flotilla and was put on duty in 1865 at Smith's Point when President Lincoln was assassinated, to stop all vessels lest the assassins might attempt to escape by boat. Mr. Crocker's navy service ended in July, 1865, when he was honorably discharged at Washington.

Returning to Norwich, Mr. Crocker went to steamboating on the City of Norwich, a passenger and freighter between this city and New York.

The City of Norwich was sunk in the Sound off Huntington, L. I., on April 13, 1866, and Crocker, who was then lookout on the boat, turned out to be the hero of the catastrophe. For saving the lives of two Norwich women who were passengers on board, he received a silver medal from the Life Saving Benevolent association of New York.

The City of Norwich sank in seven minutes after she had been rammed at the forward gangway by the oyster-laden schooner General S. Van Vleet of New Haven. Sixteen men out of the crew of 20 were lost, but the passengers, who numbered perhaps a dozen, were saved.

Norwich Survivors of Disaster.

Thomas Collins of this city, who was a deckhand on the boat, and Thomas Spivery of this city, who was in the stewards' department, are now the only living members of the crew of the City of Norwich besides himself, around Norwich.

It was 4 o'clock on a cold, foggy morning when the schooner hit the steamboat, which was on its way to New York. The schooner's jibboom ran clear through a $5,000 horse which was in the cargo and a big hole was torn in the steamboat's side through which the water poured down into the boiler rooms. Quickly the boat began to settle and the entire hurricane deck and upper works were suddenly torn out of the vessel by the force of the water, probably combined with an explosion of the boilers. The steamship turned completely over and went down with her keel pointing to the stars, while all hands were overboard in what boats had been launched, or with life preservers on.

Crocker the Hero.

Immediately after the collision, Crocker, who was lookout that night, had been ordered by the pilot to go aft to report how bad the damage was. Upon returning to the pilot house Crocker reported that it did not seem very bad, but he had put on a life preserver as a precaution. About this time two Norwich women passengers appeared on deck, asking what they could do. They were in their nightclothes and had with them the small son of one of them. Crocker adjusted life preservers on the women, who then asked what could be done about the boy. Without a thought of himself, Crocker promptly shifted his own life preserver to the boy and had just fastened it securely when the ship gave a warning heave and he jumped over the side.

Both the women were saved, but the boy became entangled in balls of twine that broke out of barrels in the cargo and he was drowned. Most of the passengers and crew of the City of Norwich were rescued by boats from the steamboat Electra, which came along about this time. The oyster schooner drifted about for three or four hours and finally went ashore.

What he had done for the two women was thought of little consequence by Mr. Crocker, but word of his heroic act was forwarded by some Norwich men to New York, and he was subsequently summoned there to have a silver life saving medal presented to him.

On London Packet Line.

Then came Crocker's first trans-Atlantic voyage when he shipped before the mast on the London packet line on the ship Sir Robert Peel, captained by Nathan Larrabee of Ledyard, a skipper of the old school and one of the finest men Crocker ever sailed under.

An eastward bound voyage at that time took about a month between New York and London, but there was one west bound voyage that Crocker will never forget. This was his last on the Sir Robert Peel and took 60 days, during three days of which the ship fought seas off the Grand Banks that rolled as high as the Wauregan house. In that gale the City of Boston left Halifax and was never heard of again, but Capt Larrabee and his crew brought the Sir Robert Peel safely into port after the three days of terrific struggle during which the crew lived only on salt pork and hardtack with an occasional ration of rum.

Shipped for Australian Seas.

Crocker shipped to new seas on his next voyage, going in 1866-67 on the Australian packet Staghound, after this on the Don Quixote and then in the 65 ton brig Bethel on a voyage to Liberia.

line, 12 years as steersman and 7 years as pilot, after he had taken out his pilot's license on May 13, 1873.

Other boats on which he was pilot included the City of New London, City of Boston, City of New York, Hero, James T. Brady, Commodore, Montauk, Wyandotte, Storm King, Plymouth Rock, Block Island, Doris, Day Star, Falmouth, Granite State, Favorite, Baltimore, Richard Borden, Squantum and Bay Queen.

21 Years Block Island Pilot.

For 21 years, 1884 to 1905, Capt. Crocker was a Block Island pilot, the first eleven years from Norwich to Block Island, and then for ten years from Providence to Block Isind aboard the Mount Hope and the Warwick. All that period the boats entered by the old harbor at the island, but the year after he got off the line the easier entrance through the new harbor was made available for steamboats.

His first post as master was on the freighter Delaware in 1881, running between Norwich and New York. This was followed by a term as master on the brig-rigged steamboat Tillie, the Block Island, eleven years on the Metropolitan, a Central Vermont boat, and finally on the Cape Cod of the Thames River line where his service ended last October.

Additions to buildings at two of the state institutions in New London county have been under way during the past year, increasing their facilities for better work. At the Norwich state hospital a new $250,000 ward has been in process of construction and at The Seaside, the state tuberculosis sanatorium at Crescent Beach, Niantic, a new nurses' home for which the appropriation was $20,000, has been under way. At the other state institution in this county, the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium, no new work was attempted as an appropriation of $10,000 for a recreation hall proved too small, but it is hoped the next legislature will make the appropriation larger so that work on this building can be begun.

Adding New Ward at Norwich State Hospital

A new $250,000 ward at the Norwich state hospital has been in course of construction during the past year and will be ready for occupancy about the first of February, it is expected. It will accommodate 125 patients and is to be used for chronic patients who are physically in good condition. It is built of the fire resistive type in every respect and will be furnished with modern equipment for the treatment of its patients.

Asking for New Buildings.

An extensive programme of new building is in sight to meet the enlarging needs of the institution which are to be presented to the incoming legislature with requests for appropriations for buildings which are imperatively needed. The trustees of the Norwich state hospital are to ask the legislature for $125,000 for two new wards for patients, $130,000 for a nurses' home, and $20,000 for two physicians' houses. Besides this the trustees will make a request for $25,000 with which to buy a new farm and for the improvements and equipment that will be needed for it.

Building Nurses' Home At The Seaside, Niantic

Through an appropriation of $20,000 made by the last legislature, construction work on a nurses' home has been going on in the past year at The Seaside, Crescent Beach, Niantic, which is the state sanatorium where children with bone, tuberculosis receive the sun-cure treatment.

The building will contain 15 rooms and is of frame fire-resisting construction inasmuch as the roof is covered with asbestos shingles and there is stucco work up to the second floor.

More buildings are needed at The Seaside and more land needs to be purchased. The state tuberculosis commission sees the necessity for another larger building for housing the patients. The old summer hotel that was bought four and a half years ago, and renovated and made into a sanatorium, has more than fulfilled all reasonable expectations, according to the report of the commission, but more beds must be provided for new patients, with better school room and dining room accomodations for old and new patients. This need is to be brought before the legislature with the hope that the asked for appropriations will be granted.

In the two year period from July 1, 1920, to June 30, 1922, The Seaside has received 36 male and 11 female patients with bone tuberculosis, 5 males and 2 females with gland tuberculosis, 2 males with skin tuberculosis, 3 female with renal tuberculosis, 1 male with peritonitis, 1 male with rickets, 1 male with lacbio rectal abscess, and 1 male with generalized tuberculosis.

The report on discharges in that time shows 15 cases apparently arrested, 27 improved, 4 unimproved, and 4 died.

No Building in Year At Norwich Sanatorium

Nothing in new building work at the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium has been done in the past year, although it had been expected to erect a recreation hall with an appropriation of $10,000 which had been granted by the legislature for that purpose. Plans were prepared and bids submitted for this, but when these were received they were found so much in excess of the contemplated outlay that efforts were made to change them so as to come within the appropriation. However, in the opinion of the state tuberculosis commission, such cutting down as it would be necessary to come within the $10,000 appropriation would have resulted unsatisfactorily and was decided not to proceed with any such project.

In the latest annual report the commissioners state that, wages and material are at present increasing in price, it may be necessary to turn back to the treasury the $10,000 in the hope that it may be granted hereafter, when five inches of rain fell in twenty-four hours immediately after a heavy snow storm, and the bursting of the Baltic dam sent an avalanche of water down the valley of the Shetucket river in the early part of the afternoon.

For a long time the high stage that the flood reached in Franklin square was kept marked by a notch cut in a post, about four feet from the floor, in the boot and shoe store of John H. Kelly at the corner of Franklin and Bath streets, where the Thayer building now stands. Another high water mark in the freshet was to be seen for many years on the present Parker-Preston building at the corner of Ferry street and Railroad avenue. This was about 6 feet up from the ground. On Franklin street the upper limits of the freshet were about at Durkee lane.

Losses from $112 000 to $120,000.

The total losses in the town of Norwich through the freshet were estimated at from $112,000 to $120,000.

Description of Freshet.

The Bulletin of Monday, March 27, 1876, said:

One of the most disastrous freshets known in the history of this section swept the valleys of the Shetucket, Yantic and Quinebaug yesterday, destroying bridges, mills, dams and houses, and devastating the surrounding country. An immense amount of property was destroyed, how much cannot at present be stated, but undoubtedly of the value of several hundred thousand dollars.

A heavy snow storm began early Saturday morning. Snow fell all the morning till noon, when it was followed by a violent rain. It rained steadily and heavily all the afternoon and evening, and till about 9 o'clock Sunday morning. At that time, by the pluviameter, five inches of water had fallen within the 24 hours.

River Rose Five Feet in Hour.

The rivers which feed the Thames, the Shetucket the Quinebaug and the Yantic, with their tributaries, were already much swollen by the storm of the early part of the week, and the effect of this almost unprecedented rainfall was almost instantly felt. In the city the first warning of the freshet was the back flow of water from the Shetucket and the Franklin street brook in the rear of Franklin street and along the course of the latter at the lower end. At half past two the water had risen so fast, that the horses in the basement of I. W. Harvey's stable on Bath street were turned loose to save their lives. An hour later men were sent for to strengthen the dam and property at the Falls. At four o'clock the Shetucket had risen above the rails of the railroad track southwest of the Worcester depot, and was on a level with the foot of Rose alley. In the next hour it rose five feet and continued to increase with great rapidity.

Fire Bell Gave Alarm.

The interior of Franklin square in the rear of the Wauregan house was at this time covered with water to the depth of four feet. All the cellars along the west side of Franklin square were filled, and in some places the water was above the floors. The police endeavored to awaken the people in that vicinity by rapping on the doors, but finding this slow work, at six o'clock an alarm was ordered struck from Box 23 on Franklin square in order to warn people of the disaster. The cattle in E. M. Frazier's barn were taken out at this time, men riding through water to their shoulders to reach them, and others rescuing the floating property in the yards between Union and Franklin streets, by means of boats.

The alarm struck on the firebells aroused the city generally, and at an early hour the streets were filled with people. It is many years since such a Sunday has been passed in Norwich. The churches were deserted, and all day long the approaches to the waterfront were lined by excited crowds which numbered thousands. Many of the stores selling small goods in the vicinity of the rivers were open and doing business and among those nearer the water fronts gangs of men worked laboriously saving property. The Laurel Hill bridge offered an excellent view of the river, and the crowd upon it, and about it became so great that it was feared it would fall, and it was cleared by the police.

This was early in the forenoon. The Shetucket had risen to within a few inches of the new railroad bridge, and was rushing down like a heavy surf upon a beach, but with the ragged surface of a tide rip. On the west side the water was nearly up to the higher track; Franklin square was a pond and the yards of the Norwich and Worcester railroad company were covered.

13 Inches Higher Than in 1857.

An old resident says that the water was 13 inches higher yesterday than in the great flood of 1857, and 5 inches higher than in 1807, when there was a destructive freshet. The flood in the Shetucket reached its greatest height about 2 o'clock and after that subsided very gradually, and it was not till that time that the danger to exposed places about the city was thought to be over.

Borne down upon foaming waters in the Shetucket came logs and beams of wood, trees, boxes, barrels, outhouses, and all the debris of the work the freshet had done above, which plunged into the eddies near the old bridge and shot out of sight, coming up far on in the Thames. The steamboat wharf was submerged, the new railroad wharf was covered with water so that its boundaries were indistinguishable. On the wharves extending from the freight house to the elevator, the water was from three to four feet deep. The cellars of the buildings fronting here were afloat and in some cases the water was over the first floor. At this wharf the propeller Delaware of the New York freight line was made fast Before daylight the sudden rise of the waters carried her moorings and she took the current and went down stream. The crew let go her anchor and she swung to it with 25 fathoms of chain out; but when she felt the full strength of the tide, it parted and she floated down the river. Near the Richmond Stove Works, however, half a mile down, an eddy caught her, and by some extraordinary chance brought her back to the steamboat wharf, where her crew jumped ashore and remoored her in safety. Later in the day she was hauled around to the west side of the wharf.

Farther along the wharf the brig George lay rolling heavily and threatening to come upon solid land at every heave. The City of Norwich was in the same peril by the new wharf, and the steamer Ella and three schooners similarly situated on either side of Central wharf. Central wharf was entirely submerged, the water extending up to Main street. Early in the morning large quantities of lumber were washed off from it, and men were out in boats along the Thames, picking up the floating stuff.

Baltic Dam Gave Way

At half past twelve a dispatch was received from Baltic saying that the dam there had given way. This excited gravest apprehension for the safety of the Greeneville dam and hundreds hurried to that place. It was not long before the rapid rise in the Shetucket, which all this time had been increasing rapidly in volume, gave evidence of a large and sudden influx somewhere above. The Worcester depot was soon under water, so that a couple of men went into the waiting room with a boat, and rescued the agent's property from the ticket office. Franklin square was a lake, the water extending to the Wauregan house, where there were two feet of water in the cellar. In Broadway church basements there were three feet of water.

Up to Windows of Houses.

On Chestnut, as far as Willow, and on Bath street, the water was part way up to the windows of the houses. Along the lower wharves, the rise was so rapid that there was great danger of the vessels lying there being stove, and the City of Norwich, which had been laid up for the season at the new wharf, got up steam and her moorings being cut started down stream for New London.

The steamboat train from New London for Boston on the Northern road reached Thamesville, without difficulty, but at this place the track was entirely submerged and a large part of the roadbed washed away. The passengers were transferred to the Wauregan house where they were obliged to remain all day.

Rafts in Chestnut Street.

There was so much water in the lecture room of the Broadway church that the Sunday school was held in the court house. On Chestnut street, travelling was done chiefly by rafts.

Drowning at Taftville.

At the Ponemah mill dam at Taftville, a hastily constructed embankment of heavy stone ballast, the dam from going out, but there was damage of about $4,000.

It was here that the most melancholy event connected with the disaster took place. It became necessary to strengthen the approach of the west side of the dam, and men and materials were ferried across the river in a boat at a safe distance above the dam. Two trips had been made and George F. Blackmar, a young man about twenty-five years old was returning for the last time, he was crossing a great mass of beams and timbers from the ruins above floated down the river and closed about his boat. He tried desparately to escape from it while it bore him steadily toward the dam, but he was so surrounded that he could not. He struggled terribly until he was within a hundred feet of the fall, and then dropping his oar, rose to his feet. The helplessness of his situation was plain but he made no plea, and as the boat yielded to the impetus of the swifter current near the brink, he gave no cry. As the boat shot over the dam he was still standing erect, and both were lost in the furious waters beneath. The boat reappeared farther down the stream, but the man who met his death was not seen again. To add to the horror of the scene, his wife standing with the hundreds of spectators on the shore, was a witness of all the terrible tragedy. Mr. Blackmar was a man of high character and highly esteemed. He had only recently married, his wife being a daughter of the Rev. R. P. Stanton of Greeneville.

The dam at the A. & W. Sprague Manufacturing Co. cotton mill at Baltic gave way. It is doubtful if repairs can be made to the mill property for $100,000.

Four Drowned at Baltic.

At five o'clock occurred the first loss of life in Baltic. A number of people on the mill side of the stream were cut off from their homes on the other side by the giving way of the bridge, and a row boat had been brought into play to convey them across. Several voyages had been made successfully, but on this occasion the current proved too much for the oarsman and carried the little craft down some distance and then capsised it. The five occupants were Andrew Plant, a Frenchman, Joseph LaPierre, and three girls. LaPierre, who leaves a wife and four children, and the three girls were all drowned. Plant was thrown near shore and was rescued by a number of men holding one another's hands, forming a chain out into the stream.

Damages in Franklin Square.

The following were estimated damages in Franklin square neighborhood:

J. C. Perkins, candies, $300; Cosgrove Bros., boots and shoes, $1,500 to $2,500; J. B. Spencer and Co., hairgoods and millinery, slight damage; John Ripley, pictures, mirrors etc, $600; Simpson, Campbell and Watson, drygoods, no damage; S. L. Leavitt, carpets, $3,500; J. M. Brewer, drugs and medicines, $600; Capt. Morrison, cigars and tobacco, $700; Chelsea hotel, E. Fay, proprietor, confectionery and 99 cent store, $2,000; A. Seidel and Son, crockery and glass ware, $300.

Other Freshet Damage.

Damages to mills in this vicinity were estimated as follows; Baltic mill, $100,000; Versailles, $50,000; Quinebaug mills, Danielson, $25,000; Totokett mill, Occum, $5,000; Wequonok mill, Occum, $5,000; Occum Co., $15,000; Taftville mill, $5,000; Yantic mill, $5,000; mills at Greeneville and at the Falls, general damage estimated at $15,000.

So far as can be ascertained at present the losses in the town of Norwich are from $112,000 to $120,000.

NORWICH FRESHET OF 1876 SHOWN IN BULLETIN'S SOUVENIR CALENDAR

Water Was Four Feet Deep in Franklin Square Where Citizens Used Boats in Salvage Work on Sunday, March 26, 1876—Five Inches of Rain Fell in 24 Hours, After Snow—Baltic Dam Bursts, Sending Avalanche of Water Down the Valley of the Shetucket River—One Life Lost at Taftville and Four at Baltic—Damage in City Estimated at from $112,000 to $120,000.

The time when rowboats paddled around in Franklin Square in four feet of water and the whole waterfront was submerged are still fresh in the memory of the older residents of Norwich. They are recalled to the minds of the older generation and brought vividly to the knowledge of the younger by the calendar, which the Bulletin issues with this New Years edition, giving a view of Franklin Square during the great freshet of Sunday, March 26, 1876.

This fine piece of color work in the calendar line, all of which is done in the Bulletin's job room, is produced from a stereoscope photograph in the collection of William H. Shields of 170 Washington street, whose interest in historical data of the city and town has been a hobby that has resulted in the accumulation of a mass of valuable pictures and material that links the present with the rapidly vanishing past.

The calendar picture, which gives the view from the Wauregan corner towards Franklin Square forty-six years ago presents one or two names familiar to the present generation. The Perkins candy store and Cosgrove's shoe store remain today in the same location they then had and the Wauregan block between Main and Franklin streets has a familiar look.

However, a renumbering of Main street, which the city has done since then, by which the odd and even numbers were changed from one side of the street to the other and the numbers were made to run from west to east instead of from east to west, as they were at the time of the freshet, calls for some explanation when reference is made to present day stores on Franklin Square and these at the time of the freshet.

The old John C. Perkins candy store, then called 81 Main street, is now numbered 202 and is conducted by his son William R. Perkins. Next west of the candy store then was the City Bakery of Robert McWhirr, 83 Main st. Next east of Perkins, was the Cosgrove Bros. shoe store, 77 Main street, still in the same in the same location, then came Everett Spencer's china and crockery store at 73, William Kelly, merchant tailor, at 71, and John H. Truemen, fruit and confectionery, at 65 Main street.

On the southerly side of Main street Simpson, Campbell and Watson were running the Boston store at 102-104 Main street, John M. Brower's drug store was next easterly at 96, Currier Brothers men's clothing store at 96, where Murphy & McGarry now are, John B. Shaw's harness store in the present location of Preston Bros. Inc. at the corner of Main street and Rose place. Across Rose place in the Chappan building were John H. Morrison's cigar store, O. H. Tubbs, confectionery and toys, Looby & Reynolds, billiards, Beckwith and Allan, apartion rooms and household furnishings, W. M. Land, harness, all occupying space now occupied by Wallis lunch room and the Sellag Spa.

The Fay building, now occupied by Ferguson's jewelry store, Madden's cigar store and Mrs. Fay's toy store, was then occupied by the late Edwin Fay with the Chelsea hotel, 64-66-68-70 Main street, with his 99 cent store. The late Dr. Clapp, dean of Norwich dentists, had his office in the Fay building.

In the Rose place basement of the Chapman building Dennis Meier, was then running a saloon, and in the Young block on the Franklin square corner, the late John Steiner was running the City Hotel.

In City's Busy Section.

Thus the freshet found the busiest section all prepared for its devastating effects on that Sunday morning of March forty-six years ago, when five inches of rain fell in twenty-four hours immediately after a heavy snow storm, and the bursting of the Baltic dam sent an avalanche of water down the valley of the

NORWICH POST OFFICE BUSINESS GAINED OVER 10 PER CENT IN 1922

In Postal Savings Account and Sales of Stamps—40 Per Cent. Gain in Money Order, Registry, Special and C. O. D. Delivery—7,450,000 Pieces of First Class Mail Cancelled—Greatly Increased Volume of Business Has Been Handled Without Adding to Force.

JOHN P. MURPHY,
Postmaster

Compared to past years, the year 1922 has shown an increase in volume in the various departments of the Norwich post office. The postal savings account which includes the sale of stamps and stamped papers, has shown an increase of more than 10 per cent as compared with 1931, and 50 per cent as compared with 1915. This increase has been about equal each year.

There were 7,450,000 pieces of first class mail cancelled during the year.

Money order, registry and special delivery, as well as C. O. D. delivery have increased over 10 per cent, as compared with last year. The C. O. D. has received an average of ninety packages daily, while a very few years back this branch of the post office service was unknown in the Norwich office.

The number of employes, nevertheless, has not been increased, notwithstanding the tremendous growth in business, and all work has been performed with the greatest accuracy and efficiency. This is due to the co-operation of all engaged in our post office service to render the greatest service to the patrons. There are employed in the clerical department 18 regular, and 3 auxiliary clerks. There are 21 regular, 5 auxiliary, and 9 rural carriers.

The main office has ten contract stations. The monthly payroll of the office averages $7,500. The department has furnished the office with two extra one-ton trucks, for the delivery of parcel post matter. The bulk of the parcel post packages has increased daily. The office has also two smaller trucks, used for suburban delivery and for collection from the city letter boxes evenings and Sundays. Motorcycles are used for the special delivery service.

The buildings and equipment are in excellent condition and cared for by two capable employes under the supervision of the postmaster.

There has been one retirement, James L. Kingsley, placed on the retired list. Clerk John A. Cunningham resigned to engage in business. These two vacancies have been filled by senior substitutes from each branch.

In 1918 there were sold war savings stamps to the value of $279,949.11. Some of these have been paid at the office since their sale, and those remaining unpaid will be cashed this coming week. Since January 1, 1919, the office has sold war stamps and certificates to a value which comes close to the amount of the 1918 sales. This means that the government's obligations for the closing of the 1918 certificates at the Norwich office will be small.

During the past summer, the Robert Gair Co. which operates the large paper board mill at Montville on the bank of the Thames river, put through a housing proposition in the erection of nine small frame cottages for the occupancy of their employes. These are all located within 1,000 feet of the paper mill, and provide modern homes of a comfortable type. Except for gas, they have all the improvements, which include heat, electricity and plumbing, and the interior arrangements are convenient and attractive. Three of them are single cottages of five rooms each, three are six room cottages, two are double cottages, providing apartments of six rooms each, and one a double five-room cottage.

A further development of the housing proposition in the spring will include laying out streets, finishing off the grounds and the installation of electric lights for the streets.

The mill employs 400, and is one of the important industries of the town of Montville, operating to capacity all through the year and disbursing a large sum in wages.

LOCAL FANS FAIL TO SUPPORT WINNING KACEY BASEBALL TEAM

Out of 29 Games Played the Local Kacey Team Wins 20 and Loses 9—Best Baseball in Years Given the Public but Fans Fail to Appreciate It—Post-Season Series Result in Glowing Victories for Locals—Doubtful if Team Will be Put on During the Coming Season Owing to Lack of Interest.

WILLIAM O'LEARY
Manager of Winning Kaceys

Semi-professional baseball in Norwich had a most successful season under the management of White Cross Council, Knights of Columbus. Norwich was given as good baseball as any city in the state but said to say the public did not appreciate it, and it is doubtful if there will be baseball in Norwich another season. With a team that won 20 out of 29 games played the fans were still dissatisfied and continually brought out their hammers and knocked. The Kacey team was not run for profit to the council, or to any individuals, but all the proceeds were given to the tuberculosis fund.

Manager William O'Leary had charge of the team during the season and some of the fastest teams in New England played here during the past season and the local team made a good showing against them. Of course as in all schedules there were games that were more interesting than others, but this was no fault of the management, for Manager O'Leary tried to give the fans a real ball game every Sunday and no expense was spared to bring good teams to this city.

Toward the end of the season Manager O'Leary secured some of the best talent available from the various leagues and played some of the best baseball ever seen in Norwich. The outstanding feature of the season was the defeat of the New Haven team, champions of the Eastern League. The champions had defeated the Baltimore International league champions who in turn defeated the St. Paul team of the American Association, which all goes to prove that the local Kacey team ranked as one of the best in many states.

Nothing but praise is due Manager O'Leary for his team and it seems too bad that the support of the public was such that it does not warrant putting on a team another year. Other cities would have been pleased to have a team like the Kacey's representing them but as is always the case in Norwich, no matter what is done for the public, they always knock and ask for better.

Eastern Connecticut League.

An Eastern Connecticut League was started among the towns in the eastern part of the state and some good semi-professional baseball was given the public. The league was in capable hands but circumstances, largely financial, prevented it from being the success that it should have been. Here again is seen the lack of support on the part of the public. There was really only one town on the circuit that supported its team and that was the little borough of Jewett City. As the season progressed several teams were forced to drop out owing to financial difficulties and other teams took their places. It is hoped that another league may be started again this season, but the fans will have to take a different attitude if it is to be a success.

Outstanding Features of 1922 Season

The closing year was an eventful one in baseball. There were numerous reversals of form and sensational upsets. The most important of these occurred during the world's series, in which the Giants overwhelmed the Yankees, a potential favorite, after playing five games. The National league champions are credited with winning four straight, notwithstanding the fact that one of the games was declared a tie by Umpire Hildebrand as a result of darkness acting in.

In the world's series classic the National leaguers climbed to great heights in pitching, fielding and batting. In fact, they flashed a brand of super-baseball far and away in greater calibre than they had shown in the National league race.

Among the individual stars who stood out most conspicuously were Jack Scott, "Irish" Meusel and Heinie Groh; Scott for his pitching feat, Meusel for his batting, and Groh for his brilliant fielding, especially at crucial moments and when it meant most to his club.

One of the greatest surprises in the world's series was the obvious collapse of the Yankees, who were known as "Murderers' Row", and were notorious for their hitting strength. Against the supposedly weak pitching of the Giants, they collapsed. It was looked upon as a walkover for the American leaguers. Yet the Giant hurlers to a man baffled the American leaguers with a wonderful brand of pitching and made them appear ridiculous in their attempts. Most noticeable of the hitting features was Babe Ruth, who was credited with two hits during the five games. The great home run hitter, however, was experiencing a miserable year, as Roger Hornsby had replaced him for home run honors with 42. He had been banished from many games during the season through suspensions, which hurt his chances of passing Hornsby and Ken Williams, his closest rivals.

The winning of the 1922 world's series classic for the second successive year was a glorious triumph for Manager McGraw of the Giants. It likewise brought him to the fore as the winner of more pennants in major league baseball than any manager in the history of the game.

Pennant Races Exciting.

Both pennant races were perhaps among the closest in the long history of the national game. The Giants, with a great ball club, set out early in the spring to make a runaway race of it. They got the "jump" on their rivals. Later, a few of the clubs found themselves, such as the Cardinals, Reds and Pirates, and forced New York to play sensational baseball to capture the pennant only by a scant margin.

The Giants suffered the loss of Phil Douglas, their leading pitcher, who wrote himself out of baseball in the heat of the struggle, when he was needed most. It is true that McGraw purchased Hugh McQuillan from the Boston Braves for $100,000 to replace the burly southerner after this unfortunate occurrence.

The Cardinals, earlier in the race, were contenders for the first place and alternated time and again in the leadership with McGraw's great machine, only to see their hurling staff crumble at the close of the season and fall away dismally.

In the closing dash for the tape it was the Pittsburgh Pirates that sprung a surprise. After Bill McKechnie replaced George Gibson as manager of the Corsairs, and Walter Schmidt, the catcher and holdout, was induced to join the club, the Pirates started a spurt that carried them from the depths of the second division to within a few games of the Giants and premier honors.

Brief Summary of 1922 College Sports

The season of 1922 has further impressed the college athletic authorities that they have a problem quite similar to the one confronting the directors of admissions. The huge bowls, originally constructed to accommodate every demand for tickets, are no longer adequate for the fall football crowds. Every year the alumni circles widen; the undergraduate body increases and the unprejudiced public takes a growing interest. But the seating capacity of the stadia remains the same.

Football is not the only sport which is perplexing the graduate managers. Basketball's popularity has graduated from the narrow quarters of college gymnasiums. It is nothing unusual for swimming pools to be crowded to suffocation.

Dismissing football, which is treated separately in this review, Georgetown had the best college baseball team of the year and one of the real outstanding nines of recent years. Holy Cross was beaten twice; Boston College, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and many others once. Georgetown did not lose a game all season to a college team. The Washington club of the American league was the only one to score a victory.

Holy Cross stood well up in the list. Yale broke even with Jack Barry's Worcester collegians, and defeated both Harvard and Princeton. Harvard had an excellent team in spite of being defeated by Yale, Dartmouth and Tufts.

The invaders from the far west carried off the track and field championship. California took first place in the Harvard stadium and Stanford second. The eastern representatives divided their points in the track events, while the westerners built up a substantial lead in the weights and other field events. Cornell made the best showing for the east.

The trip of the two-mile Pennsylvania relay team to meet a team of Oxford and Cambridge runners in England resulted in a triumph for the English.

Basketball provided an upset. Princeton played its way to the top, this time by beating Pennsylvania. The Tigers also won the soccer football championship after a tie with Pennsylvania and closely pressed by Cornell.

Yale maintained its supremacy in swimming and Princeton in water polo. The Navy won all its crew races including the Poughkeepsie regatta.

Syracuse surprised by winning the cross-country championship. The Keystone state monopoly in the wrestling honors was broken by Cornell.

Syracuse and Pennsylvania split the lacrosse awards, the former gaining the verdict in the northern division and the Quakers in the southern section.

Peter Manning's Mile Trotting is High Light

The remarkable speed tests of Peter Manning, which set a world's trotting record for the mile in 1.56½, stands out in the season of light harness racing.

Trotting and racing prospered both on the Grand Circuit and the half-miters during 1922 despite the inroads of the galloping horses, for in many places the tracks were converted for short meetings of thoroughbreds. The forty-ninth swing around the Grand Circuit was not so fortunate in regard to weather as in years past, but the attendance was good and the sport was keen.

Fewer records were set, possibly because of track conditions. Peter Manning, however, turned in the most remarkable series of trials seen in years when he trotted a mile over the Poughkeepsie track in 1.59¾; in the same time at Readville; 1.59¾ at Hartford; 1.58¾ at Randall, and 1.57 at Columbus.

Two mares, Margaret Dillon, a pacer, and Nedda, a trotter, which stepped miles in 1.58½, also joined the elect.

Czar Worthy carried off the racing honors among the older trotters, winning eleven races in fourteen starts. However, the Great Volo beat him twice in rather important stakes. The latter won seven of his thirteen races, while Peter the Brewer made an impressive enough showing to be ranked a close third.

Lee Worthy and Peter Earl were the leaders in the three-year-old division, the first named winning ten races, among them the Matron, Champion Stallion and Kentucky Stakes and the Kentucky Futurity of three-year-olds. Hope Frisco was top of the list for her age and sex.

Margaret Dillon led the pacers, winning ten of her eleven races, her only defeat coming at Toledo, where she finished second to Sir Rodie. Abbedale was one that pressed her hardest for the honors of the big time.

During the season on the Grand Circuit tracks, $517,012.25 was distributed in purses and stakes, according to statistics compiled by the Rider and Driver.

Walter Cox led the list of winning drivers with forty-five firsts and $63,713 in purses and stakes to his credit. Tommy Murphy finished second with thirty-four races and $60,713, while McDonald was third with twenty-four winning races.

Ryan Leading Pitcher of National League

Wilfred D. Ryan of the New York Giants won the title of leading pitcher in the National League last season, according to the official averages made public yesterday. Ryan had the lowest percentage of three earned runs to a game. Arthur Neff of the Giants stood fourth with 3.29. In percentage of games won and lost Peter Donohue of the Cincinnati Reds proved to be the premier with 15 victories and 9 defeats for an average of .667. Arthur Vance of the Brooklyn Robins was the leader in scoreless victories, with 6 shutouts. Vance also had the most strike-outs, 134. The season produced 71 shut-outs, four more than last year.

Burleigh Grimes of Brooklyn allowed the most earned runs, 135, and Philip Weinert of Philadelphia allowed the least, 63 Wilbur Cooper of Pittsburgh and Eppa Rixey of Cincinnati enjoyed the distinction of having the longest consecutive winning streak. Each had a string of nine straight victories.

Jess Barnes of the Giants pitched the only no-hit game of the season. He shut out the Phillies on May 7, only 27 batsman faced him. Of this number Fred Williams, with a base on balls, was the only player to reach first base. Williams being retired, however, when Arthur Fletcher hit into a double play.

In arranging the pitchers in the order of their effectiveness the National League found it expedient to classify them into groups.

AMERICAN SPORTS SHOW UP WELL IN 1922 INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION

The close of another year of keen international competition in the world of sport finds the United States with well established supremacy in a large majority of the varied fields of rivalry.

The records for 1922, where the calibre of competition has been sufficiently high to afford a real test of superiority, show America triumphant in eleven contests, more than all the rest of the contending nations combined. England, which fighted as this country's principal rival, has three victories to its credit while Canada, Argentina and France each captured one championship.

Called on in most instances to defend its laurels, the United States maintained its supremacy in men's tennis, women's swimming and professional billiards; scored five victories in six international golf contests, triumphed twice in yachting and once in rowing. England swept to the fore in men's and women's track and field sports and accounted for the other golf victory, a meagre showing where the British Lion in former years ruled the royal and ancient heights supreme. France was victorious in women's tennis, Argentina's spectacular riders dashed to polo triumphs here and in England; while Canada retained the fishing schooner championship.

Track and Field.

England came through with flying colors in one of the first inter-national tests of the year, when in April Cambridge university's distance runners defeated the university of Pennsylvania's picked quartet in a four-mile relay race at London. Oxford university, the third entry, finished last. Britain's women athletes also triumphed on track and field by decisively winning the first real international meet for feminine stars, held at Paris in August. England scored 50 points, the United States 31, and France 29. The meet constituted the first organized attempt to put women's track and field sport on an international footing and has been followed by rapid development and interest, especially in this country, where the Amateur Athletic union has taken direct control of feminine competition and a newly launched National Women's Track A. A. has undertaken interscholastic and intercollegiate supervision.

Tennis.

The United States successfully defended its possession of the Davis cup, emblematic of the world's team tennis championship, defeating by four matches to one the Australian challengers, survivors of an original field of thirteen nations. Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, sensational French racquet star, established without question her supremacy by vanquishing Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American champion, in straight sets in the final match of the international women's tournament at Wimbledon, England.

America's net triumphs during the year were due mainly to the individual brilliancy of William T. Tilden and William M. Johnston. Together they accounted for all of America's Davis cup victories, each defeating Gerald Patterson and James O. Anderson, while Tilden and Richards lost to Patterson and O'Hara Wood in the doubles.

Tilden, tnrice national champion, did not defend the world's title he won in 1920 and 1921 at Wimbledon, but in Patterson he conquered the 1922 victor in the English classic besides emerging at the top in the national singles at Philadelphia from a field which included a formidable array of international stars.

Golf.

America added to its triumphs with close to a clean sweep on the links in the traditional struggle with England. Emulating Jock Hutchinson's 1921 victory, Walter Hagen, former U. S. open title-holder, captured the British open crown, the first time an American homebred turned the trick. Making the event close to a rout for the British clan, Hutchinson tied George Duncan for second place, while Jim Barnes landed fourth position.

With Duncan and Abe Mitchell as Britain's threat in the American open event, at Skokie, Gene Sarazen topped a flashy field to keep the title in this country. Duncan landed sixth place while Mitchell was far down the list.

American amateurs repelled an organized British invasion, winning the Walker cup, emblematic of the international team championship, by eight matches to four at Southampton, N. Y., and eliminating the invading phalanx later in the national tournament at Brookline, Mass., won by Jesse Sweetser, Cyril J. H. Tolley, former British champion was the last survivor among his countrymen in this event, losing in the semi-finals to R. E. Knepper, of Princeton and Sioux City, Ia., who previously also had put out W. B. Torrance, another English star. Roger Wethered and John Caven, were other prominent invaders who fell by the wayside.

Women's Golf.

Women's golf produced two keen contests with Mrs. William A. Gavin, formerly of New York, carrying England's colors on both occasions to the final round. Mrs. Gavin defeated Miss Alexa Stirling, former American queen of the links, by two and one, for the Canadian championship but in the American title event, at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was conquered by Miss Glenna Collett by a margin of five and four.

Sculling.

Walter Hoover, Duluth oarsman, achieved a notable triumph for America when he captured the historic diamond sculls trophy in the English Henley regatta on the Thames. Hoover advanced easily through preliminary contests and in the final race decisively defeated J. Beresford, Jr., England's crack sculler, who was beaten in the Olympic championship in 1920 by Jack Kelly, American champion, who has since retired from active competition. Hoover's victory abroad followed his success in the Gold challenge cup singles at Philadelphia, where he defeated the pick of America's amateur oarsmen, besides Hilton Belyea, Canadian champion.

Yachting.

In yachting, American six-metre craft won the British-American cup in a series of six team races with English rivals in Long Island sound by the close score of 111 to 104 points. The model yacht championship also went to this country when the miniature craft, Polkadot, owned by E. A. Bull, of Brooklyn, won three straight races from the English Endeavor, owned by W. J. Daniels, of London, in a series off Bayside, Long Island.

Schooner Race.

The Canadian fishing schooner Bluenose retained the international trophy, defeating the American challenger, the Henry Ford, in two out of three races off Gloucester, Mass., after an initial contest, won by the American boat, had been thrown out by officials because of a false start.

Swimming.

England's challenge for long distance swimming honors among women failed of victory when Miss Hilda James finished third to Miss Gertrude Ederle and Miss Helen Wainwright, American stars, in a three-mile endurance test in New York bay. Miss James also met defeat at shorter distances in competition with this country's mermaids.

Polo.

Argentina's brilliant polo four, fresh from victory in the British championship, triumphed in the American open title event at Rumson, N. J., where one Anglo-American, one Irish-American and four American teams also contested for honors. Later in the season the South Americans met defeat twice in a row at the hands of the Meadow Brook "Big Four," a combination which represented this country's best and had captured the year before the international Hurlingham cup from England.

Billiards.

Willie Hoppe scored another victory for America in professional billiards, defeating a picked field composed of two other American and three European stars in an international tournament in November and regaining the title he lost the year before, Jake Schaefer, Roger Conti, of France; Edouard Horemans, of Belgium; and Erich Hagenlicher, of Germany, represented the best of Europe's cut stars in the tourney.

ACADEMY TEAMS MADE POOR SHOWING DURING PAST YEAR

Lack of Material Handicaps Coach McKay in Developing Baseball Team—Same Trouble Encountered in Building Up a Football Eleven—Local School Had No Chance Against More Experienced High School Teams in the Eastern Part of the State—Only Five Victories Can be Credited to the Academy Teams During the Past Season.

The year's review of sports at the Norwich Free Academy reflects little credit on the teams of that institution for only five victories can be credited to the baseball and football teams during their respective seasons. The baseball team scored two victories out of 13 games played, and the football team turned in three out of 13 games played.

The past year was one of the poorest in the history of the institution and there are so many contributing causes for this that it is hard to lay it to any one reason. Lately it is due to the fact that there was such a large amount of green material to work with that Coach Edward G. McKay had much difficulty in rounding out a team that could compare with the more experienced teams of the other high schools in this section of the state. Coach McKay had only one or two men on each team to build around, but with such material as was at hand he developed as good combinations as could be expected under the circumstances.

The baseball team was built around two men, Diffley, veteran pitcher and Dyer, a snappy shortstop, the rest of the team being only mediocre. Almost at the outset of the season Dyer was put out of the game with injuries and the burden of winning games was thrown on to Diffey. Diffley pitched the best ball of his career, and established what was considered almost a high school record in strikeouts, but he received such ragged support that what should have been easy victories were turned into disappointing defeats. Every position on the team was weak, and many that looked like sure-fire stars at the beginning of the season turned out to be miserable flivvers. The prospect for the coming 1923 baseball season is very black and unless some very exceptional materials has entered from the grammar schools it looks like another poor baseball season.

The records of the baseball season follow:

FOOTBALL.

The football team was little better than the baseball team and made a very poor showing against teams that usually are set-ups for an Academy aggregation. This team had all the appearances of strength but when it came to football they were sadly lacking in head work and the fighting spirit. The outstanding star of the game was Clabby who had all the promise of being one of the best players ever turned out at the Academy. Clabby played several games and then broke his ankle, putting him out for the remainder of the season. One other player that showed ability was Phil McNamara, elected 1923 captain, he showing flashes of speed at times. Haller was another player that showed up above the rest. The remainder of the team was not up to the standard largely through lack of experience.

The record of the football season follows:

Numerous Batting Records Set in National League

The National League Official Batting Records show that numerous new records were established in the senior organization during the past season, which, together with other interesting data, are summarized as follows:

Rogers Hornsby led a glorious triumph for the right-hand batters by the wonderful record that he made for the National League and for his own St. Louis team in the season of 1922.

For the third year in succession he was at the head of the league in batting, with an average of .401. That percentage is the highest attained by any batter since 1899, when Ed Delehanty, "Del, the Mighty," finished on top in the National League with a percentage of .408. It is of interest to note here that Hornsby and Delehanty were batters of much the same type and both were right-hand, hitters. Both had the same swing. Both were line hitters. Possibly Delehanty could hit the ball farther than Hornsby, but not much farther. It is the second instance in National Leaue history that a batter has led the league three years in succession. Hans Wagner led in 1906 1907, 1908 and also in 1909.

Wins Home Run Honors.

In addition to winning the batting championship of the league, Hornsby won the home run championship of the season and also of the league by making forty-two home runs during the regular schedule of games. The former championship in home run batting in the National League had been held by Williamson of the Chicago's, who batted twenty-seven home runs in 1587. No player had approached that record in all the years subsequent until Hornsby reached a total of twenty-five home runs comparitively early in the season of 1922, which made it an assured fact that he would establish a new home record before the year was over if he retained his health. After surpassing Williamson's total he kept steadily forward and eventually exceeded the totals being made by the home run hitters of the American League, so that he was the undisputed home run champion of the season of 1922 when the base ball year was completed.

Betters Keeler's Record.

Continuing in the variety of his record breaking attack Hornsby made 250 hits in 1922, which is better than the record for hits which was made by Willie Keeler in 1897. Keeler's total was 243. For the many years in which the Keeler record had stood in the National League, it frequently had been asserted that no player would be likely to surpass it unless a left-handed batter. Hornsby did, and he is a right-hand batter. Of the 250 hits which Hornsby made, 148 were singles, 46 two-baggers, 14 three-base hits and 42 home runs. His total bases were 450, which surpassed his own record of a total of 378 the previous year.

The compilation of runs batted in is comparatively new in base ball. Cravath of Philadelphia held the record for the National League with 128 runs batted in durin the season of 1913, when Cravath batted the ball over the Philadelphia fence for home runs every now and then. In 1922, without a short fence to help him, Hornsby batted in 149 runs, a gain of twenty over the mark set by Cravath, and in some respects almost as big an achievement as his home record.

102 Extra Base Blows.

The extra-base hits made by him put up a total of 102 for 1922. That was helped by his big home run record. In 1921 he batted 82 extra-base hits. Hornsby batted a home run in 1922 with the bases filled. Four times he made two home runs in one game. All told he made a record in the National League last season which is one of the biggest individual achievements in base ball, and he set a task for himself in future years that will demand the best of his ability as a ball player.

Walter Henline of Philadelphia batted four home runs in two successive game. Three of them were made on September 15 and the fourth on the next day. This had been accomplished three times previously in the National League. James O'Rourke did it for Boston in 1880, Roger Connor for New York in 188, and Napoleon Lajoie for Philadelphia in 1900. When Henline made his three home runs September 15 he was the first National league batter to do anything of the kind since the days of Jacob Beckley in 1897.

Young of New York and Johnson of Brooklyn tied on one feat. On April 29, Young batted for a single, double, three-bagger and home run, and on May 25, Johnson did the same thing. Young batted for a total of twelve bases in his performance because he made a second two-bagger. On September 15, Henline of Philadelphia batted for a total of twelve bases. Carey of Pittsburgh and Gooch of the same team each got six hits in one game. This was July 7. Carey went to bat six times and Gooch went to bat eight times.

In addition to Hornsby, players who batted home runs with the bases filled were Gowdy, Boston; Kelly, New York; Mann, St. Louis; Wirts, Chicago; and Fournier, St. Louis. Kelly of New York batted two home runs in one game three times and so did Lee of Philadelphia. Williams of Philadelphia batted two home runs in one game twice and so did Russel, Pittsburgh. In his first two times at bat, July 27, Stock, St. Louis, made home runs and batted in six runs.

"Rabbits" Set Record.

Marsnyille of Pittsburgh went to bat 672 times, which is a record for the major leagues. Tobin of the St. Louis Browns had it previously. He went to bat 671 times in 1921. Bigbee of Pittsburgh made the most singles, with a total of 166; Hornsby the most two-baggers, with 46, and Daubert of Cincinnati the most triples, with 23. The leading sacrifice hitter was Terry of Chicago, who had a total of 39. Carey of Pittsburgh was the best base stealer with a total of 51. He stole four bases July 23. The last National League player to do anything of that nature was John Smith, St. Louis, who stole four bases in 1916.

A most unusual batting performance was accomplished by the Pittsburgh club. Every player in their batting order made one or more hits in five consecutive games, August 5 to 10, inclusive. At Boston, August 5, Pittsburgh made 16 hits. Nine players competed and each got one or more hits. At Philadelphia, August 7, the next game for Pittsburgh, there were twelve players in the Pittsburgh batting order and each made one or more hits with a total of 22. The next day there was a double-header at Philadelphia. In the first game eleven players took part for Pittsburgh. Each player hit safely, the team making 37 hits. In the second game of the double-header there were nine players in the batting order and each player got a hit, the total being 19. On the next day, August 10, there were nine players in the Pittsburgh batting order again, and each player made a hit with a total of 16. On August 11, Pittsburgh almost made a similar record. The player who failed to get a hit was Tierney. Each of the other players was successful.

On August 23, there was a record game between Chicago and Philadelphia, the former winning by 26 to 23. Chicago scored 10 runs in the second inning and 14 runs in the fourth inning. The previous high score in the National League was made by Chicago and Louisville, June 29, 1897, when Chicago scored 26 runs and Louisville 7. Chicago scored in every inning in that game and each of the Chicago players scored one or more runs and made one or more hits.

Pittsburgh led in club batting, with a percentage of .308, the same total held by the 1921 leader, St. Louis. This is the first year since 1909 that Pittsburgh has led in club batting.

Pittsburgh faced the most pitching, going to bat 5521 times; scored the most runs, 853; made the most hits, 1698, and the most one-base hits, 1297. St. Louis made the most two-base hits, 280. Pittsburgh the most home runs, 116. This is the fourth successive year that Philadelphia has led in home runs.

New York was the best winner at home, with a percentage of .654. Except Philadelphia and Boston, each club won more games than it lost at home. St. Louis was the best road club, with a percentage of .558, and with New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago the only teams to win more games abroad than they lost.

NEW PALACE THEATRE IN NORWICH TO BE ERECTED IN PRESENT YEAR

the beauty of the lobby. As will the natural ceiling.

Seating Capacity of 1500.

The lobby will open directly into the main auditorium which will have a seating capacity of 1500. The floor will have a pitch of eight feet from the rear to the stage and will be of concrete, covered with a floor covering of light gray with tone borders. The tapestry, draperies and other hangings will be of peacock blue, which with the burnt old ivory fixtures and decorations make a pleasing color scheme, the foundation of which will be French gray and ivory. The lighting effects will be of the most improved combination type. There will be five drop chandeliers and clusters of wall fixtures, all in the old ivory finish. These combination fixtures are so made that either electricity or gas can be used for illumination.

The seats will be of the latest designs with blue morrocco upholstry with a 20 inch curved back. The entire house will be seated the same. The ventilation system is to be one of the best, insuring the patrons of this theatre pure air at all times. There will be four ventilators in the roof, and many air ducts in the walls, the fans in the ventilators in the roof carrying off the foul air while the pure air comes in at the bottom. In the rear of the theatre will be paneled draught screens, the entire width of the auditorium.

The ladies' room, just off the auditorium at the left of the entrance, will be finished in a color scheme of old rose and ivory. The furnishings will be of wicker with blue upholstering and the rugs will correspond to the general color scheme. There will be ... the place and alcove and retiring room.

The men's room will be large and of modern construction and equipment. The picture booth will be built over the main entrance and will be absolutely fireproof. The latest model of projecting machines will be installed and will be motor driven. The heating plant will be located entirely outside the main building thus eliminating any possibility from fire.

Provides Ample Stage Room.

The stage will be large with the idea of being able to put on dramatic and musical productions, vaudeville and motion pictures. It will be 78 feet across and 23 feet deep, larger than many of the metropolitan stages. The proscenium arch will be 40 feet. The drops will be all motor driven and the stage hangings will fit in harmoniously with the color scheme of the theatre. A large metallic asbestos curtain that can be raised or dropped in three segments will be installed.

In the orchestra pit will be a large organ which will rank with any in any theatre in the state. It will be motor driven and will have three keyboards and will be operated by one of the best organists that Mr. Spitz has on his large circuit.

Taken as a whole there will be no theatre in this section of the state that will have anything on the Norwich theatre and its operation under the experienced management of Mr. Spitz promises success for the theatre and satisfaction for its patrons.

Music may be the food of love, but after marriage there is need of liver and bacon.

Norwich Building & Loan Association is Prosperous

An examination of the books of the Norwich Building & Loan Association shows that the earnings for 1922 will allow the declaring of a dividend at the rate of 5 1-2 per cent. the same rate which has been declared for the last three years.

The continued success of this organization has been marked by the substantial increase of assets from $50,000 to over $100,000 during the year 1922. Thirty-three mortgage loans have been granted, seven of them for entirely new buildings.

E. O. BODIER
President of Norwich Building and Loan Association.

The rejection of so many applications for loans spurs us on to add at least $2,000 of loaning power per month by selling at least that number of shares in the 16th series which opens January, 1923.

An important step is now being taken by a committee in redrafting the by-laws to meet the needs of this growing association, and to conform to the newest state statutes especially in regard to single installment shares.

The work of this association is no longer localized, it has reached and spread through the manufacturing villages. An important feature of the suggested changes in the by-laws is the addition of three directors to board of management, who should be selected from suburban plants, and therefore serve as a source of information in their respective localities.

The Norwich Building & Loan Association is regulated by the state banking laws and its officers and board of management are all citizens, who are working for the best interests of Norwich.

E. O. BODIER.
President Norwich Building & Loan Association.

STATE HAS ACQUIRED MORE FOREST LAND

At a special meeting of the state park and forest commission it was voted to accept a gift from the White Memorial Foundation of a tract of 175 acres adjoining the Mohawk state forest in Cornwall. This gift brings the total area of the forest up to approximately 1,400 acres, all of which has been given to the state by the White Foundation.

Inasmuch as the state is limited in its purchases of land, to the price of $8 an acre, the commission is unable to buy land having much timber on it. This new gift therefore, is a property which the state could not have acquired by purchase because of its high value. It is so situated that it rounds out the total area and makes the tract much better adapted to the state's purposes.

HOW TO STAMP OUT POULTRY PARASITES

No animal of benefit to mankind seems to be free from pests of some sort or other that constantly tend to reduce its usefulness.

Domestic poultry seem to have their full share of such pests and a considerable number of these are insect pests, most of which are lice and mites.

The lice attacking chickens and staying on the body continually are very small and may be killed by dusting. Red mites on the other hand are usually found on the chickens at night only when they are on the roost, and hide in the cracks and crevices of the house during the daytime. They prick the skin and suck the blood from the body of the fowl and also leave an irritation on the surface of the skin.

There are three general classes of insecticides that are reliable to kill poultry parasites. They are powders, liquids and fumes. The powder has to be dusted on the bodies of the parasites so that the fine particles will be driven into the breathing tubes of the insects which will become clogged; the insects then will die of suffocation. The liquids will kill because they are corrosive or because they get into the breathing tubes and suffocate the insects and the fumes kill because they suffocate.

WIDE-AWAKE POETRY.

Driving Home the Cows.

Out of the clover and blue-eyed grass
He turned them into the river lane;
One after another she let them pass.
Then fastened the meadow-bars again.

Under the willows, and over the hill,
He patiently followed their sober pace;
The merry whistle for once was still,
And something shadowed the sunny face.

Only a boy; and his father had said
He never could let his youngest go;
Two already were lying dead
Under the feet of the trampling foe.

But after the evening work was done,
And the frogs were loud in the mead-ow-swamp,
Over his shoulder he slung his gun,
And stealthily followed the footpath damp.

Across the clover and through the wheat,
With resolute heart and purpose grim,
Though cold was the dew on his hurrying feet,
And the bird bat's flitting startled him.

Thrice since then had the lanes been white,
And the orchards sweet with apple-bloom;
And now, when the cows came back at night,
The feeble father drove them home.

For news had come to the lonely farm
That three were lying where two had lain;
And the old man's tremulous, palsied arm
Could never lean on a son's again.

The summer day grew cool and late,
He went for the cows when the work was done;
But down the lane, as he opened the gate,
He saw them coming, one by one—

Brindle, Bonny, Speckle and Bess,
Shaking their horns in the evening wind;
Cropping the buttercups out of the grass—
But who was it following close behind?

Loosely swung in the idle air
The empty sleeve of army blue,
And worn and pale, from the crisping hair
Looked out a face that the father knew.

For southern prisons will sometimes yawn,
And yield their dead unto life again;
And the day that comes with a cloudy dawn
In golden glory at last may wane.

The great tears sprang to their meeting eyes;
For the heart must speak when the lips are dumb.
And under the silent evening skies
Together they followed the cattle home.

The Home of Light.

He sought for Joy among the mountains;
He looked for Truth in the stars above;
He hunted Peace on the burning desert,
And roamed the world in search of Love.

He thought to find on the restless ocean
The source of life and the key to power;
In vain he scanned the scroll of ages
For light to bless his day and hour.

But Wisdom fled as he approached her,
And Truth appeared like a phantom bright—
And when he tried to capture Pleasure
She laughed and vanished from his sight.

Yet still he stumbled, staggered onward
Till, in the valley of despair,
Hope he stabbed and Fear he strangled—
And buried all his idols there.

The search was done, the fever ended;
He feared no loss, he sought no gain;
He suddenly, with eyes turned inward,
He found all good within his soul!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Uncle Jed wishes every one of the Wide-awakes a very happy New Year. May the coming twelve months of 1923 be full of happiness for you all.

Wishing happiness does not in itself create happiness. The wish is merely an expression of good will and of hope that the days to come will be happy ones. Happiness depends not only on our way of living but on our way of thinking. Clean thoughts, a healthy mind, a clean body and contentment mean happiness. Of course, often times misfortunes and disappointments creep into our lives, bringing with them unhappiness. But, on the whole, the misfortunes and disappointments of life are not worth dwelling or brooding over. Forget them, start life anew and go on facing the world with a smile and a determination to overcome whatever difficulties you encounter.

Even when our misfortunes or disappointments seem greater than we can bear they might in some cases have been very much worse. It is said that we get out of life only what we put into it. So if we put into life kind deeds for others, softly spoken words, and help others to be happy, we ourselves will be happy.

Evil thoughts breed evil actions and evil actions mean trouble and discontentment. A surly, evil thinking, mean acting boy or girl cannot be happy and contented. Doing others good turns whenever we can, aiding them to brush aside their discouragements and disappointments, thus brightening their lives, will in turn net happiness for us.

This is the first day of the New Year. Why not start right in this morning to help yourself gain that happiness, joy and contentment that all of us so much desire? Happiness will come to all of us if we only go after it in the right way.

A School Christmas Tree

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the week we have our Christmas tree at school. We drew names last week and I got my girl friend's name.

The two lower rooms got together and the two rooms upstairs got together. We sing songs and say poems and get presents and candy. We have red paper in our windows at school.

A Story About Christmas

Dear Uncle Jed: Christmas is the greatest holiday of the year. This holiday is kept because Christ was born on that. It comes once a year on the 25th of December. One Christmas eve the children hang up their stockings expecting them to be filled the next morning with all sorts of tops and good things by a jolly old fellow called Santa Claus. On Christmas the ground is usually covered with snow.

On Christmas morning the merry shouts of the children are heard as they see what good things Santa has brought them, and again their joyous shouts are heard as they hear the sleigh bells and run to the windows to see the ground covered with ice and snow. After a while we see groups of children with their sleds and we know they are going sliding, and as we look around we see the faces of happy looking children watching them slide.

In Holland the children put their shoes beside the fireplace instead of hanging their stockings. Everyone loves old Santa and in every country the children all look forward to Christmas. They look forward to this great day because when they think of Christmas they think of Santa Claus, of all the gifts they will receive, of sliding, of Christmas trees, and all sorts of good things. There are many poems and stories about Santa Claus which the children like to hear.

I have a little brother and sister. My sister is five and my brother three. My sister wants Santa to bring her a doll, a carriage, a doll bed and all sorts of candies and nuts. My brother wants a big bicycle. I think he will have to wait until he is a little older.

I wish you all a happy New Year.

How I Caught a 'Coon

Dear Uncle Jed: In the latter part of November while I was setting traps for some muskrats at the furth end of the pond, I heard my dog bark in some bushes a few rods ahead of me. I stopped and listened and I heard struggling and my dog was still barking. I at once thought it to be an unfortunate deer who had tried to cross on the other side and had sunk in the thin ice. I was equipped with hatchet and a jack knife and hastened to cut a pole with my hatchet. When I unfolded my boots as high up as I could and started for the place. When I got there I saw it was not a deer but a 'coon. My pole was about 5 feet long.

As I walked along I broke the ice with my hatchet as I approached him. He would try to climb a small bush but the bush could not hold him and he would fall and break through the ice. Then the battle begun. I was poking him and at the same time encouraging Carlo. After a while the 'coon became tired and I gave him a blow on the head and killed him. He weighed 13 3-4 pounds.

First Thanksgiving Day

Dear Uncle Jed: I will write and tell you about our Thanksgiving play which was held at the school.

It was to represent the first Thanksgiving Day. The Puritan Maids were some of the girls from the third and fourth grades, while some of the boys were Myles Standish, Elder Brewster, Gov. Bradford and others were dressed as Indians. I was Samoset and brought popcorn (which is called maize) to the white men.

We sang Thanksgiving songs. After the songs the bell rang and the teacher dismissed us wishing us a happy Thanksgiving.

Always Hangs Up Stocking

Dear Uncle Jed:—I though I would write to you and tell you how I spent Christmas. My aunt came from Pawtucket. I always hang up my stocking on Christmas Eve, and I hope it will be filled with all sorts of toys and goodies.

We call this day Christmas because we celebrate the birthday of Christ. He was born in a stable in Bethlehem over 1900 years ago. I will now close wishing all the boys and girls of the Wide-Awake Circle a happy New Year.

Lazy Fussy Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: Pussy was a lazy cat. She was so lazy that she did not seem to see, hear or feel. She would sit in the sun and purr and purr. The children would scatter leaves and throw them at her and throw crumbs at her, but she would not move. Often the rats and mice would come out for a fine meal. They pulled her tail and scratched her nose. She did not seem to care. The rats and mice became bolder, now they went on her back and flew at her eyes. My mother disliked her. She said she is good for nothing. Pussy heard my mother say that and she did not like the name which my mother called her.

She said to herself, "This will never do, for everything should be of some use. Good-for-nothing will not be my name."

Pussy worked very hard the next day, but sat idle very long so she was not able to do much. She tried hard every day and it was not long before she heard my mother say, "Pussy is the best cat I ever had." For she has driven all the rats and mice away.

A Story About a Cat.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell you about a cat that lived near the ocean.

Old Dina the cat lay asleep on the doorstep in the sun. Now and then she opened her sleepy eyes. Before her lay the bright, blue ocean, with white sails here and there.

Presently a sound broke the stillness. Dina heard it, raised her ear, and listened intently. A man bearing a large basket was approaching the house from the beach.

The cat arose, stretched herself, and went noiselessly into the kitchen. The basket stood in the middle of the floor, and three of the other cats were looking on from a safe distance. Dina went slowly forward to investigate its contents.

She soon became aware that there were curious noises inside the basket. Suddenly two long, slender feelers waved in the air. Two clumsy claws grasped the rim of the basket and by their help a hideous dark body came slowly into view. The ugly monster raised itself out of the basket and fell with a loud noise on the floor. It was a live lobster.

For a long time all was still. Dina sat watching the strange, black animal in its horny armor. As it did not move she forgot her fear, and crep nearer and nearer. At last she put out her paw and touched its hard shell. It did not notice her. She tried another pat, and the lobster waved its long feelers, opened and shut the clumsy teeth of his great claws.

The cat watched it in great wonder, and pushed her white paw between the open teeth. Instantly the two sides of the strong claw snapped together and the cat cried out in pain. Someone heard her cry and, coming to the rescue, thrust a stick between the rough teeth of the lobster's claw and set Dina free.

For many days she was lame. When at last she began to feel a little better she strayed again into the kitchen.

About a week after she was lame, she saw a pan of milk on the table that was not yet skimmed. She went right on the table, put her pink nose into the creamy surface.

Now it was washing day, and just under the edge of the table was a tub full of suds. After the first taste of cream, Dina lifted her head and what did she see.

On the table just before her was a great lobster. Bright scarlet, with its long feelers pointing toward her, it burst upon her sight. It had been boiled and of course could do her no harm, but Dina did not know it.

Now in great fright she gave one leap backwards, and fell, splash, into the tub of warm suds.

With eyes, ears, nose and mouth full of soapy foam, she crawled from the tub and ran out leaving a long stream of suds behind her. The wind blew through her soaked fur, and she suffered from the cold. But her bitter experiences taught her a lesson, for never again did she play with a lobster or try to steal milk from a pan.

I go to the Gurleyville grammar school. I am twelve years old in the sixth grade.

Our Sea Trip to New London.

We were waiting impatiently for the ship to start, but in the meantime we were watching other ships in the harbor. After what seemed to us ages of waiting, the ship started and the voyage was on. A strong stiff wind blew against us, as we stood on the deck watching the boat slowly leaving New York city behind. We passed many headlands among which was a curious one that looked like a huge elephant. Soon darkness fell upon us and then we made our way into our cabins and we retired. During the night we were awakened by loud noises as we continued ourselves they were made by passing steamers.

The late morning sun found us all on a bus station waiting for a bus that would take us to Colchester.

Thought Echo Another Person

Dear Uncle Jed: When I was eight years old I did not have the idea of an echo. One day as I was playing at the opening of a wood I cried "Ho ho!" A voice from the forest answered "Ho ho!" Surprised as I was I asked, "Who are you?" and the strange voice immediately repeated, "Who are you?" Then I went home and told my mother. She began to laugh so much that I said, "Mother, what are you laughing at?" "My child," said my mother, "you only heard your own words. You see it was your echo." That night I went to bed thinking of that. After that I never thought my echo to be another person.

Christmas Best Day of Year

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how our school work is getting on. Uncle Jed I have a problem I wish you would solve for the children of our school district and myself. Can you tell us what day of the year is best beloved by the children? St. Valentine's day, July the 4th, Hallowe'en, Thanksgiving or the 25th of Dec.? I know what I think is the best day of all the year. It is Christmas day, not only because Santa Claus comes to bring us the things to delight the heart, but Christmas is the day that Christ our Saviour was born.

When Santa Hurt His Foot.

Dear Uncle Jed: It was the day before Christmas and Santa was very busy getting the children's presents ready. In came "Rickity Rickity." He was called this because he had a wooden leg and when he walked he would go rickity, rickity, rickity, rickity. He had a letter for Santa from a little girl who wanted a doll with red hair. But Santa looked very sad and said, "We have all other dolls except those with red hair."

He felt very sad because he did not like to disappoint his children. So he said, "We will go to the woods and get some shrubs to make some red dye and dye the doll's hair." So they were off. They were gone a long time and Santa's wife began to feel worried about Santa. But soon they came and Santa was limping. He had hurt his foot in the forest. The doctor was called and said it would be several days before Santa could walk.

What could they do now with no Santa to take the presents? But Santa said to his wife, why don't you get dressed like me and go out with the presents. So she dressed like Santa the next night and went with the presents to the children.

Liquids Effective Indoors.

The liquid insecticides are more effective if applied to the interior of poultry buildings than powder insecticides for the reason that they can be sprayed into all the cracks and crevices. When thoroughly applied a good liquid insecticide will rid a house of practically all the parasites that are in it and, of course, the house must be thoroughly cleaned before this is applied so that it will be able to penetrate. When liquid insecticides of any kind are used either as a spray or upon the poultry, they should be allowed to soak into the wood and allowed to dry thoroughly before the fowls are allowed to go inside again.

The principal liquid insecticide is creosote known in some localities as creosote stain; fowls should not be allowed to enter a building sprayed with creosote until after the material has had time to dry and the fumes to pass away. This will ordinarily be from three to four hours.

Other liquid insecticides are crude petroleum, kerosene, benzine, gasoline, turpentine, cresilin, and carbolic acid used at the rate of one and a half ounces to one gallon of water. Fume insecticides include sulphur fumes, tobacco fumes, and creosote fumes.—Seth Shoemaker.

AUTHENTICITY OF THE ANTI-WAR PROPOSAL QUESTIONED

German Official Declares the Proffer Was Made in Good Faith—Chancellor Cuno Has Announced the Rejection by France of His Anti-War Pact—Proposed Pact Would Leave Decision of War or Peace to a Popular Referendum—London Times Says That No Precise Offer of the Peace Pact Has Been Made—Reparations Conference Opens in Paris Today.

Berlin, Jan. 1 (By the A. P.)—Chancellor Cuno's announcement of the rejection by France of his offer of anti-war pact brought considerable comment today from official circles, which, however, confined themselves to the question of Germany's motives in making the offer.

The world should now be convinced, they say, that Germany harbors no ideas of revenge and that she is truly a democracy, being content to leave the decision of war or peace to a popular referendum, as provided in the proposed pact.

Whether the government considers Poincare's rejection of the plan as final and as disposing of further efforts in this direction, could not be adduced from informal inquiry, and officials were apparently awaiting the French reaction to Herr Cuno's announcement.

The French attitude is viewed in some quarters in Berlin as being prompted by the conviction that such a pact would definitely restrict France's freedom of action in connection with reparations, because it would prevent her from imposing physical sanctions or invading fresh German territory.

"In proposing this truce to France, the Cuno government was speaking for the German people as a whole," said leading foreign office officials. The German government, he added, was weary of the incessant aspersions on its integrity and desired to give tangible proof of the sentiments of the German people and incidentally afford an opportunity for reciprocal expression by proposing a joint pledge of good faith to France and the other powers interested in the Rhine.

Alluding to what he called the absurd and preposterous idea that the reactionary element in Germany was arming for an invasion of France, this official declared that such charges suggested the suspicion that they were inspired to keep militarism alive elsewhere.

Supplementing Chancellor Cuno's statement of yesterday, it was declared today that the German plan should be understood as providing a truce for a period of from 45 to 60 years and not for the indefinite term indicated by the word "generation."

Although no further official information was forthcoming, the impression prevails that Herr Cuno's move was carefully planned in advance and that he was even apprised the Washington government of his proposed pact. It is also generally assumed that the United States would have been designated the custodian of the non-war pledge in the event of its ratification.

NO PRECISE OFFER OF PEACE PACT HAS BEEN MADE

London, Jan. 1.—A despatch to The Times from Paris says the correspondent understands there has been no precise offer of a non-war pact by Germany to France. The German ambassador, in Washington, the correspondent declares, mentioned the matter to Secretary of State Hughes. Mr. Hughes repeated it to Jules Jusserand, the French ambassador, who notified the French foreign office where the subject was considered, but it was needless to reply to it because the offer was not definite.

A despatch to The Times from Berlin says it is understood the idea originated with the German ambassador in Washington.

REPARATIONS CONFERENCE TO OPEN IN PARIS TODAY

Paris, Jan. 1 (By the A. P.)—The prime ministers of France, Great Britain and Belgium, together with the Marquis Della Torretta, representing the Italian premier, will go into conference tomorrow in what is regarded as the final effort of the allies to reach a collective settlement of the reparations question. There was a sober and even anxious spirit in allied circles tonight. In face of the probability that, if the conference fails, separate and direct action by France will follow. This is a continuation of last month's premiers' conference in London which was called to examine whether any practical results could come from a general economic congress in Brussels. The main questions to be decided are, first, whether a moratorium can be granted to Germany and, second, upon what terms.

France and Great Britain are sharply divided in policy. The French insist upon seizing the productive resources of Germany on the left bank of the Rhine and in the Ruhr valley as guarantees that, when the moratorium terminates, Germany will resume her reparations payments. President Millerand, in replying to the New Year good wishes of the diplomatic corps today, made it clear that France stands upon her conception of justice and her rights under the treat yof Versailles.

"Complete peace can be established," he declared, "only on the basis of the treaties and through respect for the rights acquired and the obligations incurred."

The British government thoroughly disapproves stern methods or penalties and desires to work out a plan under which Germany will be allowed a moratorium of at least two years, this time to be employed in so reorganizing her resources that she may successfully shoulder her debts.

Any settlement likely to be successful depends, in Mr. Bonar Law's view, on some form of international loan for Germany, and, together with his associates on the British delegation, he has received with approval the suggestion of the American secretary of state that an international commission determine the amount of reparations to be expected.

The conviction held by Premier Poincare of France is that a change in heart on the part of Germany is required above all other consideration. He believes Germany's plans for the future are based upon a policy of resistance to the execution of the Versailles treaty, and any effort to help her he regards as useless until the Berlin government decides in earnest to fulfill its obligations.

Extension of the present partial moratorium, which expires on January 15, and the raising of cash for Germany in the international market will, in the French view, be nullified by the continued German opposition to payment of her debts, so that action such as France now contemplates will be eventually forced upon the allies.

The Belgian and Italian governments appear now to lean more toward the French vie wthan toward the British, but with some disposition to seek middle ground.

The Italian delegation has a plan which it will present to the council after Poincare and Bonar Law have explained the French and British viewpoints. This conciliatory program calls for guarantees to satisfy France, but without penalties so as to meet the British objection, relying upon such action by Germany as would have the result of making the guarantees productive without the use of force.

The Belgian premier, M. Theunis, seeks to harmonize the French and British programs, which, it is understood, he thinks could be done if the German government would unreservedly affirm its willingness to fulfill the reparations clauses of the treaty to the full extent of the nation's resources.

Both the Belgian and Italian views thus rely upon Germany to surrender economically, trusting that the allies will lay down for her terms that she can meet.

The French cabinet meets tomorrow morning under the chairmanship of President Millerand to decide finally the French government's policy.

GIRL ASSAILANT IDENTIFIED AS MISS ETHEL BUSSECK

New York, Jan. 1.—The girl attired in men's clothing, who shot Morris Katz, a garment manufacturer, and then turned her pistol on herself, last Saturday night, today was identified as Miss Ethel Busseck, formerly employed by Katz, and until five months ago a resident of Clifton, N. J.

Katz received two minor wounds and was discharged from the hospital today. Surgeons still were probing for the bullet the girl fired on herself, having located it by X-ray near the spine.

When Katz left the hospital he instructed the management to do everything possible for the girl's comfort at his expense.

At the time of the shooting, Katz was reported to have declared he had never seen the young woman before.

CHICAGO HOTELS REAPED A HARVEST NEW YEAR'S EVE

Chicago, Jan. 1.—Chicago spent $6,000,000 ushering in the New Year, according to figures prepared tonight, based on returns from seven large hotels and six leading cafes.

Hotel and cafe men estimated that the expenditure per guest ranged from $3 to $115, and that one-fifth of the city's population celebrated.

The threat of prohibition agents to raid for the hotel and cafe reservation lists and summon all merry-makers before the federal grand jury to tell what they know about how prohibition did or did not work New Year's eve met with a varying response today. Some hotel keepers said they would not give up their lists until they consulted attorneys.

OPPOSITION TO BUREAUCRACY BY ITALIAN GOVERNMENT

London, Jan. 1.—A despatch to The Times from Rome says the Italian government has decided to wield a drastic axe against bureaucracy. The cabinet has passed a resolution that under the new powers invested in it by parliament it has the right to dismiss, without appeal, any official holding even the highest office in the state administration.

It was also resolved, the despatch add, to dismiss all employes of the state who attain the age of 65 years or who have been forty years in the service, the only exceptions being members of the army, navy and police.

It was decided by the cabinet to retain only four naval commands, namely those at Naples, Taranto, Venice and Spezia.

The year's record for extension of credit represents loans more than double the amount placed in any one year since the creation of the system.

The expanded operations culminated in the declaration of dividends by six of the more prosperous farm loans banks aggregating more than $1,000,000, Mr Lobdell declared. The other land banks paid their regular dividends of eight per cent, he declared.

INTERNATIONAL MOVEMENT OF GOLD IS SHIFTING

Washington, Jan. 1.—Possibility of a shift in the international movement of gold resulting some time this year in the gold exports from United States exceeding imports, is being discussed here on the basis of statistics on gold transfers for the eleven months ending November 30 last. These figures, made public today, show that gold imports by the United States for the eleven months aggregated only $245,000,000, a decrease of $411,000,000 or 62 per cent. from the figures for the corresponding period of 1921.

While the imports were decreasing at a rate unprecedented since America's entry into the war, exports were going up at the rate of 57 per cent. The exports, so long negligible, were only $34,000,00o for the eleven months, against $22,000,000 for the same period in 1921, but home officials declare the trend is unmistakable and, if continued, warrant the assumption that the country before many months will be sending out more gold than it receives.

The gold receipts are said to have been the smallest in five years and indicate to some officials enormous forward strides in industry and commerce in some foreign countries rather than a depressed or decreased out-going business or trade for the United States. Conditions, however, are regarded as pointing to a continuation of the export flow even in the face of payments on account of the allied debts.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 1.—Reports that local agents of the department of justice are co-operating with the Louisiana authorities for the return to that state of Dr. B. M. McKoin, arrested here last Tuesday for the murder of two men in Louisiana were current here today. Special Deputy L. A. Calhoun of Morehouse parish and Chief Detective James P. MOREHOUSE PARISH WITNESS IS MISSING

Bastrop, La.,—(By the A. P.)—After a day of exhaustive investigation, Sheriff Carpenter of Morehouse tonight announced he believed that Harold Teegerstrom, 19 year old time-keeper at a carbon plant at Spyker, La., who was kidnapped Friday night, was alive and had fled from this section through fear.

From reports of the incident related to Teegerstrom by the unidentified man appeared at the plant's "bunkhouse" called the youth to the door, seized and placed him in one of the automobiles waiting outside, and drove off into the woods. Whether the men were masked was not been learned.

What occurred in the woods has not been disclosed but Teegerstrom escaped and reached the home of Henry Jones yesterday where he asked for food was given $40 with which to depart for an unannounced destination.

Teegerstrom was to have testified in the open hearing and trials in connection with the Morehouse kidnapping and murders. T. J. Burnett, former deputy sheriff, in jail here on a murder charge declared he could prove an alibi for August 24 24, the night of the outrage, by the young time-keeper and records of the southern carbon plant where both were employed. Burnett as a foreman.

Although there had been reports the records were destroyed officials of the plant announced today the records were intact.

MAY REORGANIZE STATE HIGHWAYS DEPARTMENT

Hartford, Jan. 1.—An intimation of a proposal to reorganize the state highway department during the session of the legislature which convenes Thursday was given today by Governor-elect Charles A. Templeton in answer to an inquiry to reappointment of Highway Commissioner Charles J. McCurdy.

The governor is trying to work out some plan by which the work of the state highway department can be carried on still making use of Mr. Bennett's experience in the work.

The state highway department has expanded greatly since Commissioner Bennett took hold nearly 10 years ago, and it now spends nearly $8,000,000 a year. Details of the plan now under consideration have not been given out but it is understood that it is based on the conviction that the responsibility for the expenditure of such large sums of public funds should be put solely upon a new commissioner, but should be carried by more than one including presumably Mr. Bennett.

Prohibition Agents Active in New York

New Year's Day Was Dry on the Great White Way—Only 130 Prohibition Arrests Were Made.

New York, Jan. 1.—New Yorkers who danced and drank away the old year, today paid the divers terms dictated by the fiddler.

It was a "cold gray dawn" for everybody, what with a downpour of rain and a whistling wind. And there were not a few persons despite the laws and all that who awakened with aching heads and tastes in their mouths like green persimmons.

Others greeted the day with sour faces and creaky joints caused by hours spent on the none too comfortable bunks of jails. These had been too reckless in the display of filled pocket flasks.

Even though there were drinkers in the dazzling establishments along the Great White Way who weren't caught, prohibition enforcement agents killed all the joy that might have been. It was only in the tucked away places of the city that revellers desiring to quaff of cheering cups followed their bent without molestation.

For in all of the better known and even the smaller places of the Broadway district lynx-eyed prohibition enforcement agents and policemen watched for the tilting of flasks and bottles. In some 1,000 resorts the enforcement agents worked.

There were only 130 prohibition law arrests in all—70 by federal agents and 59 by the police. About 200 gallons of liquor was taken from 41 establishments.

E. C. Yellowley, federal director of prohibition enforcement for New York state, declared that the result of his staff's work was "more than satisfactory."

His warning to owners of resorts that they would be closed by injunction proceedings should they be caught dispensing liquor, resulted in closing of more than a dozen large places at 9 o'clock last night, he added.

DISTURBANCE AT RAID OF HOTEL CHASE, ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Jan. 1.—The raid on the exclusive Hotel Chase here by federal prohibition agents and police, which resulted in a disturbance participated in by many of the 3,600 revelers of the New Years there early today, was conducted illegally and unconstitutionally, Chase Ulman, owner of the hotel, declares in a statement tonight.

Ulman said that the warrant used by Gus O. Nations, chief enforcement officer, which charged Ulman with possession and sale of intoxicating liquors, failed of service when it was not served on him, but thrust into the vest pocket of his assistant manager.

Ulman said he was undecided as to what action he would take.

The raid culminated in the dining room amidst a shower of missiles after a shot had been fired by an unidentified person, wounding two men and a woman.

The police report states that during the disturbance there were cries of "Here comes Nations; lynch him!" and at that the crowd surged around the raiders and forced them out into the lobby, where they were met by reinforcements of police who had been attracted to the scene. Riot calls brought officers, so at the end there were approximately 200 police around the hotel entrance.

Mr. Nations declared tonight that 250 men, guests at the hotel, were intoxicated, and their attack on his men was the cause of his ordering the men to withdraw.

400 DEFENSE WITNESSES IN HERRIN MURDER CASE

Marion, Ills., (By the A. P.)—With nearly 400 defense witnesses waiting to be called, attorneys for the five defendants charged with murder in connection with the Herrin riots of June 22 spent New Year's preparing for the resumption of the trial tomorrow.

When court adjourned December 23 prosecution had rested its case after introducing 39 witnesses and eleven defense witnsses ha dtestified.

The eleven farmers and one union miner composing the jury spent the Christmas holidays in a dormitory on the top floor of the jail where four of the defendants were confined. The fifth Lova Mann, was allowed his liberty, because of illness in his family.

Indictments against 72 individuals were returned by the grand jury which investigated the riots at the Lester "strip" mine. Fifty-eight indictments charged murder and the other offenses ranging from assault to conspiracy. The five present defendants were selected by agreement, the number being limited because of a provision of the Illinois law which gives ten peremptory challenges to every defendant and an equal number to the state in murder cases.

Separate verdicts will be returned for each defendant and the jury also will fix any penalty, ranging from one year in the penitentiary to death in each case.

SEEKING AMENDMENT OF IMMIGRATION QUOTA LAW

Manufacturers Would Let Down Bars for Particular Classes of Workmen Needed by the Nation's Industries—Proposed Amendment Would Provide for Examination of Immigrants Before They Embark for America.

New York, Jan. 1.—Immediate amendment of the immigration quota law so as to authorize the secretary of labor to let down the bars for particular classes of workmen needed by the nation's industries, is urged by the National Association of Manufacturers in a program of legislation which that body will seek to bring into being during 1923.

The report, made public today by John E. Edgerton, association president, presents conclusions which Mr. Edgerton says have been reached after two years of intensive study of the immigration problem. An amendment proposed to cure the labor shortage provides that quotas allowed the various nationalities should be fixed in terms of "net" immigration. Under the present law, says the report, there may be an actual loss in the total of aliens from a given country, because more may leave the country than are permitted to enter.

Another amendment sought would provide for examination of immigrants before they embark for America. Immigration of the higher type of alien is retarded, the report declares, because the more intelligent classes refuse to start for America with no assurance that they will be found physically fit when they arrive.

Besides these immediately sought amendments, the association announces it will work for a permanent immigration policy the chief point of which is to transfer of control of immigration from the department of labor to board up of the labor agriculture and commerce secretaries.

Assertion by the United States of its right to register, distribute, educate and otherwise supervise the alien during his alienage, also is a feature of the program.

HUGHES' NEW HAVEN SPEECH MEETS APPROVAL IN BERLIN

Berlin, Jan. 1.—(By the A. P.)—The speech of Charles E. Hughes, the American secretary of state, delivered in New Haven last week, as reported in London newspapers arriving here today, brought forth pronouncements of approval in official quarters. The plain-spoken approbation of the reparations problem by Mr. Hughes was generally endorsed, and a responsive chord seems to have been struck in official circles by the suggesting of an impartial appraising board to determine Germany's capacity to pay reparations.

In the course of a wholly informal talk in connection with the Paris conference, an official of the chancellery declared today that the proposals Chancellor Cuno will submit to the premiers have been prepared with great detail, and that the data he purposes to present informally constituted primarily, the basis for discussion which belong in the realm of economics, rather than of politics, especially as their acceptance and subsequent execution involve a radical readjustment of German economics and finances. The official declared that Germany would welcome an invitation to have a representative present at the pourparlers of the premiers.

Chancellor Cuno's proposals are reported to be of a nature calling for the judgment of economic experts. To this extent the German industrial and financial leaders coincide in the opinion of Secretary Hughes that the reparations problem might safely be entrusted to a jury of experts for settlement on its merits.

The government's proposals will not be made public in Berlin until they are formally submitted to the Paris conference. It is believed, however, that Germany will name a fixed sum for reparations problems in the neighborhood of thirty-five billion marks, from which amount will be deducted gold payments and payments in kind already made.

FOSTER SPEAKS IN DENVER UNDER POLICE PROTECTION

Denver, Col., Jan. 1 (By the A. P.)—William Z. Foster, nationally known labor organizer, and leader of the nation-wide steel strike two years ago, in an address here last night declared: "I am a radical. If I said what I think, I would be arrested on the spot."

Foster delivered his address before a large audience in a down-town building surrounded by police to guard against possible violence which attended his attempt to address his gatherings here several months ago, when he was forcibly ejected from the state by state rangers at the command of Adjutant General Pat J. Hamrock.

Referring to that incident, Foster said:

"An attorney told me that no less than 25 laws were broken by the Rangers of Colorado when they kidnapped me and took me to Cheyenne when I was scheduled to speak here several months ago.

"There is no law for me or for the working man—but—if I were the president of the chamber of commerce, how different it would be."

Foster advocated establishment of a workers' party by the greater organizations of workers in the United States, so that, he declared, they might "follow the example of the workers in Germany, Russia, Italy and other European countries."

He urged his hearers to fight "to the bitter end," for their "rights." The Herrin, Ill., union coal miners were praised by the speaker "for their brave work in defending themselves" in the mine disorders at that city recently, which resulted in the death of more than a score of men.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF CATHERINE STOEBE

New York, Jan. 1.—An autopsy surgeon's verdict that eight-year-old Catherine Stoebe was killed by a bullet from a 38-calibre pistol as she celebrated New Year's eve in her Brooklyn home last midnight, today resulted in the dropping of homicide charges against three men and the retention of a similar charge against a fourth.

All four men, living in houses from which Catherine might have been shot, admitted they had "shot the New Year in" with weapons of varying bore. They waited intense expectancy for the autopsy to show which of them was to be tried for her slaying.

The lot fell to Michael Gainbaizo, the sole known wielder of a 38 weapon. The other three are to be held for violation of the firearms law.

THE FASCISTI OATH WAS ADMINISTERED IN ROME

Rome, Jan. 1.—The fascisti of Rome took the fascisti oath to Premier Mussolini this afternoon. They were paraded through the Corso Umberto to the Chigi palace, where the premier witnessed the administering of the oath from a balcony. Mussolini then reviewed the men in the Piazza Colonna and delivered a speech in which he pointed out the need for the work and discipline in order that Italy might be restored to her former greatness.

The men later marched past the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier to the Quirinal, where they gave cheers for the king and queen. Their majesties appeared on a balcony and heard their thanks for the [illegible]

RAILWAY MAN CRITICISES SENATOR-ELECT SHIPSTEAD

Chicago, Jan. 1.—Samuel M. Felton president of the Chicago, Great Western railway and chairman of the western railway presidents' committee on public relations, today sent an open letter to Senator-elect Henrik Shipstead, of Minnesota, criticising him for alleged misrepresentation of railway matters in a speech before the City club of Washington on December 5. Mr. Felton declared railway unions who supported Shipstead in his campaign, seek adoption of the Plumb plan of government ownership and employ management of the railways but that the public will determine the future of the roads.

The letter in taking up several reported statements by Mr. Shipstead, said:

"Another statement made by you was as follows:

"A railroad train operated by five men can now carry ten times as much as could be carried twenty years ago, yet in spite of the great labor cost reduction per ton mile it costs the farmer more to ship and labor does not get enough to keep it from striking."

Mr. Felton said that the average train now hauls only twice as much as twenty years ago. Instead of a labor cost reduction, he continued, there had been an increase from 4.35 mills per ton mile in 1901 to 9.02 mills per ton mile in 1921, while freight rates have advanced 94 per cent. in twenty years.

This great increase in the labor cost of operating the railroads, he said, of course, he said, "to advances in wages and has been the principal causes of advances in freight rates of which many farmers complain."

SILVER ANNIVERSARY OF UNBAPTISED NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 1.—In the excitement of welcoming another year, New York today almost overlooked a red-letter event on its calendar—the silver anniversary of the welding of the five boroughs into a greater city.

Public cognizance of the date was not taken, and only a few city officials, particularly those of an older generation made the day occasion for quiet observance of its significance.

Twenty-five years ago, on January 1, 1898, the quintet of municipalities became one. New York, consisting principally of Manhattan, then was the third city of the world, outranked by London and Paris in population.

INCREASE OF SHIPPING IN THE PORT OF BOSTON

Boston, Jan. 1.—A marked increase in ship arrivals from foreign countries is shown in a review of the commerce of the port of Boston for the year 1922 made public today. The increase was due largely to the movement of coal from Great Britain, and to a heavy increase in the importation of wood pulp.

The total number of foreign arrivals in 1922 was 1679, as compared with 1215 in 1921. Of this number there were 1,427 steamers, 251 schooners and one tug. In 1921 the arrivals included 951 steamers and 264 schooners.

A decrease in coastwise arrivals during 1922 as compared with 1921 is traceable to the coal strike, which resulted in the withdrawal of many of the vessels engaged in transporting fuel.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1059

The Weatherman got slightly mixed up in his rounds New Year's and surprised Willimantic folks by sending them a shipment of real April showers which lasted well throughout the day and accomplished much in removing the ice and snow from the streets and sidewalks. With the making ice and the downpour of rain the gutters soon became flooded into rivulets and pedestrians found they had to use a great deal of deliberation in choosing a watery and slippery path across the streets. Lower Main street looked like a miniature flood wiah as much as one-half an inch of water flowing down the sidewalks, and almost as much on the road.

Travel was so poor that very few people ventured forth during the day, and New Year's was an exceedingly quiet one. A number took advantage of the various entertainments to break the monotony of the day. The several masses at St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches were largely attended, as were also the various services conducted at the Protestant churches.

Women in surrounding towns and on the main roads of approach to Willimantic are being attracted by the program for the school of citizenship to be held Jan. 10 by the Connecticut League of Women Voters and the Willimantic State Normal school.

The following is the program for the day: 10 a. m., Western Women at Work, Mrs. Lewis Rose of Hartford, who has just returned from a western speaking tour; 10.30 a. m., New Legislation in the General Assembly, Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, president of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, and Miss Marjory Cheney legislative chairman; 11.30, The American Party System, Prof. Henry W. Lawrence, Jr., of Connecticut college, New London.

At 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon the program will be resumed by an address on The Contribution of Women to Civic Life, George H. Shafer, principal of the state normal school; 2 p. m., a dramatic presentation will be rendered of the making of the United States constitution. The presentation is under the direction of Miss Katherine Bigley, teacher of history at the normal school, and by 31 members of the senior class.

The evening program is for men as well as for women. At 8 p. m. State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett will speak on Public Schools and Taxing Power; at 9 p. m., Howard Bradstreet, Americanization director for Hartford will speak on The Connecticut Tradition of Citizenship. Both of these men are well known speakers who have been heard before in this city.

The committees in charge of the arrangements for the school are: Hospitality, Mrs. Carl R. Alford chairman, Miss Jarrett D. Geroud, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, Mrs. James B. Fullerton; luncheon committee, Mrs George H. Shafer, chairman; arrangements, Mrs. John A. Reilly, chairman.

The St. Mary's choir boys held their annual New Year's festival Monday afternoon and the affair was a success. The celebration commenced in St. Mary's hall at 2 o'clock, when the boys had their parents and their little friends from St. Mary's school as guests. A fine entertainment was rendered for the guests and each child present received candy and oranges.

The choir boys then proceeded to St. Joseph's parish hall where his annual festival was begun and at which a number of games were played and Hartford entertainers were on hand for the amusement of the members. Supper was served at 6 o'clock and the menu included chicken sandwiches, fruit salad, fancy cookies, apples oranges candy and coffee. Useful gifts were given to each one present.

In winding up the festivities the organization's orchestra and singers rendered several selections, after which the boys felt in line to make their way to the Gem theatre where a block of seats was reserved for them. The hall had been handsomely decorated for the occasion with pine trees, Christmas wreaths and the national and French colors.

WOULD REGULATE RADIO IN INTERESTS OF EDUCATION

New York, Jan. 1—Foreseeing millions of listeners, the bulk of them of college age, the National Radio Chamber of Commerce is developing a plan to establish radio extension courses in American colleges and universities. In radio education has found a new and powerful ally, said an announcement issued yesterday at the chamber's headquarters in this city.

England and Germany are planning to broadcast university extension courses. "Several prominent institutions of learning in the United States have made a beginning in this direction," the announcement continues, "and their reports of the encouraging success attending their efforts show us that the possibilities of the new method are not underestimated.

"Sixty other educational institutions are broadcasting educational and musical programmes, forty-seven of them being colleges and universities. The combined area nominally covered by these institutions has been seven or eight times the total area of the United States."

The National Radio Chamber of Commerce, which has set out to end confusion in the radio industry by bringing into harmony all of its instrumentalities, is devising a scheme of practical assistance to educational institutions.

"The importance of radio broadcasting as a means of reaching a large number of listeners in the United States, otherwise inaccessible, is brought forcibly home to us every day," its announcement declares. "There are in between a million and a half radio receivers, representing between three and four million radio listeners located within comfortable range of the speaker's voice of one of 600 broadcasting stations, that is stations equipped to send out telephonic communications. These listeners are for the most part youthful—of school and college age. Their number is rapidly increasing and will undoubtedly, within a very few years, total many millions.

"The National Radio Chamber of Commerce approaches the tremendous potentialities of this new channel of communication in the field of education and desires in some practical way to support the colleges and universities in extending their influence through radio extension courses to these listeners, a large proportion of whom would not otherwise be reached.

"England and Germany have quickly grasped the significance of radio telephony as a means of educational contact, and preparations are being made in those countries to broadcast university extension courses.

"Extension lectures may be broadcast from the college universities without in any way interfering with the local audience within the school. It is not even necessary that the schools have its own broadcasting station; a powerful central station nearby connected therewith by the microphone in the lecture room may be used. In some instances the lectures are being followed up by questionnaires and suggested reading, which are mailed to the listeners upon request, and by examination sheets following at the end of the course.

"Pioneers are already active in this field, and the situation seems to indicate both individual and concerted action. There are, however, a great many intricate problems connected with the subject of broadcasting, which the National Radio Chamber of Commerce hopes to be solved within a comparatively short time. These problems have an intimate conection with the success of any considerable programme of educational extension by radio."

Kenneth P. Gregg, one of the engineers and managers of the National Chamber, said the chamber was collecting a large amount of data to place at the disposal of educational institutions. The aim of the chamber, it was stated, "is to see that radio broadcasting assumes, in the course of its evolution, a sound economic position of greatest possible usefulness."

MRS. KNOX ARRESTED FOR MURDER OF HER HUSBAND

Beaumont, Texas, Jan 1.—Mrs. Lillian Knox, charged with the murder of her husband, Hiram Knox, wealthy lumberman, on the night of November 26, will be given a preliminary hearing Wednesday at Memphill. She was arrested today on her return to Memphill from Beaumont, where she had spent the Christmas holidays. Knox was found dead in bed with a bullet wound in his head.

Mrs. Knox did not protest her arrest. "There will be other arrests," said District Attorney F. R. Adams tonight, adding that they would be deferred until after the preliminary hearing.

Mr. Knox was reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in the lumber business, having inherited an estate worth nearly $10,000,000. The Knoxes were known for their liberality.

Mrs. Knox built the Bronson and Memphill railroad to gratify the wishes of her neighbors. Many times she imported theatrical troupes to entertain employes.

In the operation of the railroad and the Knox sawmill she was the dominant figure. She paid off the men and performed the duties of a general manager. In addition she looked after a retail lumber yard at Mission, Texas.

First appearances were, police said, that Knox, who was found in bed with a bullet wound through his head on the morning of November 3, had committed suicide. However, ten days later Judge Pratt, acting as coroner, returned a verdict of murder, but blamed no one.

NEW HAVEN ROAD CONDUCTOR KILLED IN MANSFIELD, B. I. YARD

Providence, Jan. 1.—Charles M. House of 65 Davis street, a conductor on the Old Colony Division of the New Haven railroad, was instantly killed at Mansfield this morning when he was thrown under a train he was making up, after slipping from the platform of a baggage car.

Conductor House had been employed by the New Haven for more than 25 years, and in recent years had made the run from Mansfield to Lowell, some of the time as conductor and some of the time as baggage master. At 6.40 o'clock this morning he was getting his train ready to leave at 7 o'clock. After signalling the engineer to proceed he swung onto the step of a car, and in so doing lost his balance. He fell in the roadbed in some unwitnessed manner and was dragged beneath the truck for about 100 feet before being discovered.

When trainmen reached him Conductor House was found to be dead. He was rolled over and over on the rail and ties and was badly mutilated.

ALFRED E. SMITH INSTALLED AS GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 1.—After two years of absence from public life, Alfred E. Smith was today installed as governor of New York. The military parade was disbanded by order of the new governor on account of the inclement weather almost as soon as it had started, and the new executive, for the first time in a century, was driven from the executive mansion to the capitol without a military escort.

Within the assembly chamber 1500 spectators and the members of the state legislature and other officials awaited the arrival of the governor's party.

Just before the noon hour the sergeant-at-arms formally notified Secretary of State James A. Hamilton of the arrival of Governors Smith and Miller. Instantly the chamber rang with cheers, which subsided, only to be renewed again as the two governors, followed by their military staffs, moved slowly down the center aisle to the platform.

In delivering the invocation, Bishop Edmund F. Gibbons, of the Catholic diocese of Albany, asked Divine assistance for "thy servant Alfred."

Governor Miller was greeted with applause when he arose to deliver the address of welcome to his successor. He said "Two years ago, Governor Smith, in this chamber, you surrendered to me the reins of government. Today I have the honor, and it is my great pleasure, in obedience to the public will, to hand back to you the reins of government of this state."

When the applause that followed Governor Miller's speech had subsided, Secretary Hamilton announced: "I now have the great honor to introduce the governor of the state of New York, Alfred E. Smith."

At the sound of the new governor's name a burst of applause resounded through the chamber and continued until the band came to the rescue by playing The Star Spangled Banner which brought everyone to his feet. At the conclusion of the anthem, the oaths of office was administered by Secretary Hamilton.

Governor Smith began his inaugural address by thanking those who had welcomed him back to Albany and who arranged the inaugural program, continuing he said:

"I am mindful of the responsibilities that are placed upon me. I know exactly what it means. I have been through it.

"We have in this state, as we should have, party government under a representative democracy. The only vehicle for the public will and then giving it force and effect afterwards is party government. I expect the full co-operation of the members of my party and also the members of the other party. There is much to be done in the new year because, after all, government, like every other human agency, has its weaknesses and its frailties, and no matter to what standard you raise it you can always make it a little better. Experience and he knowledge which grows out of experience make it possible to keep advancing step by step."

Benediction by Bishop Richard H. Nelson, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Albany brought the exercises to a close.

CALLS DE VALERA'S CAMPAIGN A "RIOTOUS DESTRUCTION"

Dublin, Jan. 1—(By the A. P.)—The Freeman's Journal today publishes a cablegram from Archbishop Curley of Baltimore, deploring Eamonn de Valera's "campaign of riotous destruction," and declaring America is sympathetic to the Irish Free State. The text of the message follows:

"One hundred and ten million Americans, with the exception of a few irregulars, are delighted with Ireland's forward step in establishing a Free State. There is no doubt of American good wishes for the success of the present government.

"The success of De Valera's campaign of riotous destruction is a sad spectacle to all of us."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

For Trifling Women, the latest Rex Ingram production for Metro now at the Breed theatre, two gigantic sets have been erected—a great castle with five huge towers, measuring in diameter twenty-six feet, rearing into the air two hundred and fifty feet. The frontage of the castle measuring along its base is four hundred feet. The gardens laid out for the castle's approach are three hundred and twenty feet in depth and cover over an acre of ground. Elaborate planting, statuary of rare beauty, iridescent peacocks strutting about, costly fountains have made of this set a miracle of gorgeousness and beauty probably unrivaled in the annals of filmdom. The estimated cost of the set is $50,000.

The second set, known as the Sorcerer's Tower, is only a little less ambitious. It is a single tower, soaring one hundred and twenty feet into the air, with several turrets, a solid gloomy structure of curious shape and menacing design. It is here that the tremendous climax of the picture, "Trifling Women," is staged, with the blood-red sunset throwing the tower into black relief. The tower has an irregular circumference but at its greatest base measures fifty feet. The estimated cost is $20,000.

"Trifling Women" was written, adapted and directed by Rex Ingram. In the cast are Ramon Novarro, Barbara La Marr, Lewis Stone, Edward Connelly, Hughie Mack, Pomeroy Cannon and others. The photography is the work of John F. Seitz. Starrett Ford was production manager.

"Trifling Women" will remain at the Breed theatre today and tomorrow. The Pathe news makes up the remainder of the bill.

"WEE WILLIE" KEELER FAMOUS DIAMOND STAR DIES IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 1—The funeral of William H. (Wee Willie) Keeler, one of the greatest ball players of all time who died today of heart disease at his Brooklyn home, will be held Thursday morning with services at the church of Our Lady of Good Counsel. For three weeks his death had been expected, but Wee Willie died today playing the game of life as he had always played baseball—until the last man was out in the ninth.

The death of the batsman whose records are still unparalleled by his successors recalled tonight the changing of the status of ball players in late years. Twice Wee Willie was sold, even when on the road to fame, for $900, a sum that seems trivial today.

Keeler was discovered in 1892, while with the Plainfield, N. J., team. Herman Doescher, the noted umpire, then manager of the Binghamton team of the Eastern league, going to scout another player, forgot all about him when he saw Keeler.

"How much are you getting?" he asked Wee Willie.

"Two dollars a game," Willie answered. He jumped at the offer of $90 a month Doescher made him.

The Giants bought Keeler from Binghamton for $800. Again $900 was the selling tag on one of the historical figures of baseball, when in 1893, the Brooklyn team bought him from the Giants.

Keeler was one of the greatest batsmen of all time. He first became noted as a great hitter while playing in the outfield with the Baltimore Orioles in the nineties. Several of the records he set while with that organization, thrice a pennant winner of the old National league, remain unbroken. Others of his 19 years in the majors were spent with the New York and Brooklyn Nationals and the New York Americans. He was not a batsman of the slugging type such as Ed Delehanty and "Pop" Anson, but was a pioneer in the art of place hitting, the philosophy of which he expressed in the now famous remark: "Hit 'em where they ain't."

While with Baltimore Keeler twice led the National league in batting, in 1896, with .432, a mark second only to Hughey Duffy's .438 in baseball annals and in 1898 with .379. His greatest year was 1897 his feats that season including six hits in one game and records of 199 one-base blows and hitting safely in 44 consecutive games, both of which still stand as the major league high marks.

His total hits that year, 243, also stood as a National league record until the past season when Rogers Hornsby, great second sacker of the St. Louis Cardinals, established a new standard with 250. The nearest approach to his consecutive hitting was made last season by George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns, who reached 41 before going hitless.

Hung Up Several Marks

Over a stretch of eight seasons from 1894 to 1901 Keeler hung up several unique marks, scoring 100 runs and rapping out more than 200 hits in each of these seasons. By batting 211 safeties last season Ty Cobb equalled Keeler's mark. National league records show Keeler's lifetime batting mark for 19 seasons to be .306, but for 14 seasons, from 1893 to 1906 inclusive, when he was at his best his average was close to .350.

Keeler was born in Brooklyn March 3, 1872. He played his first major league game September 30, 1892, with the Giants, who obtained him from Binghamton, N. Y. The following year he played with the Giants and Brooklyn. From 1894 to 1898 he patrolled right field with Baltimore, a team on which other stars were John McGraw, Wilbert Robinson, Hugh Jennings and Joe Kelly. He returned to Brooklyn in 1899, the Dodgers winning pennants that year and the next. He was with the New York Yankees from 1903 to 1909 and signed in 1910, with the Giants who released him the same year to Toronto. That year marked the end of his major league career.

Ill health, coupled with financial misfortune some years later, brought Keeler's circumstances to low ebb, and in 1921 he was aided by a joint gift of $5,500 from the National and American leagues.

COBB'S ADVISE TO HALE PROVES SOUND

When Tyrus Cobb became manager of the Detroit team in the spring of 1921 there reported to him in San Antonio, Tex., training camp, Sammy Hale, an infielder.

Cobb liked Hale because he could hit but Hale's fielding was the first big worry of the new manager. Hale's hands were anything but sure. He played ground-hit balls badly and he fumbled more frequently than not.

Finally Cobb decided that Hale was unable to field because the glove he wore was too small. He tried to induce Hale to adopt a big, loose-fitting fielder's glove, but Hale stuck to his little brown one, claiming that it felt more comfortable.

Hale did not change gloves, his fielding failed to improve and Detroit released him soon after the start of the season.

Detroit still had a claim on Hale, but when a chance came to get Herman Pillette and Sylvester Johnson from the Portland club last winter for $40,000 cash and five players, Hale became one of the five that Portland got and it is this same player whom Connie Mack has bought for his Athletics at a fancy figure.

Since going to the coach he has developed into a good fielder and continues to slug the ball.

It might also be added that after leaving Detroit, Hale became a convert to the large loose-fitting mitt.

CONTI TO MEET SCHAEFER IN CHALLENGE MATCH

Chicago, Jan. 2—(By the A. P.)—Roger Conti, the 21 year old billiard champion of France, will enter the challenge match against Young Jake Schaefer here January 8, 9 and 10, confident of conquering the Chicagoan, and thus earn the right to challenge Willie Hoppe, the recrowned champion for the 18.2 balkline championship.

The match will be staged at Orchestra hall and will be on the usual terms of 1,500 points—500 points being disposed of each night.

The contest promises to be one of the most interesting ever played in Chicago and despite the great reputation of Young Schaefer, there are many experts who believe the boy from France will this time take his measure.

This opinion is shared especially by those who witnessed Conti's play in the international tournament at New York, and who were greatly surprised at the improvement in his playing compared with that shown in the 1921 tournament at Chicago.

That Conti is a real match for Schaefer has been proven recently on more than one occasion. Born in France on May 1, 1901, Conti is the youngest of the players who took part in the recent international and for a youngster he has a remarkable record. In France, before coming of age, he defeated Douruet, one of the ten best balk liners in France.

In the 1921 tournament in Chicago Conti finished fourth, just behind Cochran. In the last international Conti finished third, ahead of Cochran, and improved his average over that made in the 1921 tournament by figures of 41 8-12 compared to 28 37-61. That shows how fast Conti is coming and how he appears to be a formidable candidate for the championship. His admirers point out that Conti gave Schaefer his first defeat in the 1921 tournament, when he beat him in the fifth game, 400 to 302.

WESTERN CLUBS REAP HARVEST ON PLAYERS

San Francisco, Jan. 1—Never in the history of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, have the teams of that organization reaped such big financial profits from the sales of players as was the case during the year just closing. To date, six clubs of the league between them have aggregated nearly $325,000 from the sale of players and if some deals now pending go through this total will be increased to an amount well over half a million dollars.

Those Sold Thus Far

The players already sold and the amounts received for them are as follows:

Kamm, San Francisco to White Sox, $100,000; O'Connell, San Francisco to Giants, $75,000; Hale, Portland to White Sox, $75,000; Mack, Seattle to White Sox, $60,000; Thurston, St. Louis to Browns, $15,000; Walberg, Portland to Giants, $10,000; Kunz, Sacramento to Pirates, $7,500; Adams, Seattle to Texas, $5,000. Total $337,500.

Besides these players, Heine Sand of Salt Lake, has been sold to the Philadelphia Nationals by manager Duffy Lewis, but what the price is for Sand has not yet been disclosed, but it is expected to be around $25,000, as well as the addition of four players.

Vernon Has Deal Pending

The Vernon team has a deal pending for the sale of Jakie May and rumor has it that $100,000 is the price asked for May, the leading pitcher of the Coast League during the past season. Another player for sale, provided Cal Ewing of Oakland can get his price, is Arlett, a pitcher, but the Oakland magnate has already refused some offers of $50,000 and refuses to sell at less than $75,000.

In the sales already made San Francisco, Salt Lake, Portland, Seattle, Sacramento and Vernon have all profited and in every case besides the cash transaction these clubs also profit through the addition of players from the clubs the men have been sold to.

O'Connell Starts Coin

The small fortunes for minor league players got their start from the sale of O'Connell for $75,000 when the San Francisco owners sold him to the New York Giants last winter for 1923 delivery. This was closely followed by the sale of Kamm to Chicago for $100,000, and since then all the magnates have not been backward in asking fancy prices for their star players.

CALIFORNIANS OUTPLAY NITTANY LIONS IN EAST-WEST GRID CLASSIC

Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1—The University of Southern California football team defeated the Penn State college eleven today 14 to 3 in the tournament of roses east vs. west annual gridiron contest. The Southern Californians outplayed the Nittany Lions in every department except the first period when Mike Palm, quarterback, scored a field goal from the 19-yard line. The Lions held the Trojans in the first period but during the remainder of the contest the Trojans gained consistently.

KIPKE PICKED BECAUSE OF PUNTING ABILITY

Kipke is versatile. He can do everything a back should do. However, much of his reputation is founded on his punting ability, and that will be strange news to those who saw Kipke try to punt last year. Not alone was Kipke below the average, but he was a poor kicker.

Up to Kipke

Steketee was Michigan's punter last year, but Steketee was to graduate and Yost was looking about for a punter. None seemed to lurk in the offing, so he decided to make a punter out of Kipke, who had been averaging about 25 yards to his punts.

Yost gave Kipke a football and told him to start practice. Kipke started. And he continued. Every chance he got during the winter, spring and summer, Kipke kicked. He kicked for distance and direction. He realized the advantage of kicking out of bounds and set about to train himself to kick that way.

Kipke outkicked the opposing punters in all of Michigan's games this year. Few of his punts were returned, for most of them were out of bounds and those that did not go out came so close to the sidelines, that Kipke's end had little trouble nailing the receiver or forcing him out.

Kipke went to the head of the field this year and one of the chief reasons was that he did the sort of practice that not one player in a hundred would care to do, for the monotony would make it a torture to work as Kipke did.

BIG LEAGUE TEAMS FAVOR LARGE SCOUTING STAFF

There is a strong tendency in the major leagues toward big coaching and scouting staffs. Bill Killefer announces that he will have Hobby Wallace, Kitty Bransfield and Jack Doyle combing the bushes for new material. Great players they were, every one of them, and they ought to know a comer when they see one. Frank Chance will have Hughey Duffy, Jimmy Burke, Orvie Overall and Jimmy Archer. While Archer is carried on the voluntarily retired list of the Brooklyn club it is not expected that Robbie will prevent his signing with the Red Sox.

BASKETBALL SHARPS PICK ARMY TEAM AS BEST

The best collegiate combination in the east. This is the verdict of the basketball sharps who have had an early view of the great machine assembled at West Point by Harry Fisher, old Columbia star.

Barring a sudden collapse of the superb defensive built up by Fisher or some other unforeseen happening, we venture a prediction that very few teams invading the military reservation on the Hudson will have occasion to do much celebrating.

The Cadets have only played four games thus far, but they established marked superiority in every instance. We can't say the future generals won all three games by safe pluralities.

"Y" BASKETBALL GETS GOING ON WEDNESDAY

The Senior Y basketball team will open its home season at the local Y. M. C. A. gym on Wednesday evening when they meet the fast traveling Baltic Wanderers. The Wanderers handed out a defeat to the Y team when the local boys played at Baltic and the Seniors are out for revenge. This game will be only one of many that are scheduled for the coming season. The Y team will be picked from the following chalked court performers: Grebe, Rosch, A. Charnetski, Finlayson, Harris, L. Charnetski and DeCelles.

MAY ERECT MONUMENT TO FAMOUS RUBE WADDELL

While the Giants are down in San Antonio next March it is likely that they will play an exhibition game with the home club of the Texas league, or some other outfit to provide a monument over the grave of Rube Waddell. It was in San Antonio that the eccentric left-handed succumbed to tuberculosis in April, 1914. He lies in the Mission Burial Park, the grave marked only by a wooden headboard from which the name of the once famous pitcher almost has been obliterated.

Harry Benson, owner of the San Antonio club, has started a movement to build a monument over Waddell's resting place and the Giants no doubt will be asked to help. Waddell was one of the greatest and one of the most picturesque pitchers in the history of baseball.

PITTSBURGH GRADS CHOOSE ALL-TIME PITT TEAM

Jack Sack, the stellar guard of the Pittsburgh eleven, is the only present day player chosen for an all-Pitt team recently selected by graduates of that university. On the second team is Tommy Holleran, this year's quarterback, and Tom Davies, 1921 star, is halfback on the first aggregation. One of the surprises in the selection is the naming of Bowser, present centre, ahead of Stein last year's great pivot man, for the second eleven.

Following is the all-Pitt selection: end, Wagner, 1913; tackle, Thornhill, 1914-15-16; guard, Sutherland, 1914-15-16-17; centre, Peck, 1918-14-15-16; guard, Sack, 1920-21-22; tackle, Harman, 1918-19-20-21; end, Herron, 1913-14-15-16; quarter, Williamson, 1913-14-15; halfback, Hastings 1914-15-16-19; halfback, Davies, 1918-19-20-21; fullback, McLaren, 1915-16-17-18.

SECRETARY HOOVER'S FORECAST.

Concerning this end of Connecticut the survey of industry and business by The Bulletin gave tangible evidence of greatly improved conditions. That this improvement is general and that it can be expected to continue is indicated by the forecast that has been made by Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce.

Secretary Hoover bases his opinion upon facts that have been gathered by representatives of his department, and which deal with conditions in other countries as well as this. There is discernible that much desirable shaking off of the slump that was directly attributed to the war. That he must and does figure the conditions of Europe in connection with the question of prosperity in this country is shown in his statement, where he devotes much attention to the convalescence that is shown. However much he may be regarded as an optimist it is to be realized that he speaks from the facts that exist. It is to be expected that his department will be in close touch with the conditions in other countries, and it is upon what might be called the inside information that he is able to diagnose the situation as he does. It is plain that he isn't saying what he does about the world's economic progress just because he is desirous of such conditions, but because they exist. Everything isn't as rosy as might be desired. There are points where difficulties prevail and others where there is delay in applying the remedies that are needed. It is impossible to tell what will happen with a certainty. Judgment must be based on what has been accomplished and the tendency as revealed, but it is gratifying to know that the new year holds out so much of promise both for this and other countries. It permits of a basis for greater certainty not only for the continuance of the prosperity that has already been experienced but for an increase in the same as the year rolls along. There will be recognition of the fact that Mr. Hoover is in a position to know whereof he speaks.

DRIVERS WHO CANNOT READ.

The idea of giving a man the right to drive a locomotive without knowing whether he could distinguish the signals he would be sure to encounter and to interpret their meaning properly would not only be ridiculous but criminal. It would be inviting just such deplorable accidents as every railroad and every community is anxious to have prevented. And yet the practice that is adhered to concerning the trains that run on rails at certain fixed rights of way is not applied to the drivers of automobiles, which may be driven as fast as locomotives, which fly about corners, pass each other on the highways going in the same direction and worm in and out of traffic and crossings with no greater respect in some instances than is actually forced by prevailing conditions.

This state of affairs is particularly accentuated in large centers where it is being discovered many of the drivers are unable to read the warning and guidance signs that have been erected in the interest of increased safety. The idea of paying no attention to the signs because they cannot be interpreted may be natural for such drivers, but it indicates a laxity in regard to the issuance of licenses to drive automobiles that is serious and calls for the necessary legislative action that will correct it.

Signs and signals for the guidance of careful drivers are desirable. They are much more important when it concerns those who are not disposed to be any more careful than they are actually forced to be, and when the situation is disclosed that drivers cannot read the many warnings it is high time that they should be required to get at least that much education.

However much negligence may have been displayed in this regard in the past in some states, the large number of cars and the many automobile accidents mean that the situation must get greater attention in the future. As long as it exists it makes a joke out of regulations. Those who cannot read should not be permitted to drive automobiles.

REFITTING BATTLESHIPS.

As long as we are to maintain a navy, and that promises to be for a long time to come, it is incumbent upon the government to see that the warships compare with those of other leading navies and that such weaknesses as are disclosed are overcome.

During the clash between the British and German fleets in the North sea it was shown that the gunfire from the latter carried a longer distance because of the ability to get a greater elevation on the guns. That did not go unnoticed and since that time the British have been busy making alterations in their ships which overcome this condition.

It has also been conclusively demonstrated that increased protection is needed for the decks of warships if they are to offer the desired resistance to airplane attacks and the fire from high angle guns, while there is certain protective measures that can be employed for offsetting torpedo attacks.

Ships in our navy which had hitherto been considered on a par with those of other countries, but which are lacking in these respects, might as well be scrapped if we expect them to serve as a first line of defense against vessels which are recognized as superior. The alternative is of course to bring them up to a par with the vessels of similar type in other nations. Such work will require considerable time and for that reason only a portion of the required sum is asked at this time for the refitting of the battleships.

As long as we must have a navy, and as long as it is important to keep our navy abreast of the others, it is economy to devote the necessary number of millions to accomplish this work rather than go to the greater expense of constructing new warships with those features and wait the time that would be required through the restrictions to secure such advantages. It is a call for action in behalf of reasonable national defense.

STATE FORESTS.

When the state forester ranked the recommendation that the existing state forests should be enlarged by purchase and that greater attention be devoted to the development of state forests for the purpose of increasing the timber production of the state it is clear that there is a duty resting upon the state in this direction to show the way to that much desired utilization of waste land and the providing of timber requirements within the state.

The idea of state forests is nothing new. It has been practiced here and in other states for many years, but the longer it continues and the greater the benefits noted the stronger must be the conviction that no mistake has been made. It is an educational undertaking, for from the methods employed and the results obtained there is bound to be given inspiration to a large number of others to go and do likewise. In this end of the state in particular is it pointed out by the forester that there are 50,000 acres that are admirably suited to the production of pine timber, and he has in mind a region in which there is very little good farm land. Running along the Rhode Island border in the sparsely settled sections of the towns of Thompson, Killingly, Sterling, Voluntown and North Stonington there is a large amount of land that could be put to a much more profitable use than it is getting.

Possibly there are many who have wondered what might be sometime done with such land. It has seemed a shame to have so much of it practically idle. The state forester after viewing it points out a way in which it can be done. It may be some time befort the state is willing to devote as much money to this work as the recommendations of the forester would call for but there are suggestions contained therein that may be well taken advantage of by individuals. That is to a large measure the purpose of the state's efforts and there is no reason why it should not be anticipated by the individuals will get results to themselves as well as the commonwealth in general.

GOOD RIDDANCE.

When President Harding commuted the sentences of eight members of the I. W. W. who were in prison under conviction of conspiracy and violating the wartime laws he tacked on a most commendable provision that if such commutation was accepted they must leave the country at once and never return.

There isn't so much satisfaction in shifting onto someone else those undesirable characters that bother law-abiding people and communities. It is too often open to the charge of failing to shoulder the responsibility in such cases. Likewise such violators are not entitled to what might be regarded as a display of leniency. But when it is recognized that the individuals involved in this commutation matter are subject to deportation at the conclusion of their sentence it is just as well that what amounts to deportation should be accomplished in this manner. It involves less trouble and expense and it disposes of their cases quite as effectively as if they were maintained in this country behind prison walls. Cutting short the time to be served, with the knowledge that they are to be excluded from the country, is likewise a good stroke of economy.

These are not the only federal prisoners that have been disposed of in this manner. Others have preceded them and others may follow. Whenever the policy is carried out it means the reduction of the undesirables and it is impossible for the country to look upon their departure as anything other than good riddance. It would be a happy solution to numerous other cases if they could be disposed of in a similar way. Unfortunately there are too many that are not subject to deportation.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, Jan. 1.—The two days during which the Borah resolution for a European conference to be held at the invitation of the United States, to discuss existing economic conditions, brought back the old-time excitement that prevailed during the league of nations debate in the senate. There were the same crowded galleries, the same outbursts of applause, quickly suppressed by the vice president, the same long line of people waiting outside the gallery doors, hoping to catch a word of the debate or get a glimpse of the debaters. The opening of the debate by Senator Lodge in opposition and the defense of the measure by Senator Borah gave to congress by far the best joint debate that has been heard there for many years. It was a genuine discussion of the question by two men able to discuss it. Both were eloquent, both put out splendid arguments from his point of view, and both kept within the limits of courtesy and legitimate discussion. Lodge, cool, calm, speaking without oratorical effort; Borah eloquent, passionate, and holding the great audience enthralled whether or not they agreed with him. Later a general debate followed, during which Senator Moses of New Hampshire made a telling speech against the resolution. No other New England senator spoke, although they were practically a unit and would have voted against the resolution had it not been withdrawn by Mr. Borah in compliance with the wishes of the president, who sincerely feels that such a conference at this moment would do infinite harm and delay bringing about an adjustment of European affairs. Senator Moses said he believed that even now Europe looks on the United States as a sort of Christmas tree which will give them whatever they want; and that for the good of Europe it should learn again to stand on its own. Senator Brandegee, who strongly opposed the resolution, asked many pertinent questions during the debate, and so brought out added arguments against it from the speakers. Senator McLean did not state his position and as no record vote was taken his attitude on the measure is not known.

It looks as if Connecticut would retain her five members of congress and her present congressional districts for some time to come, and not send a sixth man to congress till after the 1924 election. That is the substance of talk heard in the corridors of the capitol. "The reapportionment bill is dead," was the answer made by the clerk of the house census committee today in reply to the question from your correspondent. "What has become of the reapportionment bill?" The truth is the committee doesn't want to bring out the bill from its recommitment well knowing that even if it again passes the house it will die in the senate on the stroke of noon, March 4th. It cannot pass the senate at this session, for the schedule is already overcrowded, and a large number of senators do not want the matter brought up when nothing can be gained. "Let's wait till after the 1924 election," seems to be the popular cry when the topic is mentioned. Under the constitution a census must be taken once within every ten years, and a reapportionment follow within that ten years but no fixed date governs the time they shall be taken. Usually, in fact without exception until this session of congress, the reapportionment has been made to so quickly follow the census that few members of congress realize they can delay the matter till late in 1929 and still keep within the letter of the law. "What's the matter?" these folks ask. And then smile and nod their heads approvingly when told delay is not an infringement of the law. The fact is, states are not anxious to stir up the matter of congressional districts. A few men who lost out last fall feel they could have done better under other conditions, but the rank and file want to let well enough alone.

Under the last census Connecticut gained a member and will be entitled to six representatives. Just now a rumor has it that Connecticut is entirely satisfied to remain a five-man state and is not anxious to agitate a change of district lines. Ohio feels the same, although she will gain several members by the change. On the other hand, Maine and other states that lost by the last count, are trying to put off the evil day. The 1920 census showed a shifting population on account of the call for war workers in textile and munition plants, and the rural districts and farming states suffered in consequence. Whether those states that then gained can hold their gain, only the next census will tell. There is some talk of urging congress to authorize a complete census when the secretary of commerce takes the commercial census as he must do within a couple of years or so. But there is no chance of taking up the matter this winter. It would only further clog the wheels of the legislative program and give another topic on which men desiring to filibuster could talk without restraint.

They are telling a good human interest story about Senator Johnson of California. It was right in the midst of the president's perplexity how to deal with the Borah resolution that Johnson got a wire from his California constituents protesting vigorously against a certain important postmastership nomination that they had learned was about to be sent to the senate by the president. It was an appointment that did not please Mr. Johnson, and came from a democratic district where he and Senator Shortridge of California must divide the patronage, as there is no republican representation. The man named was of the Shortridge following, so it is said, and Mr. Johnson started to make an appointment with the president protesting the action. Calling up Secretary to the President Christian, Johnson fired off some hot shot adding: "I want an appointment tomorrow. I hate to bother the president at this time, but it must be done." The hour was fixed but pretty soon Johnson began to put himself in the president's place. Someone heard him muttering to himself "I'll be jiggered if I will!" "Jiggered if you'll what?" asked the friend. "Well, that office may go hanged," said Johnson. "The president shall not be asked to give it attention, or give me a minute, till those big things he is pondering over are settled and out of the way. Let Shortridge have it." And he did. For Hiram Johnson, although a most belligerent fighter, is one of the best-hearted men in congress. He had put himself in the president's shoes, and wouldn't add even a straw to the heavy load Mr. Harding was carrying by dragging into the limelight the conflicting views of the two California senators.

The president did not receive guests today (New Year's) day, owing to the continued illness of Mrs. Harding, who, although improving, is still too ill to admit of any gaiety or confusion in the White House.

For the most part the Connecticut delegation spent the holidays in Washington and did not take advantage of the short three-day recesses to go home. One exception was Congressman Tilson of New Haven, who went home to be Santa Claus for his three small children, who with Mrs. Tilson will remain at home this winter instead of coming here for the short session.

The question of an extra session still dangles in the air, with the radicals trying to force it and the conservatives holding back on the traces. The general opinion seems to be that in this tug of war the president and the conservatives on both political sides of congress will win out. The appropriation bills are trotting along at a smart pace and at this moment it looks as if the threatened filibuster on them would be overcome. The shipping bill may not meet so good a fate. If it can be brought to a vote it will pass. It is not thought here at this moment that if the appropriation bills pass, and the shipping bill is stranded, and goes to its death with the end of congress, that the president will call an extra session to consider it. With the radical element that will come in after March 4th opposed to it, the chances are that Mr. Harding will not make it the first issue to be fought out between the administration and the newly elected congress.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Many Still Reeling in Streets.

Mr. Editor: I saw in the newspapers where more deaths had occurred from the so-called moonshine whiskey. Both men and, I am sory to say, women, love their intoxicants too well to make a fight to overcome the weakpes as well as too stubborn. The only difference I can find between the old and new brand of rum is it takes the former longer to kill than the rum that is now sold—but both have a fatal termination. When the prohibition agents can make New York as dry during the Christmas holidays as the eighteenth amendment contemplated for the whole year—surely it goes to prove that the Volstead law can be enforced. When Mr. Haynes says that the future looks promising. This alone should be sufficient encouragement for us. It may take, judging from the present indications, a much longer time to cleanse and purify Norwich than even as big a city as New York, for many, mostly men, found either a bootlegger on the street or some place to buy their drinks—for many were seen reeling on the streets during the holidays wearing the same sad and dejected countenance that is usually worn by those who love it too well to overcome its thirst—too weak to take up the fight against the evil that they know must finally drag them down.

The Year's Lynching Record.

Mr. Editor: I send you the following concerning lynchings for the past year as compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, Monroe N. Work in charge. I find, not including those killed in strikes, riots, etc., that there were 57 persons lynched in 1922. This is 7 less than the number 64 for the year 1921. Thirty of the persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law; 13 from jails, and 17 from officers of the law outside of jails.

I also find that there were 58 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Fourteen of these instances were in northern states and 44 in southern states. In 54 of the cases the prisoners were removed or the guards were augmented. The other precautions taken. In the 4 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. In ten instances, convictions carrying penitentiary sentences were secured against alleged lynchers.

Of the 57 persons lynched in 1922, 51 were negroes and 6 were whites; 19 or one-third of those put to death were charged with rape or attempted rape; 6 of the victims were burned to death; 4 were put to death and then their bodies burned. The charges against those burned to death were murder, 2; rape, 4.

The offenses against the whites were: Murder, 2, fighting 1; charges not reported, 3. The offenses charged against the negroes were: Murder, 9; murderous assault, 4; rape, 14; attempted rape, 5; killing officer of the law, 3; horse stealing, 2; being intimate with woman, 3; no special charge, 2; killing man in altercation, 1; striking man in quarrel, 1; robbing and striking a woman, 1; cattle stealing, 1; using insulting language, 1; for being a strike breaker, 1! mistaken identity, 3; indecent exposure of person and frightening woman and children, 1; intimidating officer of the law, 1.

The nine states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 8; Arkansas, 5; Florida, 5; Georgia, 11; Louisiana, 3; Mississippi, 9; Oklahoma, 1; South Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 2; Texas, 13.

Very truly yours,

TEMPTATION TIME

"What time have you?" asked the important man, who was setting his watch.

"Time?" cried the man with the hideous necktie, jumping a foot and registering extreme horror. "I have no idea what time it is and furthermore I never want to know. I want to spend the rest of my tortured, harassed life like the birds and the bees. And if it could be arranged I should prefer not to notice whether it was sunrise or sunset; that was happening at any given moment. One is always too late or too early to every last thing anyhow, so why bother?"

"I gotta date," the important man assured him. "Pawned your watch?"

"It only cost two-fifty when new," kindly explained the man with the hideous necktie, "No a perfectly lovely family has moved into the flat under us and last night they asked us down to play cards and my worst suspicions were confirmed. From where I sat I could count forty-nine clocks and there were others working hard in the more secluded portions of the apartment.

"There was a Gibraltar of a grandpa clock in the hall which they had bought and another, still bigger, which they had inherited, and a wall clock almost as large. The first grandpa clock toled the hours and quarter hours in a loud, solemn, warning tone that made your flesh creep. You thought of all your sins and wished you had led a better life.

"Mrs. Liverwort said she thought that clock was just grand, and while with tears in our eyes we agreed, the second one got busy. It sounded like a fire alarm. Instinctively you curdled within and began speculating on the distance to the ground from the front windows and whether it was better to let the solid silver burn and get the insurance or not.

"Jangling in with it, the wall clock banged away deliriously. And for ten or twenty minutes all the other striking clocks in the place tagged along. There were soprano clocks and barytones, lazy clocks that struck as though each note would be their last and hasty young things that stuttered, so enthused were they over making a racket.

"We delayed the card game while Liverwort listened hard and dashed in to see what ailed the clock on the bedroom dresser, which had spoken prematurely. 'While you are up, dear' called Mrs. Liverwort, 'don't forget to adjust the clock in the kitchen and the one on the sideboard.' She explained that it was the one ambition of their lives to have all their clocks strike at the same instant.

"Almost every Sunday, it seems, Liverwort instead of attending services or taking a walk or disrupting the interior of the car, tries to get all the clocks to strike simultaneously. He has been at it all his life and hasn't succeeded yet. Of course, it is a cheaper form of exercise than golf, but then he doesn't get the open air.

"Did you ever try to count how many trumps are out when a clock is striking 9 and another is chiming a quarter? Or endeavor to remember which suit it was your partner led when the lady at your left is telling you that they bought the ormolu clock the year they went to Quebec and the one on the mantel that time they were in New Orleans? Every occasion when I started a nice finesse a clock would go ding-ding-ding and all I could say was 'Where was I?' and try to trump with a heart in a spade game.

"I counted the tickings and I counted the stripes on the wall paper and the knots in the fringes on my wife's bead bag and the exact number of Liverwort's eyelashes and by and by I began to grow delirous. When we went home I held Mrs. Liverwort's hand and said eighty-nine-ten, but we've had such a delightful eleven-twelve-and-a-half time one-two-three.' Instead of bursting into tears and being overcome with what she had brought upon me that woman said I was a regular cutup, wasn't I! My poor wife who was reeling herself, had to spend most of the night laying iced cloths on my fevered brow and ever and anon through the ceiling would come the whang and the dingle and bang of a few dozen of the Liverworts' clocks. And if there was a hiatus when we did not hear them we could not sleep because we were so nervously waiting for them to break loose.

"We are leading a terrible life and I do not know how it is going to end. I get a nervous chill if I even see a clock, so I cannot answer your question. It may be an hour after dinner time or the top of the morning so far as I am concerned."

"It doesn't matter in the least," said the important man, twirling the little wheel on his watch rapidly. "My stenographer always starts powdering and fixing up exactly at aquarter past 12, getting ready to go out to lunch, and she has just taken out her vanity case. I thank you!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana, who is waging a vigorous war against the Ku Klux Klan, is now in the third year of his four-year term as chief executive of the state. His home is in New Orleans, of which city he has long been numbered among its most progressive citizens. He was an important factor in the New Orleans Board of Trade and Cotton Exchange for many years, and for two years was president of the Southern Commercial Congress. In 1912 he became prominent in politics as a leader in the progressive party campaign of that year. Four years later, when the new party disintegrated, Mr. Parker declined to follow its chief leaders into the republican fold and renewed his allegiance with the democrats. During the late war he served, by appointment of Mr. Hoover, as Louisiana administrator of the Federal Food Control bill.

Stories That Recall Others

Better Not.

Betty, age six, was busily engaged in memorising a Christmas poem, aided by her proud relatives. One line of the poem went something like this:

"Old Santa comes speeding o'er the snow——"

After the laughter the little girl suddenly spoke up.

"But they better not arrest Santa if they know what is good for them."

The Honest Teacher.

Seven-year-old Johnny's mother had given him a handkerchief to give to his teacher as a Christmas present, but when Johnny was told about it he curled up his lips in scorn and said

"Aw, mother, I don't want to give it to her. She won't let me do nuthin. It's always Harry and William that get to do everything. Let them give her a handkerchief. I'll give it to Miss —— (last year's teacher). She's honest."

MRS. G. W. HALL SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Women to Know How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lima, Ohio.—"Indeed, your medicine is all you say it is! I had very severe troubles such as women often have, and could do no heavy work. I was sick for several years, and from reading your ads. I finally decided to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now doing my own washing, which I haven't done for several years, and can walk long distances without those dragging pains and weak feelings. The Vegetable Compound is fine, and I never forget to say a good word for it to other women when they say they need something."—Mrs. G. W. HALL, 539 Hazel Avenue, Lima, Ohio.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Hall's experience is but one of many.

CHILD TRAINING

Get the Child's Viewpoint

By Edith Lockridge Reid

One of the fundamental secrets of successful training of the child is to see things from his viewpoint. Yet too often even very conscientious mothers overlook this in their enthusiasm and joy over the baby. He is taken from his crib and handled about for admirers to examine and coo over, when he'd much prefer to be stretching his legs and arms and talking to himself about the red ball hanging from the ceiling.

They when he can toddle, mother annoys putting on lovely white or dainty clothes and little silk socks and patent leather or white kid pumps or slippers. He does look so cute and dear! But he mustn't go out in the dirt—and O mercy he must look where he's sitting or there'll be grass stains.

This attitude omits the child's desires entirely. He is happier in rompers and can be just as clean and chubby and lovely, although mother must sacrifice her vanity.

Another thing, a mother from the time her first baby is born, might just as well resign herself to a disorderly house in the sense that implies playthings about. A normal child will sit on the floor and scatter toys, and there's no use of mother being constantly on a tension for fear some fastidious neighbor will come in and note the disarray. Just think how baby is enjoying himself. That's his world, and he can't see why that shabby old elephant and banged-up, train and one-armed doll aren't the dearest sights in the world to anyone.

When you get irritable and nervous, mothers, try sitting down on the floor beside baby—on his level—and then strive to grasp his point of vision. After that, if you've looked at things squarely you'll less likely to swoop down upon the half-built house and the railroad tracks, hurling all the dear possessions into the window seat every time the doorbell rings.

Then when Johnny starts to school and comes home some day with a dirty weeping face and torn knickers, you know there's been a fray. Please don't be hasty. Stop and get his viewpoint. And when, as the story goes, you ask him which one of the boys did it, and he proudly says, "That ope with the black eye." Well if you are tactful enough, you'll temper justice with sympathy, because you recognize the primal instincts that prompted him to defend his rights with regard for the new linen suit without hand embroidery on the collar.

Any mother can make a child mind when he is small by using force and punishment that is severe enough but she who relies on her power to make a child do thus and so after the Puritan fashion "because I say so" is forfeiting the confidence and loyalty of the child when he grows beyond that system of control. The best parent combines in just the right proportion the qualities of teacher, leader and pal—but to produce the sweetest most lasting harmony, press just a trifle harder on the third pedal of this domestic symphony.

Y. M. C. A. CONDUCTS ANNUAL NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION

The annual New Year's reception of the Young Men's Christian Association was given Monday evening in the new building on Main street with an excellent musical programme conducted in the gymnasium, followed by an exhibition in the swimming pool, the first time that public has seen the pool in use.

President J. C. Macpherson made the opening address of welcome to the audience of 200, reminding his hearers that it had been the custom for twenty years to inaugurate the social activities of the association of the season by the New Year's reception. If the entertainment committee had picked out the kind of day for the reception, it could not have selected a day more symbolic than Monday beginning with the storm and gloom of the morning, followed by sunshine in the afternoon, moonlight and a general clearing up at night. This seemed to be typical of world conditions and business conditions, which had come through their periods of depression and suffering, and we could enter this year with hearts full of thanksgiving and enthusiasm. The association had come through an eventful year, laboring first under a heavy handicap, but now rejoicing in new and adequate equipment for its work. It stands at an open door to render the fullest service to the kingdom of God and all it needs for complete realization is the cooperation of such a group of persons as made up this audience. What organization is so well equipped to render valuable service as this association and the Y everywhere? In the past it had been blessed with good friends, and it had proved a blessing to thousands of young men who had experienced the uplift of its influence. It is the purpose and the expectation of its officers that it may prove a blessing to ever increasing numbers in the year to come.

The musical programme of the evening consisted of soprano solos by Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, violin solos by Miss Elizabeth Lane and cornet solos by John M. Swahn, each artist being called on for encores. Frederick W. Lester was accompanist for Mrs. Bard and Miss Olive Linton for the violin and cornet soloists. A fine programme was given by an orchestra consisting of Miss Linton, piano; Miss Lane and Theodore Sterry, violins; Joshua Heeps, flute; William Storms, trombone, Mr. Swahn, cornet and director.

After the programme in the gymnasium the audience was invited down to the swimming pool room, where a group of about fifteen boys, under direction of Physical E. J. Frits, gave an interesting demonstration of swimming and life saving.

By vote of the audience, a New Year's greeting was sent to Mrs. H. H. Osgood, the donor of the $10,000 swimming pool in memoriam for her husband.

Ice cream and crackers were served in the parlors under the direction of Mrs. Robert A. Smith and Mrs. Thomas Keen, assisted by a corps of pretty waitresses.

The general arrangements for the evening were carried out under direction of the social committee, Harry M. Clark, H. Eugene Smith and Arthur F. Wyman.

PROPOSE TO ADD 5,000 SQUARE FEET TO CENTRAL WHARF ALONG YANTIC

At the meeting of the court of common council held Monday night a resolution was offered asking whether the city of Norwich has any objection to the Central Wharf extension, so-called, proposed by the Central Wharf company, this resolution being turned over to the finance committee and Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., with power.

The proposal by the Central Wharf company is that the company construct about 5,000 additional feet of land on the west side of their present property bordering the west channel of the Yantic river and south of West Main street. It is proposed to erect a wharf out 100 feet into the west channel of the Yantic river, the wharf to be 50 feet in length, running north and south. This space is then to be filled in and the new ground built up used by the Central Wharf company in their lumber and coal business.

The new land on the west channel will run north and south to the line of the Morgan Coal company on the south. It is stated that this proposed stretch of land will in no manner injure any traffic that might pass to the extreme south end of the construction. If the petition for this project is allowed by the government engineers, it is stated that the width of the Yantic river at the north end of the new land will be 65 feet, widening as it goes down the river to a width of 79 feet at the extreme south end of the new land proposed.

The meeting was opened at 8.10 o'clock by Mayor Milo R. Waters and the minutes of the last meeting accepted. Hearings on the resolutions by the public works committees relative to the acceptance of the following streets as public highways then took place: Bentley avenue, Yerrington avenue, St. Regis avenue, Center street between Smith avenue and Mowry avenue, to be known as Burton avenue, and Russell road. A hearing was also held on the proposed new sidewalk on the west side of Park street on the properties of Norwich lodge, No. 420, B. P. O. Elks, and of Phoebe E. Lewis.

Following the hearing, a recess was taken and the court again came into session at 8.50 o'clock. A resolution was then adopted to postpone the action on the acceptance of Burton avenue, Yerrington avenue, Bentley avenue, Russell road and St. Regis avenue as city streets until the next meeting, to give opportunity to property owners to release the city from damages that may come up by making these streets public highways.

A resolution was adopted establishing the grades for sidewalks on the westerly side of Park street.

Petitions Acted Upon.

The following petitions were then acted upon: From Mary A. McGrath, to construct a sewer connecting from the sewer on Palmer street to her home on Mulberry street, referred to the public works committee; for two bug lights on the corner of Summit street and Geer avenue, referred to police committee.

Reports of the finance committee on the claims of local people were accepted and the recommendations adopted as follows: That the petition of John Sullivan be allowed to be withdrawn, and that the claim of George Greenberger for damages be disallowed.

A resolution was adopted, offered by the public works committee, to allow Mary H. McGrath to construct the sewer from Palmer street to Mulberry street, not free from future assessments.

The matter of establishing grades for sidewalks on the southerly side of North Cliff and East Cliff streets was postponed until Feb. 5, 1923.

The report of the public works committee to make Fanning avenue a public highway was accepted and a resolution to that effect adopted, the hearing to be held Feb. 5, 1923, at the council chambers.

On Eighth Street Crossing.

Mayor Milo R. Waters, Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., City Engineer Shepard B. Palmer and Street Commissioner Albert E. Cruthers, the special committee on the Eighth street crossing, reported that they had taken part in the hearing held at the council chambers on Dec. 19, 1922, and as the railroad had agreed to give protection from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily and Sunday, there was nothing more to be done at present. The report was accepted.

Lights for Skating Pond.

Councilman Crooks asked about lights at the skating pond and Alderman Gebratp reported that the matter had been taken up with the gas and electric department and a promise had been received to do the work soon. At first only gas lamps were to be placed at the pond, but the park department has offered to pay half the cost of installing electric lights, and this was agreed upon. Weather conditions have prevented the beginning of the work but it is expected that the promise of quick work by the gas and electric department will be honored and the lights installed soon. The report was accepted.

The report by the police committee of installation of lights at Seventh street and at the foot of Pratt street was accepted.

The monthly report of the street commissioner was ordered printed in the council journal, the same action being taken with the report of the city treasurer. The quarterly reports of the chief of police and fire marshal were similarly acted upon.

The matter of the proposed construction by the Central Wharf company on their property there was heard and referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel.

Two Claims Against City.

The claim of James Leary, entered shortly before his death, asking for damages resulting from a fall on Lincoln avenue, when he injured his left side and shoulder, and was rendered delirious, was referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel, the same action being taken on the claim of Nora Willett for injuries received in a fall on Main street. Both accidents were due to snow and slippery sidewalks.

City Clerk Weston C. Pullen was authorized to publish the proposed new amendment to give the board of park commissioners full authority to deal with all parks now owned or to be owned by the city, to spend money in their upkeep and to purchase equipment, also to enact rules and regulations on the use of the parks, said rules to be posted in conspicuous places in the parks, these rules subject to change by the common council on hearing of a petition by ten or more voters. Action was deferred on the amendment until the next meeting.

David Handleman was appointed a special city constable. In the case of the proposed acceptance of Russell road as a city street, at the hearing the question was taken up about making the entire road a public highway, not only the portion included in the first proposal of acceptance. It was stated that until improvements are made on the lower end of the road to correspond with those now made at the upper end, the lower end of the road would not be accepted. After the changes had been made another resolution could be made to include the entire road as a public highway.

The usual bills were read as follows: Water department, $1,746.47; gas and electric department, $57,528.09; department of cemeteries, $602.17; police department, $4,576.25; finance department, $166,606.80; park department, $720.35; public works department, $8,109.91; fire department, $5,589.67.

The meeting adjourned at 9.45 o'clock.

COULD RAISE PINE TIMBER IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT

In the annual report of the state park and forest commission attention is called to a section in the eastern part of the state, along the Rhode Island border, which could well raise many thousand feet of pine timber. Of this the report says:

Perhaps the portion of Connecticut least known to the people as a whole is the, sparsely settled region bordering Rhode Island in the towns of Thompson, Killingly, Sterling, Voluntown and North Stonington. This region, in which there is very little good farm land, adjoins a large forest area in Rhode Island. The whole territory of over 100,000 acres, of which perhaps 50,000 lie in Connecticut, should be handled as state forests by the two states working cooperatively. This is largely sandy soil and well adapted to the production of pine timber which would find a ready market not only in such nearby towns as Putnam, Willimantic, Norwich and New London, but throughout the state. Under good management and protection it should be possible to produce annually on the 50,000 acres from fifteen to twenty million board feet of pine lumber besides considerable quantities of hardwood lumber, ties and wood.

Rapidly increasing public use of state parks and a demand far beyond their present capacity is the outstanding feature emphasized by the report of the state park and forest commission. The great need in Connecticut is for more public land along the shore. Encroachments and monopoly by private owners have almost completely deprived the public of the possibility of enjoying the privileges of the beach, except in crowded private commercial resorts.

An appropriation of $200,000 in 1919 enabled the commission to acquire 553 acres at Hammonasset beach in the town of Madison, with a mile of shore front, and to erect a pavilion and bathhouse with 1,000 lockers. During the four month season of 1922 this park was used by 220,600 visitors, the attendance on single days running over 20,000.

All service operations in these parks are handled directly by the state and not through concessionaires, in an effort to give the public the maximum service for the minimum charge; yet the receipts at Hammonasset Beach in 1922 have more than met all operating expenses, leaving a surplus which was used for further improvement of the property. At Wharton Brook, a wayside park between New Haven and Wallingford, a total of 49,657 visitors was reported and the income met all expenses.

The commission points out that, as shown by this experience, other state parks can be made self-supporting, and that the appropriations required for acquisition and maintenance must be regarded as an investment and not an expense.

One shore park is not enough for Connecticut. Plans are fully developed for extending the system, when funds are available so that other portions of the state may be served. No funds were appropriated for purchase of land during the last biennial period, but the commission is now asking for $750,000 with which to secure additional shore property and other parks, lands, and $296,700 for the development and maintenance of existing parks and those whose acquisition is desired. Part of this last sum is for the development of the other twenty-three parks, which since 1914 have been acquired in various parts of the state and which secure to the public free access to many beautiful spots, such as Kent Falls, Devil's Hopyard, Lake Waramaug and Mount Tom. Most of these areas are comparatively small but are intensively used by the public, in spite of the inability of the commission through lack of funds, to provide adequate facilities for their use. The total area of the twenty-five state parks is 5,276 acres.

The adoption of a policy of acquiring 200,000 acres of land for state forests is the principal recommendation of the state forester, Austin F. Hawes, in his report for the year ending June 30, 1922, which forms a part of the commission's report. Since 1921 the commission has had the appointment of the state forester and it has given this policy its official approval. The Connecticut Forestry association is also backing the plan for additional state forests.

The state has been buying forest land for twenty years, but with inadequate appropriations, and now owns only 3,260 acres of state forests, and $100,000 is asked for the next biennial period to inaugurate a purchase policy which will meet the future needs of the state.

A map showing the location of the larger forest areas of the state is given. More than one-half of the state, or 1,500,000 acres, is better suited to forestry than to any other purpose.

Mr. Hawes calls attention to the need of more adequate provision for fire protection in the state, to preserve the natural growth in this large area from destruction. In 1921, 689 fires occurred, burning a total of over 20,000 acres with an estimated damage of $72,000. In the spring of 1922, 1,006 fires burned an area of 79,000 acres, 35 of which covered more than 500 acres each. Methods and proper organization for controlling forest fires have been worked out by experience in Connecticut and adjoining states, and the principal need is funds to pay for proper supervision, construction of lookout stations, fire-fighting equipment and education in fire prevention.

Guests from Westerly, Colchester, Putnam and New York were present and $40 was contributed for the Jewish national fund, this amount being enough to buy two dunams, or half an acre of land in Palestine.

NEW YEAR'S HOLIDAY WAS QUIET IN CITY

New Year's day was one of the quietest in years, a driving rain coming with a high wind making it anything but a pleasure for those who ventured out during the early hours of the day.

Many people owning machines kept them at home during the day, evidently not caring to risk being picked up for having the old 1922 markers on their cars. A number who did venture out with the 1922 markers escaped the penalties that had been threatened as no arrests for violation of the auto laws were reported.

In the early hours of Monday morning the police station and Bulletin office received many calls from motorists asking about the ruling on 1922 markers, and learned that the law would be enforced. They took a chance, however, and made home under cover of darkness.

During the day there was a general closing down of all business houses and manufacturing plants in the city, although scattered here and there some stores were open for business, and a few shops were running.

There were the usual holiday entertainments, dancing and sports, but nothing like the days "Pa, W. C." in fact the only wet was that of Mother Nature herself and she surely did shower the city with an abundance of wet goods.

Various clubs of the city held private entertainments and special luncheons were served during the day.

Taken as a whole the day was uneventful, and as far as one could see from the outside, Monday was like any other day in the year.

PER CAPITA FIRE LOSS WAS $2 IN PAST YEAR

Norwich had a per capita fire loss of about $2 in the past year on the 197 alarms of all kinds which the department received, which was 32 more than in 1921 when the total number was 164. This is a per capita which compares very favorably with the average in the United States.

There was a total value in property involved in fires of $1,273,244.35, of which $708,747 was on buildings and $564,497.35 on contents.

Insurance thereon was $578,169 on buildings, $457,500 on contents, a total of $1,032,569. The insurance loss was $12,042.22 on buildings, $30,511.59 on contents, total $42,553.81. Total loss (insured and uninsured) was $12,242.22 on building; $51,011.59 on contents, total $63,253.81.

The total fire losses in 1921 were $110,093.066.

New York, Jan. 1.—Mrs. William B. Leeds, Jr., formerly the Princess Xenia of Russia, who arrived in this country yesterday with her young husband, enjoyed her first experience with American honesty today when she lost $100,000 in jewels and recovered them within two hours.

Mrs. Leeds with her mother-in-law, Princess Anastasia, wife of Prince Christopher of Greece, motored from her hotel to visit an aunt in Montclair, N. J., and after her arrival recollected that she had left on the seat of the car her jewel case containing several diamond bracelets, rings, lavalliers and other trinkets, estimated to be worth at least $100,000.

The former princess telephoned the hotel in this city and E. V. Hawkins, special officer, reached the garage just as the car returned. He found the jewel case unopened. Two men servants from the Leeds suite called for it and with a hotel watchman as extra guard took the gems to Montclair in time for Mrs. Leeds to wear them at dinner.

TO USE "LOTTERY" TO SELECT CHIEF JUSTICE

Tallahassee, Fla., Jan. 1.—A "lottery" surrounded with secrecy and solemnity will be conducted here tomorrow by the five justices of the Florida supreme court to determine which one is to be chief justice. Nobody knows just how the question will be settled, and members of the court never tell in advance, and rarely afterwards. The state law provides that the chief justice must be chosen by lot but does not stipulate a method.

Six years ago Justice J. B. Browne won. It was learned later that a book was selected, a clerk was instructed to open it at random, and the first line of printing at the top of the left page be examined. It had been agreed that if the initial letter of the first word of the line was the same as the first letter of the surname of a justice, that man would win. The letter "B" was the first to appear.

The term of Chief Justice Browne expired tonight. He was re-elected, however. Justices Browne and Taylor have six years to serve, Justices Ellis and West, four and Justice Whitfield two.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

During New Year's day the police here were chiefly occupied with warning motorists who were driving with 1923 registration plates on their machines to cease operating unless they wished to invite arrest. It so happened that Monday was a very stormy and disagreeable day, particularly bad for motoring, on account of the slippery conditions, so this kept many car owners from moving their machines at all, and if they had not received their new numbers they did not feel the loss very keenly. However, some took a chance of running with the old plates and as fast as these were seen by officers they warned them that the cars must be put away until new plates had been received.

As in other towns hereabouts, all sorts of excuses were offered by drivers for not complying with the law. Some of the excuses were reasonable, others not at all. In any case the officers were not empowered to extend driving privileges to anyone. Asking for such permission isn't the right thing to do, either.

As against those who had no new numbers, there were a few who rushed the season a bit and were out at about 11 o'clock New Year's eve with 1923 plates showing. These operators took good care to drive where they would not be apt to meet an officer. In some instances these drivers were bound on trips from which they would not return until New Year's day, so took the precaution to put the new plates on in advance.

An Attawaugan man who was ordered on Sunday to appear in the town court New Year's morning did not come in, though the court officers were on hand ready for the session. The accused is charged with recklessly operating an autopobile on the state highway. After a conference the officials decided that the case would be continued until later in the week. What additional charge will be filed against this man for failing to appear in court as ordered was not stated Monday by officers of the court, but this feature of the case will be considered.

The Calling of Duff's Mutt was the very pleasing theatrical offering staged New Year's day at the Orpheum theatre by the Danielson Dramatic club under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. There was a matinee and evening performances.

The cast, which had been coached by William J. Brennan, was competent and included Bernard Casey, Leo Bodo, Henry Bodo, James Melville, Lawrence Casey, Miss Katherine McGorty, Miss Hannora Killian, Miss Marie Jane Dubois, Miss Wanda Niejadlik. The soloists and chorus included Miss Blanche Pelletier, Miss Rena Burke, Miss Leonie Grennon, Miss Catherine Higgins, Miss Mary Bousquet, Miss Beatrice Bouchard Miss Agnes DeForest, Miss Lillian Edwards, Miss Monelca Lambert, Miss Rita Cruillat, John Higgins, Edgar Pelletier, Francis Burke, Burt Grennon, Emile Meunier, Walter Barrows, Frank Mongeau, Louis Mongeau, Tyler Andrews and Peter Frechette.

The stage settings were very attractive and all of the numbers very well given. A feature was the singing by Diggett brothers' quartet and the dancing and singing numbers by Misses Pelletier and Bousquet. Another feature was the boy soprano, Amade Pelletier.

Chief John McFarland said late Monday afternoon that he was pleased over the fact that no arrests had been made throughout the entire holiday period. He also commented on the fact that he had not seen one intoxicated person. The chief said that only a little difficulty had been experienced in dealing with motorists who were driving under old license plates, and that on the whole the entire holiday period was as quiet and orderly as anyone could wish.

Similar comment on the quietness of the holiday period was made at the state police barracks. No reports were received there up to late afternoon about any untoward event, though the officers were on duty and ready to respond to any call.

Borough streets and state highways, stripped of snow by the heavy southeast rain storm of Monday, presented a problem for anyone who tried to make their way along them, especially in a motor car. Even with chains on cars were seen to skid and swing about almost at right angles with the course they were intending to pursue. Pedestrians, becoming hardened during this particular winter to getting about on such uncertain footing as ice presents, found the day one of the hardest of the winter for getting about. There were falls and wettings, but no serious accidents were reported.

Out on the new Providence road a truck got into difficulties Monday morning on account of the icy going and the big vehicle had to be abandoned temporarily. The driver and another man who were with the truck walked to Danielson, a distance of about seven miles, and were drenched to the skin upon arriving here.

A flippantly aggressive stranger made himself unpleasant on some residential streets of the borough New Year's morning by demanding some work that would let him into the homes or cellars. His manner was such as to arouse distrust as to his intentions, and the fact that he was operating was reported to the local police.

Hunters fear that many game birds have perished during the past three weeks because of the ice that has covered the ground, making obtaining food a very difficult problem for these wild things.

PUTNAM

One may not assume to interpret why they did it after having received so many warnings, but numbers of motorists in this city and all through the adjoining territory were out Monday, the first of the year, and running their cars on 1922 registration plates. In each and every case where an officer espied these drivers he halted them and ordered them to take their cars directly to their garages and leave them there until they were equipped with 1923 plates. This is in line with the instructions of the motor vehicle department. No arrests had been made up to early Monday afternoon, but officers were insisting that such action would follow if a driver once warned was found out again with old plates on his car.

All sorts of excuses were offered by drivers for operating with old numbers on their cars. Some—in fact, very few had the 1923 plates and had forgotten to put them on, and this proved to be true in some cases. Others said they were just out on trips created by emergencies. And so on in endless order.

No excuses were accepted by the officers, however. In some instances drivers pleaded for permission to make some short trip and be assured of protection, but the officers having no right to grant such permission, were obliged to refuse all such requests. And in this particular respect it is pointed out that it isn't fair of a car owner to ask an officer for such permission. He cannot grant it and he does not like to be called upon to refuse, especially where drivers are well known to him.

Many cars were out with the new plates, though motoring was not much of a pastime on such a day as New Year's.

No more dreary holiday has been experienced in this city in years than New Year's, 1923. A southeast gale drove a deluge of rain over Putnam and kept all but a few persons housed up practically all day. The few that ventured out found getting about a difficult and dangerous task, for the storm had swept bare the underlying coating of ice and polished it to a slipperiness that necessitated acrobatic qualities for getting about. There were many falls and with every fall went a wetting.

Beginning this (Wednesday) evening a week of prayer will be observed at the Baptist church in this city. Previous to the church services at 7 o'clock each evening there are to be preparatory prayer meetings at the home of Miss Johnson and Deacons Durfee and Converse.

Attorneys will be in Willimantic today (Wednesday) for the opening of the superior court for Windham county, January term. It so happens that only one prisoner is being held dat the county jail in Brooklyn to answer to charges that will be preferred against him in court today. This is unusual, for at no time within memory has there been less than a bus load to make the trip to court on the opening day of criminal sessions. There are numbers of cases on the criminal list, however, but the accused are out under bail or their cases are on the continued list. State Attorney Charles E. Searls, Clerk E. M. Warner and other local attorneys will go over to Willimantic for the day's session.

Another matter that will bring a small exodus of people from Putnam and other towns in this vicinity this afternoon is the coming of the opening of the 1923 session of the legislature. The caucuses come this evening and will be followed by the opening of the legislature Wednesday morning.

Through the heavy storm hundreds wended their way to St. Mary's church to attend the New Year's morning mass. Aside from this venture out into an unfriendly storm a great majority of these people spent the remainder of the day at their homes.

Putnam motorists who crossed over into Massachusetts Monday were in a number of cases held up by officers that the taillights on their Connecticut cars might be held up for inspection. Massachusetts has a new law governing taillight equipment and it is being enforced against all cars entering the state.

All schools in the town of Putnam will reopen this (Tuesday) morning after the recess that has extended from just before Christmas. Teachers who have been out of town during the period the schools have been closed returned here Sunday or Monday.

Putnam was a well behaved city during the three day holiday. Not an arrest had been made up mid-afternoon of Monday.

Though the holiday kept them closely within doors, because of the storm, the 120 little people at the Children's Home put in a busy period. Much entertainment was provided for them.

His friends in this city, where he has shown great interest in the welfare and development of the Day Kimball hospital will be interested in the fact that he is steadily recovering from the serious injuries he received when he was in Brazil last fall.

Miss Grace Loomis has returned to her home in Farmington after visiting with friends in this city for a few days.

Numbers of awnings were ripped up and branches were torn from trees in the storm of Monday, particularly violent throughout the day.

Mrs. Frank L. Davis of Sunnyside street will have members of the Sunnyside club at her home for a meeting this (Tuesday) evening.

It was stated at the first of the year that the work of removing the St. Onge block from the Putnam Savings bank site on Main street will be undertaken within a few days. The site is to be cleared by February 1.

Misses Sybella Gilman of this city, Abbie Pray of Ballouville and Martin Chilott of Eastford returned to Springfield for the reopening today of Bay Path Institute, where they are students.

JEWETT CITY

W. S. Christopher has written another very interesting letter to the folks back home, Dated at Athens, Georgia, Dec. 27, 1922.

Well, we are reaching a farther southern point at the close of each day, but have to travel slowly on account of the terrible condition of the roads. There has been no rain in the south all the fall, but it started in about the first of December and rained three weeks steadily, so you can imagine with the mud up to the hubs, our house on wheels travels slowly. We have paid $5.50 for being pulled out of the mud so far. There has been over 12 cars all lined up in the mud up to the axle. But we helped each other so we all got out safely. The weather is warm, thermometer 65. Tonight it is raining hard. We will camp here till the mud dries. Christmas night we ate dinner out doors under the pine trees. Have not seen a northern paper since we left Jewett City. But what a miserable state Georgia is. The ground is rough and hilly and red clay. The negroes and poor whites are almost destitute. They haven't had a crop of cotton in two years. The boll weevil got into it.

The weevil is a small bug that gets into the heart of each blossom where the cotton forms, and eats out the center. I would not give Dan Morgan's and Fred Gilbert's farms for the whole state of Georgia. You have no idea what miserable state we have passed through. We have averaged 91 miles each day. Today we only made 32 miles on account of being stuck in the mud. That seems slow driving, but if some of the Jewett City people were here they would think we did pretty well.

Report us all well and appetites good. There is plenty of game here, and so far we have seen a dead rabbit and a large black snake, also dead, they having been run over in the night by passing automobiles.

Signed,
W. S. Christopher and party in the House on Wheels.

Misses Kathleen Dearnley and Ellen Faust were among those who attended the surprise party at Vera McBroome's on Friday evening.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The number of building permits issued during the last quarter of 1922 was by far the largest for this quarter in the history of the office of fire marshal There were 63 permits granted during the quarter by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. There were seventeen permits granted for new frame houses, 21 for new frame garages, 2 for new frame sheds, 2 for new frame stores, one for new fram barn, 13 for additions to frame buildings, 2 for new brick buildings, 1 for a new brick garage and 4 for additions to presaw house. Building has been very productive of building in Norwich and does not include the buildings that have been erected outside the city limits.

One application has been filed so far in 1923 this being for a garage for Dr. Curtis Benard at 82 Williams street. The garage will be of frame construction 20x 12 feet with a shingle exterior finish.

Work has progressed materially on practically all of the operations now in hand and even the cold snaps has now held up the laying of cement to any great extent.

Charles B. Browning has completed a large frame garage at East Great Plain for John R. Ford. The garage is 47x30 feet with a concrete floor and composition roof.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were eight sales of real estate as compared to 14 sales for the same week in 1921. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $25,400 to $33,033.

In New London there were 6 sales of real estate which was exactly the same number as for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans were $18,200 and $32,140, for the respective weeks.

NEW LONDON

At a recent meeting of the city council it was voted to instruct Architect Dudley St. Clair Donnelly to revise the plans for the proposed Alger street schoolhouse, with a view to reduce the cost of construction. After the revision they will be sent out again to the general contractors for estimates. The plumbing, heating and electrical work will not be refigured, these bids having been accepted and contracts awarded.

Architects Payne & Keefe have about completed plans and specifications for the proposed schoolhouse to be erected on Stanton street, for the city and it is expected they will be ready for figures in about two weeks. It will be a brick structure, two stories high, 55x85 feet, having six rooms, heated by steam and equipped with the latest improvements. The appropriation for the building is about $60,000

A permit has been granted S. M. Sulman for the erection of a garage building to be erected on Church street. It is to be a brick building, 50x157 feet, with steel girders, slag roof and concrete floors. Steam heat will be provided, as will all the latest improvements to be found in a modern service station. The cost is estimated at $10,000.

Work has been started on Shaw street for a house to be erected by Antonio Ripoli for himself. It is to be 28x45 feet, of wood, to contain 13 rooms, arranged for two families. The cost is estimated at $2,000.

Building Permits

S. M. Sulman, brick garage, Church street, $10,000
Antonio Ripoli, frame house, Shaw street, $4,000.
Total number of permits for the week, 2; estimated cost of buildings, $14,000.

NORWICH TOWN

Although very stormy weather prevailed all during Monday, just as the sun was setting and the beautiful rainbow appeared in the sky, a sudden change took place followed by a clear sky which was sure evidence that the storm had ceased. To those in this and other communities each year look forward to the hospitality of the First Congregational church, in observance of the New Year festivities, this was a most welcome feature, as it enabled many to attend who otherwise would have been greatly disappointed had the severe storm continued.

At 5 o'clock the church organist, Herbert L. Yerrington, entertained a good number of church members and friends in his 42d annual organ recital, which usually is held on New Year's day. Organist Yerrington was ably assisted by Mrs. Herbert L. Richardson, contralto, of Norwich.

The excellently rendered program was composed of varied numbers. The first number, Gothic March, op. 48, No. 1, by Salome, was one in which those present could enter into with spirit and inspiration. The first half of the second number, Carmona Amoroso (Venetian Love Song), by Nevin, has a beautiful run of harmony, being especially pleasing to music lovers. Significant among the other attractive numbers were Pastoral, op. 29, No. 3, by Foote, and the closing number, Tocata, by Dubois. The soloist, Mrs. Richardson, who has spent some time in study with Frederick Weild, gave as her opening number O Divine Redeemer, by Gounod. In pleasing voice the beautiful number Cantique de Noel, by Adam, was Mrs. Richardson's closing number. At the conclusion of the recital Organist Yerrington and Mrs. Richardson received many compliments.

As usual, those present were cordially invited by the church pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, to assemble in the chapel and participate in the parish supper. Precisely at 6 o'clock 150 parishioners and friends representing other churches enjoyed the following menu: Ham, tongue, buttered biscuits, mixed pickles, a large variety of cake and coffee. Preceding the tempting menu, Rev. Mr. Bailey said grace. Mrs. Frank E. Sterry and Mrs. M. Jennie Case Marthas of the church were in general charge, assisted by Mrs. Charles P. Learned, Mrs. Philip Whaley Mrs. Walter Heath, Mrs. Frank S. Wheeler, Mrs. Earl Browning and Mrs. Michael Buckley. A company of young women representing members of Ever Ready circle of the King's Daughters acted as waitresses. These included Miss Bessie M. Grant, Miss Katharine D. Smith, Miss Sadie J. Dawson, Mrs. Bessie Beckwith and Misses Rose and Minnie Durr.

While guests were seated at the tables Rev. Mr. Bailey read a cordial letter of New Year's greetings to parishioners and friends of a former pastor of the church, Rev. Charles A. Northrop, of Danbury, formerly of Norwich.

Special services were held Sunday at the First M. E church at Norwich Town. In the morning the pastor took as his subject The Three Es. The verse which he took was Psalm 23: 5, Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of my enemy, thou anointed my head with oil, my cup runneth over. The three Es are Entertainment, Enjoyment and Enrichment. The first part of the verse was the entertainment. Who is there that doesn't enjoy entertaining their friends? He showed the enjoyment by the illustration of shepherds caring for their flocks. He pointed how a shepherd cared by anointing sores, scratches, etc., by salve.

The enrichment came from service to Christ and although it wasn't earthly enrichment, it is spiritual enrichment.

Sunday evening a watch night service was held. The first part of the meeting was in charge of the Christian Endeavor. They held their regular Sunday evening service. Miss Florence Bennett was leader.

The monthly business meeting of the Christian Endeavor followed the regular C. E. service. The various reports of the officers and committees showed the society in good condition. The following officers were elected for the next six months: President Lewis Aldrich; vice president, LeRoy Miner; secretary, Florence Brown; treasurer, Blanche Wheeler; chairmen of committees: Lookout, Mrs. Richard Carter; prayer meeting, Fannie Edmiston; missionary, Mrs. J. B. Aldrich; music, Hazel Cruthers; flower, Gladys Cruthers; social, Mrs. Albert Miner. A contest is to be run for the next three months. Miss Bennett and Edward Howe were elected captains.

Following the business meeting, Rev. Mr. Ayers gave a very interesting talk on The Healing of the Ten Lepers. Following Rev. Mr. Ayers' talk was a social hour in charge of the social committee of the Christian Endeavor. Sandwiches, cookies and cake were served and at 20 minutes before 12 a consecration was held in charge of the pastor.

The sides for the C. E. contest were chosen and are:

Premier Stambulisky Of Bulgaria

With Premier Stambulisky, President of the Bulgarian Delegation, is taking part in the Near East Conference at Lausanne, Switzerland, a revolt broke out in Bulgaria. Many notables were assassinated, and it looked as though the country would be plunged into war again. However, the peasantry, standing staunchly by the government, quelled the uprisings, and all is peace now. Stambulisky is head of the peasant faction and his men are in control of the situation. This is the newest photograph of the Bulgarian Premier, showing him at the conference.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY WILL OPEN ON WEDNESDAY

Wednesday at 10 a. m. will see the opening of the 1923 session of the general assembly in the capitol at Hartford.

The house will be called to order by Speaker Huxford of the session of 1921 and he will continue in control of the proceedings until the new speaker is elected. The roll of members will be called by the retiring deputy secretary of state, Richard J. Dwyer. The clerks will then be elected. In accordance with custom of the house, Leo J. Noonan, who was assistant clerk at the previous session, will be elected clerk of the house and his assistant will be the person nominated at the republican house caucus.

The senate will be called to order by Secretary of State Donald J. Warner, who will continue in the occupancy of the chair until the president pro tem is chosen. There continues to be an uncertainty as to who will be elected by the republican majority of the senate for president pro tem. This, in a measure, is due to the fact that Senator John N. Brooks of Torrington, persists in his determination not to announce his candidacy for the position. Senator Brooks was at the capitol the other day and he was asked by an official who is in political sympathy with him, if he had made up his mind to enter the race for the presidency of the senate.

"I haven't asked a senator for his vote and I don't intend to," was his reply.

J. Frederick Baker, who was the clerk of the last house, will be the clerk of the senate. Mr. Baker will appoint his own assistants. The committees of the senate will be appointed by the president pro tem. The speaker of the house appoints the committees of that body.

When the two houses have organized the usual joint resolutions relating to the printing of the journals, the list of bills, the daily bulletin, etc., will be passed. When these and other formal matters are attended to the house will pass a resolution that it is ready to meet the senate in joint session for the inauguration of the governor and other executive officials who were elected last November. With the exception of the treasurer and the attorney general, these officials will enter on the duties of their respective positions for the first time, after they are inaugurated. The treasurer, G. Harold Gilpatric, will begin his third successive term of two years each and Frank E. Healy will enter on a second term of four years as attorney general.

There is no definite hour set for the inauguration of the new governor and the other executive officers who will have charge of the state government for the next two years. It is generally understood that the inauguration ceremonies shall begin at noon, but they have been held at a later hour. It is not so many sessions ago that the inaugural ceremonies were delayed at a session until late in the afternoon. The governor will be accompanied to the house by his staff, and he will be escorted by the sheriff of Hartford county or by a deputy sheriff. The president pro tem. of the senate will preside at the joint session in the house. The new speaker will occupy a seat on the platform. The oath of office will be administered to Governor-elect Templeton by Chief Justice George W. Wheeler, or if he is unable to attend, by a justice of the supreme court of errors, designated by him. The new governor will read his inaugural message to the legislators. The joint session will then be dissolved and the senators will return to their chamber. The other executive officials will take the oath of office.

It is not expected that either house will do any legislative work on the first day of the session. It is quite possible, however, that some bills will be introduced and referred to the committees to be appointed by the speaker. It is likely there will be an adjournment for a few weeks to give the president pro tem. of the senate and the speaker of the house time to appoint the committees each for his own branch of the legislature.

When adjournment is voted the legislature will throw off their official cares and prepare for the inaugural ball in the evening. The legislative caucuses will be held in the capitol this (Tuesday) evening.

CRIMINAL SUPERIOR COURT HAS VERY LIGHT DOCKET

The docket of the criminal superior court, which opens its January term in Norwich this (Tuesday) morning, is one of the smallest in the history of New London county. It contains only 18 new cases as compared with 60 or 70 a few years ago.

The docket is devoid of any sensational cases, the most important being an arson case in Groton. The accused is Dominic Marinelli, who is charged with setting fire to the building owned by Louis Cohen in Thames street, Groton, on Dec. 1.

Court will come in at 10 o'clock in the morning with Judge Allyn L. Brown on the bench. The day will be given over to taking pleas and the jury is summoned for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Instead of seeking the man the office is kept busy trying to pick him out from the crowd of applicants.

IMPORTANT CASES NOW BEFORE SUPREME COURT

Washington, Jan. 1.—The supreme court will meet tomorrow after a three weeks' recess. Based upon the record it made on returning from the former long recess, when by opinions and orders it removed seventy-eight cases from the docket, court habitues expect another big cleaning up after Associate Justice Pierce Butler of St. Paul has had the judicial oath administered to him by the chief justice, making him a member of the court.

Justice Butler will have the peculiar experience of not occupying the seat at the foot of the bench. Justices of the court are seated in order of seniority of service, and it is customary for the new member to go to the end of the bench to the left of the chief justice. As the resignation of Justice Pitney took effect today, however, Justice Butler will have stepped up the ladder one rung when he does his official robes tomorrow, and the chair at the extreme left of the bench will be vacant.

A number of important cases are down for argument during the week including the appeals of the American and foreign steamship companies in the liquor cases. These are expected to be reached Thursday. The first argument the court will hear will be upon the motion of the government to dismiss the original case brought by the state of New York challenging the constitutionality of the federal power act.

Other cases down for early argument include an attack by the Bankers Trust company and others upon the penalty tax imposed by Connecticut for failure to include certain information in tax reports, and two cases brought by the United States shipping board to have determined the liability of the Emergency Fleet corporation to prosecution under state laws for injuries to its employes.

CHARGED WITH IMPLICATION IN ROBBERY OF BANK

Denver, Jan. 1.—Martin Ryan, alias James Martin, arrested here Saturday night in company with a woman giving the name of Margaret Yard, aged 20, today were implicated in the robbery of the Drovers National bank in Kansas City on December 12, on a confession made and signed by the woman, according to the Denver police. Ryan refused to admit the truthfulness of the statements in the confession.

Kansas City authorities will send officers for the pair. Police said an investigation showed that the couple had no connection with the bandit gang which on December 15, obtained $200,000 in a federal reserve bank truck at the door of the government mint here.

Police found more than $8,000 hidden in a coat in a trunk belonging to the couple. According to the girl she had been employed in a restaurant in Kansas city for about five months prior to meeting Ryan.

On the day of the robbery, she declared in her confession, according to the police, Ryan came home in the evening with a bundle wrapped in a newspaper. She declared he told her that he [illegible] $10,000 in bills, it contained from the Drovers National Bank. She continued in her confession that before coming to Denver on December 23, she and Ryan went to Chicago.

SIR HORACE PLUNKETT HAS ARRIVED IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 1.—Sir Horace Plunkett, recently nominated to membership in the Irish Free State senate, arrived here today on the Adriatic, commissioned by his government to study agriculture and methods employed by the United States in maintaining the congressional reference library.

Another passenger was Mrs. Clare Sheridan, sculptor and writer, who recently created something of an international furore by publishing an interview with Rudyard Kipling in which she quoted the famous British author in criticism of America's wartime and post-war spirit.

The steamer Hapag, from Hamburg preceded the Adriatic into port by a few hours, claiming the distinction of being the first liner to dock this year. She had on board several hundred German immigrants, who claimed the title of first 1923 arrivals at Ellis Island.

The Hansa reported rough seas all the way, but she got through without damage.

One was taken to a hospital in a serious condition. The others were revived and went back to work. The blaze was extinguished without severe damage.

Slated For Supreme Court

Robert Von Moschzisker, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, is President Harding's choice for justice of the Supreme Court of the United States to succeed Justice Mahlon E. Pitney, who retires. The Pennsylvania justice is comparatively young, having been born in 1870. His father was of Polish extraction while his mother was American. He never attended a law school, entering a law office after completing public school, in the good old-fashioned way and by merit his way up to the reputation of being one of the ablest lawyers in the state.

FALLS SCHOOL PUPILS GIVEN SPECIAL REWARD

For being the first of the public schools to reach 100 per cent enrollment in taking stamps through the school savings banks installed by the Norwich Savings Society, the pupils and the teachers of the Falls school have been given special recognition by the savings society.

Just before Christmas the Savings society presented each one of the 174 children a box of candy and a bright, new, shiny nickel, while each teacher received a box of candy. The officers of the Savings society considered it so remarkable that every child in the school should be enlisted in the school savings plan by taking stamps that it was well worthy of reward.

NORWICH IN DELINQUENT LIST ON RE-VALUATION OF PROPERTY

State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, in his annual report just issued, calls attention to the fact that Norwich is one of the five towns in the state which have not yet complied with the requirements of the 1917 general assembly to make a general revaluation of property. Ellington, Chaplin, Putnam and Naugatuck are the other four towns which have not complied.

School Money Pays Town Expenses.

Disclosure of a procedure which made it possible for a certain Connecticut town to obtain from the state during the past year, enough funds for its schools to pay 42.91 per cent of all its other annual expenses, was made in the report of Commissioner Blodgett.

The town is not named in the report, but the amount of its grand list for the year 1921 is given as $782,242. On the ground that the report of the local assessors paid that land and buildings were assessed on a basis of 75 per cent of fair valuation, the grand list was raised to $882,242 by the state board of equalization, leaving the town in the class to receive from the state 50 per cent of the amount paid to its teachers in the year preceding. It also became entitled thereby to the special aid authorized to be paid within the discretion of the state board of education.

A tax of 20 mills levied by the town on its grand list as reported was calculated to raise $15,644.84 for all purposes. It received $6,712.39, or 42.91 per cent of the amount, from the state on the basis of the teachers' salary grant for the school year ended in July, 1922. Since Commissioner Blodgett's report was written the town referred to has requested $822.62 from the state in special aid for its schools, and received $288.19.

"If this town's grand list were raised to full valuation, leaving a small margin for conservative action, the grand list would amount to $2,737,847," says the commissioner, "and it would be taken out of the class to receive school aid, special or otherwise, under the provision of Chapter 339 of the Public Acts of 1919. Furthermore it would be placed in the class of towns entitled to receive highway aid which pays one-fourth the cost of state aid construction, instead of being in the class of towns which pays one-eighth of such cost."

"It is of importance that the state deal equitably with all towns in the distribution of state aid money," says the commissioner in his report, "but it is of less importance that the delegated power to tax the inhabitants of the state for local needs be exercised with painstaking care to the end that each taxpayer shall be required to bear his fair share of the public burden under the law. Avoidable injustice in the application of any tax law is intolerable."

Tax Officials Too Careless.

Pointing out that the total property list for the state, which was last made and reported to his office being that of 1921, amounted to $14,855,476.10, the commissioner recommends that "some plan should be devised at the forthcoming session of the general assembly in which the work of careless taxing officials may be replaced and corrected." He holds that the work of saving forty odd millions of dollars annually is of sufficient importance to fully justify the creation in each county of a board to which any taxpayer whether aggrieved by reason of his own assessment or by reason of the failure of local taxing officials to observe the statutory rule of valuation with respect to the property of any other taxpayer of the town wherein he resides may take appeal by keeping in close touch with the work of the assessors in the towns of the counties wherein they respectively may have jurisdiction" says the report, "such boards may serve to equalize the tax burdens among taxpayers, correct abuses and relieve, to a large extent, the exercise of power now centralized offensively in the board of equalization which is composed of the tax commissioner, comptroller and treasurer of the state. No solution of the problem of procuring anything like equitable assessments of property or of equitably distributing state money among the towns on the basis of grand lists, is expected by Commissioner Blodgett "so long as the responsibility of fixing property values for purposes of assessment is lodged as at present, each town board of assessors interpreting the law differently from every other."

Non-residents are shown in the report to be in possession of property valued at $245,587,610, out of the total valuation of $1,962,763,631 of all taxable property in the state, as shown by the last Connecticut grand list, that of 1921.

19,549 Autos Escaped Taxation.

That the owners of 19,549 motor vehicles in the state apparently escaped taxation last year, that five towns have not complied with the statutory requirement of a general revaluation of property, that double exemptions from taxation were discovered in some towns, and personal tax delinquencies in New Haven and Bridgeport all out of proportion to the delinquencies in other towns, are disclosed in the report.

Property Generally Undervalued.

Based on a careful investigation in all the towns of the state, the commissioner makes the statement in his report that property is generally undervalued to the extent that the state average of assessments is only 60.38 per cent of the selling values of the property assessed. It is shown that in one town, the assessed values were less than 30 per cent. of the selling values; in ten towns they were between 31 and 40 per cent. of the selling values; in 27 towns, between 40 and 50 per cent.; in 51 towns, between 50 and 60 per cent.; in 38 towns, between 60 and 70 per cent.; in 32 towns, between 70 and 80 per cent. and in ten towns between 80 and 90 per cent. In no town was the percentage higher than 90 per cent. The law requires that all property be assessed at its fair market value, 100 per cent. The effort of the commissioner is directed toward a more equitable distribution of the tax burden. The amounts to be expended in any town is to be determined within each town.

The proportion of state aid received by towns for schools and highways depends on the size of their grand lists. The lower the grand list of a town, the greater is the percentage of state aid to which it is entitled. This broad policy of the state was formulated with the purpose that all children be furnished adequate educational advantages—whatever their environment or whether they reside in towns of wealth or in the small poor towns of meagre ability, and to furnish highways for through travel, also to open up the back areas to agriculture and development. It was for the purpose of making uniform the percentage contemplated to be paid by the several local grand lists that the state board of equalization was authorized by the legislature to raise or lower the appraisal of a town for the purposes of determining percentages of state aid. The grand list as fixed by the board of equalization is accepted as the official list for all transactions between the state and the towns.

Prior to the current year, the board of equalization has based its conclusions and in the main part relied on official reports of town officers. Three investigators were engaged by the tax commissioner last summer, however, by authority of the board of equalization, to ascertain and report on the work of assessors, particularly to ascertain whether boards of assessors were using the rule of valuation imposed by the statutes as a basis of laying the property tax, and, if so, to determine how closely valuations fixed by assessors approached the statutory "fair market value." The investigators worked under the direction of Commissioner Blodgett and each was furnished with a set of questionnaires to be used in the towns respectively investigated by him.

Regarding the character of the investigation, Commissioner Blodgett writes as follows in his report:

"The courts repeatedly have held that the best evidence of the value of anything is gained by ascertaining the price at which it has been sold. No one contends that the selling price is conclusive proof of actual value, but it is evidence and usually it is the best evidence. The questionnaire was so framed that real estate, which, for any reason, may have been sold for an excessive value, could be identified and eliminated from consideration. On the other hand, conveyances of real estate based on a lesser consideration or no selling price, whatever may have been the cause, then in ordinary circumstances it would have been sold for, were included and a questionnaire as to each such transfer was filled out and used as though the property had sold for its fair market value.

"The plan adopted was to parallel actual selling valuations opposite to assessors' valuations of the same property and, by adding the total selling values and separately the last valuations of the assessors, an average percentage figure of assessors' valuations to actual selling valuations was obtained. In towns wherein real estate was active, transfers of residential property or small farms were used in sufficient number to obtain a general knowledge of the work of the assessors. In smaller towns, wherein real estate was inactive, no preference as to property could be given. The last transfers as recorded by town clerks were considered preferable to those older in point of time, it was impossible to use the same number of conveyances in all towns. In the smaller towns not more than a dozen to twenty conveyances could be obtained, but in the larger towns thirty to fifty questionnaires were considered sufficient to furnish a basis on which to obtain the averages desired. The selling values were obtained by procuring information from private sources, from grantors, grantees, or others having information respecting the transfers, but more frequently, the federal stamps placed on the deeds were used and the consideration for the transfer determined therefrom. The stamps were correctly affixed in a very high percentage of transfers of residential property and small farms. The reverse was found to be true in cases of transfers of mercantile and more valuable property if sold through or connected with speculative transactions."

Small Town Officials Lax.

A table is presented in the report showing the results of an investigation of seventeen property transfers in one of the smaller towns of the state. The highest percentage figure of any of the assessments shown was 39 per cent. and the lowest 9.2 per cent. In the 39 per cent case, the selling value was found to be $1,500, and the assessors' valuation $585. In the 9.2 per cent case it was found the property was sold for $5,700, and it was assessed at a value of $525. This is the same town referred to in the opening paragraph of this article.

"It is very evident," says the report, "that the assessors of the smaller towns do not devote sufficient time to their duties; consequently property is not viewed as is required by the statutes and the assessments frequently are not based on the statutory rule of fair market value."

DIED SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME ON CLIFF STREET

Michael McCarthy of 13 Cliff street died suddenly at 2.45 Monday morning after a short illness. He had been about as usual on Sunday, though of late he had complained of not feeling well. He retired as usual but at 12.45 o'clock was taken seriously ill and death soon followed despite all medical assistance.

He was born in Cork, Ireland, on Sept. 29, 1858, the son of Jeremiah and Hannora Connelly McCarthy. His parents came to this country when he was two years of age and settled in Norwich, where he had lived ever since. As a young man he was an efficient brass moulder in the Norwich Lock Shop. Later for a period of 25 years. He was employed as clerk in the store of the late George H. Pratt on Water street. In later years he worked for other concern and proved a faithful employe.

In this city on Nov. 14, 1894, he was married to Miss Annie O'Neil of this city who survives him, with an only daughter, Miss Mary F. McCarthy, a trained nurse. There are two sisters, Mrs. William Ryan and Mrs. John Weiler of Norwich.

Mr. McCarthy was a member of the Foresters of America.

The sudden death of Mr. McCarthy came as a shock to his many friends in Norwich. He was a model father and husband, and his first thought was for his home.

CHARGE VERSAILLES MAN WITH BIGAMY IN MAINE

Emile Tellier, 27, a blacksmith, living in Versailles, was arrested at his home there Monday afternoon on a bigamy charge and was locked up at Norwich police headquarters where he is to be held for the arrival of officers from Maine, where it is alleged Tellier married a girl named Hazel Hescock on Aug. 15, 1922, in Farmington, Franklin county. He has a wife and one child, a girl, at his home in Versailles.

It is alleged that Tellier used the name of Oliver Roberts when he married the girl in Maine.

Constable Lucius Fenton, who has had a warrant for Fenton since before Christmas, made the arrest, accompanied by Constables Beebe and Randall. Tellier has been working in Providence but came home to be with his family over New Year's, which gave the constable the chance to get the man for whom he had been on the lookout.

JUDGE ALLYN L. BROWN IMPRESSES WATERBURY

Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich sitting on the superior court bench in this city for the first time, has finished his term and has moved on to another jurisdiction.

Lawyers are agreed that Judge Brown made a most favorable impression and that he is both willing and anxious to speed up the work of the court.

He transacted an unusually large amount of business during his term here, clearing a great many cases from the docket. Lawyers say he is eminently fair and that he makes an ideal judge.

He was willing to sit early and late on cases and did everything in his power to accommodate lawyers, principals and witnesses in all the cases.

One characteristic stands out above others, lawyers say, and that is that he let it be known that he is strict about divorces. He lost no time in letting lawyers here know that petitioners seeking divorces on flimsey evidence would be "out of luck."

Judge Brown has the good wishes of the legal fraternity of Waterbury and vicinity in his career on the superior court bench.—Waterbury American.

At present they are making their home with the bride's parents.

TWILIGHT.

Of all the hours in Time's blue tide
Pass give to me the eventide
When labor's din and bustle cease
And I can smoke my pipe in peace
Till some one cries, "Love, don't you think You'd better fix the kitchen sink?"

Those hours of revery are sweet,
A song bird lulls the sleepy street
O'erhung with branches drooping wide
And I with life am satisfied.
Its fretful moments drift away
In dreams of golden yesterday.

Old friends, old loves, old places pass
As figures in a misty glass
The turmoil of the present seems
A background for those joyous dreams
Until I hear a voice implore,
"I wish you'd mend that cellar door!"
—Louis Burton Crane, Jr., in New York Sun.

EVENING MELODY.

O that the pines which crown yon steep
Their fires might ne'er surrender!
O that yon fervid knoll might keep,
While lasts the world, its splendor!

Pale poplars on the breeze that lean,
And in the sunset shiver,
O that your golden leaves might screen
For aye yon glassy river!

That yon white bird on homeward wing
Soft-sliding without motion,
And now in blue air vanishing
Like snowflakes lost in ocean,

Beyond our sight might never flee
Yet forward still be flying;
And all the dying day might be
Immortal in its dying!

Pellucid thus in saintly trance,
Thus mute in expectation,
What waits the earth? Deliverance!
Ah, no! Transfiguration!

She dreams of that "New Earth" divine,
Conceived of seed immortal;
She sings "Not mine the holier shrine,
Yet mine the steps and portal!"

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time?

DOES YOUR BACK FORETELL EVERY CHANGE OF THE WEATHER? DO YOU FEEL OLD AND STIFF AND SUFFER SHARP, RHEUMATIC PAINS? THEN LOOK TO YOUR KIDNEYS!

ARE winter months your backache months? Does every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, achy and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day?

Then look to your kidneys; Grip, colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. They overload the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys have to filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold finds you suffering with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

Don't wait! Delay may lead to serious or chronic kidney sickness. Realize that your kidneys have weakened in fighting the cold-created poisons and give them the help they need. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills today. Doan's have helped thousands at such times and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Norwich Folks:

CALVIN L. BRIGGS, Carpenter, 37 Penobscott St., says. "I think my work had a great deal to do with my trouble, as over-lifting seemed to aggravate the pains that were in my back almost constantly. I got so bad, I couldn't lift at all and I could hardly straighten up. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief. I recommend them so that others who are troubled with kidney complaint will know of a good medicine."

MRS. JAMES E. MORAN, 33 Second Street, says: "A cold settled in my kidneys and weakened them. My back ached continually for some time and I could hardly get around to do my housework. My kidneys didn't act right at all. I had known of Doan's Kidney Pills helping another member of the family, so I used them and found relief. Lately I had another attack of kidney trouble but Doan's were just as sure in helping me again as they were the first time."

REPARATIONS PROPOSALS PLACED BEFORE PREMIERS

England and France Are Far Apart in Plans—Premier Poincare Announced That France Would Scale Down Demand on Germany to 50,000,000,000 Marks—Would Not Consent to a Moratorium Without Guarantees—Belgians and Italians Are Endeavoring to Have British and French Reach an Agreement—Belgians and Italians Lean Toward the French Proposals.

Paris, Jan. 3.—(By The A. P.)—The prime ministers of France, Great Britain and Belgium, and Marquis Della Torretta, for Italy, emerged this afternoon in a gloomy mood from the first short session of the premiers' council called to solve the reparations complex. They were well night hopeless of agreement, and members of their delegations talked of the conference breaking up in two days.

Premier Poincare is giving a state dinner at the Qual D'Orsay tonight in honor of the conference. The handshake of Premiers Poincare and Bonar Law in the conference today is described as a rather perfunctory affair. None of the pleasantries in which Lloyd George and Briand indulged enlivened the proceedings of the meeting.

The meeting of the premiers today was a continuation of the postponed London conference; it has borne little fruit thus far. Premier Bonar Law remarked that owing to public opinion in France and Great Britain an agreement would be most difficult, if not impossible. M. De Lasteyrie, the French finance minister, who was with Premier Poincare in the meeting, said, extending his arms:

"England and France are as far apart as that."

He immediately proceeded to Elysee Palace to consult with President Millerand, after which a cabinet council was summoned to meet tomorrow morning.

The Belgian and Italian delegates expressed dismay at the unyielding positions taken by Premiers Bonar Law and Poincare, each with the mediating support of their cabinets.

The French, British and Italian plans were laid before the council. The British and French are alike in fixing German reparations at a total of fifty billion gold marks, and similar also in setting up a comprehensive financial control of Germany. They are in direct opposition on the question of penalties. France being for taking so-called productive guarantees in the Rhineland and the Ruhr, while Great Britain would occupy German territories beyond the present zone only upon some future default and with the "unanimous" consent of the allies.

Each presented carefully prepared plans of their governments, outlining extremely divergent methods in comparison with the Italian plan, which endeavors to reconcile the two extremes. M. Poincare announced to the conference that the French government would endeavor to scale down Germany's reparations to 50,000,000,000 gold marks subject to several limitations. This round sum comprises 12,000,000,000 gold marks in Class A reparations bonds and 38,000,000,000 in Class B bonds, already executed by the German government. The Class C bonds totalling 82,000,000,000 gold marks would be put aside for the extinction or adjustment of inter-allied debts.

France would consent to two years' moratorium, but meantime the allies would take over productive guarantees, notably the mines, forests and state properties on the left bank of the Rhine and part of the mines in the Ruhr valley.

Mr. Bonar Law immediately after M. Poincare had outlined the French proposal, brought forward the English plan, which is understood to be widely divergent.

Marquis Della Torretta then presented the Italian scheme which has been revised and is now described as approaching the French view more closely than it does the British.

The conference of allied leaders opened promptly at 2 o'clock this afternoon with Premier Poincare presiding.

The formal gathering was preceded by a number of informal conferences and a meeting of the French cabinet at which the reparations plan to be submitted by Premier Poincare was approved. Shortly before the session opened Lord Crewe, the British ambassador, had a conversation with the French premier.

The British delegation, headed by Prime Minister Bonar Law, was first to arrive at the foreign office, where the sessions are being held. The British were soon followed by the Italian and Belgin representatives.

As soon as the formalities had been completed Premier Poincare presented the French point of view. One of the questions to be decided is whether Dr Karl Bergmann, the German financial expert, who is on his way to Paris shall be allowed to present personally the plan for a reparations settlement which the German government has prepared and has ready for the conference. There seemed to be little likelihood that he would be heard as it was believed the plan ought to be submitted in writing.

The conference adjourned at 4.05 p. m. until tomorrow at 3 p. m., but the delegates remained together for tea.

Plan Presented by France

The French plan presented by Premier Poincare reviews the results of the war and declares that the correct reparations, as provided for by the treaty of Versailles, is not only an indispensable condition to the restoration of French finances, but the only logical means to the restoration of the economic situation in Europe.

The plan says that France is ready to agree that the bonds of the reparations be cancelled in consideration for the cancellation of equal sums of the European inter-allied war debts, provided that that method of payment is approved by the allies. This is equivalent to reducing the local reparations to fifty billion gold marks, in case Great Britain is disposed to cancel the C bonds accepted in payment of the debts due her.

Strict measures to prevent the exodus of capital from Germany, assure the balancing of the budget, stoppage of the issue of paper currency, organization and supervision of German finance by the allies and prohibition of the discounting of treasury bonds by the reichsbag are provided for in this plan.

The plan insists that a moratorium can only be partial, and demands that the expenses of the occupation of the Rhineland must be paid and that deliveries in kind must continue. It proposes that an allied commission with full authority from the German government be sent to the valley of the Rhuhr district to collect the tax on coal production in that region, and that the tax on German exports shall be collected by the allies in foreign money.

The mission to collect the coal tax and taxes on exports, as well as import duties in the Rhineland would be presided over by a Frenchman, though the plan provides that seizure of the guarantees should be made by the allies in common. Premier Poincare estimates the proceeds from the different guarantees as follows:

Direct deliveries, 40,000,000 gold marks; coal deliveries, 260,000,000 marks; nitrate deliveries, 60,000,000 marks; tax on exports, 400,000,000 marks; tax on exports, 400,000,000 marks; coal tax, 120,000,000 marks; divers other collections, 30,000,000 marks—total 1,000,000,000 marks.

As penalties for refusal to accept these conditions for a two years' moratorium, the plan provides for the military occupation of the districts of Essen and Bocum and all the rest of the Valley of the Ruhr, as may be decided upon by Marshal Foch, and the establishment of a customs frontier around all the territory occupied.

In addition to these penalties the docu-

AVIATORS IN FLIGHT FROM GERMANY TO ENGLAND

London, Jan. 2.—The three German aviators who arrived at Choydon yesterday, completing the first post-war German aerial flight to England, were pleasantly surprised at the reception given them. O. J. Merkel, president of the German Aero Union, which plans to arrange a passenger air service between London and Berlin, is describing the forced landing of himself and his companions near Lympne before reaching Croydon, said:

"As we approached the British shores we were somewhat apprehensive as to what our reception would be, but this, to our amusement, was quickly dispelled almost as soon as we touched ground.

"Since there were no landing fields, we were forced to alight in an open field and, it being Sunday, the farmers and their wives and children began gathering around us before we scarcely realized we were on foreign soil. One farmer invited us to tea.

"Shortly afterwards, members of a prominent London Airplane company, learning that we had landed, motored to Lympne and invited us to Folkestone for dinner, and there we enjoyed one of the hospitable New Year eve dinners we have ever had. It was soon clear from their congratulations that they did not believe the myth that Germany was preparing another war."

Merkel admitted that they had flown over with the intention of arranging a London-Berlin service on a purely commercial basis, but declared that, whether they succeeded or failed this time, the war sure their trip marked the beginning of more cordial relations between the two countries and a definite movement to develop international commercial flying on an equal and competitive basis.

MOTION PICTURE ACTORS TO REQUEST 48-HOUR WEEK

New York, January, Jan. 2.—Thirty council members of the Actors Equity Association today began a series of conferences at which they hope to work out plans guaranteeing a 48-hour week to motion picture actors.

A standard form of contract, with a 48-hour clause will be submitted to Will H. Hays, head of the motion picture industry, for his verdict, probably within a month. At equity headquarters it was said reports that a strike was contemplated to back up the demand were absurd.

John Emerson, president of the association, now is in California making a study of conditions in the movie studios.

PAINTING OF THE NATIVITY MAY BE ANCIENT CANTAS

New York, Jan. 2.—Art experts have been asked by the pastor of the Catholic Church of the Assumption in Brooklyn to determine whether a painting of the Nativity, just presented to the chuhch, is the fourth in a series by Correggio, which has been missing for hundreds of years.

The canvas, found in a discarded heap in a small art shop in Brooklyn some years ago by Henry Hymans, a collector, was presented the church by his son.

Two of the Nativity group by Correggio now hang in the Dresden and Parma galleries. A third was destroyed in a church fire in the sixteenth century.

MOTORCYCLIST GETS THREE MONTHS' SENTENCE

New Haven, Jan. 2.—Louis Combipo, of 121 Spring street, Springfield, Mass., arrested here on the charge of being criminally responsible for the accidental death of a friend riding in the sidecar of his motorcycle November 5, was sentenced to three months in the county jail by Judge Isaac Wolfe in the superior court today.

The dead man, Louis Maltone, also of Springfield, was buried from the sidecar under the wheels of a truck when Combino swerved to avoid an accident. Coroner Ell Mix reported that Combino was driving the motorcycle at an excessive rate of speed.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 2.—Alleged to have raised a check from $48.56 to $26,148.56, a eDtroit man was being held by the Cleveland police tonight on suspicion. The check was drawn by a Detroit bond house on a bank of the teity.

Suspicion was aroused here when, after the man had deposited the check at a local bank, he attempted to withdraw $24,000 with which he said he intended to buy Liberty bonds from a Toledo man.

The man, whose name is withheld, declares the check came to him legitimately and that it represents the proceeds from the sale of a Detroit insure business.

J. Ogden Armour, who has directed the destinies of the business since his father, Philip D. Armour, Sr., died in 1901, retires from the presidency and becomes chairman of the board. Philip D. Armour 3rd was designated first vice president.

Mr. White will have under his direction not only Armour & Company of Illinois, with its more than a billion dollars of business each year, but also Armour & Company of Delaware, the newly organized subsidiary. If the proposed purchase of Morris & Company is consummated, Mr. White will be the head of the greatest packing industry ever created.

Mr. White, who is less than 50 years old, received a public school education at Peoria, Ill., the town of his birth and at 17 he went to work on the killing floor of a Peoria packing house. Five years later he came to Chicago to work for Armour & Company as an inspector in the car route department, and a year later he organized and became the first manager of the sheep department. Within ten years, Mr. White was assistant to one of the vice presidents of the company. In January, 1912, they made him a director and two years later gave him a vice presidency.

The passing of J. Ogden Armour from the active control of the company ends, for him, a period of more than thirty-five years devoted to development of the industry. Mr. Armour gave up his last year at Yale to enter the packing plant and learn from the bottom up every detail of the business he was destined to control.

TWO SUICIDES LEAPED FROM MANHATTAN SKYSCRAPERS

New York, Jan. 2.—Age and youth—both tired of living—ended it all today with leaps from Manhattan skyscrapers.

Age dramatically selected the teeming noon hour, at one of the city's busiest spots. Youth plunged to death nine... down an inside court.

The 22-story Municipal building, opposite City Hall Park in the downtown business section, was disgorging its luncheon-hour crowd of stenographers, and thousans of persons were hurrying in and out of the Brooklyn Bridge terminal when a woman's body came whirling down through space.

Falling from the fourteenth story, it struck with a thud a few inches in front of two young women stenographers.

The body was taken to the morgue, where it still lay, unidentified, tonight, physicians said it was the body of a woman of about sixty-five. It was attired from head to foot in threadbare black.

A little later, another ambulance was summoned to the McAlpin hotel, 34th and Broadway. It took away the body of Daniel Paul Jordan, 22, of Yonkers, who had leaped from a window of his eighteenth-floor room in an inside court far below.

Jordan, a former seaman in the United States navy, had been employed until recently as a bell-boy at the Ansonia.

SOFT COAL CONFERENCE OPENS IN CHICAGO TODAY

Washington, Jan. 2.—An obvious necessity exists that employers and employes in the unionized sections of the bituminous coal industry, when representatives still meet in Chicago tomorrow would promptly devise some plan to keep mines in operation after next April 1, according to a telegram sent today to officials of the gatherings by the United States coal commission.

"Business halts while in doubt as to your action, and awaits with anxiety the speedy and successful outcome of your labors," the message, signed by John Hay's Hammond as chairman of the commission declared. "You can contribute to the peace of American economic life by reaching a speedy agreement and avoiding further conflict in the fields under your control. Your agreement will spare the commission the necessity of fixing terms for failure to adjust your differences."

The meeting in Chicago tomorrow has been called as a result of the 1922 strike. Operators and officials of the miners' union who finally came to an agreement last summer for settling the controversy also agreed to hold a joint conference in January to consider methods which might be adopted for negotiating wage contracts to succeed those now in force.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF MOSELEY-HADLEY ENGAGEMENT

New Haven, Jan. 2.—The engagement of Mis Laura Beaumont Hadley, daughter of Arthur Twining Hadley, president emeritus of Yale university, to Nicholas Moseley, an instructor in classics at Yale, was announced here tonight by Mr. and Mrs. Hadley.

Miss Hadley, who was graduated from Vassar in 1920, is connected with the Yale University Press. She is a granddaughter of the late Luzon B. Miesis, former governor of Connecticut. Mrs. Moseley was graduated from Yale in 1919 and became an instructor at the university soon after. During the war he served as an ensign at the United States naval headquarters in London and later was attached as an executive officer to the submarine chaser 262. He is a son of the late James A. Moseley and a grandson of Edward Conigland of North Carolina.

BROKER CHARGED WITH USE OF MAILS TO DEFRAUD

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Fred L. Kriebel, former head of the bond house of Kriebel & Company of New York and Chicago, which failed last March, was arrested tonight on a federal indictment charging use of the mails to defraud. He was released on $10,000 bond.

The firm, with main offices here, failed for $2,308,001.68 with cash assets of $140,000; $460,000 in notes and $500,000 of questionabl paper.

RISKED LIFE IN VAIN ATTEMPT TO SAVE SON

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 2.—John Lesco, father of several children, risked his life in a vain attempt to save nine year old Stanley Kipp this afternoon. Although unable to swim, Lesco plunged into the icy Hudson river when the Kipp lad, coasting on to thin ice, broke through and sank. Vincent Long, who was riding with Kipp, swam to shore.

Orders at Irish Consulate, New York

New York, Jan. 2.—Irish republicans contesting with Free Staters for possession of the Irish consulate tonight picketed city hall, parading in front of the building with placards denouncing "Mayor Hylan's police."

The unusual spectacle attracted a great crowd.

"What is Sir Basil Thompson's mission in the United States?" one banner was inscribed.

Others read:

"Sir Basil is here to teach Mayor Hylan's police 'Black and Tan' methods."

"Sir Basil Thompson of Scotland Yard was entertained by Mayor Hylan's committee while Mayor Hylan's police assaulted Muriel MacSwiney."

"Lieutenant Gegan acts as judge and jury. The American courts to the rear!"

"England did not let Sir Basil Thompson manhandle Mrs. MacSwiney as Mayor Hylan's Lieut. Gegan did."

The two factors declared a temporary truce at the Irish consulate tonight after ra clash for possession which stopped just short of being a riot during the morning. But it was not a friendly truce.

"We're still inside," said Consul Crawford, named as consul by the Free State, who has taken possession of the offices.

"Yes, and we are still standing here," replied Arthur Briscoe, lieutenant to Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, in charge of the republican siege forces, who are trying to get their consular nominee into the consul's chair.

A holiday agreement, signed by the two factions last Saturday, was largely responsible for the near-riot today. It provided that no representative of either side should enter the consulate until nine o'clock today.

Gegan, who brought Mr. Crawford, accompanied by Professor Smiddy, Free State envoy to Washington. They first heard, then saw, a crowd of men and women packed in the narrow hall outside the consulate doors.

Someone recognized them, and as they pushed and pulled their way through the throng to the office doors, they were jeered like human barbarians. Once at the door, Mr. Crawford unlocked it and went inside. But before he could close it, the republicans went in, too.

Mr. Crawford telephoned for police. In a few moments Lieutenant Gegan and his bomb squad arrived and the republicans evacuated. During the evacuation Mrs. MacSwiney says she was roughly handled. She had no marks to prove it, but she insisted she was a casualty, and her followers backed her claim.

While police inside locked the doors, three casual looking men remained outside and mixed with the gesticulating men and women who represented the Irish Republic. One of these, with a tenor voice, sang "Mother Machree." He was applauded vigorously, and greeted as a comrade. He turned out to be one of the plans' clothesman brought by Lieutenant Gegan.

Meanwhile the agents of the building, who had accepted rent from Mr. Crawford, and so were compelled to take cash brought by Mrs. Gertrude Norkiss of the republicans, decided the crowd on the tenth floor was a fire menace. Sergeant Dougherty, head of the uniformed police, afreed so everyone was cleared out. But the republicans were persistent. Men and women—some of them elderly women—walked the ten flights of stairs to get back into the argument when the elevators refused to carry them.

About noon a delegation of thirteen irate republicans visited Mayor Hylan. He told them possession was nine points of the law and he didn't want to get mixed up in the affair any way.

There the matter stood all day. Mr. Crawford went out to lunch with a detective. Lieutenant Gegan met with him when, at 3 o'clock he decided to declare an already locked-up office and go home.

He left two Free State guards inside. Two republican guards remained outside. The detectives are sprinkled everywhere. So are uniformed policemen.

So far there has been no legal action. Neither side wants to start. But each insists it will not give way. And the matter rests as Mr. Crawford and Mr. Brisco put it when the former left.

The Free Staters are inside. The republicans are standing just outside the door.

DELEGATES AT LAUSANNE FEEL MORE HOPEFUL

Lausanne, Jan. 2 (By the A. P.)—Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation to the Near East conference, said tonight that he had no confirmation of reports reaching Lausanne by way of London that a revolution had broken out in Mosul.

Although the Turkish delegates still insisted that the conference was in a delicate situation, a more hopeful feeling prevailed among the other delegations, some of whose representatives predicted that peace would be signed at Lausanne within three weeks.

The developments indicate that the allies are seeking to counterbalance the pessimistic prognostications of the Turks by pointing out that real progress has been made on many questions and that the situation is not at all desperate. The co-ordination committee is actively at work drafting a preliminary treaty.

The fact seems to be that everybody still is exceedingly nervous and anxiously awaiting the developments of the Paris reparations conference and the debate in the Angora assembly. An attempt today to settle the question of the patriarch did not succeed. The Greeks suggested the appointment of the grand vicar of Constantinople who, with the patriarch remaining as the religious leader, would take over all administrative matters, but the Turks were opposed. The question will be considered at a later meeting.

MISS JANE ADDAMS CALLS UNITED STATES RECALCITRANT

London, Jan. 2 (By the A. P.)—On the eve of starting her tour of the world, Miss Jane Addams of Chicago, addressing a meeting in London today, referred to the United States as a recalcitrant country, but predicted that it would enter the league of nations.

Miss Addams said she saw increasing indications toward such a movement, first, in the influence of the farmer bloc in congress; second, through eastern bankers becoming quite vocal for participation in European affairs, and, third, through the influence of the women voters, whose hearts had been wrung by the sufferings of the ill-fed and uneducated children of Europe and who would become ashamed of their entry into politics unless they were able to achieve something in this direction.

McKoin Willing to Return to Louisiana

Asserts That He Must First be Released by the Baltimore Court.

Baltimore, Jan. 2.—Dr. E. M. McKoin, wanted in Louisiana for alleged murder in connection with the Morehouse parish kidnappings, is willing to return to Louisiana voluntarily but must first be released by the Baltimore court in whose custody he now is.

Governor Ritchie informed Governor Parker that the requisition papers in his hands were not sufficient for the reason that the affidavits are made on information and belief and not by any one who had any personal knowledge of the alleged crime.

If Governor Parker is willing to release Dr. McKoin, the physician wants to leave tomorrow, Governor Ritchie said in his despatch.

If the case comes to trial before Governor Ritchie, the Maryland executive told Governor Parker that his decision accordingly would be against granting requisition at this time but that he would hold Dr. McKoin for a reasonable time in order to give Louisiana authorities the opportunity to submit competent affidavit.

Dr. McKoin, Governor Ritchie said, while resisting on his extradition rights nevertheless was quite willing to return to Louisiana voluntarily but could not do so until released by the court.

"Will you consent to his release so that he may return to Louisiana, and will you authorize your deputy officers to accompany him there?" Governor Ritchie asked.

"If you are willing to do this, he wants to leave tomorrow."

PART OF FEDERAL AGENTS IN MER ROUGE HEARINGS

Washington, Jan. 2.—Federal agents who are in Louisiana in connection with the situation growing out of the Mer Rouge killings are there "to determine whether the orderly functions of the federal courts have been or may be interfered with," it was said officially today at the department of justice.

Officials of the department, however, emphasized that there had been no developments so far reported to them which altered the announced decision of the administration to leave the maintenance of order strictly in the hands of the state authorities.

ARTIST FRANK CARMAN HELD FOR $150,000 JEWEL ROBBERY

New York, Jan. 2.—Frank Carman, an artist, tonight was placed under arrest, charged with grand larceny in "having acted in concert with two others not yet apprehended" in the theft of $150,000 in jewels and cash from Mrs. Charles P. Huso Schoellkopf, wife of a wealthy Buffalo broker, during a New Year's party in Carman's apartment off Fifth avenue.

Carman, who was placed under arrest after nearly seven hours of grilling at the hands of detectives, was reported to have categorically denied he knew anything of the robbery, although admitting he was host at a party attended by Mrs. Schoellkopf in the building where she was attacked, chloroformed and stripped of her gems. The detectives confronted Carman with what they allege to be a record of his arrest in 1913 on a charge of grand larceny preferred by a man at the Claridge hotel from whom $4,000 was stolen. The charge had been dismissed.

In a heated denial of statements made to him by police inspectors Schoellkopf, husband of the robbery victim, tonight revealed that Carman had accompanied him and his wife on a trip to Paris last summer.

"I was with them. They did not travel without me," he declared. "In fact I paid Carman's passage so that my wife might have a good dancing partner."

Schoellkopf denied the jewels had been insured for $400,000, asserting the amount was considerably less.

The language of the denial seemed to indicate that the missing gems were worth far more than the $150,000 estimated by the police.

Yonkers, N. Y., Jan. 2.—A member of the staff of Major General Robert Lee Bullard will come here from Washington tomorrow to investigate the use of a United States army truck, driven by an enlisted man in uniform, in alleged bootlegging activities New Year's eve which resulted in a pistol battle and the killing of Stephen Piraino. Police Captain Cooper directed tonight.

The general's aide, said Captain Cooper, will interrogate the eight men under arrest, among whom the police believe is the man who killed Piraino. All were held without bail while authorities sought two more men suspected of having been involved in the affair.

FOUR MEN KILLED BY FALL OF 165-TON HYDRAULIC PRESS

Dr. Arthur E. Bridge, director of the New England district of the U. S. Veterans' bureau, in an interview made public in Boston, said that he had no intention of resigning.

Every federal judge in New England was in Boston yesterday when for the first time on record the federal circuit court of appeals heard two cases simultaneously.

William Zerrenner, driver of a Connecticut company's bus, was exonerated by Coroner J. J. Phelan of being criminally responsible for the death of James Healy of Danbury on Dec. 26.

A letter from the mother of the man he was convicted of murdering, assuring him he would be saved from the electric chair, was received at Sing Sing by Rutger Warder from Mrs. Linus Werner, of Ilion, N. Y.

Governor-elect Charles A. Templeton, interviewed in Waterbury, admitted that the proposed three-man commission to direct the affairs of the state highway commission probably would have his support.

Dr. Samuel W. Stratton assumed the presidency of Massachusetts Institute of Technology yesterday at a convocation of faculty and students. The formal inauguration will take place in the spring.

Federal Judge Knox appointed Kenneth Spence, as receiver in equity for the Terminal and Town Taxicab corporation, controlling the Black and White Cab company, one of the largest New York taxi organizations.

Judge Fred F. Stickel, Jr., in Newark, N. J., late yesterday refused the request of counsel for William Battles, 19 years old negro, indicted for the murder of Mrs. Charles F. Baigham last Wednesday, to postpone the case. The trial is set for Thursday.

Victor H. Arnold, the banker-preacher from Wisconsin, who was arrested recently at Bayside, L. I., on an indictcharging use of the mails to defraud investors in the Madison Bond company, produced $25,000 bail and was released from the Raymond street jail, Brooklyn.

Miss May Peterson of the Metropolitan Opera company filed suit for $100,000 damages against the Bank of Taiwan, Limited, of New York city and Fred W. Scott, for injuries sustained when she was struck by an automobile owned by the bank and driven by Scott, last April.

Raymon R. Ellis, a seaman second class on the battleship Nort hDakota, was placed under guard in Boston on request of New Jersey officials who want him to answer to a charge of murder for the killing of Christina Hervisch at Hackensack.

Mayor Curley of Boston wrote to George P. Graham, Canadian minister of militia and defense, suggesting that the dominion present to Boston in time for this year's celebration of the Bunker Hill anniversary a cannon said to have been captured by the British in that historic battle.

COMPLAIN OF TOO MANY RADIO BROADCASTING STATIONS

Secretary Hoover Tells House Merchant Marine Committee That 569 Stations Are Undermining the Whole Wireless Art—Demands Are Being Made That Some Regulatory Action be Taken—Declares That 21,000 Wireless Transmission Stations Are Filling the Air With Bedlam.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Control must be established over the bedlam filling the air from 21,000 radio transmitting stations, Secretary Hoover of the commerce department told the house merchant marine committee today at hearings on the Kellogg-White federal radio control bill. Representatives of amateurs and various others interested in wireless communications also were heard by the committee.

The bill provides that the commerce department shall have supervision over all radio communication, assigning wave lengths, approving apparatus, licensing operators and otherwise supervising wireless communication to bring order out of the present chaos of jazz bands, sermons, crop reports, sports news services, concerts and what not running simultaneously on the same wave lengths.

Vigorous protest was entered by the war and navy departments against a provision of the bill which stipulates that whenever government apparatus is used for other than government business, it shall come under supervision of the commerce department. The navy, represented by Rear Admiral Ziegemeier, protested that navy operators, in many cases, would have to obtain license from the commerce department if the section was retained. Secretary Hoover told the committee he would confer with Secretary Denby in an effort to reach an accord on that feature, but he insisted that the navy should not be permitted unlimited privileges to the discomfiture of other users of wireless.

Secretary Hoover said 569 broadcasting stations were in operation and that the interference in the air came largely from them. This broadcasting problem, he said, is undermining the useful possibilities of the whole art of wireless. Thousands of requests, he said, are arriving each month from all parts of the country, that some regulatory action should be taken. Some cities, he said, have as many as twenty broadcasting stations, each interfering with the others.

K. P. Gregg, representing the National Radio Chamber of Commerce; Paul Godley, representing a number of radio publications; Hiram P. Maxim of Hartford, representing the American Radio Relay League and representatives of telegraph and telephone companies agreed that some legislation should be enacted immediately to untangle the situation.

SENATE WILL GRAPPLE WITH THE SHIPPING BILL TODAY

Washington, Jan. 2.—Another lap in the senate obstacle race of the administration shipping bill is to start tomorrow, but the measure apparently is no nearer the final decision than when it was introduced.

Reassembling after the holidays, the senate is to take up the administration measure again tomorrow, but leaders profess scant hope for actual consideration until after disposition of farm relief legislation, which is not expected from committee until late this week or early next week.

Although the shipping bill will be technically before the senate, debate tomorrow is expected to deal first with the separate resolution of Senator Jones, republican, Washington, in charge of the shipping measure, proposing a special committee to revise the senate rules to permit a majority to obtain action and prevent obstruction while, at the same time, protecting proper rights of minorities. His rules amendment plan, however, would require a committee to report in the next congress and would put first procedure with the shipping bill during this congress.

Debate on the shipping measure itself will continue on the motion of Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, for its displacement in favor of his bill to create an agricultural marketing corporation. It is not believed that even the Norris motion will be disposed of until after the shipping measure is laid aside for the farm credits bill.

The shipping bill also is to be laid aside in favor of annual appropriations bills, two of which are scheduled for submission to the senate this week.

The president, it was indicated, might take some time in the selection of a successor to the retiring secretary whose resignation constitutes the second break within the administration's official family since Mr. Harding assumed office. Reports have been current that a shifting of cabinet assignments might result, by which Secretary Hoover would vacate the commerce department to take over the direction of interior affairs. Julius H. Barnes, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, might succeed to Mr. Hoover's post, it has been said in this connection.

At the same time, a number of men associated with the administration have been named since Secretary Fall's retirement came under discussion as possible appointees for the interior post, without any transfer within the president's cabinet. Among them are Senators New of Indiana, and Kellogg of Minnesota, and Representative Mondell of Wyoming, republican house leader, all of whom will retire from congress next March, and Carmi Thompson, of Ohio, who was the republican candidate for governor of that state in the last election.

THRILLING CAPTURE OF BANDIT ON WHITE WAY, NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 2.—The Gay White Way trembled today when an alleged hijacker fired several shots into a crowd pursuing him, hit a man and woman, and fled in a taxicab he commandeered.

A few minutes later it experienced a thrill when a policeman, giving chase in another car through tangled traffic, jumped to the running board of the fleeing machine and beat its occupant unconscious with the butt of his own revolver.

The man, who identified himself as John Russo of West Orange, N. J., was alleged by the police to have been caught in an ineffectual attempt to break into a theatrical booming house in West Forty-fourth street. He broke through a crowd which surged about him, leveled his automatic and fired ten shots. Dashing to Broadway, he pointed his weapon at the first taxi driver he saw and forced him to race downtown.

Patrolman Halstead, off duty and riding in his own motor, caught sight of the taxi and, seeing the crowd headed by several policemen running after it, gave chase. At Forty-third street the cars came abreast. Russo pointed his pistol at Halstead and pulled the trigger—it was empty.

Halstead jammed on his brakes and took a flying leap. He landed on the taxicab's running board, pulled the empty weapon from Russo's hand, and, using it as a club, beat his quarry to unconsciousness.

The woman struck by one of Russo's shots suffered a slight flesh wound. The man was hig in the hip.

TWO MARINE DECISIONS BY THE SUPREME COURT

Washington, Jan. 2.—Two questions which have been in dispute among admiralty experts and shipping men were answered today by the supreme court.

In a case brought by Blamberg Brothers against the United States, and appealed from Baltimore, the court held that legal proceedings cannot properly be brought against the federal government in the courts of this country for damages to the cargo of a government vessel which at the time is in a foreign port. The lower court, whose decision was sustained, had thrown out the case because the vessel involved already had been attached in the court of Cuba and hence was not, when the suit was filed, within the jurisdiction of any American court.

The other case involved teh issue whether a steamship can be compelled to accept a full load under a charter, and whether refusal to do so creates a lien upon the ship. The court declared unsound the opinion of the lower courts in a proceeding by Osaka Shoshen Kaisha and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company against the Pacific Export Lumber company, to the effect that a ship is not liable in "rem" for breaches of an affreightment contract so long as it remains wholy executory, but that she becomes liable therefor whenever she partly executes it as by the taking on board same part of the cargo.

The court held that the contract of affreightment itself creates no lien and that the obligation between ship and cargo is mutual and reciprocal and does not attach until the cargo is on board or in the master's custody.

NORWICH BULLETIN
21 Church Street Telephone 1023

The Willimantic Rotary club meeting held Tuesday noon was well attended. President Valentine L. Murphy was in charge. Frank H. Foss had Attorney Howard Bradford of the state's attorney's office in Putnam, as his guest and William E. Jackson of New London was also a guest of the club. The resignation of T. Frank Cunningham from the club was read and accepted. Eleven of the members present signified their intentions to attend the inter-city meeting of the Norwich, New London and Willimantic clubs at Norwich on the evening of Wednesday, January 10. Rev. Harry S. McCready announced the meeting of the community forum to be held next Sunday night at the town hall and at which Professor Harry F. Ward of Union Theological Seminary of New York city will be the speaker and a band concert will be rendered by the Boy Scout band under the direction of Charles N. U. Wheeler. It was announced that at the next club meeting Judge Otto B. Robinson will talk on probate matters. Maurice S. Leonard will give the business talk at the next meeting and William A. Dawson will make the response.

Discussions were then brought up in regard to the program to be followed at future meetings. The boys' work committee will have charge of the program at the last January meeting. The announcement that a son had been born to Pianist and Mrs. John Quinlan was greeted with applause and congratulations. Secretary Charles W. Hill passed out application cards and announced that a meeting of the membership committee will be held soon.

James P. Bath of the H. C. Murray Company then gave the business talk of the day. The talk was exceedingly humorous and the audience were kept in an uproar. As an opening to his talk Mr. Bath gave the history of the company and of Hugh Clark Murray who was its founder. Mr. Murray came from Scotland in 1871, and located in Boston where he was employed by Hogg, Brown & Taylor for two years. He then located in Providence and in 1879 came to this city and leased the store now occupied by the Lombardo fruit store in the Card building, and when the Opera block House was completed he leased the store now occupied by the Bay State Drug store and soon expanded it to the use of two stores. Upon the completion of the Murray block on March 17, 1894, he removed to the present quarters of the store at the corner of Main and Church streets and in 1905 the company was incorporated. Mr. Bath then gave examples of Mr. Murray's fair way of conducting his dealings and then described the eleven departments of the store and his description included no end of humorous wit. He concluded by stating the policies of the Murray company as being as follows: Towards customers, a square deal and no misrepresentation of merchandise, towards employes, treatment as one big family, towards debtors a spirit of helpfulness and towards competitors, a spirit of friendliness.

Raymond A. Parker then told what he would do if he were engaged in the same line of business but began by complimenting Jim Bath on his oratory. Ray said that he would install a more accessible cashier's booth and would eliminate the one-way door which makes it possible to get in but impossible to get out.

A meeting of the board of directors followed the regular meeting.

The criminal session of the January term of the Windham county superior court opened Tuesday forenoon in the superior court room in this city with Judge George E. Hinman on the bench. Preceding the opening, prayer was offered by Rev. Walter F. Borchert, rector of St. Paul's church.

Stokes Watson, a well known local taxi driver, had a narrow escape from serious injury Tuesday morning shortly after 10 o'clock when his public service car skidded to one side on the ice down the incline to the east end of the North Windham bridge. The heavy car slid down the bank, broke through the fence and turned over on its side. Neighbors who saw the accident came out but found that Watson was uninjured.

Watson stated that he was on his way to North Windham at the time and when the car began to skid he lost control of the machine. The right side of the car was badly crushed in and the fenders and running board bent. Otherwise there was no damage and after being hauled back on the road the car came back to this city under its own power.

In police court Tuesday morning George Brown was charged with intoxication and resistance of an officer while making the arrest. Brown stated that he might as well plead guilty, although when accosted by the officer he slipped on the ice and fell towards him, and the officer mistook the action as one of resistence. Brown was fined $5 and costs for intoxication and $5 for resistance to an officer. The total assessment amounted to $18.15 and was paid.

For the purpose of taxation the board of equalization has fixed the value of the shares of the capital stock of the Windham National Bank at $280 and of the Willimantic Trust Company at $150.

JOE MOORE LEADS IN MID-ATLANTIC SKATING TOURNAMENT AT LAKE PLACID

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 2—Joe Moore, of New York, tonight was leading in points for the middle Atlantic speed skating championship with a score of 30. Moore won the 880 yard and one-mile events on today's card, and took second place in the 220 yard race. Trailing Moore were Charles Jewtraw, of Lake Placid, with 70 points, and Valentine Bialis, also of Lake Placid, with 60. The opening program was run off today after postponement from yesterday because of adverse weather conditions.

Charles Gorman, of St. John's, N. B., won his preliminary heats with apparent ease, but fell in the semi-final of the 440 yard event and was taken to St. Luke's hospital with a gashed leg. He is expected in the races tomorrow, however. Paul Forsman, of New York, also was forced out by injuries sustained in a fall.

OPINIONS DIFFER ON RESULT OF DEMPSEY-LEWIS BOUT

Jack Dempsey, the world's heavyweight champion boxer, and Ed Lewis, the world's heavyweight champion grappler, matched according to reports, to meet early this year at Wichita, Kan., is the new version of an old story that has come to the east coast.

And, as in former seasons, it is as interesting as ever, and, as of yore, has started the followers of both branches of strenuous sport arguing.

Exponents of each are perfectly sure, also satisfied, that their respective champion, Dempsey or Lewis, is bound to be returned the victor.

Followers of boxing who have studied the situation at all are almost to a man of the opinion that Dempsey will put Lewis out cold with the first punch. They admit that Lewis is a formidable opponent, that his headlock if applied to the boxing champion would lay even "Black Jack" low, but, as in the case of the cat who was to have the bell tied to its neck, Lewis must first get on his headlock. It is figured that as Lewis approached to clamp on the lock, Dempsey would meet him with a swat to the jaw, and the curtains would be drawn for the grappling champion.

Several Gotham writers, undoubtedly well versed in both branches of the sport, have gone on record to the extent of declaring that in the event of the combat being waged on its merits, Dempsey would win by a knock-out without Lewis getting a single effective hold.

So much for the theory part of it, but it is related by students of wrestling, that dating back as far as the gladiatorial games, when unarmed wrestlers were pitted against the pugilists wearing the cestus, the wrestlers generally triumphed over the fighting men to the extent of leaving them with necks broken on the sand of the arena. Advancing the argument to nearer the present day, it is told that a dozen years ago when Bill Papke was a chap to be reckoned with in the middleweight branch of boxing, he tackled the veteran matman Farmer Burns in a mixed bout. The outcome was the throwing of Papke inside of two minutes, and, to make it perfect Burns took from his tights a bit of rope and tied the boxer's hands together.

By the writers in favor of the boxer beating the wrestler, it is generally assumed that Lewis will take some kind of a flying leap at Dempsey for the purpose of securing the headlock, the fact being entirely lost sight of that there are several hundred different holds in wrestling and that the champion is acquainted with quite an array of them.

But, instance on the bell or the word begin the bout, we will suppose that Lewis, instead of leaping at Dempsey, should take it into his head to drop to the floor and roll into the champion, or again, make a dive for Jack's legs. All fine if Jack can step fast enough and avoid the dive, but suppose for the moment, that he should fail. Were Lewis to get him by either leg or ankle, all of the punching power of the fighting champion would be of no avail, for, under the rules he would be barred from hitting the "Strangler" while the latter was on the floor. There would be nothing to prevent Lewis, however, from yanking Dempsey off his feet, and there isn't the slightest question but what Ed can pull any boxer or wrestler off his feet in the game today.

Once on the mat Dempsey would be helpless, for, even though able to hit his adversary, which is extremely doubtful, the rules of boxing would prevent him from doing so.

Whatever the outcome, as the proposed battle will bring together two world's champions, kings in their respective divisions of sport for the first time in history, the test between them will be eagerly watched.

FORDHAM COMMITTEE BUSY WITH PLANS FOR MEET

Fordham University's athletic committee has been exceedingly busy during the last few days rounding up the entries for its big indoor meet at the 22nd Regiment Armory, Jan. 13.

The big feature will be the series of sprints, at 75, 90 and 100 yards, in which seven stars will compete. The field includes Bob McAllister, national 100-yard champion; Eddie Farrell, national indoor 100-yard titleholder; Al LeConey, intercollegiate champion; Loren Murchison, champion and record holder; Boots Lever, Jackson Scholz and Sol Butler.

Several other events will be almost on a par with the sprints for the class of competition. In the 1000-yard run there will be such stars as Jack Sellers, Sid Leslie, Mike Devanney and Willie Sullivan. The first three are well known to followers of athletics, while Sullivan, who represents the Paulist A. C., has been making a strong bid for the limelight in the past year.

The one mile walk will see all the popular favorites including Willie Plant, Joe Pearman, Dick Remer and Wm Rolker. Plenty of action is assured when these veteran "peds" get together and they will have the special incentive of striving for most valuable prizes. The prizes in this event, as in all the open events, will be a solid gold diamond set medal to first, a sterling silver sapphire set medal to second and a bronze ruby set medal to third.

Another event which should prove popular is the four mile run which will attract the leading long distance runners in the country. Among the stars entered are Willie Ritoli, national long distance champion, and George Cornelia of the New York A. C. A four mile run is something of a novelty for indoor competition, but Coach Weber decided to list it because of the noticeable dearth of long distance material in this country. Weber, who went abroad with the 1920 Olympic team, is very well acquainted with the long distance situation in America.

Another popular event on the program is the 220-yard handicap which will see Willie Farley, the new national senior 440 yard champion in action. Entries have been sent to 60 colleges for the medley college relay and it is certain that the champion team of Georgetown will compete. Walter Higgins has also assured Fordham of the entry of Columbia University.

CALIFORNIANS ONLY TEAM TO WIN IN EAST-WEST GAMES

San Francisco, Jan. 2—The University of Southern California, which defeated Pennsylvania State college 14 to 3 yesterday at Pasadena, Cal., was the only Pacific Coast institution to win in three New Year's day games which closed the 1922 football season.

Except for the first quarter, when Mike Palm, Penn State quarterback, drop kicked a field goal from the 19 yard line, the University of Southern California gained consistently through the Pennsylvania state line.

Scott High School of Toledo, Ohio, which already held the high school championship of the east, south and middlewest, completed its conquest of the country by winning 32 to 0 from the Corvallis, Oregon, high school, the far western champions. The game was played at Corvallis.

The football eleven of Pomona college, an institution situated at Claremont, Cal., lost to the Hawaii All-Star team at Honolulu, 20 to 14.

CUBS HAVE SEVERAL NOTABLES ON TEAM

Chicago's National League baseball club is long on champions. It claims to have the tallest and shortest men in the major leagues and also the strongest player.

Ernest Osborne, a pitcher, standing 6 feet 5 1-2 inches is his stocking feet, undoubtedly is the tallest player in the majors. Earl Adams, who came to the Cubs from Wichita Falls, Tex., is a second baseman and measures only 5 feet 4 inches.

Lawrence "Hack" Miller, who came from the Pacific Coast League, is said to be the strongest man in baseball. He is the son of Sebastian Miller, who for years was known about Chicago and the middle West as the "strong man" and whose tests of strength are well remembered by the old timers. Hack inherited much of his parent's make-up.

KEELER'S STAND AT PLATE VERY PECULIAR

New York, January 2—Old-time baseball lovers declared today that a fitting appreciation that might be chiselled into the monument of Wee Willie Keeler, who died at his Brooklyn home yesterday, could be—"He hit 'em where they ain't". Keeler's stand at the plate was one of the most peculiar in baseball. He stood erect, his bat "choked" and straight against his slim body, flattooted, he toed the batter's deadline. Then he turned only his head toward the pitcher.

The boxman twirled to a frail side of a body that really seemed to conceal the bat. There was no waiting or theatrical threat of a hit. When the ball came steaming to the plate, Keeler met it this way or that, full force, tap, half swing, or poke as the emergency prompted him.

He was a master workman.

THE FOUR-MILE RACE MAY BE ROWED AGAIN

New York, Jan. 2—The intercollegiate varsity race next June will be rowed over a course of four miles, instead of three, if present plans materialize.

Morton G. Bogue, of Columbia, chairman of the board of stewards of the intercollegiate Rowing Association, today declared that there was strong sentiment toward returning to the four-mile race, which prevailed until 1916. Definite action, Mr. Bogue pointed out, would not be taken on the proposal until the stewards held their annual meeting in New York, about January 20.

The desire for the longer distance among rowing officials was declared to be based on their belief that the added mile did not work an undue hardship on the oarsmen and that the four-mile test was more satisfactory.

MANY NOMINATIONS FOR 1925 PIMLICO FUTURITY

Baltimore, Jan. 2—Many interesting Nominations for the 1925 Pimlico Futurity are disclosed in the list made public today by the Maryland Jockey club.

Samuel D. Riddle has named ten mares bred to Man O' War, the 3 year old champion of 1921, and Walter M. Jeffords has named six bred to the "wonder horse of the age." Mrs. Jeffords nominated seven mares bred to Golden Broom.

J. K. L. Ross, the Canadian sportsman, listed mares bred to Sir Barton and Cudyel.

Harry Payne Whitney was the largest nominator to the 1925 futurity, having named 102 mares.

BOSTON A. A. HOLDS CANADIANS TO TIE

Boston, Jan. 2—Boston Athletic association hockey team tonight held the crack university of Toronto team to a tie, 2 goals all. The game went two five-minute periods over time. The scoring was by Westman and Hudson for Toronto, and Small and Enright for Boston. Enright's tying score came within 54 seconds of the end of the third 15-minute playing period and when Boston had only five men on the ice.

A few seconds before the close of the last of the overtime periods Small dribbled past every Toronto player but the goalkeeper Thompson, and the latter was able to stop a score only by sitting on the puck.

MIKE BURKE KNOCKS OUT GEORGE SHADE

JOIE RAY HAS BEEN RESTORED TO GOOD AMATEUR STANDING

New York, Jan. 2—Joie W. Ray, of Chicago, crack runner, has been restored to good standing in amateur ranks as a result of refunding $100 which it was charged he received through exorbitant expense claims, it was announced today by Frederick W. Rubien, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Ray was suspended in November by the A. A. U. for the rest of 1922, with reinstatement depending upon a refund of the money involved. The national mile champion's check reached New York late Saturday but because of the holidays its receipt was not known until today. His reinstatement became effective yesterday, however.

Jo Loomis, who with his brother, Frank, was temporarily banned for reasons similar to those in Ray's case has gained reinstatement by payment of $5. Frank Loomis, who was charged with receiving $20 excessively, has become permanently suspended because of failure to make any refund. It is pointed out, however, that he already had forfeited his amateur status by being engaged as a professional coach.

MANY CHANGES IN BANTAM CLASS IN 1922

While the year almost concluded many little fellows have been found to be on the downward grade, while some others, notably Irish Johnny Curtin, of Jersey City, and Pancho Villa are surging upward rapidly.

Curtin is today probably the most sensational bantamweight in the country and a pretty good bet to annex the title before long.

During the last twelve months almost all the veteran stars have lost their brilliance and are beginning to tarnish. Even Joe Lynch, the bantamweight champion, who won back his laurels from Johnny Buff, an "old man" in ring terms, is far removed from the aggressive youth of other years.

Lynch is Going Back

Lynch showed in his most recent encounter—last week against Midget Smith—that he is really to be bowled over by the first aggressive, hard-hitting youngster who comes along. And at present, Jersey City's entry, Irish Johnny Curtin looks like that lad.

Pancho Villa, the little Filipino, too, looks as though he would make the grade if he could add a couple more pounds of solid flesh to his muscular frame.

Burman Holds Form

Wolfe seems to have retained a lot of his class, but he is growing and is now a featherweight; Roy Moore has quit as a result of batterings in recent fights; Pete Herman's eyes have gone back on him; Midget Smith seems to have passed top form; Pal Moore is still the same flashy performer in spots, but isn't consistent.

Of the veterans only Joe Burman seems to have held his form. But the Chicagoan never was a pleasing performer because of his clinching and holding style of fighting.

But the fans in the east are looking to Johnny Curtin as the new boss of the bantamweight class. Curtin is pointed for Joe Lynch and hopes to land such a bout shortly after New Years.

From Fighting District

Curtin was produced in a district which has sent several fighters into the boxing game—notably Frankie Burns, Joe Shugrue and Young Rector. Johnny is twenty-six years old and has been boxing for ten years—only five of which, however, were in the professional game.

Curtin knocked about the gymnasiums and small clubs during 1917, not gaining much attention. He is a war veteran and saw considerable action in France. He enlisted early in 1918.

He went to France as a casual ticketed to the 37th Division. He was sent up to the lines shortly after reaching France and saw service at Soissons, Chateau Thiery and in the Argonne.

Curtin returned to this country in 1919 and after drawing his discharge resumed fighting with his fists. He has been a success ever since and cropped his career by stopping "Pee Wee" Keiser, a sturdy Westerner, recently.

Barber Goes to Dodgers

Chicago, Jan. 2—Outfielder Turner Barber of the Chicago Nationals today was released to the Brooklyn Nationals in exchange for Outfielder Hood, who was recalled by the Dodgers from the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League. Hood will go to the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League in part payment for Pitcher Nick Dumovich, it was announced by President Veeck today.

BASEBALL WORLD TO PAY TRIBUTE TO KEELER

New York, Jan. 2—Baseball and other organizations in greater New York were preparing tonight to pay homage to the memory of "Wee Willie" Keeler, one of the greatest batsmen of all time, who died in Brooklyn yesterday of heart disease after a lingering illness.

Officers of the three major league clubs here, the New York Giants and Yankees and the Brooklyn Nationals, besides John A. Heydler, president of the National League, planned to attend Keeler's funeral, which will be held Thursday morning.

The Order of Elks, of which the former Baltimore Oriole star was a member, announced that ritual services would be held tomorrow night.

MANY PROMINENT ATHLETES PREPARED AT POMFRET

Pomfret, Jan. 2—The elevation of W. N. Mallory of the position of captain of the Yale football team for next season was particularly gratifying to Pomfret School of which he is an alumnus, incidentally. Mallory makes the fourth former Pomfret student to be elected captain of a Yale or Harvard major sport team within the last two years. The others were C. C. Buell, Yale crew; Harvard football captain Wendell Davis. Buell was crew leader in 1920, and George Appleton captain of the 1922 Harvard varsity eight. Buell and Mallory were sport captains and teammates at Pomfret.

The Pomfret teams are coached by former Princetonian, Charles D. Lewis. Although the enrollment is limited to 150 boys, Pomfret's list of athletic heroes is larger than that of most of the large preparatory schools. A partial list includes Richard Hyde, brilliant all-round New York athlete; William Robinson, football star and varsity quarterback; Johnny Mason, flashy hockey player on Pomfret teams; Jesse Hoyt, and Hamilton, Princeton baseball captains of 1917 and 1918, respectively, and Charles Townsend, present star pitcher at Princeton.

Frederick Dumaine, outstanding athlete in recent Pomfret teams, will enter college next fall. It was reported that he would enter Princeton, although he may decide to matriculate at Harvard.

BIG CARNIVAL OF WINTER SPORTS AT GREENFIELD

Greenfield, Mass., Jan. 2—This town through the activity of an enthusiastic Winter Sports committee of the Greenfield chamber of commerce, is making plans for one of the most elaborate Winter Carnivals to be held anywhere in New England and promises to wrest the honors of the White Mountains from them up until this year, which is about as far south as [illegible] could be expected.

Of a most successful [illegible] of a most successful toboggan chute in America, built on the side of Rocky Mountain Scout Tower. The mountain road and around the [illegible] on a fast race track, furnishing plenty of excitement without danger, a ski jump for amateurs; and [illegible] skating rinks covering seven acres, all of these facilities being lighted up at night at bright as day.

The Winter Carnival will be an intense three day program of "winter sports," starting Friday noon, Jan. 12, with a big parade, in which no vehicles on wheels will be allowed, from the ice castle which has been built on the common to the fair grounds, where that veteran horseman, Roger Rourke, will stage four events of the Eastern racing circuit to be seen this winter, including the entry of that champion ice horse, Carter June. There will be a match race between Senator John W. Haigis and John W. Smead, president of Greenfield's First National bank, which has created a great deal of interest locally; Arthur T. Wright's famous dog team, led by that champion Chamonix all descended from the North Pole pack of the arctic explorer, the late Robert E. Peary, will be in exhibition at the park. Other features of the program the first will be skijoring, ski and snowshoe races, concluded by a parade back to town.

During the evening there will be a torchlight snow shoe parade through the woods and parks, tobogganing, skiing, zip sliding, and skating, the first day being wound up with an immense bonfire near the tobogan chute and a big snowshoeing-off party.

Saturday's program will be staged at the Highland Park skating rink. It will include a hockey game between Springfield and Hartford, skating races and fancy skating by some of the best experts including "Eddie" Jones direct from the Hippodrome, New York, former skating partner of Charlotte. Saturday evening there will be a big carnival dance in the Armory with the best orchestra obtainable and everyone dressed in knickers and winter sports togs.

Sunday's program will consist of exhibition and fancy skating at the skating rink; and organized snowball fight; a baseball game on snow shoes; tobogganing, skiing, zip sliding and snowshoeing.

The town will be decorated for the Carnival as it never has been before, with six miles of laurel rope festooned from lamp post to lamp post back and forth across the sidewalks through the business section, and out to the toboggan chute and skating rink. There will be rows of evergreen trees planted up and down both sides of the toboggan chute decorated with colored lights, and strings of colored lights will be draped around Pat's Sea tower on the top of the mountain. The same decorating scheme will be carried out around the skating rink and in the Armory for the carnival dance. The Ice Castle on the common will be lit up with colored lights, and stormed with roman candles, the charge being led by the Pleomegan Red Men in full regalia Saturday evening. There will be continuous band concerts all during the Carnival, which a number of people are expected to attend from Norwich.

DEMPSEY MAY FIGHT BECKETT OR SMITH SOON

When Jack Dempsey arrives in New York from Los Angeles this week he will find waiting for him an offer for a bout in London, with the winner of the approaching Joe Beckett-Dick Smith heavyweight title contest. This was announced by Dan McKetrick, the champion's Eastern representative.

The offer, which is from Charles Rose, manager of the Crystal Palace, carries with it a guarantee of $40,000 and 37 1-2 per cent. of the gate receipts—the bout to be staged during Derby Week in May.

McKetrick said he was informed that the Crystal Palace had a capacity of 50,000 and standing room for an additional 20,000.

It became known simultaneously that prospects of seeing Dempsey in an indoor bout this season are slight. Tex Rickard, who has been trying to arrange a match in which the champion would defend his title, said that he practically had given up the idea of a bout until summer.

Rickard refused to say whether Dempsey would then go up against Harry Wills, negro challenger, asserting that it depended entirely upon the demand of the public. Should the public express disapproval of the match, Rickard said, he would try and arrange a bout between the title holder and his foremost white challenger.

Rickard has a plan to bring forward a rival to Dempsey who would prove a match for him and at the same time a box office attraction. The candidate is said to be the winner of the match between Louis Firpo, South American boxer, and the victor of the match in Madison Square Garden on Jan. 12 between Bill Brennan, Chicago veteran, and Floyd Johnson, the young Iowa heavyweight.

Firpo is at present regarded as the most likely candidate in the heavyweight ranks. Rickard said he was also ready to promote a title bout between leading white heavyweights either here or in Jersey City. Should Firpo survive the elimination the promoter announced he would not hesitate to go to South America and arrange a bout between Firpo and Dempsey.

NO-BEER PLEDGE UNDOING OF ATHLETICS IN 1914

"Connie Mack put us Athletics on a strictly non-beer pledge six weeks before the end of the 1914 season and that is why we went so stale," said Chief Bender, the great Chippewa pitcher, when talking recently about the four straight clean-up of the Philadelphia A's by the George Stallings Braves in October of 1914.

"I am not offering this statement as an alibi," continued the chief. "The Braves of that year had three great pitchers who did wonderful things just when such things were required of them. But in my case I feel that abstaining from beer, after being used to it as a means of relaxing, had a tendency to make me lose my fastball. My curve [illegible] ball just seemed to flutter. We went all to pieces and [illegible] of the season and were [illegible] enough to win the American League pennant.

Most All A's Like Beer

"Most all of the old Athletic bunch used to have their beer. There were a few exceptions including Collins, Baker and Meinnis. But down below another cause of our "blowing up" that year. I believe was the fact that Connie came to us and put us on our honor not to drink any more beer. We were not going any too well, even before Connie put us on the pledge, and he probably thought that the beer was slowing us."

Union an Idle Scheme

"How about the ball players' new union or fraternity?" he was asked.

"It's foolish," replied the tall Indian. "I paid $18 a year for three years as a member of the last Players' Fraternity. They can not gain anything. They are treated well. And the magnates, I am sure, would not hesitate to close their ball parks and make an issue of it if the union ball players struck. The Detroit players went on strike once for Ty Cobb and the club put on the field a team made up of players grabbed from here, there and everywhere. But that team played and this treatment beat the striking players."

BOXING MEETING TO BE LARGELY ATTENDED

New York, Jan. 2—The third annual convention of the National Boxing Association, to be held at the Hotel Astor, January 15 and 16, will bring together a notable gathering of box- [illegible] Rourke, secretary [illegible] announced tonight. [illegible] England, France, [illegible] and Cuba are expected [illegible] representing the 21 [illegible] sport is governed by regulatory bodies.

The association's aim of bringing about cooperation among boxing authorities throughout the country has been realized to a large extent, according to Mr. O'Rourke. Important steps toward raising ring standards are likely to be taken at the coming convention.

Basketball Challenge

The Central Village Rovers have organized for the season and would like to play games with any team in eastern Connecticut averaging from 125 to 140 pounds. The Rovers range in age from 16 to 20. All teams desiring games, telephone 98-4 Mosoup any evening after 6:30 or write to William F. Eaton, Manager, Central Village, Conn. Box 165.

NEW COMBINATION GAME PLAYED IN WEST

Invented by Elmer D. Mitchell, one time star athlete and now director of tramural athletics at the University of Michigan.

Requires no special playing equipment or exceptional ability in athletics.

Got a thorough tryout at Michigan last fall. Won immediate favor and spread to other institutions.

THE NEW LEGISLATURE.

The opening of a session of the state legislature holds interest of greater or less degree to the entire state in accordance with the measures in which the respective communities are concerned. No legislature ever opens without the expectation on the part of the people of beneficial results. It rests with the members of the general assembly to recognize that fact and to give their best efforts to serving the welfare of the public. It is incumbent upon them to assume in each case the full share of responsibility.

The general assembly opens this year with a new governor in the chair. It assembles today for the purpose of hearing such recommendations as he may have to offer for its consideration in the coming months. It gathers for its work after a year of much accomplishment by the various state departments and with a much appreciated improvement in its financial condition.

That it has been able to reduce the net debt of the state during the administration of Governor Lake and completes the year with a balance should not be interpreted as meaning that the time is ripe for a return of extravagance. Governor Lake insisted upon economy in the expenditure and handling of the state money and it is to be expected that Governor Templeton, whose inauguration takes place today will take just as firm a stand in that direction, and insist upon the keeping within the income when it comes to the making of appropriations. It means of course carefully discriminating between the necessary and the unnecessary that there may be a sound business administration of the affairs of the state of Connecticut.

It is by the wish of the voters that the membership of the general assembly is what it is. It is to be hoped that they will not be unmindful of the trust that has been imposed in them. Let there be a speedy and efficient handling of the business presented

THE 1922 LYNCHINGS.

Attention is always attracted at this season of the year by the report issued from the Tuskegee Institute concerning the lynchings in the country for the twelve months and offenses that led up to them.

Perhaps there is some satisfaction to be gained from the fact that there were but 57 for the past year in comparison with 64 for the previous year, but there isn't that steady reduction, giving indication of an elimination of this lawlessness, that the country would welcome. There is a fluctuation from year to year. That there was a reduction the past year does not mean that there will not be an increase during the present.

What the record might have been for the year may be judged by the report that there were 58 instances in which lynchings were prevented and that there were ten in which convictions were secured against those involved in lynchings. That indicates an awakened interest for the suppression of this evil, but unfortunately there are yet too many instances where the authorities have not been able or inclined to check the wilful murders, or after the crimes have been committed of stringing human beings up on trees or burning them at the stake there have been too feeble attempts made to bring them to justice.

With nine states where lynchings were committed, in all of which except one there was more than one case, it cannot be regarded as reflecting any credit upon the respective states. That the leadership in the lynching evil has been taken away from Georgia by Texas indicates the lawless spirit that prevails in that state, but with eleven cases in Georgia, if the Tuskegee count is correct, there is no great reduction in the feeling that is rampant there.

From the lynching record for the past year there is nothing which goes to show that the states where it is to be expected are ready and willing to properly handle the situation without federal legislation.

MISLEADING THE FILIPINOS.

What must be regarded as raising false hopes is the statement made by a Missouri congressman to the Philippine senate. The insistence upon the freedom of the Philippine islands has prevailed for a number of years, and yet if we are to judge by nothing more recent than the report made by General Wood as the result of his survey of the island conditions there are not such as to warrant it. Furthermore it does not appear that he is having any too speedy success in carrying out the program he has found to be necessary to overcome some of the undesirable conditions which he found. In other words, even though the Filipinos have been told where their weaknesses lie and what is necessary to overcome them, they are not displaying that eagerness that ought reasonably to be expected, to comply with the requirements that will put the conditions in the islands in that improved light which may well be calculated to get more favorable consideration to independence.

Regardless of the progress that is being made and in spite of the benefit which the islands are getting as the result of the administration of Governor General Wood, those who undertake to tell the islanders what this or that congress is going to do are making a mistake unless they are in a better position to speak than a member of congress who is in the far east for the purpose of promoting American trade.

Far better would it be for the benefit of the Filipinos now and in the future to refrain from inspiring them with false hopes, but to impress them with the importance of becoming so firmly established as a government and so efficient in the administration of their own affairs that there could be raised no objection to a severing of that guardianship which this country has exercised since 1899. The danger of increasing the opposition to policies which this country is insisting upon in the islands ought not to be disregarded even by a member of congress regardless of what his mission may be.

MONOXIDE GAS POISONING.

From the number of cases where individuals and families are found dead because of the creation of poisonous gases in small rooms where sufficient oxygen is not permitted to circulate, others who are not inclined to take changes under similar conditions have every reason to take warning.

The cases of those whose deaths were caused by the operation of a hot water heater in a tiny room at New London is no different than what happened to a mother and four children at Syracuse two days previous.

The danger is of the same character that prevails in the case of the person who undertakes to run the engine of his automobile in a closed garage. It doesn't take long to create a gas which acts quickly in snuffing out life. Many are there who have lost their lives under such circumstances, and perhaps as many more who have had narrow escapes and are with us today because they were able to get outside when they felt themselves being overcome.

Such cases should serve as warnings to others. It is appalling that families should be wiped out in such a manner when it might have been easily prevented. Pretty generally does it seem to be realized that gas jets cannot be opened and unlighted for any length of time without asphyxiating those who remain in the room. It is being shown through costly experience that there is great danger in remaining in small rooms where gas stoves or gas heaters are in operation without providing for a proper supply of fresh air. Stifling conditions would seem to indicate such a necessity but those who have remained in such a room for quite a time might be less appreciative of it than one suddenly coming into it.

Stale air is bad enough but the stealthy effect of the deadly gas that follows the consumption of the oxygen holds a menace that needs to be recognized and guarded against.

DEVASTATION IN ANATOLIA.

Reports that have come from the near east have contained frightful accounts of the atrocities committed there. We have been told from time to time that all of them cannot be charged up to the Turks, that the Greeks were responsible for certain deplorable conditions and there will be quoted the report of the International Red Cross to that effect.

War develops conditions that would not be thought of at other times, and the fact that there are atrocities which are laid at the door of the Greek forces in Anatolia does not necessarily mean that they were not indirectly due to the Turks. It is a long standing feeling of hostility that has existed between the nations that were involved in the war in Anatolia. The Turks and the Greeks have clashed before. They have not lived neighbors without knowing what to expect. Others than the Greeks are well acquainted with the kind of treatment which can be expected under the rule of the Turks. Without a question those of the Turks who have come to live under other governments have fared much better than have those of other countries who have been included under Turkish rule.

Without attempting to justify atrocities by any army, it is impossible to overlook the fact that the Greeks ruthly understood the past record of the Turks and the butchery that had been experienced at their hands. That isn't sufficient ground for the Greeks doing likewise but such savagery invariably invited reprisals. When such conduct is displayed toward the Turks as the Turks have shown toward others, it is difficult to place the real blame otherwise than on the heads of the Turks.

Laborer Worthy of Her Hire.

TEMPTATION TIME

"How do you like living among your old friends again?" asked Mrs. Storey of the lady who had spent the last twenty years in the south.

"Well," said Mrs. Jarm, somewhat doubtfully, "I enjoy ever so much being with you all again, but in a way it's rather disappointing and sad, too, to find my friends have changed so!"

"Why, Mathilda! Haven't we shown in every way how—"

"Oh, I don't mean that way!" hurriedly interrupted Mrs. Jarm. "I don't know just how to express it; perhaps it is the northern atmosphere, or the rousing lives you lead—down south we take time to live. Or it may be the way you eat."

"Mathilda, will you kindly explain what you are talking about?"

"I was just trying to account for the change in the appearance of my friends up here in the north. The first shock I got was when I saw Lucinda Brown. She met me at the depot and honestly, Nan, I didn't know her. She used to be so slender and how we all used to envy her that rose-leaf complexion. Well, look at her now! Three chins and waddly and her face full of wrinkles!"

"But you must remember that when you last saw Lucinda, she was only 37, still a young woman, and now she's 47 and middle aged. You can't expect her to look as she did twenty years ago."

"But such a change!" exclaimed Mrs. Jarm, shaking her head sadly. "And there's Fanny Tascott. She looked me up the day after I came. Oh, dear! What a pretty girl she used to be, with brown curly hair. Where are her good looks now? And her hair is as gray as—as yours."

Mrs. Storey stiffened. "We are all growing old together," she said.

"I'm real glad I carry my age so well," said Mrs. Jarm. "A few years ago when poor dear Andrew was still living, our bell rang one day and when I went to the door there stood Andrew's nephew. Although it had been many years since I had seen him, I knew him right away, but I waited for him to speak first. When he didn't, I finally said, 'Well, don't you know me?' and he replied, 'Oh, it is you, Aunt Mathilda, isn't it? I didn't know you at first. I expected to see you looking different.'"

"In what way was he surprised?" Mrs. Storey asked, a trifle maliciously.

"I wasn't just certain myself, so after he left I said to my husband, 'Andrew, what do you suppose he meant when he said my appearance surprised him so?' Andrew replied: 'Why, Mathilda, he meant, of course, that he had expected to see an old lady after all these years, but instead he found you looking so much younger that he couldn't believe it was you.' And then he added: 'You look as young to me now as the day I married you.' So!"

Mrs. Storey suddenly found it necessary to bend down over her mending basket and for some reason her face became red and she coughed a little.

"And last night," calmly continued the visitor, "when I attended the reception at the church for the new minister, I saw an old lady standing in line waiting to be introduced to him. Something about her seemed vaguely familiar but I had no idea she was anybody. I knew. Then she happened to look in my direction and immediately she came over, with her hand extended, and called me by my name. 'Mathilda Jarm, how do you do!' And who do you suppose it was? Susie Webb! I never would have known her, she had grown so thin and shrunken up and old looking! But she knew me right away, so I guess I haven't changed so much."

Mrs. Storey smiled. "You were there with Fannie, weren't you? I told Susie Webb over the phone that you were in town and that you would be at the reception with Fannie. So, of course, when she saw Fannie she would know at once who you were."

Just then the bell rang, and she said, "That's Julia Botley. She's coming here for dinner, but I told her to come early so as to meet you."

The two friends greeted each other cordially and exchanged reminiscences of earlier years. "My goodness!" exclaimed Mrs. Jarm an hour later, as she stood at the outside street door ready to leave, "but what a surprise poor Julia gave me! I certainly wasn't expecting to find her looking as old as that! Dear, dear! I feel so sorry—how folks up here do show the ravages of time!"

"Now, Mathilda! Don't tell me that you think Julia looks old, too! Why, she has hardly a wrinkle. And you can scarcely tell her from her own daughter! She is the type of woman that never seems to fade or grow old."

"I suppose that living right here and seeing her all the time makes it less noticeable to you; but to me it is very apparent. Poor Julia, how she has aged!" And she bade her friend a solemn farewell.

When Mrs. Storey returned to her remaining guest in the living rooms, Mrs. Botley remarked with an amused smile: "How nice to have Mathilda back with us again. She has all the little mannerisms she used to have in her younger days, but in one way she has changed—she has aged so!"—Exchange.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Saving the Pennies.

"In ordinary life thrift consists of saving our pennies." One frequently hears a statement such as this, and it seems to be the belief of many.

But thrift means much more than saving pennies, and any statement attempting to link it to such narrow confines is a dangerous half truth.

Too much encouragement has been given to the false notion that thrift consists only in saving pennies. As a result, a harmful resistance to thrift has been created.

It is true that saving is one of the rudiments of thrift. But it is just as thrifty to save moments, to save one's health, to save one's energy.

Thrift is efficiency. Thrift is eliminating waste. Thrift is spending wisely as well as saving systematically.

Many a successful career and many a great business enterprise has been foundationed on saving pennies. But to say that thrift consists of saving pennies is as far from the whole truth as to say that the alphabet is literature or that he who has learned the multiplication table has mastered mathematics.

Let us have more penny savers both literal and figurative. Let us all learn more and more of the value of little things. Let us do all we can to encourage the thought that a penny saved means a great deal more than a penny earned. But, at the same time, let us not foster miserliness or encourage the belief, already too prevalent, that there is nothing to thrift but the hoarding of pennies.

Save the pennies but do not stop there. Money is the symbol of wealth, but it is not the symbol of human progress. The value of thrift as an essential element of individual development cannot rightly be measured from the standpoint of saving pennies.—American Thrift Society.

Stories That Recall Others

Very Likely.

The teacher had been impressing upon her pupils the dire fate of Tyre and Sidon; after which she inaugurated a cross-examination.

"What became of Sidon?" she asked Bobby.

"And what became of Tyre?"

Bobby hesitated and then replied, decisively, "Punctured, miss."

Sending Her a Line.

Funny things happen in a telegraph office. A resident of a small town up the line had been to the city for a few days and was staying longer than expected. He went to the telegraph office and handed in a telegram consisting of the address and eight vertical strokes to the operator.

"But surely you're not going to send this?" said the operator.

"Now, that's all right, sir," said the old fellow. "If them strokes come out the same at t'other end my missus 'll know as I shall be home at 8 o'clock. She can't read or write, but her can count, so just see as you put the proper strokes in."

SECRETARY FALL OF INTERIOR DEPARTMENT HAS RESIGNED

Washington, Jan. 2.—Secretary Fall of the interior department will retire from office March 4, it was announced today at the White House, to return to the practice of law and the conduct of private business affairs in New Mexico. President Harding, who is not yet prepared to name his successor, was declared by an administration spokesman to have made every effort to retain the cabinet officer in service, and to have tendered him, without avail, an appointment to the supreme court bench, to fill the vacancy caused by recent retirement of Justice Pitney.

Secretary Fall said later that the only impelling cause for the step was the condition of his own affairs, and took occasion to deny reports that he had resigned to accept applace as counsel for an oil corporation or that any friction existed between himself and associates in the administration. He will go to his cattle ranch in New Mexico immediately upon leaving office, and after a short vacation, resume the practice of law and the administration of his business interests.

As a senator, Secretary Fall was a personal friend and associate of Mr. Harding before entering the administration. It was understood when he accepted the portfolio that he might not serve throughout the administration, as drouth and cattle market conditions in the New Mexican territory where his market interests lie were said to have a claim on his attention. More recently, in connection with plans for the reorganization of government departments there were reports that Secretary Fall desired the forestry service, now attached to the agricultural department to be transferred to the interior department under his direction but the whole matter has been in abeyance.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lee S. Overman, who is in line for congratulations today on the beginning of his seventieth year, has been one of the representatives of North Carolina in the United States senate for twenty years and is among the best-known members on the democratic side of the upper house. His long service in the senate has given him a thorough knowledge of its technique of administration and institutional ways and has naturally made him an influential figure among the lawmakers. A native of the city of Salisbury, which place he still makes home, the senator, after completing his education at Trinity college, followed in the footsteps of many others who have risen to prominence in American public life by beginning his career as a school teacher. His first practical knowledge of public affairs was gained through service as private secretary to two of the governors of North Carolina. While thus employed he studied law and in due course was admitted to the bar and began practice in Salisbury. Prior to his election to the senate he had had experience in lawmaking as a member of the North Carolina legislature for several terms.

HAS BLUEPRINTS FOR SUPERIOR COURT TRIALS

Blueprints for possible use in the trial of two cases in the present term of the criminal superior court have been prepared by civil engineer George E. Pitcher for state attorney Hadlai A. Hull.

The cases involved are the Groton arson case in which Domenico Marchand is accused of setting fire to a building on Dec. 1 and the Preston case where George E. Bates is accused of aggravated assault with an axe upon Theresa C. Eliot in a dispute over boundary lines and the place where a goat was kept.

JOBS FOR EVERY MAN
THE ONE SURE CURE

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 2.—(By The A. P.)—Henry Ford believes that "the one sure cure" for world unrest is "to create for every able bodied man in the world a job of some sort," the manufacturer told a delegation representing the conference of labor office of the International Labor office of the League of Nations whose members held a meeting conference with him at his Dearborn offices.

The delegation, which came to this country recently to obtain ideas that might be introduced in other countries for benefit of workers, is headed by Albert Thomas, of France, director of the international labor office.

During the interview M. Thomas declared the present unsettled conditions in many parts of Europe and suggested that [illegible] exchange rates might have beneficial results.

Mr. Ford replied that in his opinion the question of bringing the world back to peace and prosperity could not be solved through money; declaring his belief that the solution rested in expansion of industry, improvement of agricultural methods and education of the workers of the world.

Mr. Ford told his visitors that "all the money in the world could be dumped into the sea, and as long as men would put one stone on top of another and till their ground, they would have produce to barter and exchange, and world commerce would go on without interruption."

Mr. Ford declared one of the most urgent needs facing the world was that of more widespread use of farm machinery. He told the delegation that "farmers everywhere" must be taught the use of machines and their economic value before lasting prosperity can come to any people.

The manufacturer added that he believed greater industry on the part of the world's peoples would end war.

"If everyone has a job that interests him he will be too busy to think about making war," was the substance of his argument in that connection.

The visiting delegation spent a large part of the day in inspecting the Ford Motor Company plants here, a part of the time being devoted to a study of the Ford Trade School where mechanics are trained.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Jan. 3.—Matthew P. Healy, 40, one of Willimantic's most widely known residents, died about 5.15 this afternoon at the home of his brother John H. Healey at 251 Church street. He was born in Waterville, Ireland, May 14 1881, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Healy. He is survived by three brothers, James D. Healy of this city, Dennis P. Healy of Chicago and John H. Healy of this city; three nephews, John F., J. Stanley and James A. Healy of this city and six nieces, the Misses May, Rose, Alice; Mildred, Margaret and Julia Sullivan all of this city.

Mr. Healy came here when by only two years old and has been a resident here. He attended grammar school and at intervals was employed by the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad company, being employed by the railroad at the time of his taking sick last Saturday. His death came as a shock to his numerous friends and to his relatives, who held him in highest esteem. Mr. Healey served three terms as a personal tax collector and while in this position he became very popular among his hundreds of acquaintances. He was optimistic and his cheerfulness and kind advice was sought by many. He was a member of several local organizations, including the Woodmen of the World, the Hibernians, Loyal Order of Moose and the Trainmen's association and he was also a devoted member of the St. Joseph's church.

XAVIER LAMBERT RETURNS FROM STAY IN CANADA

Xavier Lambert of 224 Broad street returned Tuesday afternoon from St. Guillaume, Canada, where he was called three weeks ago by the serious illness of his brother Joseph, who died Dec. 27.

Canada was having real winter weather while he was there with plenty of snow and the thermometer down around 20 below zero most of the time. On Christmas day they were cutting 15-inch ice. On his way back through Vermont he noticed they were having more snow there than in Canada, one storm last week having given them two feet at Newport, Vt., and it was a foot deep when he passed through there on Tuesday.

Fined in City Court

In the city court the continued case of state vs J. Dutkowsky was called up Tuesday morning. He was charged with keeping a gaming device in his store on Boswell avenue and paid $10 fine and the case was nolled. A man charged with breach of the peace had his case put over until next Monday.

A Norwich Town man charged with breach of the peace had his case heard in chambers and after he had received words of warning the case was nolled. One man arrested for intoxication was freed as he promised to keep out of court in the future and let drink alone.

From the winner's point of view there was nothing the matter with the game as played.

UNIVERSALIST SUNDAY SCHOOL RE-ELECT SUPT. TRACY

The annual New Year's Sunday school social was held Tuesday evening at the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist). The attendance was one of the largest in many years and everyone entered into the games and songs with a vim that spelled success from the start.

Superintendent Edwin A. Tracy spoke briefly, outlining the work that has been done in the past and stated that beginning next year the younger people of the school would be asked to take offices and responsibilities to fit them to conduct the Sunday school when the older members retire from office.

Mr. Tracy then called upon Rev. A. N. Foster, the new pastor of the church who recently arrived from Palmer, Mass., who spoke in brief as follows: I can only offer you all a word of greeting and tell you how glad I am to be with you on this joyous occasion. The spirit shown here tonight indicates a progressive spirit, and shows that the Sunday school is well organized. I look for an increased membership during the present year and hope to outline many progressive movements to keep the school forging ahead. I can only praise your present officers for their faithful service in past years and especially praise Mr. Tracy who has given so many years of service to the school.

Mrs. Foster also spoke briefly along similar lines and expressed a wish that that every member aid her in the work during the year.

The annual election of officers of the school for the year was held and resulted as follows: Superintendent, Edwin A. Tracy; assistant superintendent, Sumner W. Armstrong; second assistant superintendent, Miss Mary A. Rogers; secretary, Miss Jessie E. Hull; treasurer, J. Harold Cobb; librarian, Benjamin E. Hull; superintendents of departments, junior department, Miss Mary E. Rogers; home department, Mrs. Fred S. Young; primary and cradle roll departments, Mrs. Ann Foster; chorister, Miss Bertrice E. Green; executive committee, Sumner W. Armstrong, Mrs. Ann Foster, Mrs. Fred S. Young, Miss Mary E. Rogers and Charles W. Parsons.

The election of Mr. Tracy as superintendent of the Sunday school this marks the thirtieth year that he has held that office and served faithfully.

Following the entertainment refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by Miss Mary A. Rogers, assisted by the Misses Bertrice E. Green and Vilia Bussey and young women of the school.

GIVES NEW YEAR MESSAGE AT WEEKLY SHOP MEETING

The Backward Look and The Forward Step was the topic of Rev. C. H. Ricketts Tuesday at the weekly noon meeting at the Richmond Radiator Co., under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

His words were a New Year message on the first shop meeting of the year and he spoke as follows:

New Year's Day is an invisible marker in the field of time. It stands neither for big things done, nor for large plans projected. We cannot call it a monument or a cornerstone. It is simply a convenience in reckoning time. It stands alone among the days we celebrate as suggesting nothing worthy of celebration. With Christmas it is far different. Forefather's Day reminds us of democracy in things secular and sacred. The very mood Thanksgiving gives the reason why it is and ought to be observed, both individually and nationally. Labor Day also suggests what ought to be emphasized: The importance, dignity and nobility of honest toil. Fourth of July and Memorial Day, like the more recent Armistice Day, are national in character, but are not wholly disconnected with the great and unending Republic of God. Now Easter Sunday, with its close connection with Good Friday, is the answering and victorious climax of the preceding Christmas. But New Year's is not absolutely that. But New Year's is not absolutely unable to tell the story of some great achievement in the past; for it was, if I mistake not, on January 1, 1863, that President Lincoln issued his emancipation proclamation, which must be regarded as one of the great state papers of the world.

Now if New Year's is not historically great it is suggestively great, because it makes us think! We cannot come up to one of these waymarks in the territory of Time without doing two things:

First, is taking the backward look. When one climbs a mountain he finds along the way certain natural resting places. Here he stops to catch his breath, perhaps; or, to readjust the pack he may be carrying; or, and this is more likely, he will attack a good-sized sandwich. He will also use a pair of field glasses, to take in all the points of the journey thus far completed. If you listen closely you will hear him murmur: "My, this is some hike!" "I'm glad I got through that dark forest, they say wolves have been seen there. Don't I remember that mountain gorge where I took a tumble—I'm thankful that I didn't break a leg!" And thus he recalls to mind the various experiences through which he has passed on the journey thus far—a journey that has a landscape mottled with sunlight and shadow; a landscape marked here and there with mistakes because he had never traveled over it before. I can hear him say: "Away back there in March it would have saved much time and strength had I turned to the right hand rather than to the left. And when I came to the first big hill it would have been better to have gone around it than attempt to climb over it as I did. Yes, there have been mistakes along the way, but thanks to a kind Providence, I am here now, well and strong, and ready to begin this climbing up like a real red-blooded man until I reach the top."

Now, men, isn't this the spirit we ought to have at the beginning of the new year? It is a duty, we owe ourselves to take the backward look, and we ought not to go over that period of a twelve month for the mere purpose of picking flaws. But let us look at it exactly as it was neither magnifying nor belittling it. Possibly this past year contains something you would like to forget, and it will help you to forget it when you deal with it in the right way. For instance you have said or done something that has caused unpleasantness between yourself and another man, and as a result there has been a coolness between you for sometime. Now as you look back at it and go over all the circumstances, you can't quite avoid the conclusion, that a good deal of the fault, after all, is on your side, and you will do your part in making amends. Now you lay aside all false pride, and in a manly spirit you go up to the other fellow, put your hand on his shoulder, and say pleasantly to him, "Look here, Smith, I've been thinking over our little unpleasantness and have come to the conclusion that I was dead wrong in the matter, and I've come to apologize——" Now, Smith, if he is much of a man, will interrupt you at this point, saying, "Oh, forget it, Jones, I was a fool for being angry at what you did—don't let that thing bother you any longer." How much trouble in this world would be avoided if men would only take this stand and let such things as there be dead and buried—yes, and forgotten, too, as far as possible.

Can we not also let the good and bright things that have entered our lives in the year just closed be added to our capital as increased stock in trade? I read of concerns that are issuing stock dividends of 100 per cent., raising their capital by the millions. That is they are capitalizing their success. Now, men, if you and I have found success, why not capitalize it for doing bigger business in 1923 along the line of our personality.

My subject today deals with the future as well as the past, and hence we want to look at the Forward Step of the Onward Reach.

First, success in the future will depend on personal activity. We are advised to do two things: not only "to forget the things which are behind but to reach for the things which are before." We are not told anywhere exactly what things lie before us, but we are told what ought to be our attitude towards life in general. We may gain some knowledge of what the future is going to be from what the present is and the past has been. Jan. 1 in all its wintry aspects is not visibly different from Dec. 31, and the year 1923 will be much the same as 1922. So most of us will probably be this year very much as we were last year, the changes are so gradual as not to be noticeable. So that it is perfectly safe to say that the rank and file of people, as to their personal appearance, their thoughts and actions are going to be much the same in 1923 as they were in 1922. Of course in individual cases there will be some marked changes, but not with people in general.

We are told to "reach forth unto the things which are before," because there are things to be reached. How foolish it would be to advise a man to reach after things that didn't exist; it would only be grasping the air. It would be equally foolish to tell a man to reach after something that was entirely beyond him; that he couldn't possibly reach. Now, as a matter of fact, there is something before every living man and woman to be reached that is worthy of themselves and the best effort they can put forth to get. That object is suited to your own individuality, i. e., the something before me that I ought to reach will fit into my individual wants better than into another man's wants. There is always some worthy object before us, and the question is, are we willing to go after it?

Now I want to emphasize the fact that these worthy things will not come tumbling over one another into our laps. We must go after them with downright earnestness. I do not mean to say that we shall get every worthy thing we go after, but sure it is we shall not get it unless we do go after it. I believe that more than half the battle is fought when we say "we can if we will, and we will because we can." The victory of life lies on the side of those whose will determines the effort to be put forth.

To get the prizes of life there must be some definite mark to reach. We must fix our eyes on that mark and not allow anything to turn us away from it—but work for it with might and main.

Men, let me close with this thought: Whatever may have been your workmanship in the past, see before you better things, more satisfactory results just step up a grade in efficiency. This is simply pressing toward the mark for the prizes of life that come as the reward of merit.

VIOLINIST GIVES EXCELLENT MUSIC ASSOCIATION PROGRAM

Karl H. Kraeuter of New York, a pupil of Franz Kneisel, the master violinist, gave the program Tuesday evening at Slater hall annex for the January meeting of the Norwich Music association, which had a good attendance of the members, to whom Mr. Kraeuter's playing was a delight, and the evening was one of the most satisfactory of the season.

Always commanding a smooth and well rounded tone, with excellent technique, Mr. Kraeuter's work was marked by sincerity and a pleasing absence of anything savoring of theatrical effect. For each group of selections in his program he was given spontaneous applause, and at the close of the last group he was insistently recalled for an encore, to which he responded by playing Kreisler's Tambourin Chinois. The accompaniments by Frederick W. Lester were rendered in close sympathy with the soloist.

Concerto in D minor, Bruch
Adagio, ma non troppo
Recitative
Allegro molto

Gavotte, Beethoven
Aubade Provencale, Couperin-Kreisler
Aus Saltarella, Wieniawski-Kreisler
Hungarian Dance V, Brahms-Joachim
Dans les Bois (Caprice in E major), Paganini-Vogrich
Nuit de Mai, Gustave Michiels
Rondo Papageno, Ernst

President Frederick H. Cranston announced that the February meeting would be held at the United Congregational church with an organ recital by Mr. Lester and a soloist on the program to which members would be privileged to invite their friends.

Sloat, who died in March, was the oldest surviving ex-state comptroller. Another former comptroller, Daniel P. Dunn of Willimantic, died about five months after Mr. Sloat. Charles W. Grosvenor of Pomfret, a former treasurer, died when the year was not two weeks old.

ALL RECORDS SEIZED AT THE BARKER SANATORIUM

Los Angeles, Jan. 2.—All records pertaining to treatment of patients and handling of narcotics at the Barker sanatorium here were seized today by federal and state officers who are investigating the Los Angeles activities of "Dr." John Scott Barker, arrested yesterday in Oakland on charges of violating narcotic laws.

The papers were said to relate in part to the fight against drugs made by Wallace Reid, motion picture actor, and indicated that Juanita Hansen, film actress, also has undergone treatment.

The Los Angeles Times tomorrow will quote Miss Hansen's mother as stating the actress profited from the treatment, regaining her health and losing her craving for drugs, but declares that after two weeks in the institution, she turned out "almost a wreck."

The records seized today showed Reid entered the sanatorium October 19 last, his age was given as 31; his birthplace at Missouri; his height six feet two inches, and his weight 15 pounds. His normal weight is 190.

At the time of his entrance into the institution, the records stated, he had been addicted to the use of morphine, using from three to six grains a day for a period of two years. His general health was described as having been fair, but at the date of his appearance for treatment it was recorded as "very poor."

Under the caption of the "Reason" the chart stated Reid was "treated for morphinism" for two weks previous to partial withdrawal accomplished.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Resident to the recent sale of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company and the People's Light and Power company, with headquarters at Norwich, the following statement was given out Tuesday:

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, and also the People's Light and Power Company, the present board consisting of John W. Dobbie, Albert E. Shaw, Nathan D. Prince, and Alice M. Harris, tendered their resignations, and the following people were elected in their stead:

George L. Shearer, New York city; Francis deC. Sullivan, New York city; Henry B. Plant, Groton; Andrew E. Jencks, Pawtucket, R. I.; Robert W. Perkins, Norwich.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Robert W. Perkins of Norwich, was elected president of both companies, and E. A. Harris of Norwich was appointed treasurer.

Many people will recognize the fact that our local public utility has now passed into the hands of the Morton Plant estate, and it is a source of gratification to find such strong financial interests have become interested in our borough. It insures not only good service for all, but efficient and aggressive management.

The entire town of Killingly, insofar as supplies in the hands of dealers is concerned, is again stripped of anthracite coal. Every dealer not only has cars ordered, but all of them have shipments billed—but are not getting them. Shipments billed here are describers as billed to them anywhere from one to four weeks ago. Why the coal doesn't come through no attempt is made to explain here. At the present time the public seems inclined to pan the railroad for non-deliveries to dealers.

Killingly probably has been as hard hit on the hard coal proposition this winter as any town of its size in Connecticut yet up to the present time there has been no serious amount of complaint. But that complacent frame of mind has chang very rapidly of late. Ugly things are now being said about a condition that seems as unnecessary in the nation as it is cruel. Ordinarily even tempered men make comments that in normal times would earn them a rating as radicals. They are being driven to thinking harshly and exploding wrathfully over the coal situation.

Illustrative of conditions in Danielson was a case cited Tuesday in which a woman 70 years of age, living alone, is dependent upon a neighbor for a dole of coal each day, though she is prepared to pay cash for delivery of a supply of her own. She is deeply grateful for the neighborly kindness shown her.

While everyone here is appreciative of the fact that there is a hard coal shortage, there is no apparent good reason why Danielson should not have received more hard coal than has come through. Soft coal can be burned in heaters, and there seems enough of that to patch out, but persons depending on ranges and other stoves cannot use the soft coal and are actually being made to suffer just because there is a lust for power and wealth rampant in the land and no one with courage or intelligence to curb it whether such check would bring the heavy hand of the law down on capital or labor, or both.

The number of its savings depositors is constantly increasing, and it is especially mentioned at this time that deposits made on or before January 6th will draw interest from January 1st, in view of the fact that so many of its depositors will be unable to make deposits until some time during Saturday or Saturday evening. This is evidence of the broad mindedness of the bank's management. The Windham County National Bank.—adv.

Tuesday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Blackburn, in Attawaugan, funeral services for James Thompson, oldest resident of eastern Connecticut, were conducted by Rev. Albert Jepson of St. Alban's church, Danielson, assisted by Rev. J. W. Carter of the Attawaugan Methodist church. Hymns were sung during the service by Mrs. Leon Brown. The body was placed in the receiving vault in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were George S. Brown, William J. Craig, D. Fred Kenworthy, John Gledhill, Frederick Miller and W. Dyke Cogswell. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The body of Edna May Lanphere, aged 5 years and 7 months is at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood here. The child died Monday in a Providence hospital after undergoing an operation for appendicitis Sunday night. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Lanphere of South Scituate.

Tuesday morning the funeral of Mrs. James Dooley was held from her home at the corner of Franklin and Furnace streets with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. E. Shelley, M. S., Rev. John Roux, M. S., and Rev. Joseph Moussier, M. S., were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem, attended by numbers of relatives and friends. The body was placed in the receiving vault at Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Edward Maher, James Gartland, Thomas Dooley, John Greeley, Thomas Coffey and James Monohan. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director in charge.

The souvenir calendar presented each subscriber with the New Year's edition of The Bulletin recalled to the mind of Charles Geer, one of the owners of a local restaurant, a thrilling experience with the flood of March 26, 1876. Mr. Geer at that time was a resident of Jewett City and with his brother was among those labored heroically to save lives and property. The calendar showing the flood in Franklin square at Norwich and the story in the paper describing the ravoc wrought along the valleys of the Quinebaug and Shetucket rivers brought back many memories to Mr. Geer.

Illustrative of the saying that troubles never come singly is the case of injuries of the members of the household of Joseph B. Stetson, resident in West Brooklyn. Mrs. Stetson has a fractured thigh and Mrs. Mary Riley, the housekeeper has a dislocation of the shoulder. Sunday afternoon Mrs. Riley, busy with her duties, slipped and fell while walking about in the icy yard. Within 15 minutes after the first accident, Mrs. Stetson ventured out into the yard on a necessary mission and also was unfortunate as to slip and fall, breaking her thigh about midway between the knee and hip. Physicians were summoned and gave the injured women every attention. On Tuesday they were reported as resting as comfortably as could be expected under the circumstances.

Announcement was made by the Windham County National bank of the institution declaring and paying a semi-annual dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum. The bank has just closed an unusually successful year—its 100th of continuous service.

At St. James' church Tuesday morning there was an anniversary requiem mass for Mrs. Johanna Sullivan, for years a resident of High street.

Representative E. L. Darbie and George A. Williams were at Hartford Tuesday evening to attend the caucuses that precede each session of the state legislature. Judge Sabin S. Russell also was at the state capitol for the opening of the legislature.

A session of the town court was held Tuesday morning to dispose of one case—the accused charged with having been intoxicated. A fine was imposed and paid.

A big motor truck that hauled in here wearing 1922 registration plates was subjected to inspection Tuesday morning. The driver said the truck broke down while en route fro mProvidence to its home city of Hartford and had been hung up on the highway east of here over the New Year.

The surplus and other reserves of the Brooklyn Savings bank should have been shown in Monday's Bulletin as $235,000, instead of $235,000.

State highways were practically free of ice throughout this territory Tuesday following the heavy storm of rain out of the southeast and as safe for travel as during the mild seasons of the year.

A very large number of people are taking advantage of joining the Christmas club at the Windham County National bank, thus systematically saving, by depositing a small amount each week, which is returned with interest during the first part of December in each year.

Tuesday morning Arthur Vannos appeared before Judge M. H. Geissler in the city court and was fined $300 and costs for violations of the liquor law. A quantity of intoxicants was seized at the Vannose pool room in the Labby building on Canal street the past week end in one of the few raids of this nature that have bee married out in this city during the past few months.

While nothing official has been given out about the matter it was stated on what usually is good authority that what is known as the legislative train will be restored to the run between this city and Hartford late this month. The train is to leave here, it is said, about 9 a. m., and will pick up legislators at stations along the line, getting them to Hartford in time for the opening of each day's session. Returning, it will leave Hartford about 5 p. m., for the run to this city. This train will be available for use by the public at large.

Progress is being made on the extensive operation of modernizing the filter beds of the municipal water system at the plant in Harrisville, on the route to South Woodstock. At the present time those engaged in the work are working in the filters and are protected from the weather by canvas coverings. The big job will not be completed for weeks to come, but when it is finished Putnam will have one of the finest filteration plants, and as modern as any to be found in a New England city.

Legislators getting away for Hartford, students returning to their colleges and holiday visitors homeward bound swelled the railroad passenger traffic out of this city Tuesday morning. It would appear from the promptitude with which trains made their appearance, with reference to their scheduled time, that the New Haven road has taken a new Year's resolution to keep its trains on time.

Never has there been such general compliance with the regulations of the state motor vehicle department relative to having new registration plates on cars in service as is noted at the beginning of 1923. The old numbers had entirely disappeared from the streets of this city Tuesday. Only one machine—and that bearing a Massachusetts registration—was seen with 1922 numbers. Possibly where traffic officers are not so plentiful as they are in the territory hereabouts some drivers are taking a chance with the old registrations, but detection now will mean a summons to court. The motor vehicle department has shown conclusively that it can enforce the registration law from the very opening of the year.

Candidates for the degree were initiated and there was a social session at Tuesday evening's meeting of Putnam lodge of Elks. Aside from the New Year's eve watch party, the session was the first of 1923, and attracted numbers of members.

Rev. Simeon E. Conad, new pastor of the Second Congregational church, will begin his pastorate here next Sunday. Rev. Mr. Conrad comes with the very highest recommendations and a very successful period of work is predicted for him in Putnam.

Samuel Rich of this city will serve as one of the assistant superintendents of the capitol during the legislative session opening in Hartford today. Mr. Rich is one of the city's well known residents, a retired silk manufacturer. He had the support of the Windham county delegation in obtaining the appointment he has received.

While there is opportunity still, thanks of the people of this city may be expressed to the weather man for the street and sidewalk cleaning job he did with his first of the year rain storm. It cut away ice that had defied the best efforts of all who had attempted its removal and left street surfaces and sidewalks comparatively free of ice, in which they have been encased during the greater part of the past month. December turned in five ice storms, one observer relates, and that is something of a record for this section of southern New England.

R. C. Deming, state director of Americanization, is coming to Putnam next Sunday evening to address an open meeting at St. John's hall, Providence street. This meeting, it is hoped, will revive interest in Putnam's evening school and serve to increase the registration and attendance, which has fallen off very considerably since the opening of the school last fall. In addition to what Mr. Deming has to say there will be an address in French and a motion picture entitled The Making of An American will be shown.

In the meantime a survey is being conducted to determine the number of Putnam's foreign born who neither speak nor write English that the statistical information obtained may prove of advantage in reviving interest in the evening school.

Miss Esther M. Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon T. Wilson, returns to West Bridgewater, Mass., today to resume her studies at Howard seminary.

On Tuesday Malcolm M. Willey returned to New York, where he is a student at Columbia university.

Mrs. John Walker returned to her home Tuesday after spending the holiday season with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Morrell.

Several of Putnam's attorneys were at Willimantic Tuesday for the opening of the session of the superior court. D. M. Stahl, who has been wire chief for the Southern New England Telephone company in the Putnam, Danielson and Moosup divisions for several years, is to be transferred to the Derby division. Mr. Stahl's successor has not been announced.

The Piedmont College male quartet is to sing at the church in Woodstock Hill on Thursday evening of this week.

THE PILL HOLD-UP

THIS actually happened and is well worth telling.

The drug clerk was just about to close up. It was getting late. The last policeman to rub his nose against the plate glass window, was far down the avenue when the clerk switched off the electric lights and turned the lock. Then it all happened.

A man rushed up to the door. "Say, man, I want a box of Beecham's Pills. Simply must have them!" he exclaimed. "Store's closed for the day," remarked the clerk as he pocketed the key. "Like thunder it is!" shouted the late comer. "I've got to have a box of Beecham's Pills tonight." The altercation grew heated. There was an exchange of blows.

Then the clerk took off his broken glasses, unlocked the door and handed out a 50 cent box of Beecham's Pills.

Can you beat it?

Beecham's Pills are so pleasantly effective in making sick stomachs well, sluggish livers active, and lazy bowels to function as they should, that Beecham's steadfast friends and supporters sometimes overflow with strenuous enthusiasm.

NORWICH TOWN

That the activities of the First Congregational chuch are increasing, both socially and financially, was evidenced by the many interesting and encouraging reports given at the annual meeting of the church New Year's afternoon at 3 o'clock. The esteemed pastor of the church, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, presided and opened the meeting with prayer. The minutes of the last meeting, also the yearly report, were read by the clerk, Herbert L. Yerrington. In his report for the year, the treasurer of benevolence, Henry T. Frazier, mentioned a substantial balance in the treasury, pledges for 1923 having exceeded those of 1922.

The several recommendations by the standing committee for the coming year resulted in the following being elected: Herbert L. Yerrington, to succeed himself as clerk; Henry T. Frazier, to succeed himself as treasurer and accountant; Deacon William R. Lathrop, to succeed himself in the office of deacon of the church for the usual term of six years, and the following committees for the ensuing year: Missionary, Miss Susan C. Hyde, Mrs. H. L. Yerrington, Miss M. Jennie Case, Mrs. Lovelock Holm, Mrs. M. Buckley; reception and welcoming, Mrs. Sarah Chapin, Mrs. David M. Dean, Mrs. Frank S. Avery, Mrs. Philip Whaley, Dwight W. Avery, Henry T. Frazier; board of ushers, Philip B. Whaley, George F. Hyde, L. Stanley Gay, George Durr, Ralph H. Marsh and Marcus Grady.

Miss Mary E. Wattles, who was re-elected secretary and treasurer of the Sunday school for the 37th year, gave a very descriptive account of the work for 1922. There were 51 sessions held during the year, with an average attendance of 78. The largest number present for any one Sunday was 113, on March 12th, and the smallest 44, Dec. 17th, which was a very stormy day. During the year there has been enrolled in the main department 84, Bible class 31, Men's forum 31, primary department 35, home department 25, total 206, to which, adding 15 teachers and officers, makes the full total 221. While the receipts for the year were quite large, disbursements were also large, as the school has liberally contributed to the Near East relief, mission work in China, New London Sunday School association, and in many other ways, leaving a good balance. Much to the pleasure of all, the annual picnic was held at Happyland, Poquetanuck drawbridge, during August, and Dec. 23d the Christmas festival furnished much pleasure for young and old.

Miss J. G. Bonney, superintendent of the home department, reports a membership of 29. Calls have been made during the year and quarterlies distributed by the six visitors. Money sent in this year amounts to $17.14. The report of the Drop-In class by Mrs. Dwight W. Avery mentioned in detail how large sums have been raised by giving suppers, etc., also the many ways this class has brightened the lives of several who were needy, sick or in distress, in giving from the treasury and distributing baskets of food, also flowers to lighten the burden of others. There is a balance on hand of nearly $70. Mrs. Avery, who is at present substitute teacher for this class, further mentioned how sorry the class was to learn during a meeting at her home in September that Mrs. G. F. Bailey could not meet with the class as teacher for a season or so. Miss Helen Lathrop was appointed teacher and Mrs. Bailey granted a year's leave of absence. When Miss Lathrop left Norwich to pass the winter in New London, the class was again without a leader. The secretary, Mrs. Avery, was asked to serve in that capacity temporarily.

Miss Susan C. Hyde read the report of the One Aim class, which has met every Sunday throughout the year, also held three business meetings. The class secretary is Miss Ida Beebe. Although it has a small membership most of the time, during the summer and vacation periods, the number is increased owing to the return of absent scholars. When the new light was installed in the chapel, this class covered the expense, which amounted to several dollars.

Theodore Sterry, secretary of the W. I. T's, submitted his report, which was read by the teacher of the class, Miss Jessie E. Hyde. A business meeting of this class was held in January, with election of officers. A social held at the home of Miss Hyde during April, to which girl friends of the class members were invited, provided a very enjoyable evening for all. During the year two active members of the class have removed from town—Gerald Manning and Raymond Smith. Two committee meetings were held and contributions made to worthy causes. The young men are quite regular in attendance and are deeply interested in the Sunday school quarterlies. At the older boys' conference held at this church the W. I. T.s waited on table at the banquet, also escorted the out of town boys to homes where they were entertained over night.

The Men's forum as reported by George F. Hyde, secretary and treasurer, adopted a constitution in January which was drawn up by a special committee. During the same month folders were printed bearing the names of officers and committees on which was a cordial invitation to attend the forum. These were presented to the men of the church, Nov. 19 the forum served an oyster supper which was enjoyed by all who attended. This being the evening of the midweek service, the men conducted the meeting also. The membership is 31. Besides money for quarterlies and other expenses connected with the forum, $5 was given to the Salvation Army, and $5 toward the Christmas entertainment of the Sunday school, leaving a balance on hand of $17.44. Thomas P. Bachuler is president of the class.

In her report of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, Miss Martha Taylor, secretary, mentions its various activities. During the year $5 was contributed for the work of Dr. Parker and Miss Mary McClure in India, $5 to the Connecticut-in-China fund, and $2 to the national child labor committee. The net proceeds of the entertainment given through the splendid efforts of the social committee and others in March amounted to $78. From this $25 was given toward helping shingle the church. During the year the missionary committee procured three outside speakers. In January Mrs. Dickson Leavens, who told of her work in China; Miss Winifred Hulbert of Groton, who had been working in eTkuey, addressed the missionary meeting in May, and in July Capt. and Mrs. Charles Carpenter of the local Salvation Army, by special invitation, told of their work in Norwich. Four active members have been added to this society during the past year.

For the Intermediate C. E. society, Miss Dorothy Buckley reported a membership of 12. In February the juniors were entertained in honor of the 41st birthday of Christian Endeavor. A sale of ice cream and cake held by the intermediates assisted by the juniors in August brought a net gain of more than $6. Two shut-ins were remembered at Thanksgiving with boxes of fruit. In December members met at the home of Miss Hyde, where an enjoyable afternoon was spent in pasting postcards which were sent to the south and China. Besides remembering the pastor and Sunday school superintendent with Christmas gifts, $4 was sent to Dr. Parker for work in India, $4 to the Home Missionary union, and $1 to State Christian Endeavor work. The Junior C. E. society, while few in numbers, because of being separated from the Intermediate society, has by no means disbanded. There is a little suspension of the work for lack of a leader, but it is soon hoped to find one, as there seems to be new material for next September, if not before.

Following is the report of the Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary society as given by the secretary, Miss M. Jeanie Case: Six regular meetings were held, with an average attendance of 11. The study of the textbook The Kingdom and the Nation has been finished and the new book, Building With India, has been commenced. In April a collection of $12.80 was received from the mite boxes of the Home league and $15.50 from the other mite boxes, making in all $28.40. The Lenten offering amounted to $17.10 and the thank offering in October was $32. During the year the periodicals of the home and foreign missions were merged into one under the name of The Missionary Herald. Twenty-eight copies of this magazine have been subscribed for.

As reported by the leader, Miss Marion L. Bailey, there are now 49 members on the cradle roll list, eight having been added during the past year. Mite boxes in the shape of cradles were distributed early in the year for the children to collect their pennies in. In June 60 mothers and children were entertained at the parsonage, when the mite boxes were opened. From the amount, $10 was sent to the Eastern Connecticut branch for the work of children in foreign lands.

At the last annual meeting of the Ladies' Home Missionary society the resignation of the president, Miss Mary E. Wattles, was accepted with regret, she having served the society for seven years. The secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin, in her report makes reference to the fact that for the last two years the efforts of the society has been turned from fitting out boxes for the families of home missionaries to the less agreeable task of raising money to meet its apportionment. From membership fees, talent money multiplied during the summer, from the thank offering and society suppers held in February, April and November, enough has been raised to send to the state union $150, a sum larger than heretofore. In March four comforters were tied and sent to the school in Pleasant Hill, Alabama, where the boys' dormitory was destroyed by fire, and in November four bags containing clothing, toys and gifts were sent to Trinity school, Athens, Ala., for Miss Ruth Beebe, one of the teachers, to use as she saw fit. Miss Beebe is a Norwich Town young woman and a member of the First Congregational church.

The membership of Ever Ready circle of the King's Daughters remains the same as last year. One new member has been added and one member lost by removal from town. Work of the circle continues about the same as in other years. The early part of last year sewing was done for two little girls in fitting them out for school. Garments made and sold by the circle have earned money with which the sick and shut-ins and those less fortunate than others have been cheered and comforted at Easter and Christmas. Music has been provided at the Backus hospital on the two Sundays appointed. This busy circle is doing much in the course of a year in the Master's service. The above report was submitted by the secretary, Mrs. Bessie Beckwith.

Mrs. Henry T. Frazier, treasurer of the Church Improvement society, reported a balance on hand in January, 1922. In March $5 was received from Miss Mary Hyde towards interior decorations of the church. With interest added during the year and including a Liberty bond makes a total of $66.87.

New Year's day at the Sacred Heart church the 5 and 7 o'clock masses were largely attended, many having received holy communion. Friday, the first Friday of this new year, mass will be observed at 7 o'clock in the morning, and in the evening there will be devotions at 7.30, in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

Attorney John J. Dunn was a business caller in Charlestown Tuesday afternoon.

George Cross, town clerk of Charlestown visited in Westerly Tuesday morning.

The regular monthly meeting of the Westerly town council was held Tuesday morning at the council chambers in the town hall. Jesse Burgess who owns property on Grove avenue and who was before the council at the November session to enter a complaint, appeared again and said that his property had not been put back inproper shape after the sewerage work had been done there. He told the council that since the last meeting he had learned from his attorney that a partial payment had been made and that ten dollars had been paid for damage to a quince tree on his property. He still claims damages for use of water which he furnished the contractors when they were doing the work. He claims ten dollars for the use of this water as he was obliged to pay that much for excess water bills. He also says that it was agreed that he should be paid ten dollars for a right of way over his property and he has not received that amount. He told the council that in his talk with Messrs. Agard and McKenzie some time ago, they stated to him that no house connections would be made as compensation for a right of way, but has since learned that a neighbor of his had about 400 feet put in for him. He expressed his belief that this was a very unfair treatment.

The annual report of the chief of police was handed in at the meeting and the report shows 130 arrests made during the year. The causes for the arrests were as follows: Intoxication, 3; escaped prisoners, 8; violent assault, 6; threats and intimidations, 6; breaking and entering, 5; carrying concealed weapons, 1; laheeny, 7; reveling, 1; nuisance, 1; mayhem and robbery, 1; illegally soliciting, 1; cruelty to animals, 1; passing worthless checks, 1; non-support, 1; feeble-minded, 1; insane, 12; walking railroad tracks, 12; army deserter, 1; breaking traffic rules, 3; muffler cut out, 1; driving without registration, 1; driving without proper lights, 1; driving without license, 5; passing standing trolleys, 2; driving while intoxicated, 4; reckless driving, 5; exceeding speed limit, 8; taking automobile without owner's consent, 1; assault and battery, 1; total 130; liquor raids, 16.

The report of Dr. Samuel C. Webster, health officer showed one case of measles, two of membraneous croup and one case of diphtheria.

The question of repairing the White Rock bridge was brought to the attention of the council by Clifford W. Campbell. Mr. Campbell said that he had received numerous inquiries as to the prospects for opening the bridge safely to travel. Members of the council expressed the opinion that Westerly was ready and anxious to look after their end of the bridge, namely the Rhode Island end and needed only the cooperation of the selectmen from the town of Stonington. Mr. Campbell said that he had talked with Mr. Purtill, a Stonington selectman who said that he was much in favor of opening the bridge to travel. It was pointed out that men from North Stonington and other adjoining villages who had occasion to come to Westerly with heavy ladened teams, have found it almost impossible to make the steep grade at Liberty street and were obliged to take a different and longer course of travel. Mr. Campbell further said that he had been in several conferences with the selectmen of the town of Stonington but at each hearing there was nothing done until finally the Stonington men decided not to do anything about repairing thier part of the bridge. Mr. Purtill of Stonington was the only one who seemed to be really interested in the proposition and he suggested that a popular scubscription be taken for the purpose of supplying funds for the work.

GALES FERRY

At the Sunday morning service in the M. E. church Rev. W. D. Woodward prefaced his sermon with a brief talk to the children from James 3: 5, "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth." Rev. Mr. Woodward took his text for his sermon from Psalms 37: 15, "My times are in thy hand."

At the Sunday school session a special service of responsive reading and song preceded the lesson study. Before the closing of the school, Superintendent Colver spoke words of sympathy for Alton Stoddard of this place, who had to undergo a serious operation in the Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, last week, the result of an automobile colliding with Mr. Stoddard's motorcycle, and expressed sympathy for his mother, Mrs. Ellen B. Stoddard.

Woodward of Wapping, who so ably impersonated Santa Claus and it was oted.

In Quest of the King a service of story and song, was given in the M. E. church Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock by the choir with Mrs. Courtland E. Colver reader of the story preceding each song, which interpreted the seeing of the star, the journey of the wise men, and the birth of Christ. In the songs solo parts were taken by Miss Grace A. Chapman, Mrs. Amos Main, Miss Jennie G. Perkins and D. R. Povey; duets by Mrs. D. C. Perkins with Miss Perkins, D. R. Povey and C. E. Colver. Mrs. Eugene LaFontaine was the organist and director.

At the conclusion of the service there was a silent prayer, followed by prayer by the pastor, Rev. W. D. Woodward. Rev. Mr. Woodward then presented Chaplain Ernest Lee Ackiss of the submarine base, who very interestingly told of his work with the men in the service, of their respect for authority, of their fertility of resources, devotion to duty, and of their unselfishness and kindness.

At 10 o'clock a recess was held and refreshments of sandwiches, cake and cocoa were served to all remaining. The watch night service, which opened at 11 o'clock with Rev. Allen S. Bush as the speaker, was preceded by a service of praise, with Miss Jennie G. Perkins organist. Rev. Mr. Bush gave a helpful address on living a life worth while in the time allotted to man. A short testimony meeting concluded the service as the church bell rang out, sweet and clear, the beginning of the New Year. The services were well attended for the entire evening.

A very interesting Christmas program with a Christmas tree was given by the children of the Long Cove school, under the direction of their teacher, Miss Evelyn E. Whipple. The tree bore gifts for all with orringes. This school opened after the Christmas recess on Tuesday, as did also the school of the village.

Prayers were asked for what is to be known as a "Quiet day" at the Osgood Memorial in Norwich on Jan. 3, when the Protestant clergy of New London county meet there, with a program of service, in the M. NUMBER FOUR ment recalls the right of France and the other allies to continue the occupation of the Rhineland until the claims of the treaty of Versailles are carried out.

The British Plan.

The British plan would provide that the existing series of Class A, B and C bonds be cancelled. Germany to issue to the reparations commission two series of new bonds. The first series would amount to 60,000,000,000 gold marks. "to be issued forthwith, repayable at par on December 31, 1951, it bearing interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, payable half yearly; the interest to be suspended in its entirety for the first two years and to increase to the extent of one per cent per annum for the next four years until January 1, 1951.

"The second series of bonds, to amount to 17,310,000,000 gold marks, are the amount of the preferred interest on the bonds of the first series computed at five per cent to April 1, 1926, or such lesser amount as the arbitral tribunal provides for as hereinafter determined."

The plan provides various contingencies as, for instance, a sliding scale which the bonds may be redeemed, beginning at 50 on January 31, 1923, and rising thereafter to 65 on December 31, 1926, then increasing by one-half per cent, semi-annually to par. Thus Germany would be given settlement to take up the bonds before maturity.

The proposal would be offered to Germany upon the condition that she recognize the mark in accordance with the recommendation contained in the majority report of the financial experts consulted by the German government in November last and restore budget equilibrium within limits of time to be prescribed (say six months for execution and two years for others).

Germany would be required to accept a financial supervision under a "board of finance council" sitting in Berlin, the body to consist of members nominated by Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy and two other members, of American and neutral European nationality respectively.

The German finance minister would be chairman of the council without the right of vote except in the case of a tie, and would be required by law to act upon the councils advice in all matters affecting first currency legislation; second, the budget, fiscal legislation and public expenditure; third, the general treasury administration; fourth, financial policy; and fifth, the control of foreign remittances.

If Germany fails to accept the supervising authority, the board powers may unanimously decide upon such measures as may be necessary, including "forcible seizure of the German revenues and assets and military occupation of German territories outside the existing zone of occupation."

All other proposals for the taking of pledges and the application of sanctions otherwise than as provided for above" are to be abandoned by the allies upon Germany's acceptance of the plan.

An integral part of the program are the proposals for dealing with the inter-allied debts.

BUCKLEY LEAVES SPEAKERSHIP OF HOUSE TO JUDGE NICKERSON

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, Jan. 3—The preliminary work of the opening of the general assembly was harmoniously completed here this evening. What promised to be a bitter contest for the speakership of the house ended when Major John Buckley of Union, who had been endorsed and strongly pressed for the position, by his numerous friends withdrew his name in favor of Judge Leonard J. Nickerson of Cornwall. There were contests for clerk and assistant clerk.

The caucus for New London county was called to order by representative Smith of Groton. Howard P. Edgecomb of Groton was chosen chairman and Edward Kelly of Colchester, clerk. Representative D. J. Cronin of New London nominated C. H. Lathrop of Franklin, as doorkeeper and he was unanimously chosen. Representative Cronin was named as county member on permanent organization. On motion of Representative Cronin the caucus endorsed Judge Nickerson for the speakership.

The Windham county caucus was called to order by Ex-Senator Gates. George A. Williams of Killingly was chosen chairman and J. Frank Cash of Pomfret, clerk. Charles M. Perrin of Woodstock was chosen for messenger and Walter Briden of Pomfret was named for secretary. Luther M. Keith of Putnam was chosen as member of the committee on permanent organization.

The general republican house caucus was called to order at 8:15 by State Chairman J. Henry Roraback. On motion of Representative Darbie of Killingly, Representative Royal E. Southwick, the oldest member in the house was nominated as chairman and Representatives Pierpont of Ridgefield and Meech of West Hartford were named as clerks. There was a thunderous round of applause when Major John Buckley took the floor and it was some time before he could proceed. In a forceful speech he gave his reasons for withdrawing his name from the contest and stated that it gave him great pleasure to place in nomination Judge Leonard J. Nickerson of Cornwall as speaker of the house. The nomination was seconded by Payne of New London and Darbie of Killingly. The nomination was made unanimous. the clerk casting one ballot. Bell of Salisbury nominated L. J. Noonan of Hartford for clerk and the nomination was seconded by Dunham of Wethersfield and he was elected without opposition. Representative Hill of Shelton placed the name of Daniel J. Hickey of Stamford in nomination for assistant clerk and the nomination was seconded by Wells of Brookfield. As there was no other nomination he was unanimously chosen.

Senate

The republican senators met in the senate chamber and were called to order by Senator Rudd of the 35th district. Senator John M. Brooks was chosen chairman. Senator John H. Trumbull of the 5th district was nominated for president pro tem. J. Frederick Baker of New Haven was chosen for clerk. Mr. Baker will appoint the assistant clerk later on. Ray L. Harding of Lyme was chosen as senate doorkeeper for the New London county on nomination by Senator Wm. G. Park. E. M. Russell of Pomfret was chosen for the same position from Windham county. House and senate controlled by the republicans make these nominations equivalent to an election and they will all be confirmed when the two bodies meet for organization tomorrow. No democratic county or state caucuses were held but it was understood that Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic will be the democratic house leader. In the senate it is probable Dennis M. Clyne will be the leader. The house will meet for complete organization and to listen to the inaugural address of Governor-Elect Templeton at 12 o'clock tomorrow.

First Year the Hardest? Ask Swezey—He Knows!

Patchogue (N. Y.) Dealer—Delivers Only 40 Chandlers in 12 Months in Town of 4031 People

Patchogue, N. Y. 4031

THAT'S what the census report says about the town. From other information available, On Your Toes is in position to add that the 4031 residents know a good thing when they see it.

The proof is that John R. Swezey, Chandler dealer at Patchogue, sold 40 new Chandlers there in his first year, on a October 1, under the Chandler franchise. That his second year will be another successful period is indicated by the scores made in the Chance-For-All Contest by E. C. Crane, salesman for Swezey.

Crane's score stood at 48 on October 2, and already, in a month and a half of Swezey's second year, Crane alone has added 76 points to his score—which, totaling 126, made him winner in the 5-car class.

The fact that Swezey had a prize salesman does not detract from his achievement of selling 40 cars in a town of 4031 people. Rather it is a tribute to his vision, that he realized the possibilities of the market and equipped himself to develop it to the utmost.

The Chandler's superiority as a car, as well as a selling proposition, has impressed Swezey just as it has impressed thousands of owners. Having handled other cars, he is in position to make comparisons based on actual experience.

"I have handled a number of other makes of cars in previous years," Swezey reports, "but never until I handled Chandlers did I realize that an automobile was manufactured that could be serviced for less than an average of $5.00 a year. The cost of servicing the forty cars we sold has amounted to less than $200 and we do not know of one dissatisfied owner of a Chandler car in our territory.

"I believe the Chandler car is the best selling proposition on the market, and the Chandler automobile offers more dollar-for-dollar value than any other automobile made."

Mr. Dealer—It is Not What You Make—but What You Keep!

CHANDLER Dealers are successful Dealers. Not only is the Chandler a Wonderful seller and one of the Best Values—but the Dealer's Service expense is negligible. (Read clipping to left).

Full particulars of the Valuable Chandler Franchise will be forwarded to those interested.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, Jan. 2.—Opening prices in today's stock market, the first of the new year, were higher but thereafter profit taking and short selling caused some irregularity with gains outnumbering losses at the close. Higher quotations for foreign remittances, Easier time money rates and a slight reaction in wheat and grain prices, after an early display of strength, were the other features of the day's financial and commodity markets.

Special buying operations in individual stocks were evident by the brisk manner in which certain issues were pushed up, the market displaying more activity on the rallies than it did on the declines. Studebaker was one of the early leaders, being pushed up 2 points to 119 but forfeiting all but 3-4 of its gain on realizing sales. Baldwin touched 139 3-4, but dropped back two points for a small fractional loss at the close. U. S. Steel also closed fractionally lower after having risen nearly a point above Saturday's final quotation.

An increase in crude oil prices over the holiday resulted in some good buying in the oil group, Associated Oil jumping 4 1-2 points; Standard Oil of California, 1 7-8 and Pacific Oil, 1 1-3; California Petroleum dropped more than a point and Cosden, after breaking through last year's high to 54 3-4, dropped back to 53 7-8, where it was off 1-8 on the day.

Speculative expectations of another big year in the automotive industry was reflected in the activity of motor and accessory shares, Chandler, Packard, Pierce Arrow, Willys-Overland and General Motors moving to slightly higher ground with Stewart Warner Speedometer, Kelsey Wheel and Stromberg Carburetor. Fisher Body broke nearly 8 points to 202 and Bosch Magneto yielded a point. Tire and rubber stocks were inclined to heavy-iness. Kelly Springfield dropping nearly 2 points and Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Ajax yielding fractionally. Fisk Rubber showed slight improvement.

Some of the outstanding individual strong spots were American Car, American Radiator, Jewel Tea preferred, Mathieson Alkali, Republic Steel, Timken Roller Bearing, Reynolds Springs, Tobacco Products preferred, and U. S. Realty common and preferred, all up 2 1-2 to nearly 4 points; Mexican Petroleum, up 6, and Nash Motors, up 10 1-4.

Among the few issues to register large net losses were "Nickel Plate" second preferred, off 6 points, and Tidewater Oil, off 4 1-2.

Shifting of funds incidental to year-end dividend and interest requirements resulted in an opening and renewal rate of 5 1-2 per cent. for call money, which eased off to 5 before the close. Lowering of time money rates from 5 to 4 3-4 per cent. for the longer maturities was in expectation of an early and heavy return of funds withdrawn for January interest and dividend payments.

Improvement in the principal allied exchanges was construed as an indication of the European financial community's optimism on the outcome of the preparations conference now in session. Demand sterling advanced a cent to $4.64-5-8; French francs climbed 3 points to 7.41 and Italian lira 5 points to 5.14. German mark were quoted at 1.39 1-2 cents a hundred. Canadian exchange was still at 1 per cent. discount.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 2.—Bond prices displayed slight weakness in today's early dealings, but trading never increased and the day's transactions and closing quotations were generally higher. Trading was comparatively quiet, a strong demand for best issues being noted. Liberal purchases by dealers representing the investment trade of the market. U. S. government securities were fractionary, the net losses, however, being limited from 3 to 14 cents on $100.

St. Paul issues turned weak again, the general 4 1-2's breaking nearly 2 points and the convertible 5's 1 3-8, but most of the other speculative railroad

Local Canadian residents were interested in the new regulation of the post office department, effective January 2st, which states that the registration of fourth class parcel mail, exchanged with Canada will be discontinued, unless such parcels are sealed and the letter rate of postage is paid thereon. The registration of letters, postal cards, prints, samples of merchandise, and commercial papers exchanged with Canada will continue as heretofore and senders should be advised that matter of considerable value, as distinguished from general merchandise (parcel post) matter, should be sealed, letter postage paid thereon, and registered, so that it may receive the additional safeguards provided by the registry service.

Effective January 1, 1923, the amount of indemnity paid for the loss of any registered article exchanged with Canada will be increased to no exceeding $25. The amount of registry fee remains unchanged.

Commencing January 1, 1923, mailable fourth class parcels exchanged with Canada, may be insured, upon application, under the same conditions, in so far as applicable, as apply to domestic fourth class (parcel post) mail. Insured packages of general merchandise should be open to inspection, but may be sealed, providing there is placed on a printed label showing the name and address of the sender and stating in a general way the nature of the contents, such as "Merchandise, fourth class mail" as required by amended section 469 of the Postal Laws and Regulations.

Another interesting announcement at the local post-office is that beginning January 2, 1923, there will be a direct exchange of international postal money orders between the United States and Latvia. Latvia is one of the new states of northern Europe, which has lately been recognized by the United States.

GIVEN JAIL SENTENCES FOR DRIVING OFF WITH AUTOMOBILE

"We want to make this taking of automobiles exceedingly unpopular to men of the United States army," declared State Attorney Hadlai A. Hull before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Tuesday afternoon, when moving for sentence on two Fort Wright soldiers who ran off on Nov. 22 but got only as far as the Saybrook bridge before they were stopped.

Public Defender C. L. Stewart made a plea for leniency for the two men, Albert Dudley, 19, of Marlboro, Mass., and Edward J. Smith, 22 of Oyster Bay, L. I., on the ground that a severe jail sentence would mean that the men would be absent from the service over three months so that they would have their army records blackened by receiving dishonorable discharges.

The men have been in jail since Nov. 22. They were presented before the court on the charge of theft of an automobile, but they were allowed to plead guilty to operating a car without the owner's permission and on this charge Judge Brown gave each a sentence of 30 days in jail without costs. In imposing sentence, Judge Brown referred to the heavy lines and jail sentences which were provided as the penalty for these crimes, which were a maximum of $1,000 fine and a year in jail, but said he would give them the benefit of all possible leniency in view of their service records in the World war.

In the case of offenses of this character, especially by men in the service, Major Hull said there often did not seem to be any real intent to steal, and he deplored the lack of dignity shown to the uniform by the commission of these petty annoying offenses. The punishment that the men receive from the civil court will not be all as they will be subject to court martial when they get back to their army post.

Public Defender Stewart said in his statement on behalf of the two soldiers that they had been in New London and were five days over their leave when they conceived the idea of going to New York for the holidays. They drove the telephone machine away from New London and said they intended to leave at the telephone office in New Haven, from where they would go on by train to New York, as one of them had just money enough for the capfare. At the Saybrook bridge, Dudley got out to pay the toll, but ran out onto the bridge when he saw the bridge tender take up the telephone to notify the New London police. At the same time the bridge tender started to open the draw, but Dudley was able to jump the gap in the bridge and escaped to the Saybrook end, although at the time it was supposed he had gone into the water and had been drowned. Smith was arrested and the next day Dudley gave himself up at the New London police station.

Attorney Stewart asked that a suspended sentence might be given as had been done in other cases of this kind in previous court sessings to save the army record of the men from dishonorable discharge. He read Smith's record showing that he had served at St. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He also read letters of recommendation for Dudley.

Fined $25 Without Costs

Feaben Horouzy, who was presented on the charge of carrying a blackjack at a dance at Jewett City on Oct. 29, was fined $25 without costs.

Attorney Edmund W. Perkins addressed the court in the man's behalf, saying that Horouzy had been at this dance and had been very much intoxicated. There seemed to be a strong probability that he had put on somebody elses coat which had the dangerous weapon protruding from one of the pockets. It was made of a stick with a piece of an automobile gear attached to it, and Horouzy made no attempt to use it, in fact, it was probable that the man's condition was such that he didn't know he had it.

State Attorney Hull did not oppose the plea for leniency.

Nolle On Actual Costs

Frank Gregin of Colchester who was accused of assault and battery on Florence Beck in Colchester on Sept. 1 had his case nolled on payment of actual costs after Major Hull had explained to the court that this did not seem to be a serious matter, but had arisen when some young women had been bothered by a dog as they were passing a house had provided themselves with stones on the way back and Gregin had resented this.

To Jail for Theft

George J. Harrison, 25, a native of Nashville, Tenn., was given a year in jail for theft on Oct. 14 from the home of Charles Bloomquist of Quaker Hill. He took a diamond stick pin, a 22 calibre rifle, a shot gun, a pair of leggins and a flashlight, all of the value of $48.

Harrison was examined during Tuesday morning by Superintendent F. S. Wilcox of the Norwich state hospital, who reported to the court that the man had the mentality of a boy of 16 and it seemed that he would always be a subject for courts and officers.

Public Defender Stewart stated to the court that the stolen goods had been sold in New London and had all been recovered. He asked for a suspended sentence and probation, which the state attorney opposed on the ground that there was no certainty the man would remain in this vicinity.

In sentencing the man to jail Judge Brown said that if his record there were good at the end of four months he would consider a recommendation for probation.

A 16-year old boy, whose name is Thomas Richard Lyons but who gave the name of Smith when arrested, was sent to the state reformatory for burglary on September 23 at three adjoining stores on Main street the Shu-Fix, the Therrien barber shop and the Novatzsky news store.

Lyons is one of the three boys who were in the burglary. All three escaped from the woman's room at Norwich police headquarters after they were arrested. Lyons and Edward Maban were recaptured in New London but the third fugitive, of whom who was said to be the leader, is still among the missing. Maban has been returned to the authorities of a Massachusetts reform school from which he had escaped.

Before passing sentence upon Lyons Judge Brown had the boy come before him and questioned him closely about a number of other burglaries in other places which it was thought he had been concerned in. Judge Brown followed the same course before passing sentence in several other cases.

Public Defender Stewart made a touching statement to the court in asking clemency for Lyons. He explained that it was O'Connor who had suggested to the burglars and that the boys were induced to go to a vacant house that was used for a coal bin at the rear of the building. They secured about $20 in cash from the Shu-Fix store and cigarettes from the barber shop. Mr. Stewart said the three merchants who had suffered from the burglary did not want to see Lyons punished as the outbreak in the boy had been settlement pupil, whom Mr. Mobb and Mr. Therrien supported him in this.

In response to questions from Judge Brown, the attorney read the record of the boy which showed that he had twice run away from institutions and been committed to an attack on a salesman in 5 and 10c stores, and had been in trouble for school attendance and had been arrested in another minor burglary case.

When Judge Brown questioned the boy about these he said he had always been led into these by other people and his opinion he was the lookout on the Norwich burglary and did not go into the stores.

Attorney Stewart urged that the court place the boy in the custody of his mother, who was in court and who made a statement before Judge Brown.

State Attorney Hull said the boy did not go amenable to ordinary appeals and he was opposed to putting him in charge of his mother.

Judge Brown told Lyons that he thought the only thing for him was a term in the reformatory where he could learn a trade and prove whether he could make good or not.

Held For New York Authorities.

In the case of Joe Bennett, alias Koster, of Montville, accused of theft on Montville of a $10 silver watch and chain and a $15 gold watch from Miss Grace Murray, on Nov. 6th, the man is held for New York officers from Hartford.

Criminal Term Opened.

The criminal term opened at 10 in the morning Tuesday, with ten prisoners in the L.m.

Rev. D. C. Dunbar of the First Baptist church offered prayer at the opening of court.

Prisoners were put to plea and were asked to state whether they wanted to be tried by the court or by jury.

Besides the cases already mentioned the following were put to plea:

George K. Bates, aggravated assault with an axe in July in Preston upon Theresa C. Ellal, not guilty, jury trial.

The Marinelli case will furnish one of the trials at this term of court and there may be one or two other trials to occupy the term.

The jury is summoned in for 10 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning when the court sessions will be resumed.

REOPENS OLD WOODWORTH MILL AT QUAKER HILL

After 15 to 16 years during which it has stood idle, the old Woodworth paper mill at Quaker Hill resumed operations Tuesday under the control of the Pulp and Paper Products Co., a new corporation which secured control of the property some time ago.

Approximately $35,000 has been spent in getting the mill ready to operate again as new and modern equipment has been put in and there is more yet to be installed to bring the mill up to modern requirements.

The mill starts again with a small force but will enlarge in a short time to about 26, not including the clerical force.

HAD CHARGE ON CONTRACT ON NORWICH WATER WORKS

Captain Lawrence P. O'Brien, who died January 1st at the home of his daughter in New Haven, came to this country when a young man and located in New Haven and served in the Ninth Connecticut Volunteers in the Civil war. Later he was a contractor and came to Norwich and had charge of the contract for the building of the Norwich water works. In Norwich on February 6, 1866, he was married to Miss Katherine L. Devine, by Rev. Daniel Mullen. They then located in New Haven, Mrs. O'Brien dying there several years ago.

In early manhood he was a political prisoner in Ireland but escaped and came to this country where later, with other New Haven men he fitted out the ship Catalpa that rescued James Boyle O'Reilly and other Irishmen who were then in exile in Australia, and brought them back to this country.

He is still kindly remembered by the older residents of Norwich.

POETRY

THE PHANTOM AIRSHIP.

I'm going on a journey
With end unknown to me.
I have no need of ticket
For transportation's free
Upon a silent airship
Whose passing none may see.

I'm going on a journey,
And no one knows the name
Of that far distant country—
Is it where I came?
Alack and shall I enter there
In glory, or in shame?

I'm going on a journey,
But who knows when? Not I,
Perchance it is the doorway
My soul on may not see—
Perhaps I'll not have time enough
To bid my loved goodbye!

I'm going on a journey,
For rather would I say
One little earth I love so much;
But I must obey
When comes that voice Divine
To carry me away.

I'm going on a journey,
There is no trunk to pack,
No suitcases to speed me
Yet nothing I shall lack
Upon my phantom airship
And I never can come back.

—Samuel Minturn Peck, in Boston Transcript.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Frank—Don't you wish you knew as much as your children think you do?

Phamlee—No, I wish I knew as much as my children think they do.—Boston Transcript.

"We may as well give up trying to get into society," said Newrich in discouragement. "The barrier is insurmountable."

"Nonsense!" returned Mrs. Newrich. "We'll get over it in time."

"No, but our money has," said his wife.—Western Christian Advocate.

"Have you ever taken a flyer in the market?"

"Yes, that's where I learned that riches have wings."—Boston Transcript.

Enthusiastic Golfer (opening conversation with tired-looking individual in railway carriage): "And what is your handicap?"

Tired-Looking Individual—"Wife and five children."—London Tit-Bits.

"My husband is merely a manufacturer of waste baskets," sighed the woman with aspirations. "It seems such a prosy occupation."

"On the contrary, there is really much poetry in waste paper baskets," replied the unappreciated bard.—Pittsburgh Sun.

"It's got so these days," complained a young man, "that you can hardly get married unless you can show the girl two licenses."

INAUGURATION OF CHARLES A. TEMPLETON AS GOVERNOR

Ceremonies Were Simple and Short—Message in the General Assembly Emphasized the Need for Economy—Favors the Enforcement of Prohibition in Conformity With Other Laws—Instructs General Assembly to Get in Touch With Carriers for the Retention of Standard Time.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 3—A new administration with Governor Charles A. Templeton at the head took over the conduct of state affairs at the capitol this afternoon. In keeping with custom the ceremonies were simple as compared with those of recent inaugurations, were short and without display. There were about as usual, the assembling of the retiring and incoming governor and other officers, by the first and second companies of governor's foot guards and a detail of cavalry, giving a military touch and the inaugural ball tonight completing the day social.

The induction into office of Governor Templeton and of Colonel Hiram Bingham as lieutenant governor was in keeping with precedent and the organization of the general assembly differed little from former years.

Governor Templeton after taking the oath of office before the joint convention of the senate and the house, administered by Chief Justice George W. Wheeler, read his message in which he mad ea plea for economy. Twice, the new governor won the applause of the audience. The first time was when, after taking a drink of water, he read a subtitle "prohibition," and began to explain that he believed that Connecticut's present enforcement laws were sufficient. When he defended standard time and announced his opposition to daylight saving time there was also a wave of hand-clapping.

Lieutenant Governor Bingham, who presided, did not once drop his gavel but had brought the convention and galleries to its feet at the proper time by declaring that the "convention be in order," and then seated it by declaring the convention "at ease."

Governor Templeton, after the swearing in of the state officers by Chief justice Wheeler, left the hall of the house and returned to the executive offices.

The state officers sworn were Francis A. Pallotti as secretary of state, G. Harold Gilpatrie, state treasurer; Frederick A. Salmon, comptroller, and Frank L. Healey, attorney general.

Colonel Bingham was given the oath of office by Chief Justice Wheeler as soon as the senate resumed its sitting in the afternoon. He immediately took the gavel and in doing so said that he understood it was his duty to carry out the rules of procedure that the senate had laid down to enable it to do its business. "Efficiency has long been the rule in Connecticut," he said, "and I am proud of the record of this state. When I looked over the legislative history of this country I found that Connecticut occupied a very high place. I shall be greatly pleased to render any whatever duties this body may require of me to help to give the state an efficient administration and good laws.

Senator Brooks objected to a resolution which proposed Friday sessions, saying that after the introduction of new business matters there would be time enough to determine whether Friday sessions would be needed. He said that surely have Friday sessions been productive of results. The resolution was passed as a joint resolution and Friday, January 5, was set as the limit for the offering of new business.

The senate adjourned until next Wednesday when time speaker, L. J. Tarbox of the house and President Hon. C. H. Trumbull of the senate will have their committees ready.

The attendance at the capitol corps was not as large and there was also less attention to the display of floral decorations and floral pieces. Flowers to individual officers and members. In the late afternoon there were two social receptions in the executive chamber and in the departmental offices.

Inside the day ended the weather became such as it has been at inaugurations in the last twenty years, a snowy one setting in. The last really pleasant day for an inauguration was in 1909, and it is said that similar occasions for years before that lacked sunshine.

The organization of the general assembly was accomplished in short order. Senator Ellis of Waterbury will be majority leader in the upper branch and chairman of the judiciary committee and Major John Buckley will be republican floor leader in the house and house chairman of the judiciary committee. Senator McGrath of Waterbury and Mr. Fenton of Windham will be the minority leader. The seven women who are in the house will sit together irrespective of party political adherence and for committee assignments are expected to go to those of the humane institutions, education and public health and safety. There is no contested seat in the house which will be passed on by a committee formed by republicans to take the evidence and make a finding.

Many of the veteran members, after adjournment, declared that the outlook for them was not only for a short but a quiet session.

Governor's Message.

Mr. President and Ladies and Gentlemen of the General Assembly:

In former days the governor at the opening of each general assembly customarily gave a resume of all the activities of the state government. With the present multifarious activities of the state such a digest is no longer possible, even if it were desirable.

State Finances.

The financial condition of the state as shown by the reports of the treasurer and comptroller is very satisfactory and indicates clearly that Connecticut has turned the corner and that our business and industries are in a normal and prosperous condition.

Current receipts of income show a modest balance over current expenditure after making suitable provision for the sinking fund. With increased prosperity during the coming two years, revenues from many sources will, no doubt, be greatly increased. But this condition, favorable as it is, does not present the problem of a surplus. It is not an invitation to seek new channels of expenditure, but rather an admonition to us to husband our resources and to render the burden of taxation more tolerable.

The fact that other states, however advanced in political progress, have adopted many innovations involving large expenditures of the public money, ought not to serve as a precedent for Connecticut, and wise discrimination should be used in separating essential projects from those which are unessential or experimental in their nature.

Taxation.

The rapid and stupendous increase in taxation—federal, state and local—has reached such heights as to cause every conscientious legislator to pause before embarking on any new scheme involving increased expenditures of the people's money. Federal taxation today represents one-sixth of the entire annual national income and it has begun to encroach upon enterprise and industry. Local taxation throughout the United States in 1914 averaged seventeen dollars per capita and the figure had grown to thirty-seven dollars per capita in 1921. It gratifies our national and state pride to point to our enormous reservoirs of capital and accumulations of our toil and thrift as evidence of our capacity to withstand increased tax levies; but all of our wealth is accumulated by human effort, and increased imposts would create a very serious condition jeopardizing the possibilities of new industrial or financial enterprises and drying up the resources of those already established. To the average man the most vital economic problem is the staggering burden of taxation.

With this thought in mind, every proposal for the creation of any new state activity or expense should be subjected to careful scrutiny, bearing in mind that we are the stewards of the people's funds and should expend them only as a prudent man would expend his own money. The tendency of modern life is to call on the state or some arm of the government to undertake many new lines of humanitarian or social benefit work. Most of these proposals spring from the highest motives, but in examining them we should always consider: (1) whether the proposal is practicable and worth the cost, (2) whether the enterprise can possibly be conducted by private effort; (3) whether the project is indispensable to the comfort and well-being of the people of Connecticut. Although state management is in many cases necessary, it should be resorted to only when clearly essential; for whatever tends to destroy the initiative of the private citizen is bad for him and bad for the state. Of course, proven activities should be encouraged.

The effort of the general assembly should be concentrated as far as possible in a strenuous purpose to reduce the public burden. The state and county tax imposed on the grand list of the towns constitutes a great burden on a class of property already heavily taxed. There is an unlimited number of plans by which state revenues may be derived from additional sources, but I believe it is your first duty to consider all economic means of reducing the cost of the state government rather than seeking additional objects on which to impose new levies. In this connection I must also be remembered that, just as in everyday business an increased production may result in greater profit while lessening the purchaser less, so in governmental affairs an increased prosperity coupled with lower rates of taxation may achieve larger financial results than higher rates coupled with impairment of business.

Central Purchasing Authority.

The general assembly of 1921 enacted legislation providing that the bills of all departments and institutions shall be paid through the treasurer's office on the order of the comptroller. The wisdom of this policy of centralized accounting and payment has been amply demonstrated. I believe that this policy of centralization as applied to accounting and payment of the state bills ought to be extended to the purchase of the staple commodities and equipment used by the various institutions of the state.

In one form or another, approximately thirty states have adopted the policy of centralizing or consolidating their purchasing power and the results have been almost satisfactory from the standpoint of economy and efficiency. Our neighboring state of Massachusetts entered upon this policy during the last calendar year.

The adoption of such a plan is but the application of sound business principles which have long been successfully used by all well-managed industrial corporations. Such centralized purchase would result in incalculable benefits to the state. By standardizing and by quantity purchase of staple articles at competitive prices great savings in expense can be accomplished. Expert service in purchasing would also prevent wastage of supplies and materials and serve as a helpful preventive of unnecessary and unwise buying. My own personal observations and investigations of practically all the institutions maintained by the state have convinced me that the adoption of a centralized plan of purchase and supply is imperative.

In larger states of magnificent distances, certain practical difficulties might arise in the operation of such a plan, but Connecticut is a small, compact state, and with modern means of communication and transportation every institution is within convenient distance of the capital; and these conditions are peculiarly favorable to the successful operation of centralized purchasing.

Legislation along these lines has been recommended by two former governors to the general assembly. The arguments advanced against it were that in cases of emergency it would work great inconvenience, and that often favorable purchases of fruits and vegetables could be made in local markets. A proper measure, I assume, would allow the purchase of fruits, vegetables and farm products grown in the vicinity by the management of each institution, and provision should be made allowing each institution a petty cash fund for the purchase of small items and for emergencies.

I would, therefore, strongly urge the passage of legislation providing for the appointment by the governor of an experienced purchase commissioner to serve under the direction of the board of control. I believe such legislation is demanded by the public in the interest of economy and business efficiency and no measure which will command your attention during this session will be productive of greater public good.

Prohibition.

The enactment of the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution and the adoption of enforcement legislation thereunder marked one of the greatest sociological experiments ever attempted by any nation.

Our state did not ratify this amendment nor did any of our representatives in either house of congress vote for its submission or for the passage of the Volstead act, so-called. A very great many, possibly a majority of our people felt that it was an unwarranted infringement on both state and personal rights. It is true, of course, that the framers of the Constitution never contemplated the vesting of police powers having to do with the personal habits of the people in the federal government; such powers were reserved to the states.

However, Connecticut, true to its traditions as a loyal member of the union of states, enacted the necessary concurrent legislation for its enforcement. I believe this legislation is suitable for its purpose, and that the existing machinery for general enforcement is adequate. Not only the local courts but the higher courts have jurisdiction in these cases and the powers of the state's attorney's office are also available. Whenever, for any reason, the local police authorities are incapable of performing the work, the organization of the state police can furnish the necessary aid. This machinery, in addition to the federal enforcement organization, should be sufficient for all purposes.

The tendency, altogether too common, on the part of citizens otherwise law abiding, to violate this particular law is a cause of grave concern. The continuance of a wholesale violation of this law must inevitably lead to a breaking down of respect for all law and such a situation cannot be tolerated in Connecticut. If the law is distasteful to the majority of the American people, it can eventually be changed; but so long as it is with us, it should be properly enforced.

Whatever power is vested in the executive by the constitution of Connecticut for the enforcement of law, shall use to the best of my ability. I strongly urge the cooperation of all good citizens not only in a personal observance of the law, but ask for their helpful aid in creating a spirit of law observance.

Daylight Saving.

As an incident to the patriotic endeavors of our people during the World war, the so-called daylight saving came into general use by common consent. It is possible that it may have been of some sentimental value at the time of its inception, but its continuance since the war has, in many cases, produced serious inconvenience and unwarranted hardship. It has been in many ways detrimental to the interests of the farmer and it has proved a marked discomfort to families rearing children. I am convinced that the great majority of the people of the state wish to adhere to standard time only, and a minority ought not to seek to impose its will on the community. The railroads arrange their passenger schedules to conform to the daylight saving time of New York city; and with this as a precedent, many communities, through the action clubs or otherwise, have informally adopted daylight saving during the summer months. I believe the public utilities commission should be empowered to co-operate with the common carriers in an endeavor to maintain a normal time table throughout the year and in this way serve the interests of the people of Connecticut. Any appropriate legislation having for its purpose the maintenance of standard time throughout the state will have my hearty approval.

Motor Trucks

The increasing use of motor trucks upon the highways for the transportation of rapid freight and express service, has created new problems for the highway department. Their common use has greatly increased the cost of maintenance on all state highways to such an extent that the proposal has been made that special highways be constructed for the exclusive use of trucks. This proposition seems to me unfair alike to the taxpayers of the state and to the organized transportation service of the state. The passenger, freight and express revenues of the steam railways have been much depleted in recent years due to the ever-increasing use of motor vehicles of all kinds. A large part of this loss while regrettable, is unavoidable; but the continued profitable and efficient operation of these roads is indispensable to the business and industry as well as to the comfort of the people of the state. The railroads own their own right of way and maintain at great expense their rail system. The state, from every consideration, ought not to spend the people's money for the construction of free truck highways for the benefit of any freight and express system unless that system pays the cost of the highway it uses, especially when the benefits of such a free use would inure in large measure to the inhabitants of other states. I am informed that modern railroad gasoline trucks can be used advantageously and profitably on railroad tracks. If it is possible for the steam roads to maintain prompt and speedy express service, they ought to be given every opportunity and encouragement to render such service. I would recommend that the public utilities commission be instructed to investigate this subject and to confer with the railroad management as to the practicability of such service. If a reasonable diversion of this traffic to the railroad companies is possible, it would tend to simplify some of the problems of the highway department and possibly give more efficient service to the public.

I believe further legislation regulating not only tonnage of motor trucks, but also the dimensions of their tonneaux or bodies is required in the interest of public safety as well as the proper maintenance of our trunk line highways.

Agriculture.

While Connecticut is largely a manufacturing state, yet its agricultural interests, actual and potential, are of the highest importance and are essential to the well being and comfort of the whole community. Probably eighty per cent. of the money spent by our people for farm products goes outside of the state. I believe that this condition ought not to exist. It is also true that the farmer in general, in proportion to capital invested and labor performed, receives a smaller return than any other class in the community.

The farmer labors under many hardships which are not common to the business man of the city: First, his comparative isolation and the difficulty of maintaining suitable religious, scholastic and social organization with comparatively few to support it by taxes or voluntary gifts; second, the difficulty of securing farm labor in competition with

Paris, Jan. 3.—Announcement of the expulsion of Victor Marguerite, the noted French author, from the Legion of Honor will appear in the next issue of the Law Bulletin. It was made known officially today. A decree ordering his name stricken from the rolls was signed by President Millerand on New Year's day, the announcement added.

President Angers Anti-Prohibitionists

By Declining to Hear Arguments for Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment.

New York, Jan. 3.—Members of the Molly Pitcher club, some of them prominent society and club women, indulged in a period of hissing today when it was announced at a club luncheon that President Harding had declined to meet a delegation named to lay before him the club's argument for repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The storm burst when Ransom H. Gillett, counsel for the New York division of the Association Opposed to the Prohibition Amendment, read excerpts from a letter from the president, giving as grounds for his refusal to meet the women his belief that "it is a futile thing to expect the repeal of the amendment," and that such an interview could only "result in controversial publicity and create a suspicion that the federal government is not in good faith endeavoring to force the prohibition laws."

The club thwarted the president's desire to avoid "controversial publicity" in two particulars; first, it made public a part of his letter; second, it gave out—in advance even of its receipt by the president — a newly-adopted resolution, arguing against the validity of his objections to the interview and renewing the request that the delegation be received. The resolution also reminded the president that he recently had received a church delegation "to discuss prohibition."

Mr. Gillett brought up the president's refusal in the following words:

"I wrote a letter to President Harding a few days ago at the request of the club, asking [illegible] action of his people [illegible] the purpose of discussing certain [illegible] of the administration of the Volstead act.

"The right for such expressions and provided for under the fifth amendment conference with the chief executive to the constitution, but in spite of this provision and in face of the fact that the president only a few days previously received a body of delegates from an Evangelical church to discuss prohibition, the request was denied.

"I say that when the chief executive of this republic cannot receive any delegation to discuss any issue as provided for under the constitution, then the republic is in danger."

Mr. Gillett then quoted from the president's letter:

"Summarily, I would receive any delegation on your suggestion, and I try to make it a rule to find time for an audience with any delegation whose members desire to present to the president a pressing problem of government frankly, however, I do not believe it would be an opportune time just now to receive a delegation with aims to give expression to its hostility to the eighteenth amendment. It is such a futile thing to expect the repeal of the amendment that I doubt the wisdom of giving an interview which can only result in controversial publicity and create a suspicion that the federal government is not in good faith endeavoring to enforce the prohibition laws."

Mis Elisabeth Marbury, club president, and one of several anti-prohibition speakers who addressed the gathering, criticized federal agents, and the police for the manner in which they enforced the prohibition enforcement law here on New Year's eve, predicting, that "such a form of despotism" would speedily break down all respect for law and order.

Nyack, N. Y. Jan. 3 (By the A. P.) Ewen Burrows Fontaine's annulment of her marriage with Sterling Adair today was vacated by Justice Tompkins in supreme court here, when he sustained charges of fraud brought by Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney in defense of a $1,000,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by the dancer.

Justice Tompkins, who granted the annulment in July, 1920, also ordered the district attorney to bring before a grand jury all records in the case with a view to indicting Miss Fontaine and her mother for perjury in having obtained the annulment through fraud.

The court further recommended that the New York Bar association investigate the practices of Charles Fleishmann of Mount Vernon and New York, attorney of record for the dancer in the suit for annulment.

Testimony in Senate Oil Investigations

High Officials in 1922 Received Salaries Ranging From $32,000 to $47,500.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Profits averaging from one cent to one and a half cents are realized by the Standard Oil Company of New York upon each gallon of gasoline produced in its refineries according to testimony submitted by the corporation today in the senate oil investigation.

Testimony was presented to the senate manufacturers sub-committee conducting the inquiry by four officials of the Standard Oil Company of New York, who, replying to questions put by the committee counsel, described in detail operations of the company in the fields of foreign and domestic trade, transportation and finance. Incidentally the committee got its first direct information as to the salaries paid high officials of oil companies.

The statement as to profits on gasoline was made by Howard A. Wilkinson, a director of the corporation in charge of domestic sales. He estimated the spread in gasoline between the refineries of the Standard of New York and the company's filling setations in the territory it covers—New York and New England states—at seven cents a gallon. This spread, he said, was taken up by a little more than one and a half cents a gallon for freight and a little more than four cents for marketing with the balance representing profits to the company.

The information as to salaries was brought out by Chairman La Follette. Representatives of companies appearing previously before the committee were asked to submit a list of their higher officials and the salaries paid each. However, when Howard E. Cole, third vice president of the Standard of New York, took the stand today, Mr La Follette asked him point blank what his salary was. Mr. Cole plainly was disconcerted by the question but finally secured in a low voice that his salary for [illegible] was $47,500, for 1921, was $42,[illegible] and for 1919, was $35,000.

Mr. Wilkinson, who followed Mr. Cole, also was subjected to inquiry as to his salary and likewise in a low voice said he was paid $42,000 last year, $27,500 the year previous, and $18,000 in 1920 when he was Boston manager for the Standard of New York.

While the manufacturers committee was conducting its inquiry, which is expected to be concluded the last of this month, steps were taken by the senate public lands committee to resume its inquiry into leases of naval oil reserves.

NEW YORK CENTER OF SNOW STORM LAST NIGHT

New York, Jan. 3.—New York tonight was the center of another snow storm which, enveloping the city just before dusk, descended over the harbor and pushed far out to sea a curtain of snow and fog, seriously hampering inbound ships.

Up to midnight, over four inches of snow had fallen and the police department was appealed to by the street cleaning bureau to help recruit snow shovelers. The 500 motorized snow plows of the department worked steadily into the night, augmented by nearly 3,000 of the regular winter force of "snow wings."

The weather bureau tonight ordered storm warnings hoisted from Delaware breakwater to Eastport, Me., announcing that a disturbance off Cape Hatteras was moving northeastward, increasing meanwhile in intensity. Snow and rain with gales was predicted for tomorrow.

The first fatality due to the storm was the death of 6-year-old William Hogan struck by an automobile when the driver was blinded by the snow. Minor accidents were numerous.

Already two days late after a voyage beset by storm, the White Star liner, Majestic, from Southampton and Cherbourg, anchored off Ambrose Light in a blinding snow squall after dark. So thick was the weather that she could not be seen from Sandy Hook. Her captain ordered his ship's position and announced she would lay outside until weather permitted entry by the fortune channel.

The little steamboat Seboard, bound from this city to Bridgeport, Conn., ran aground off the southeast end of City Island but was reported to be out of danger.

Passengers on the Majestic include Emile Coue, French pharmacist, and Montagu Collet Norman, governor of the Bank of England, with Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, members of the British funding commission, who will confer with government officials at Washington regarding the British debt.

CASUALTIES DURING A DUEL IN MEXICO CITY

Mexico City, Jan. 3.—(By The A. P.) —George W. Stebbins, the American owner of an automobile repair shop, was mortally wounded tonight when he walked into the line of fire between two military men who were engaged in a pistol duel in the streets. Stebbins was struck down in the presence of his wife and child.

Five others were seriously wounded, including General Leovigildo Avila and Lieutenant Colonel Constantino Lascano, principals in the duel.

The fusillade started when the military officers engaged in an altercation over assertions made by Deputy Trillo, who was in the party. Numerous shots were exchanged at an hour when the streets were crowded.

Among the others injured were a policeman, a bullfighter, Emanuel Rodrigues, and Deputy Trillo. Trillo, however, was able to get away from the scene quickly.

The shooting took place in September Sixteen street, one of the main city thoroughfares, which was subjected to a severe crossfire.

GOVERNMENT PROCEEDINGS AGAINST FRED T. LEY & CO.

Boston, Jan. 3.—The United States government today instituted proceedings against the Fred T. Ley & Co., Inc., of Springfield and this city, to recover $5,000,000 for alleged breach of contract in connection with the construction of the army cantonment at Camp Devens. A writ for $8,000,000 was placed in the hands of the United States marshal for service, but the declaration, which will not be officially filed until a return is made on the writ, will ask recovery of only $5,000,000.

The contract in question, the government claimed, was entered into June 11, 1917, between the company, represented by Harold A. Ley, president, and Major N. A. Dempsey, representing the United States, and was declared to be the first of the "cost-plus" awards made during the war.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Alexander Graham Bell.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Mrs. Alexander Graham Bell, widow of the famous inventor, died here tonight, after a long illness. She was 63 years of age.

Mrs. Bell died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. David Fairchild where she had been failing ever since the death last August of the famous inventor.

Mrs. Bell was Mabel Hubbard, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Greene Hubbard of Cambridge, Mass., wher she was born in 1859. The Hubbard family traced its ancestry far back through a line of American pioneers to the early kings of England. Although throughout her life she was a leader in her own small social set and acted as her distinguished husband's business manager and aided him in his work, she lived under an affliction of total deafness that followed a severe attack of scarlet fever in her childhood.

ANXIETY OVER SITUATION AT REPARATIONS MEETING

Both French and British Delegates Believe the Conference in Paris Will End Today Without an Agreement—Unity Among the Allied Governments is Threatened—Premier Poincare Has Refused Even to Accept the British Plan as Material for Discussion—Washington is Watchful of the Situation.

Paris, Jan. 3 (By the A. P.)—Rupture of the premiers' conference, with all its dangerous possibilities for Europe and the Near East, was barely avoided today by a recess until tomorrow, when the unfinished declaration by the British prime minister, Mr. Bonar Law, in reply to Premiers Poincare and Theunis will be completed, and Marquis De La Torreta will have a formal opportunity to state the Italian government's position.

The conference, in the judgment of both French and British delegates, will probably end tomorrow without an agreement, thus breaking up unity among the allied governments, upon which the policies of all the principal western powers are based.

There is much dismay and anxiety over the situation. The tone of the conference has been cordial enough but the British and French views are irreconcilable as they stand now. Mr. Bonar Law is regarded by the French as personally desirous of coming, if he reasonably can to prevent a break, but since the publication of the British note he is thought to be limited absolutely by his own proposals, or the propositions, which in the view of the French were prepared by officials of the British treasury in cooperation with Sir John Bradbury British member of the reparations commission and Lord D'Abernon, British ambassador to Germany.

The British prime minister therefore finds it well nigh impossible to accept as a basis of discussion either the French or Italian plans without taking into consideration the British plan, from which they differ so radically.

There is no reason to draw a favorable prediction from a continuation of the conference tomorrow, it was declared last night by a high official of the French foreign office.

Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspar and their associates in the Belgian delegation took a more cheerful view of the day's events, because Mr. Bonar Law abandoned that part of the British plan setting aside Belgium's priority. The Belgian premier spoke in the conference with deep emotion, which is quite unusual in this business man.

"Under no circumstances will Belgium renounce the right which he won by her heroic stand during the war and by the allies' unanimous consent after the armistice," said M. Theunis.

All eyes were turned upon Mr. Bonar Law. Amid a dramatic silence the British premier arose and said in a matter of fact way, which contrasted sharply with the Belgian premier's impassioned tones: "Very well, we yield. But we were under the impression that Belgium was prepared to make concessions."

WASHINGTON WATCHING THE CONFERENCE ON REPARATIONS

Washington, Jan. 3 (By the A. P.)—The reparations impasse in Europe took a lightening grip on the attentions of official Washington today as the allied premiers again assembled and adjourned in Paris in a general atmosphere of doubt and apprehension.

George Harvey, American ambassador at London, summoned home to contribute his personal knowledge of the situation to the deliberations of officials here in their desire to aid toward a settlement, spent the entire day at the White House and the state department, but if his conferences with highest officials of the government led to any definite decision it was guarded scrupulously.

In the senate, where the administration's attitude toward reparations recently weathered a three-day tempest of debate, there were signs of another approaching storm, centering this time around a resolution by Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, to authorize American representation on the reparations commission. The resolution was introduced today in the senate.

Everywhere there was ample evidence that every move made in the Paris conference was watched from Washington with a deep realization that what is said and done there may weigh tremendously in determining the future policy of the American government. Outwardly, there was a show of confidence that the threatened break between Great Britain and France would somehow be avoided, but inwardly the government appeared to be asking itself again the questions propounded by Secretary Hughes in his speech at New Haven: "How can the United States help in this matter? * * * If statesmen cannot agree, and such an alternative is faced, what can be done? Is there not another way out?"

What may be the precise role of Colonel Harvey in the present cautious search for a proper avenue of American helpfulness, remained an unanswered question.

From the time of his arrival in Washington last night until late this afternoon, the ambassador remained secluded at the White House. When he emerged he was impervious to all questions relating to foreign relations. He crossed to the state department and for the better part of an hour, was alone with Secretary Hughes. Then he returned to the White House, where he is the house guest of the president and referred all inquirers to the secretary who in turn, contented himself with saying it had been a "general talk."

How long Colonel Harvey will remain in Washington seems likely to be determined by the course that may be taken by events abroad. He said today that it depended on when he got his "sailing orders" from the state department.

There was a general impression, however, that his presence here was desired, while the council of premiers is passing through its most critical stages, so that he can give to his government the benefit of his personal background of information in determining what steps, if any, it is desirable to take.

There was no indication tonight that any step at all had been decided on, or that the situation with regard to an extension of American aid had advanced in any way since Secretary Hughes threw out in his New Haven speech the suggestion that a commission of financial authorities, including Americans, inquire into Germany's ability to pay. Neither has it been explained upon any authority why Mr. Hughes selected the eve of the Paris conference for making his suggestion or whether he made it knowing before hand the attitude of the European powers toward it.

It is certain that before the speech was delivered feelers had been put out at the European capitals, but whether they developed any definite indication of opinion before or since publication of the speech is not disclosed.

It seemed likely tonight that another attempt to draw the whole policy of the government into the open would be made in the senate during debate on the resolution introduced by Senator Robinson which would authorize the president to appoint official American representatives to the reparations commission to aid in adjustment of the reparations tangle there. Senator Robinson declared he not only would ask for prompt action on the proposal, but would request the foreign relations committee to question some of the American "observers" now serving with the commission and to invite the state department to lay on one table all of its reports and correspondence bearing on the reparations problem.

It is certain that such a move will meet with stubborn opposition, and that if the resolution ever is passed, it will be after another stormy foreign relations debate on the senate floor.

In the separate treaty negotiated with Germany by the present administration, it was stipulated that the United States reserved the right to sit on the commission if it desired and the Senate attached a reservation providing that no such participation should be authorized without the express action of congress.

In some quarters significance is attached, however, to the reference to this subject made by President Harding in his letter to Senator Lodge, on the Borah economic conference proposal, although it is pointed out that the president's words fell short of a definite request for action.

"In ratifying the treaty of peace with Germany," the letter said, in discussing the prerogatives of the executive branch of the government, "the senate made a reservation that the United States should not be represented on the reparations commission without consent of congress, and no such consent has been given."

The subject was not pursued by the president, however, beyond this mere statement of fact, and the omission never has been clarified by any further authoritative declaration.

Senator Robinson is expected to speak in the senate tomorrow in support of the resolution, but it appeared uncertain tonight whether a general debate would develop until the foreign relations committee had made its report on the subject.

LITTLE PROBABILITY OF OVERRIDING PENSION VETO

Washington, Jan. 3.—Loss to Civil and Mexican war pensioners of the large blanket pension increase proposed by the Bursum bill was threatened today through the veto of the bill by President Harding.

The president returned the bill to the senate, where it originated, with a message attacking it as a whole and specifically. He declared it would cost the government $108,000,000 annually and set a precendent entailing pension obligations of $0,000,000,000, within the next fifty years. He also disapproved specially provisions giving pensions rights to widows of veterans who had been married only two years.

Despite the president's veto, Senator Bursum, republican, New Mexico, author of the bill, which would raise Civil and Mexican war veterans' pensions from $50 to $72 a month and their widows from $30 $50 as well as increase the amounts to nurses, who saw active service in the Civil war and provide for Indian war veterans and their widows, announced that he would endeavor to have the bill passed over the veto, and said he would take an opportune time to make his motion after a canvass of senate sentiment.

At the same time he admitted there was little prob[illegible] of its passage over the veto.

The president's action came only a day before the expiration of the ten days' statutory dimit for him to affix his signature and after the bill had been referred to the interior department and pension office for study and report.

WOMAN IMAGINES SHE IS PURSUED BY BOLSHEVIKI

New York, Jan. 3.—Exhausted by years of flight in an effort to foil imaginary bolshevik intrigue, a woman giving the name of Nora Grey and styling herself a Russian princess was taken to Bellevue hospital tonight for mental examination.

The patient told alienists that she attempted suicide by gas asphyxiation in her lower West Side home when she feared the pursuing menace was about to overtake her.

The fugitive said she had fled Russia with a 12 year old son after her husband had been killed in the revolution. Seeking refuge on vast estates she claimed to own in Germany, she said she was wounded across the sea to America, to New Orleans, and finally to New York. Her boy died during her flight, she said

Hartford, Jan. 3.—The Connecticut general assembly for 1923 opened today with all but 25 of its members present. Among the absentees were one from New London county and five from Windham county.

The house was called to order by ex-Speaker Frederick M. Huxford of Stamford, who called upon Rev. A. F. Campbell of St. Paul's M. E. church to offer prayer. The roll of the house was called by the deputy secretary of state. Twenty-nine members of New London county answered. A second and third call was answered by a few of the stragglers. The oath of office was administered to the members present by Speaker Huxford.

Representatives Woodruff of Milford and Schutz of Hartford were appointed temporary clerks.

Tellers were appointed and upon motion of Major Bulkeley of Union the ballot was taken for the speakership of the house. Without nominations being made Judge Leonard J. Nickerson received 139 votes and Frank P. Fenton of Willimantic 31. Judge Nickerson was declared elected. Automatically Mr. Fenton becomes the minority floor leader.

Mr. Buckley of Union and Mr. Fenton were appointed a committee to notify the speaker of his selection, and upon their return the oath of office was administered by Speaker Huxford.

Judge Nickerson in a graceful and forcible speech thanked the representatives for the honor they had conveyed upon him. In part he said: "You will be called upon to act on many important matters and I bespeak your diligent attention to the same. Only such legislation should be enacted as is actually necessary. Special attention should be given to the appropriations that will be asked for. If the burden of taxation is too heavy it is hurtful to the best interests of all.

"The attendance of the membership should be constant. The burden of a proper transaction of the business to come before us rests largely upon the speaker, but at the same time he must have the co-operation of every member."

He promised that every one should have a square deal from the chair. He was heartily applauded and the election of a clerk was called for. Two hundred and eighteen ballots were cast, of which Lee J. Noonan of Hartford received 185 and Joseph J. Lynch 36. Mr. Noonan was declared elected.

On motion of Major Bulkeley Daniel J. B. Hickey of Stamford was chosen as assistant clerk by acclamation.

The usual resolutions on organization were passed. In strong contrast with the custom of days gone by the resolution authorizing the purchase of supplies brought a smile to some of the older members who remembered when expensive penholders and fountain pens were distributed to all. The resolution as passed includes stationery, pens, pencils, pins, clips, ink, erasers and fasteners.

The doorkeepers and messengers as selected by the county caucus last evening were elected.

D. J. Cronin of New London and F. P. Fenton of Willimantic were members of the committee to notify the retiring governor that the legislature was in session and was ready to receive any message he might have.

Governor Lake Reports Appointments.

Governor Lake responded by reporting the list of appointments made since the last assembly adjourned. In the list was that of James Graham of Lisbon to succeed J. B. Palmer as a member of the state board of agriculture.

Adjournment was taken at 12.30 till 2 p. m., when the joint session was held.

Takes Oath of Office.

At that time the session was presided over by Lieutenant-Governor Bingham and the oath of office was administered to Governor-elect Charles A. Templeton as the 84th governor of Connecticut in an impressive manner by Chief Justice George W. Wheeler of the supreme court of errors. The justice was accompanied to the platform by the entire supreme court bench.

"Business Man's Message."

Governor Templeton then read his message in a clear voice and it received the closest attention. The general comment was that it was a "business man's message" and it was characteristic of the man.

SENATE.

The senate of the session of 1923 was called to order at 10.30 by Donald J. Warner, the retiring secretary of state. Prayer was offered by Rev. Archibald F. Campbell, who has been appointed chaplain by President Pro Tem John H. Trumbull. Mr. Warner called the roll of senators. All responded to their names except James H. MacDonald, Ninth distr., Joseph Tone, Tenth district and Dennis Clyne, Eleventh district all in New Haven. The oath of office was administered to the senators by Secretary Warner, who then ordered a ballot for clerk, and appointed Senators Ellis and McGrath, both of Waterbury as tellers. During the taking of the ballot Senators Clyne and Tone took their seats in the senate chamber and the oath was administered to them. They then participated in the ballot. Just as the ballot was about to close Senator MacDonald took his seat and took the oath. He deposited his ballot for clerk. The result of the ballot was as follows: J. Frederick Baker, 27 votes and John H. Markham eight. Mr. Baker was declared elected.

Clerk Baker, having taken the oath of office took charge of the proceedings. Secretary Warner retiring. He asked for nominations for president pro tem. Senator Brooks nominated John H. Trumbull of the Fifth district and Senator Clyne nominated Thomas F. McGrath of the Sixteenth district for president pro tem.

The result of the ballot was as follows: John H. Trumbull, 28; Thomas F. McGrath 7. It was evident from the result that Senator Trumbull received a democratic vote. Senator Trumbull was declared elected and he took the oath of office from Clerk Baker.

In taking the chair, President Pro Tem Trumbull thanked the senators for the honor they had conferred on him and assured them that he highly appreciated it. He fully realized its responsibilities. He would earnestly endeavor to discharge the duties of the position without partiality or favor. The senators represented the people of the state. "Let us all earnestly and conscientiously use our best efforts in the enactment of laws that will be for the best interests of the state which we all love," said the president pro tem.

McGrath Minority Leader.

The democrats nominated Lawyer Thomas F. McGrath of Waterbury for president pro tem of the senate.

Governor Takes Leave Simply.

There was just a touch of the sadness of farewell at noon in the governor's office in the state capitol. The outer waiting room, the anteroom where the executive secretary has his desk, and the lairge office of the governor, himself had been divested of all but official property of the state of Connecticut. The whole place was as impersonal as the polished top of the executive desk which, for the first time since inauguration day in 1921, is innocent of official papers, gubernatorial pipe, cigar box and ash tray.

On the table at one side stood a huge basket of roses presented to Governor Templeton and at one side of this an American flag done in white and red carnations.

This latter floral piece was at first placed on the governor's desk but when Governor Lake arrived he at once ordered it propped against the wall at one side where it really showed up to better advantage.

"This may be my finish as governor," said he, "but I can't see why it should look any more like a funeral than necessary."

Promptly at noon a committee consisting of Senator Samuel C. Doty of Hartford, Representative Albert L. Darble of Killingly and Thomas F. Molloy of Derby, entered the governor's office. There was a moment of silence as Senator Doty attempted to phrase the fact that the committee had come to receive any possible and final communication from the governor.

But Governor Lake relieved the situation by shaking the senator warmly by the hand and telling the committee that the chief clerk would deliver a message directly.

The committee departed, leaving Governor Lake alone in the center of the office.

"Well, I'm done," said the governor simply, as he put on his high silk hat and swung out into the corridor with a cheery walk to a group near the door where Dr. Paul Waterman was waiting in uniform ready for the inaugural parade this afternoon.

Notes.

Charles E. Lord, of Middletown, was appointed by the senate and house clerk as distributor of the mails. This is his fourth appointment to this position.

Clarence G. Willard of New Haven, assistant secretary of the republican state central committee was reappointed compiler of the legislative bulletin. The appointment is made by the clerks of the senate and house, by authority of a resolution customarily passed during the organization of each branch.

Rev. Mr. Coolidge is a third cousin of Vice President Coolidge, and was born in Leominster, Mass. He was ordained in 1892. Before going to Union where he has been pastor of the Union Congregational church for two years, he held pastorates in New Hampshire and Massachusetts. He is married and has two children.

He became a member of the Baltimore Conference in 1897 and served the leading church for Baltimore for twelve years, going to New York in 1909. He was pastor of the Nostrand Avenue church in Brooklyn and the Tabernacle church in Brooklyn until he came to Waterbury in 1915 where he first became connected with Governor-elect Templeton. He remained as pastor of the First church in Waterbury for two years and then went to Washington Park church in Bridgeport where he remained until 1920 when he came to Hartford as pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church.

Senate President.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Slater Hall Musical Course.

The sale of course tickets for the Slater Hall musical course will be on Monday, Jan. 8th at 9 a. m., at Cranston & Co., on Broadway. There will be four artists in the Slater Hall musical course as follows:

On Friday evening, Jan. 19th, the London String Quartet, the premier quartet of Europe. For years England and the British Isles have looked with exceptional pride upon this famous organization, while Spain, Paris, Holland, Norway, Sweden and other countries look upon their visits as gala events. The United States last season welcomed the London String Quartet with outstretched arms. They are booked this season for a coast to coast tour and meeting with remarkable success.

On Friday evening Feb. 9th, Frederic Lamond, the famous pianist appears. Mr. Lamond is a very great artist. His European recitals have established him as a pianist of the highest rank. He comes to America for a concert tour in January. "He is greater now than ever, and his greatness is of the highest order."—Daily Telegraph. "Not since the days of Anton Rubinstein has such superb piano playing been heard in London as that of Lamond."—Musical Record. These tributes are typical of the praise heaped upon this remarkable pianist.

On Friday evening, April 6th, Frieda Hempel, prima donna soprano, will appear in the Jenny Lind Concert program. Miss Hempel has chosen for her assisting artists, Coenraad V. Bos, the distinguished Dutch pianist, and Louis P. Fritze, formerly flutist of the Metropolitan Opera company. Frieda Hempel stands not only at the head of the coloratura singers of America, but she is a song recitalist of genuine worth. Her voice is of lovely quality and her technical proficiency is admirable. Her art is such brilliant, finished work heard. Frieda Hempel stands today supreme in the fields of song.

On Friday evening, May 11th, Mario Charnlee, the young American tenor from the Metropolitan Opera Company, will appear. It is not only possible, but entirely probable, if the best critics and judges of New York are to be believed, that America is to supply the successor of the great Caruso. This artist is Mario Charnlee and last season he was one of the most admired tenors of the Metropolitan and was a man invaluable to Gatti Casazza during Caruso's illness. Now that the great Italian is no more, Charnlee's importance is even more significant, as his success has been brilliant in the wide range of the principal roles in the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Every failure may be a step nearer to success.

BREED THEATRE

An event of exceptional interest in entertainment will occur today, Friday and Saturday, when the new Fox production "For Big Stakes," will be shown, starring Tom Mix and exhibiting this popular film actor in new hair-raising stunts. The Breed theatre, where the feature will be presented, has prepared for a siege by picture enthusiasts who like the rugged screen favorite and who turn out in crowds whenever Mix is in the saddle.

Many of the scenes in the new photoplay, it is said, have more varied action and swifter bursts of gripping drama than have been found in previous Mix pictures, while the "surprises" come in bunches. Mix does one thing, especially—riding through a prairie fire—which, it is declared, will cause the heart-beats to increase materially. If you don't care for thrills, this is not the sort of picture you will like. But it seems to be a practically universal trait too long for new diversions and new thrills. You will doubtless find many in this attraction. Pretty Patsy Ruth Miller is Mix's leading woman.

Movie Chats and an Educational comedy will make up the remainder of bill. As usual Chas. Hutchison will be seen in Go Get 'Em Hutch on Friday and Saturday.

Syncopated Seven, Feature Attraction at the Broadway

The B. F Keith vaudeville for the last half of this week is surely a banner bill in every respect.

The Syncopated Seven is the feature attraction on this program. This is a colored aggregation of seven syncopators featuring jazz music, singing and dancing.

Brown's dogs in a canine novelty that will please all.

Morris & Shaw are comedians without equal. They are positively the best comedians that have ever appeared in Norwich. You'll laugh as you've never laughed before.

Thrilling drama, mystery and romance are skillfully combined to delight picture goers in "The Woman's Side," Katherine MacDonald's newest First National starring vehicle, showing at the Broadway theatre this week. "The Woman's Side" is a splendid human interest story and the beautiful Katherine, in the role of Mary Gray, gives a fine characterization and displays great emotional powers. Mary is an orphan but she doesn't know it. She loves old Judge Gray whom she thinks is her father. She also has a very good opinion of young Edward Burns whose father, the publisher, in a political controversy, threatens to publish a story which will mean ruin to Judge Gray. Mary, however, solves the tangle of general misunderstanding. There is a powerful denouement and a happy conclusion to the photoplay.

Two Star Features at the Strand Today.

Lionel Barrymore, who plays the featured role in "Boomerang Bill," a Cosmopolitan film creation for Paramount, which will be presented at the Strand theatre beginning today, has believed for years that a horse shoe is a "jinx," and now he is certain of it. Tom Terriss, directing the picture, took the company to Stamford, Conn., to photograph some scenes. During a lull in the "shooting" Mr. Terriss found a horseshoe which he showed to Mr. Barrymore with the remark: "Look, here's luck."

"Put it down," cried the actor. "It's the worst kind of luck."

The director laughed, but soon found that Mr. Barrymore was right, because the beautiful spring sun that had been shining disappeared and there followed one cloudy day after another. Days without sunlight are useless to a motion picture company trying to work outdoors and continuance of the bad weather convinced the company that a horseshoe isn't such a good find as most persons suppose.

"Boomerang Bill" was screened from the story of the game name by Jack Boyle. Doy Hobart wrote the scenario. Marguerite Marsh plays opposite Mr. Barrymore. The supporting company includes such sterling players as Margaret Seddon, Frank Shannon, Matthew Betts and Miriam Battista.

Viola Dana sets the pace to the goal of hilarity and decidedly clever entertainment in her latest Metro production, "Glass Houses," which is to be the second main feature of an attractive program at the Strand theatre starting today. Vivacious little Miss Dana is seen as Joy Duval, who, with her sister, Cicily, loses the money they had inherited. Joy makes herself up as a caricature office type in "sensible" clothes and horn rimmed glasses, takes the name of "Jane Brown" and becomes a companion to Aunt Harriet. The latter is mainly concerned with the reform of her nephew, Billy Norton.

One night Joy slips to her old home to collect some valuable which she had left behind. Upon her return to Aunt Harriet's she finds herself locked out, so goes to the garage to sleep. There also is Billy Norton, and to avoid a scandal he marries Joy, who, to hi stelight, then appears in a smart little frock that sets off her chic beauty—quite different from the prim "Jane Brown."

But it is at this point that a lively series of sparkling adventures begin, adventures that give Viola Dana the merriest role of her career.

"Y" SENIORS START HOME SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER BALTIC WANDERERS

The Senior "Y" basketball five got away to a good start in the opening game of their home season on Wednesday evening when they defeated the fast traveling Baltic Wanderers by a close score of 34 to 21. The game was a trifle rough and many fouls were called on both teams but although beaten the Baltic Wanderers displayed more real knowledge of basketball than the Seniors and during the last half exhibited some very pretty pass work.

The Y team played a hard game with only occasional flashes of team work the bulk of the scoring being done through individual play around the baskets. Finlayson proved to be the principal scorer of the Y team dropping in 4 pretty baskets two of which were long floor shots. Davis and Kelsey put up some pretty guard work and proved hard men to pass. Harris who substituted for Kelsey in the last half showed some snappy work but kept pretty well covered.

For Baltic Charon and Swanson were the features each cuging three baskets while Charon also accounted for 5 fouls. The lineup:

Wanderers		Y Seniors
	Right Forward
Charon		Finlayson
	Left Forward
Simineau		Rosch
	Center
Erickson		Grebe
	Left Guard
Robertaille		Kelsey
	Right Guard
Swanson		Davis

Substitutions—Harris for Kelsey, Ridgeway for Charon, Charon for Erickson, Erickson for Swanson.

Field Goals—For Seniors, Finayson 4, Rosch 2, Grebe 2, Harris 1, Kelsey 1. For Wanderers, Charon 3, Swanson 2, Simineau 1, Ridgeway 1.

MANY CHANGES IN PUGILISTIC CIRCLES IN 1922

New York, Jan. 3—"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown" in the domains of pugilism—proof of which is the unusual number of sensational upsets featuring the ring record for 1922. Review of the year shows that three world's and two American titles changed hands. With the exception of the heavyweight ranks, where Jack Dempsey remained supreme but inactive, all the crowns were in jeopardy at some time.

Four of the titles changed hands in New York while the fifth, the world's light heavyweight championship, passed into the possession of the Senegalese, Battling Siki, when he knocked out Georges Carpentier in Paris last September. Siki also acquired the European heavyweight title by his victory. Since then, however, he has lost whatever prestige it gained by drawing a long-term suspension from the French boxing authorities for improper conduct and adding fuel to the flames of controversy with unsubstantiated charges that his bout with Carpentier was intended as a frame-up for Georges to win but that he double-crossed the ex-pollu by a "change of heat" during the bout.

Johnny Buff, veteran Jersey City boxer, met double disaster during the year, losing the world's bantamweight title to Joe Lynch, of New York, a former champion of the division, in July, and the American flyweight crown to Pancho Villa, the Filipino sensation in September. Buff, minus much of his former prowess through a long illness, was knocked out by Lynch in the 14th and by Villa in the 11th round. He has not appeared in the ring since then.

Another veteran went down to defeat before stamina and youth when Jack Britton, king of the welter ranks for years and one of the craftiest of ring generals of all time, lost a decision and his world title to Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., in November. But a few months before Britton had put up one of the best fights of his career against Benny Leonard, lightweight titleholder, winning on a technical foul in the 13th round.

The American light heavyweight title changed possession twice. Gene Tunney, Greenwich Village favorite took the honors from Battling Levinsky in January by the decision but lost the crown in May to Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, who gained a decision after a hard-fought 15-round bout.

The situation in the featherweight and the middleweight divisions was complicated by decisions of the New York state athletic commission which took away the licenses of the respective titleholders. Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland and Johnny Wilson of Boston, and declared their laurels open to competition so far as the Empire state was concerned. Kilbane was outlawed for refusal to accept a challenge from Johnny Dundee of New York, and Wilson for ignoring an agreement to box Harry Greb, Pittsburgh mauler.

Dundee and Danny Frush, English boxer, who took up an American residence in Cleveland, were picked by the New York commission as the logical contenders for the featherweight title and the former acquired what honors the commission was capable of bestowing by knocking out Frush in the ninth round of a contest in August.

Likewise, Dave Rosenberg of Brooklyn, was declared by the commission as middleweight champion after a victory over Phil Krug, of Harrison, N. J., in August, but the honors were transferred to the veteran Mike O'Dowd when he won from Rosenberg on a foul in the eighth round of a contest staged Thanksgiving day.

The Middle West also ceased to regard Wilson as middleweight king and the recognition was conferred by boxing authorities in several states on Bryan Downey of Cleveland.

Benny Leonard was the busiest champion of the year. The lightweight king fulfilled a strenuous midsummer program when, he fought in succession Jack, Britton, Rocky Kansas and Lew Tendler. He lost to Britton on a foul, knocked out Kansas a few weeks later and late in July defended his title against Tendler, Philadelphia southpaw, in a sensational 12-round no-decision bout at Jersey City, N. J. Leonard received the popular verdict at the ringside, but he was given one of the stiffest battles of his career and came close to defeat in the eighth round under a staggering attack by Tendler.

Leonard later defeated Ever Hammer of Chicago, in a contest at Michigan City, Ind., but a serious infection of the mouth, the result of injuries sustained in the Tendler fight, has since kept the champion out of active competition.

Charley White, hard-hitting Chicagoan, established himself as one of Leonard's most formidable rivals and may be matched with the champion in the near future. White's latest and most impressive triumph was his knockout of Richie Mitchell of Milwaukee, in the 10th round of a 15-round contest.

Officially, Dempsey's heavyweight title was at stake once during the year in a four-round encounter with a middleweight sparring partner, Jimmy Darcy, at Buffalo, N. Y., in July, but there was little risk involved. The New York state athletic commission ruled that under the boxing statutes a decision must be rendered, and Dempsey willingly complied with the technicality, receiving the official verdict.

Dempsey also formally accepted the challenge of his dusky rival Harry Wills, for a title bout, but that was as far as negotiations proceeded, it being agreed that a match could not be promoted before next summer. Wills' prestige gained little from his performances in several bouts in New York with negro opponents, but he remained generally regarded as Dempsey's strongest rival.

Two other figures, meanwhile, created interest in heavyweight circles—Floyd Johnson of Iowa and Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine sensation. Johnson has developed rapidly and included a knockout of Bob Martin among his victories. He will face his hardest test next month when he meets Bill Brennan, rugged Chicagoan.

Firpo came to this country early in the year and knocked out in rapid succession several lesser lights. But while he demonstrated heavy punching ability he showed little boxing skill. Returning to South America, he knocked out Jim Tracey Australian boxer, and now plans to return in January to the United States. He has received offers to box either Johnson or Brennan.

PRINCETON ELEVEN TO HAVE REAL TIGER MASCOT

Howard, of Haverhill, father of Albert Howard, a member of the Princeton varsity squad last fall said, today that he was leaving for India next week with the intention of fulfilling a promise made to Princeton players here November 10 that if they beat Harvard the next day he would get them a tiger mascot from the jungle. Princeton won, and a tiger cub will be shipped by Howard as soon as he reaches India, he said. His son is already making arrangements to keep the cub at Princeton.

GAR WOOD CLOSES SUCCESSFUL MOTOR BOAT SEASON WITH VICTORY

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 3—Garfield A. Wood, of Detroit, by winning a 75-mile rough water speed boat race around Catalina Island today with Miss Detroit VI, wound up his program of Pacific Coast racing season with an unbroken string of victories. He said that he planned to leave January 10 for New Orleans to participate in racing there.

Today's event was from Los Angeles harbor around Santa Catalina Island and return, and the Wood entry covered the distance in 1:55:56, far ahead of the only other entry to finish, the Fellows IV, owned by Joe Fellows of Los Angeles, which covered the course in 2:26.42 4-5.

The other three entries, all of Los Angeles, met with disaster. Al Fleming's Lincoln struck a submerged log near the entrance to the harbor and withdrew from the contest. Frank A. and Frank E. Garbutt's Mystery IV, and Alvin Frank's Lucky Strike both broke down during the race.

LOCAL BOY PRAISES AUBURN PRESIDENT

In announcing his decision to leave Auburn, Coach Mike Donahue, a former Norwich boy, who resigned owing to certain "circumstances" pays high tribute to President Dowell and expressed his deep appreciation of the co-operation and assistance which the president head of the institution had given him. He predicts that under the leadership of President Dowell Auburn is entering upon its greatest period of development and that the future of the institution is exceedingly bright. Coach Donahue's statement follows:

"To all friends of Auburn: After nineteen years of continuous service at Auburn it is exceedingly painful to me to think of severing my connection with the college which I have learned to love with all the warmth of my soul. It goes without saying that only duty to myself and family could ever constrain me to leave an institution and a community about which hover so many of the most pleasant memories of my life. The time has come however, when I must take a step I have contemplated since 1919 at the conclusion of the very successful season. The wealth of sentiment that centers about the college, the wonderful charm of the Auburn spirit, the unfailing loyalty of a host of friends and the affection of the entire student body make me hesitate and shrink from the decision which I have most reluctantly reached. I am sure, however, the public and all true friends of Auburn will agree that I am acting wisely when they think the matter through carefully from my point of view.

"The long and constant strain for twenty years in an environment which offers but little opportunity for diversion and recreation, coupled with the intense anxiety and mental stress that a coach must, in all necessity carry, further complicated by the fact that I have taken an active interest in all college affairs and have borne my part in adjusting them, have begun to tell on my nervous system and convince me that without a change I would not very much longer be able, in the extraordinary condition in which I find myself, to be of any great service either to the college or to my family.

Needs New Surroundings

"In new surroundings I will be able to concentrate my efforts upon the work of coaching, but I shall never for a minute lose sight of the fact that the main business of athletics as well as all other lines of education, is to produce men and women of character, as well as culture. However, with added opportunity for recreation I feel that I can render better service in the particular field for which I am employed, and in which my tastes primarily lie.

"I offered my resignation some time ago in all seriousness, but upon the urgent solicitation of many friends I reconsidered the matter and made an earnest effort to bring myself to the conclusion that I should remain at Auburn.

After a very frank discussion of my condition with a few of my most intimate and loyal friends, who are among the most devoted alumni of Auburn, and on the advice of my physician, I am sure that a change of location and environment is not only advisable but absolutely essential.

"In issuing this state I feel it incumbent upon me to at once announce my decision so as to put an end to any misconception or agitation that might otherwise arise:

Praises Dr. Dowell

"I desire to state emphatically that my relations with Dr. Dowell, the president of the college, have been uniformly pleasant and that he has a just and friendly appreciation of the place and value of athletics in college life. I have found him sympathetic at all times and he has given me all the support I could have asked, in fact, he has done everything a president could do to keep me at Auburn.

"The college under the leadership of President Dowell is entering upon a career that will in every way be worthy of Alabama, and now that the state is educated to the needs of the institution nothing would give me more pleasure than to work with him in the constructive program he has outlined, if I could feel that my own health and the welfare of my family would permit.

"After having weighed all these considerations most carefully I still believe it is my duty to go. I am not yet prepared to announce where my new home will be, but that will be made known in due time. My active connection with Auburn will continue until July 1, and in the months that remain I am going to put forth my best efforts to so shape matters that Auburn's record in athletics next year will be the best in her history.

"I shall leave with good will to all and shall never cease to wish for Auburn an ever enlarging career of service."

Jewtraw won his position through placing third in the 440 yard, second in the 880 yard and third in the one mile events.

Bobby Hearn, of Brooklyn; Leslie Boyd, of New York; and Roy Schwankamp, also of New York, were tied for fourth place with 20 points each.

Hanover, N. H., Jan. 3—The Dartmouth Athletic Council today announced the official football schedule for next fall's campaign. The Green will meet the same teams next fall as last with the exception of Middlebury, which will not visit Hanover as a result of confusion over dates. One date, as a result, remains open.

The schedule: September 29, Norwich; October 6, University of Maine; 13, Boston University; 20, University of Vermont at Burlington; 27, Harvard at Cambridge; November 3, Cornell; 10, Brown, at Providence; 17, open; 24, or 29, Columbia at New York.

Harvard Loses at Hockey

Boston, Jan. 3—University of Toronto defeated Harvard 7 to 5, here tonight in a fast hockey game that went two 5 minute periods overtime. Six goals were scored in the extra ten minutes after the teams had ended the regular playing period in a 3-3 tie.

DEVORMER TRADED TO BOSTON FOR RECRUIT

New York, Jan. 3—The New Yor Yankees today announced that Al Devormer, substitute catcher, had been traded to the Boston Red Sox, for two recruits, George Pitgras, a pitcher and Harvey Hendrick, an outfielder.

Pitgras played last season with the Charleston, S. C., club in the South Atlantic association, and Hendrick with the Galveston club of the Texas league.

MLLE. LENGLEN WINS PRETTY VICTORY OVER MISS HOWETT

Nice, France, Jan. 3—Suzanne Lenglen won a brilliant victory upon her reappearance in singles tennis today when she defeated Miss Howett of England, 6-1, 6-0, in the first round of the Nice tournament.

The champion appears in good condition, although somewhat heavier than during the last Wimbledon tournament, and her service seems to be speedier.

BARROW SAYS NEGOTIATIONS STILL ON FOR MAY

New York, Jan. 3—The deal by which the New York Yankees sought to acquire Jakie May, southpaw pitcher of the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast league is still on, so far as the local club is concerned, business manager E. G. Barrow said today when informed of reports from Los Angeles that William Esick, Vernon manager, had declared negotiations were called off.

JAKE DAUBERT UP TO OLD HOLDOUT TRICKS

According to reports from Cincinnati, Jake Daubert has refused to sign a two-year contract calling for $10,000 a season. Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Robins, is now in Europe, but, if he hears that Jake is a holdout he no doubt will recall the trouble he encountered when he tried to sign Daubert before the season of 1914 when the Federal league was in existence.

Daubert demanded a five-year contract at $9,000 a year, and got it. When the document expired, Jake departed from the club. President Herrmann of the Reds now knows what Ebbets was up against when Jake was a Brotherhood holdout.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Backers of Joe Burman, Chicago bantamweight are willing to guarantee Joe Lynch $30,000 if the bantamweight ruler will sign to box a fifteen-round decision contest.

Ohio Wesleyan football team will journey East next fall to meet Colgate.

The Yale hockey team got away to a good start and the prospects are bright for a successful season for the Eli club wielders.

The Giants may be expected to play their very best next season with a view to breaking records by winning the third world's series in a row.

Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, has begun training in New York. Wilson reports that he has several bouts pending which will keep him pretty busy during the remainder of the indoor season.

WORLD'S RECORD IN BATTING LEFT BEHIND BY "WEE WILLIE" KEELER

Wee Willie Keeler left one world's record behind him which may never be equalled. For eight consecutive years, from 1894 to 1901, he hammered out more than 200 safe hits each season for an average of never less than .355 and for a grand average of .383. Ty Cobb holds the American league record of 200 hits per season for eight years, but not in succession.

Here is the record which famous hitters will be aiming at for years to come.

Keeler also left behind him a major record of hitting safely in 44 consecutive games. He set this mark in 1897, from April 22 to June 18. George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns closely approached this record last season when he carried along for 41 games.

GOVERNOR TEMPLETON'S MESSAGE.

What must be regarded as a most favorable impression has been given by the message of Governor Templeton to the 1923 general assembly. It is a direct and pointed statement dealing with the existing conditions of the state and certain of the problems calling for special attention.

With the same insistence as his predecessor does Governor Templeton place much emphasis upon the importance of economy. Even though receipts have exceeded expenditures and prosperity is being felt in the state, sound is his argument when he insists that the favorable condition "does not present the problem of a surplus. It is not an invitation to seek new channels of expenditure, but rather an admonition to us to husband our resources and to render the burden of taxation more tolerable." The idea of trying to see how much money can be spent is an excellent one to forget for it involves the important matter of taxation and that is something the taxpayers are desirous of seeing decreased rather than increased, although not unmindful of the obligations of the state.

The governor sets forth certain tests that should be applied to the many proposals and frowns upon the idea of destroying the initiative of the private citizen. He stands on firm ground when he believes it is the legislature's duty "to consider all possible means of reducing the cost of the state government."

Toward prohibition his attitude is the only one that should be expected of a state official, namely, the enforcement of the law as long as it exists, but on daylight saving he recognizes the difficulties that lie in the way of going contrary to railroad schedules, fixed not only by daylight saving in New York but by the law requiring it in Massachusetts and the demand for it in Rhode Island.

The governor indicates his disapproval to the idea of a state highway for trucks and believes it unfair to the taxpayers of the state. It is an attitude that is sensible inasmuch as it is manifestly unfair to provide the roadbed for one form of transportation and not do for it for others. Likewise is there reasonable ground for his belief that there should be further regulation of the tonnage and dimensions of the motor trucks.

In believing that the lack of agricultural production, requiring the purchase of probably 80 per cent of our farm products from out of the state, ought to be overcome he calls to attention of the state problems that need much attention and in commending the appointment of a commission to consider what should be done he puts the matter directly up to the legislature, a large number in which are directly interested in agricultural Connecticut.

Due importance is attached to child welfare work, the proper maintenance of our state institutions, the taking up active work in the fighting of cancer and action that will safeguard the state against any further fuel shortage. The survey of the possibilities of water power development is a timely suggestion, while the commitment of the state to all consistent aid in maintaining an efficient railroad service is in keeping with the policy of the past.

State highways get much needed consideration in the message, and he makes it apparent that he is cognizant of the excellent services rendered by the highway commissioner and seeks to retain them through providing additional assistance in directing the work.

The message deals with state conditions in a businesslike manner, views the problems in a manner that an individual would in dealing with his own affairs and cannot fail to impress the citizens of Connecticut that they have chosen well in naming Charles A. Templeton as their governor. In the general assembly it should inspire the heartiest cooperation.

THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEM.

The question of immigration is one that has bothered for a long time. There are times when a certain number believe that an unrestricted commerce of footsteps is for the best interests of the country, what is needed by industry to advantage is going to be taken of prosperous conditions and what is called for if the demands for more help on the farms is going to be satisfied.

At the same time it is to be realized that there are times when it is clearly established that there are far too many coming into the country for proper assimilation, that such numbers are only contributing to the amount of unemployment and are seriously handicapping th search needed Americanization work. Thus while there may be times when there might be more admitted there are also times when there should be less and it becomes necessary to strike an average that will meet the situation.

This was the view that was followed when there was a restriction placed upon the number to be admitted each year. And yet there are those who are maintaining today that the three per cent quota is too large, that there should be further restrictions and that not over a two per cent. yearly quota should be permitted. Some few will maintain that immigration should be cut off altogether, and yet there is a call for bring the farm and permitting the country to get the benefit of the common labor that it has been deprived of and is still being deprived of in various lines of activities.

It is from the immigrants that the bulk of the common labor is obtained. They do not all remain in that class by any means for they are quick to take advantage of the opportunities that are offered here. If it is to these from other countries that we must look for common labor we cannot stop all immigration and meet national requirements. Immigration is a problem that has long existed and there is no reason to believe but what it will remain with us for some time to come. Reasonable restrictions are unquestionably required.

THE LAKE ADMINISTRATION.

With the inauguration of Governor Templeton there has been completed the administration of Governor Everett J Lake whose direction of state affairs for the past two years has been a matter of much satisfaction to the people of Connecticut. Governor Lake was placed in office by a tremendous plurality. He was recognized as a man of strength at the time he was nominated and while his election came at the time of the Harding landslide it nevertheless reflected the sentiment of the people, and there is good reason for feeling that he made good use of the opportunity presented him to insist upon economical and efficient government for the commonwealth.

Throughout his administration it has been evident that the governor was determined to see that the state got what it was seeking in the way of good government. He followed an administration that was noteworthy. He took up the reins of government at a period that was still reflecting the effects of the war and it did not ease up particularly on those with responsibility.

Standing firmly against extravagance Governor Lake insisted upon the wise expenditure of state funds, the keeping of appropriations within the revenue limits and against greater taxation than was necessary to give Connecticut a businesslike administration. His two years have not been filled with a lot of fads and isms, but have been grounded on the policy of conducting the affairs of the commonwealth in the same sane and sensible manner that the head of a corporation would insist upon. State money has not been wasted. The last fiscal year has shown a balance on the right side in spite of the conditions, and repeated are the instances where this can be directly attributed to the Lake administration.

For the past two years Connecticut has been in competent and conscientious hands, and the administration, even though mistakes may have been made, has been one that will rank well among the many that have preceded it. In relinquishing his duties Connecticut may well say to Governor Lake, "Well done, thank you and good luck."

THE SITUATION AT PARIS.

To most of the conferences held in Europe dealing with its problems following the war it is probable that most of the delegates have gone with a high degree of hope. It doesn't appear that such has been the case in connection with the present conference at Paris.

While there has undoubtedly existed the desire to come to some understanding regarding the differences which seemed well established before the opening of the conference, the means of accomplishing it have not appeared so easy. Plainly it was shown that there must be some compromise if an agreement was going to be reached relative to reparations. Upon certain points there is a willingness to make concessions. That is shown by the agreement as to the amount of curtailment in the German reparations, but there seems to be an unyielding attitude manifested concerning the guarantees exacted from Germany and other details in connection with a new reparation understanding.

The same difficulty of bringing about unity between the British and the French is still manifested. They recognized the importance of the principle after some unfavorable experiences during the war, but they are displaying an unwillingness in their efforts to establish peace that would indicate they had forgotten about those critical years of the conflict.

Inasmuch as they have come to an understanding about the amount to be paid as reparations the method of enforcing such payments would seem to be much more simple than it appears to be. Even though each has presented what is believed to be the best plan of action it would be a grave mistake for them to permit a break to develop at this period, after such strenuous and hitherto unsuccessful efforts have been made to that end by their former opponents for so long.

The need of reaching an adjustment without further prolonging the decision ought to be apparent to all concerned. Certainly Europe cannot want any more fighting.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Reports to the effect that $50 counterfeit bills are in circulation will not cause anxiety on the part of everyone.

It is never possible to judge the capacity of a congress or a general assembly by the batch of bills presented to it.

The resignation of Secretary Fall of the department of the interior is the first of the rumored retirements to materialize.

It is a distressing picture that is presented when auto drivers fail while insisting on getting across the track ahead of the train.

Perhaps Grover Bergdoll is coming back to this country, but Uncle Sam doesn't intend he shall without knowing something about it.

There haven't been any views advanced at Lausanne that have really appealed to the Turkish delegates except those from soviet Russia.

It doesn't appear as yet that the Coue idea has become firmly grounded in Germany. Not at least through any admissions that are being made.

Economy is a plea to be found in the addresses of most of the newly inaugurated mayors in Massachusetts this week. Those mayors know the sentiment of their constituents.

DESPERATE EFFORTS

The pleasant-faced man who had just dashed into the drug store, sighed with relief as he deposited several parcels and approached the counter.

"Say, I'm glad I remembered it!" he confided to the bored clerk. "Face powder—for my wife! She's asked me three times to stop in and bring her some new face powder because her supply is just about out and I've forgotten it each time! And this time she said it was all gone and there was the dickens to pay!"

"What kindayu want?" yawned the bored clerk changing to the other foot.

"Kind?" repeated the pleasant-faced man, somewhat surprised. "Why, just face powder! Is there more than one kind?"

The bored clerk came to life and stared at his customer. "I should say there was!" he exploded. "Where you been all these years? There's hundreds of 'em!"

"You don't say!" gasped the customer, no longer pleasant faced but perturbed. "I don't see the necessity, seeing that it's just to go on faces! It ought to be one kind! Aren't they enough alike so any kind'll do? I've got to take some home this time! My wife's sick and can't get out, but she insists on fixing up just the same, you know!"

"Then if she's sick," admonished the drug clerk, "you've got to be more particular than ever to take her what she wants, you know! Every woman has some especial sort she thinks is better than every other sort, and she'd no more use any other than she'd replace sugar with arsenic! They say it destroys their atmosphere or something. And besides the different kinds there are the different colors of each kind too."

"Aren't they all white women?" insisted the customer.

"It depends on their state of mind," said the interested clerk. "Some women want it pink and some want it brunette and there are some girls who use it tinted with orange or lavender. And then they have orange and lavender rouge to match!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Take Immoral Out of Pictures and Few Would Be Left.

Mr. Editor: A short time ago a party had a letter in The Bulletin against the return to the screen of the screen's best comedian, Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle. Kindly allow me to say a few words in his favor. In my mind Fatty is no worse than the majority of the movie actors and actresses we are looking at from day to day. If we took all the immoral ones out of the pictures we'd have very few left. Fatty was acquitted by the jury as innocent and Will Hays says, "Live and let live," so why should he be barred from the screen by a few narrow-minded people who probably never go to the movies anyway. Fatty was always in good, clean pictures, a sure cure for the blues and loved by the children. Here's hoping to see Fatty reinstated.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Victor Murdock, the new chairman of the federal trade commission, is a prominent progressive political leader and journalist of the mid-west, whose record as a congressman first made him known nationally. Prior to entering public life he was an editor in Wichita, and along with William Allen White, a brother editor of Kansas, he helped to prove to the larger world of journalism that the tripod of a small city journal can become a seat of power. After a brilliant career in state politics as an advisor of the people on ethical issues, he was sent to the fifty-eighth congress to fill a vacancy. He remained in Washington until the close of the sixty-third congress in 1915. Mr. Murdock was a progressive republican during most of his congressional career and in 1912 he became a partisan progressive and a follower of Mr. Roosevelt. But in 1916 he declined to be led back into the republican fold, and became a progressive democrat. During five years of service on the federal trade commission he has had abundant opportunity to use his capacities as a fearless social investigator and a foe of monopoly and injustice.

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians without any relief at all, they said at last that medicine would not reach my case and I should have an operation. I had heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it advertised in different papers where some women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again by taking the Vegetable Compound. I decided to see what it would do for me, and before I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. NELLIE QUILLON, 17 Morris St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Ferghana.

Continual reports from Moscow that the soviet government is seeking to become a leader of Asiatic peoples, and her recent evidences of friendliness toward the Turks, arouse interest in Ferghana, the country which was the Russian empire's deepest southeastern wedge driven into Asia. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society deals with this country of deserts and oases, towering mountains and picturesque valleys, where the territories of Russian, Chinese and Briton almost meet.

"Ferghana, formerly Kokan, has numerous bids to fame," says the bulletin, "but among them two stand out. Its northern valleys constituted the heart of Russia's cotton producing country, and its borders south and east marked the terminal moraine, so to speak, of the great ice glacier which had moved slowly down through Asia, bringing its deposit of Russian domination and culture, until it hung over both India and China.

"The southern portion of Ferghana is a part of Russian Kashmir, a country of high plateaus and towering peaks, deep valleys, picturesque vales and sparkling lakes. It is, in fact, the reverse to Kashmir's obscure, for it lies just over the mountain divide from that better known synonym for rugged beauty, so close that a Titan—or a Big Bertha—might hurl a missile from Russian to British territory. Only a narrow strip of Afghan land, reserved because of the long jealousy and diplomatic struggle between Britain and the old Russian empire, lies between. In places it is as narrow as twenty miles.

"This southern portion of Ferghana is the Pamir, 'roof of the world.' Once Russia finally got possession of it in 1893, she drew even tighter about it the cloak of secrecy that nature had all along maintained. It became generally known that excellent military roads were reaching out from northern Ferghana through gorges and over lofty passes into the Pamir, over which artillery could be taken to the very threshold of British India. But few persons other than trusted imperialists were permitted to traverse these paths which Russian dreamers hoped would some day lead their empire still farther south.

"While the southern end of Ferghana is a country of rugged mountains and plateaus, the fertile valleys of its northern end constitute a Central Asian Eden. Snow-fed rills and rivers, always fullest in the warm growing season, were led out over fertile plains until they died in the sands; but in the dying they made northern Ferghana a garden spot of grains and fruits, and after the Russians came, of precious cotton. The cotton produced in these and neighboring Turkestan cases before the World war, was greater than that of India or Egypt and second only to that of the United States.

"In Ferghana and its neighboring countries of Central Asia there was undoubtedly a very early development of civilization, even though they may not have been, as some students have asserted, the cradle of the human race. And probably there the art of irrigation was practiced as early as anywhere in the world.

"Like all other regions of Central Asia Ferghana felt the heel of Ghengis Kahn and Tamerlane. It was overrun too from Chinese Turkestan when Islam against it to the east. When Mohammedanism rose to power, it was conquered by the Arabs and its people have since been followers of the prophet.

"Russian dominion came slowly to Ferghana, then the Khanate of Kokan. After the more western portions of the Trans-Caspian region and Turkestan had fallen, Russian arms finally conquered the warlike Tekke Turkomans who blocked the way to Ferghana's fertile valleys. It was not until 1893 that the slow-moving glacier had engulfed the southern territory of the old Khanate.

"With the Russians came organizing ability, development, railroads, prosperity, and a smattering at least of western civilization. To the rail head at Andijan, aimed at the heart of Asia, ran the modern expresses from Petrograd, with their sleeping cars and spotless diners. And a few miles south began the military roads that lost themselves in the mysterious Pamir.

"The bolsheviks at first lost control of Ferghana as of many of its neighboring regions. But by force of arms and diplomacy they have won it back after a fashion.

"If Russian power has a renascence in Asia either by domination or through leadership Ferghana can hardly escape assuming its old importance as a source of raw material for Moscow's cotton factories and as a watch tower and listening post over against the Indian and Chinese frontiers."

POETRY

"IF I WERE A FARMER."

"If I were a farmer," the grocer declares
I'd keep hundreds of hens—and all would be layers;
They'll lay winter eggs nearly all the year round;
The money from poultry is just so much found.
I'd make the flock pay—it's easy to do—
—That's true."

"Why don't they build silos and go in for cows?
That's the line that will keep off the hoe-wave."
Says the banker. "I'm willing to carry the man
Who's pulling corn tests and filling his can
Day by day with rich milk—I could make the thing go—
—I know."

Says the druggist: "The weeds on our farms are a shame,
And, so far as I see, the farmer's to blame.
I'd keep my land clean; there's no profit in weeds,
The black summer fallow is what the thing needs.
I'd own a big tractor and an eighteen-inch plow—
—Wow-wow!"

Says the stout hardware clerk: "Was Joe's hoe the cause of
It's enough to give one the summer complaint
To look at the farms and the hoeing round here;
The farmers are losing ten thousand each year.
If I were a farmer, I would sure use the brush!
Slush! Slush!"

"Why don't he keep books? I tell you, my friends,
The man keeps no tab if he borrows or lends;
No business on earth can be run in that way
With a ghost of a chance that it ever would pay."
Says the pudgy accountant. "My conscience! My word!
'Tis absurd!"
—Winnipeg Tribune.

ON SILENT WINGS.

There is a flock of weary birds, that go
Not south, but westward, with the dying days;
They fly in silence through the twilight ways.
Sounding no call of joy, no cry of woe
One after one, like some thin river's flow.
The line goes on, athwart the morning haze,
Through the clear noonday, or the stormy haze,
Still winging toward oblivion, mute and slow.

No eyes shall follow them with kindling sight,
And none shall know the seas where they are tossed,
When their spent pinions shall at last be furled
From the long striving of their hopeless flight;
For these are loves denied, and friendships lost,
And all the unwanted treasures of the world.
—Marion Coutbour, in Harper's.

When the process of making oxygen from air becomes cheaper, it is predicted that an enormous demand for the gas will arise. Just as oxygen is now used for welding and other purposes in which great heat is desired, not gradually, but very speedily, so it will be required for smelting and a hundred other purposes.

The fossilized stump of one of the oldest trees in America has been presented to the department of geology of the American Museum of Natural History by the board of water supply of New York city. In times past these trees flourished in the swamp regions of central New York and grew to enormous sized trunks four feet in diameter having been found.

A new laboratory weighing machine can accurately weigh 1-600,000,000 part of a single grain. Such refined weighing has to be done in a vacuum and the instrument is mounted in a container from which the air can be exhausted before the work begins. The actual weighing is done by measuring the vibrations of the balance by means of a spot-light thrown on a scale, which shows the actual movements of the balance enormously magnified.

Chickens' tongues and unhatched chickens are Chinese delicacies; lamb wine, which is described as being very strong and having a disagreeable smell, is drunk by the Tartars; sloth is eaten on the island of Demerara, in the West Indies; a pale blue snake and two mice were the tasty supper that Lieutenant Stone's guide gave him one night after crossing the Masai. Mice are eaten more in Africa than elsewhere; they are a favorite dish of the Masai, in Beroisa valley. Liberia is a country where they are eaten frequently.—Detroit News.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

MOHICAN CO. PURCHASES MAIN ST. STEINER BLOCK

The large Steiner block at 263-267 Main street was purchased by the Mohican company on Wednesday with the Dennis Morrissey building which fronts on Railroad avenue and is on the rear of the Steiner building.

Negotiations for the purchase were conducted through the New York headquarters of the Mohican company and it is not known here how soon the concern can make use of the Steiner building except for storage purposes, as they have a long lease on their present location in the Dawson property across the street from the Steiner block.

The Steiner block is one of the valuable pieces of centrally located business property and is now occupied on the ground floor by the stores of Disco Bros. and the Grand Sale Remnant Co., with offices on the floor above and a large hall in the upper part of the building.

Through an oversight, the Boston Globe in one early edition yesterday afternoon printed prematurely the inaugural address of Governor Cox which is to be delivered at 1 p. m. today.

UNCAS PAPER BOARD CO. ORGANIZES; PREPARES TO START THAMESVILLE MILL

The Uncas Paper Board Co., which has been incorporated to operate the Thamesville paper mill, formerly the Ironsides Board Co., which was bought at auction a month ago by James E. Smith of Baltimore, elected officers at a meeting held here Wednesday.

The following were elected: president, James E. Smith of Baltimore; vice president, Alvah Miller of New York; treasurer, Arthur C. Hastings of New York; secretary, Frank W. Browning of Kitemaug. These, with Joseph H. Eilers, superintendent of the mill, comprise the directors.

The company is capitalized at $1,000,000.

Following his purchase of the mill, Mr. Smith had work started actively at once in overhauling the machinery in preparation for starting the large paper machine as soon as possible. This work has been pushed actively by a gang of about 40 millwrights and machinists and the mill has already begun to get in its paper stock. From 25 to 40 carloads have been ordered of which 15 have arrived.

It is expected that the large paper machine may be started by a week from Monday or at least by the Monday following that, and the second and third machines will follow in the next two or three weeks thereafter, which will bring the mill to a capacity production and give employment to about 200 men. Except for about 25 men who handle the loading and unloading of paper, all the employes are in the skilled class and receive correspondingly high wages.

The contracts for fuel oil have been closed and a supply will be received at once enough to carry the mill over the three cold months. There are three fuel oil tanks with capacities respectively of 12,000, 6,000 and 3,000 barrels. It takes about 5 million gallons of oil for a year's supply for the mill.

President Smith, who was here Wednesday, stated that there was a bright outlook for good business for at least two years to come. Prices on all box board had advanced $5 a ton on Jan. 2nd.

Superintendent Joseph H. Eilers moved here from New Haven Wednesday with his family and is occupying the superintendent's house on West Thames street, which is part of the mill property.

A Mr. Chalmers, who was formerly master mechanic a few years ago, has been engaged for the same position again and the office head has been engaged. He is a Boston man.

ROTARY "FAT" MEN GIVE A REGULAR GOOD TIME

The Norwich Rotary club started off the year 1923 Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel in real style with the "bestest, bang-upest" meeting held in many a moon that sets a standard that will be hard to equal. This regular good time was due to "fat men," or as they would rather be called the members of the club who have an overabundance of avoirdupois, the heavyweights, who are George W. Carroll, Herbert M. Leroy, E. Larue Bliven, Charles F. Wells and Otto F. Ernst. This quintet, to start the ball arolling, had a real luncheon served to the members of the club, the menu being oysters on the half-shell, celery, olives, saltines, tenderloin of beef, French fried potatoes, rolls, Rotary ice cream, cakes, coffee and cigars.

In the absence of Senator William C. Clark, president, Vice President Dr. Hugh B. Campbell presided at the meeting. As this was the first meeting in the attendance contest there were only three absent and each absentee has promised to attend a meeting in some other city during the current week in order to make up for his absence on Wednesday.

At the business session one new member was extended the right hand of Rotary friendship by Vice President Campbell. Attention was called to the fact that on next Wednesday evening the inter-city meeting will be held at which members of the Willimantic and New London clubs will meet with the Norwich club for a real get-together session.

Adelard Morin spoke on the Building and Loan Association as one of the civic bodies in the city needing the support of all public-spirited citizens. He said that within a short time a new series would be issued by the association and urged that all Rotarians interest themselves in this organization. He also spoke of the benfits to be derived from such a progressive organization as the Building and Loan Association. The organization is now a $100,000 organization and has made possible the building of 30 to 40 new homes in the city during the past year.

For a little diversion before the staging of the entertainment programme of the "heavyweights," Lew Young, champion fox hunter of the club, described graphically the way an elusive reynard is run to earth and the exquisite sensation of being in at the "killing." Lew has followed the sport over the larger part of Eastern Connecticut, with more or less success, but freely admits that the sport might not be very alluring to the initiated, in fact, it might become decidedly tiresome.

To offset Mr. Young's monologue a quartette productive of some rich and melodious harmony was chosen and compelled Judge Nelson J. Ayling as tenor, Adelard Morin as second tenor, Charles Butts as first bass and Herbert B. Carr as second base.

The closing feature of the meeting was very enjoyable, even more so than Lew Young's monologue on fox-hunting. This was a cabaret entertainment furnished by vaudeville artists at the Davis theatre this week. Billy Adams, multi tary band singer and whistler, opened the entertainment with a whistling solo. His whistling was a real treat and he responded to several enthusiastic encores.

The Ward Sisters, Mabel and Maude, two attractive and accomplished interpretive dancers, gave three excellently executed numbers, Springtime, The Dance of the Winds and a Parisian Dance. Making up the team was Jackie Macomber, of Boston, who played the accompaniments for the dancing. Mr. Macomber also possessed a pleasing voice and rendered a delightful solo. The trio teamed up only six weeks ago and have been going big on all the circuits and will play in New York during the next few weeks.

The singing of the Star Spangled banner closed one of the most enjoyable meetings of the season. The favors for the day were carnation boutonnieres, furnished by Otto F. Ernst. Lou Wheeler was the song leader for the luncheon.

RONALD M. BYRNES IS DIRECTOR OF SUGAR CO.

Ronald M. Byrnes, a former Norwich man, and now vice president of the National City Company of New York, has been elected a director of the Verlentes Sugar Company of Havana, Cuba.

The Verlentes Sugar Company is one of the largest sugar companies operating in Cuba, owning and controlling over 345,000 acres of land, 95 miles of well built standard gauge railroad, 11 locomotives, 386 railroad cars and a dock at Puerto Santa Maria, in addition to two modern sugar mills with an aggregate capacity, during a normal season of 600,000 bags of sugar. The company plans to produce 1,000,000 bags for the 1924-25 subsequent crops. The total value of the company's holdings in Cuba is said to be in excess of $17,000,000.

Serving on the board of directors with Mrs. Byrnes, are several noted financiers of the United States, including Charles A. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank of New York, and Percy A. Rockefeller, also of New York. A number of prominent Cubans, all experienced sugar growers, are also on the board.

Mr. Byrnes, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Byrnes of 37 Warren street, was a visitor in this city this week.

Broken Bones and Dislocated Wrist.

Charles E. Ladd, who is employed by the Quinebaug Co., slipped off a car step three weeks ago, hurting his hand and being obliged to give up work that afternoon. After having an X-ray taken and doctoring for a sprain without relief, a doctor whom he consulted last week found he had a dislocated wrist and two bones in his hand broken. It will be some time before he will be able to return to work.

CONSIDERING POSSIBILITY OF Y. W. C. A. FOR THIS CITY

In response to a call issued by members of the Norwich Girls' Community club, a gathering of members took place Wednesday evening at the Norwich Chamber of Commerce rooms, Mrs. Alice Hussey in the chair. Matters of interest to the organization were talked over. By a vote it was decided to hold the finances of the club for three months during which time it would be the duty of a special committee to confer with the Y. W. C. A. to see if the association could not locate in this city and carry out the work started by the Community Club.

The committee appointed to take the matter up with the Y. W. C. A. is composed of Miss Lucile Stetson, chairman; Mrs. John Griffith, Mrs. Robert Gray, Miss Martha Reynolds, and Miss Elizabeth Peckham.

After other matters of interest had been discussed the meeting adjourned about 9 o'clock.

A few days before Christmas the rooms at No. 9 Washington street were turned into Santa Claus workshop. Many attractive red bags were filled to overflowing with gifts to delight the hearts of children, thus justifying their belief that Santa Claus would not forget them. A number of elderly people and shut-ins also received a bag of cheer, making a total of sixty-eight families remembered, and never before have the bags been so generously filled. This was made possible through the kind interest of the following people who contributed gifts of money, toys and candy to the department: Mrs. Willis Austin, Mrs. Albert A. Chase, Mrs. Charles L. Hubbard, Miss Henrietta Lane, Mrs. W. Tyler Olcott, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Ailis, Porteous & Mitchell Co., The Misses Norton, Robert C. Johnson, Miss Alice Coggswell, Mrs. F. S. Camp, Oliver L. Johnson, a friend, Comfort Circle, King's Daughters, Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins, Mrs. Stockdale, Mrs. Charles D. Dodge, Mrs. Louis R. Porteous, Loyal Circle, King's Daughters, Mrs. Harold Burt.

Just before Christmas the Family Welfare department received a most welcome gift of many new and warm garments from the Needlework Guild. Some of the attractive things found their way to the Christmas bags and surely were most acceptable gifts.

The interest shown in the work as demonstrated by the hearty response to the newspaper appeals, helped to make this Christmas one long to be remembered in the family welfare department.

FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER HOLDS JANUARY MEETING

The January meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., was held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community house, preceded by an adjourned meeting of the board. The regent, Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, presided and the meeting opened with the singing of America, reciting the Lord's prayer and the salute to the flag. Routine business was transacted and after various officers and committee chairmen had reported the roll call of members took place in charge of Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins. At the roll call each member responded by the name of her ancestor. During the term of office of Mrs. Perkins 26 new members have been admitted on record and two by transfer, making the total membership to date 168. Seated on the platform were Mrs. Ella F. Gadbois, Mrs. Orrin Lefingwell and Mrs. William Avery Gallup, representing three generations, all members of the chapter.

The program then opened with a poem, Mayflower, read by Miss Sue Gallup. Mrs. George A. Ashbey, chairman of the program committee, gave an interesting account of Something of the Organization of the D. A. R. In response to the question "What has our chapter, Faith Trumbull, done in the past?" Mrs. E. P. Bishop, regent, told in outline many of the achievements of the chapter. Mrs. Henry H. Pettis, vice regent, explained what the chapter was doing at present, and Regent Mrs. Vaughn told of the future.

Miss Marian Geer then sang two solos, Sweethearts, A. L. Powers, and Slumbertime, Jane Sterling, which were much enjoyed. Another interesting part of the entertainment was the address by Miss Clemmie J. Henry of Maryville college, who told of the work being accomplished at that college.

Following the announcement of a food sale in January to raise funds for Americanization work, tea was served by Mrs. Frederick P. Shenk, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Franklin S. Wilcox, Mrs. E. E. Burdsall, Mrs. George L. Ingalls, Miss Sue Gallup and Miss Barbara Allen.

WEST SIDE HILL WAS HARD ON AUTOMOBILES

The hills on West Main street caused no little trouble Wednesday evening. One heavy truck tried to make the grade without chains and slid back to Thames square. Soon after a Ford driver reached half way up the hill, when this machine, too, slid back, nearly striking the pole at the foot of the hill. The truck driver tried chains, but this did not work and he finally gave up and pulled into a garage. In all, during the space of an hour, five cars were stuck on the hill, three making the grade after several trials.

A boy who ran behind one truck narrowly escaped with his life as he fell just back of the truck, which began to slip backwards towards him. When the boy regained his feet he jumped just clear of the truck as it slid by him.

ATTORNEY WALKER TEMPORARY SUPERIOR COURT CLERK

Attorney John H. Walker of New London has been appointed temporary clerk of the superior court for this county. He took the oath of office and qualified for the position on Tuesday.

The appointment is made because of the recent resignation of Assistant Clerk Harry L. Peterson of this city, who had to give up the position because of ore trouble.

Automobiles Collide in Snow.

Two automobiles driven by well known business men collided at Broadway corner shortly after 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. One car had turned out of Shetucket street to proceed west on Main street, and the second, which was headed toward Franklin square, struck it. The blinding snow made it impossible for either driver to see the other until it was too late to prevent the accident. Neither car was damaged to any extent.

Thought There Was A Fire.

The glow from a salamander that had been left to keep a room warm in the Young block on Franklin square, where repairs are being made, caused a call for the fire department there Wednesday night about 11:15. Investigation showed there was no fire.

SPACE NEEDED IN CITIES FOR GOVERNMENT ACTIVITIES

Washington, Jan. 3.—Attention of congress was called today to the urgent need of providing additional working space for government activities in 140 cities, based upon facts developed by a careful survey conducted by the treasury department during the last year.

The list of cities, calling for first consideration was transmitted to Speaker Gillett, of the house by Secretary Mellon and Postmaster General Work. The postal service was reported in most need, with the bureau of internal revenue and the veterans' bureau next in the order named. The cost of the work recommended was estimated at more than $40,000,000.

Twenty-five other cities including New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Detroit were equally in need of more adequate facilities, the report said, but information as to conditions and methods of relief there will be submitted later.

The growth of the parcel post service, development of the rural carrier service, collection of income taxes, enforcement of prohibition and the varied activities of the veterans' bureau were cited as the principal causes of congestion, which had thrown some of the work of these bureaus into public corridors. The veterans' bureau, according to the report, is paying $459,272 rent annually for commercial space.

PREPARED FOR HEARINGS IN MOREHOUSE PARISH

Bastrop, La., Jan. 3 (By the A. P.).—The possibility of martial law hovered over Morehouse parish tonight as state troops, civil authorities and the state's legal forces rounded out their final preparations for the open hearing in the Morehouse kidnapping and murder cases to begin Friday.

That Governor Parker had signed a martial law edict and placed it in the hands of Adjutant General Toombs to be promulgated at his discretion was generally admitted.

The adjutant general visited Mer Rouge and Bastrop during the day, conferring with the officers commanding the four units of state troops stationed there.

Dr. H. M. Maskoin, former mayor of Mer Rouge, arrested in Baltimore on a charge of murder in connection with the case, was expected to reach here Friday with the officers sent to extradite him. The physician will return to the state a free man in accordance with an agreement reached today between Governor Parker and Governor Ritchie of Maryland in regard to the contested extradition papers. What charges the state will place against him when he reaches Louisiana soil could not be learned tonigh:

HELD IN CONNECTION WITH DEATH OF HER HUSBAND

Gardner, Mass., Jan. 3.—Mrs. Lillian Tuttle, whose husband, Willie, died under mysterious circumstances last night from poisoning, was placed under arrest by the Gardner police today on a technical charge of misconduct. Mr. Tuttle will be arraigned in the Gardner district court tomorrow. The six small children of the couple were taken to the town farm to be cared for pending disposition of the case. Medical Examiner Edward A. Sawyer will order an autopsy on the body.

PROBATE COURT DISMISSES THE JOHN D. GARDINER SUIT

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 3.—The petition of John D. Gardiner of Baldwin, L. I., uncle of Dorothy Gordon, heiress to $400,000, who is an inmate of the McLean hospital for the insane, for the removal of William F. Jardine as temporary guardian, was dismissed in the probate court today. The action was the latest move in a long series of court struggles involving rival contenders for the guardianship.

The contention of Gardiner that no notice of the appointment of Jardine had been given was overruled by the court.

DAIL EIREANN DEBATES THE RAILWAY DIFFICULTIES

Dublin, Jan. 3.—Railway difficulties were the subject of debate in the Dail Eireann, which reassembled today. Joseph McGrath, minister of labor, made a statement of the government policy, which is to bring under government control all railways unable to maintain existing rates of wages, the government to guarantee working expenses but not to be responsible for dividends.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At the annual meeting of the Danielson chapter of the Red Cross Judge Milton A. Shumway was re-elected president, Mrs. George H. Call vice president, Mrs. Ernest R. Warren secretary and Francis E. Storer treasurer. The annual reports of the officers were presented and accepted. The meeting voted to give $300 to the Civic Federation, which is engaged in highly meritorious work in Danielson, including the maintenance of a visiting nurse service. After deducting the amount of the gift, the Red Cross chapter will have about $1,000 remaining in its treasury.

Upwards of 50 members of the organization were in attendance upon the annual meeting of the Bohemian Club corporation. The annual reports of officers presented to the meeting showed that all bills are paid and that a substantial balance remains in the treasury. A. M. Thompson was elected president and A. F. Woodyard secretary-treasurer. All of the members of the executive committee were re-elected—John B. Bassett, George Robertson and L. A. Bradford. The club has approximately 200 members. After the business meeting ice cream was served.

Wednesday afternoon at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood funeral services for Edna Mae anphere were conducted by Rev. Walter B. Williams, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. Relatives acted as bearers.

The number of the savings depositors of The Windham County National Bank is constantly increasing, and the bank desires everybody's attention called to the fact that deposits made on or before January 6th will draw interest from January 1st. This broad minded policy on the part of the bank is in view of the fact that so many of its depositors will be unable to make deposits this week until some time during Saturday or Saturday evening. The Windham County National Bank.—adv.

The need of hard coal became so pressing in many homes in Danielson by Wednesday that there were repeated calls for publicity of the fact that numbers of homes here are under-heated and on the verge of running out of fuel. The most important development of the local fuel situation during the day was the suggestion that the chamber of commerce, co-operating with the fuel administrator, bring immediate pressure to bear on such railroads as have coal billed to Killingly dealers to rush it through immediately. There is an impression that the insistent urging of the forces mentioned coupled with pressure from the dealers would bring results. One trucking concern here has made known that it is willing to put its trucks into service between Danielson and Providence, where fuel is available, that the possibility of suffering from lack of fuel may be eliminated insofar as such truck service would avail against it. Use of soft coal is utterly out of the question in homes where there are no heaters other than stoves. Deliveries of wood have slowed up. Danielson is up against a fuel crisis and is need of immediate relief.

Fuel Administrator F. E. Cunneen said Wednesday morning that he was not at that time in possession of figures showing the total shipments of hard coal to the town of Killingly during December. The impression prevails, however, that this town is not receiving the full amount of even the limited allotment for this winter. The situation here is more difficult at the present time, reports indicate, than in any other community of its size in the eastern part of the state.

Her many friends in Danielson will rejoice with Sister Mary Carmella of St. Joseph's convent that a serious affection of the eye developed a year ago has been entirely overcome. During the past summer Sister Carmella faced the prospect of losing the sight of her eye entirely, but this prospect has been completely overcome through the efforts of Dr. Thomas H. Gallivan of the staff of St. Francis hospital, Hartford, and formerly of Norwich. Dr. Gallivan is to leave the first of the month for a visit in Japan and China. Sister Carmella at different intervals, has been a teacher at St. James' school for more than a quarter of a century.

A number of employes representing the plant, commercial and operating departments in divisions of the Southern New England Telephone company in this territory were at Putnam Wednesday evening to attend a regular meeting of the telephone employes' association, a feature of which was the presentation to D. M. Stahl, of Putnam, retiring wire chief of the Putnam, Danielson and Moosup divisions, a telephone stand and chair. Refreshments were served and there was dancing during the evening, music being by the Employes' association orchestra. Mr. Stahl is transferred to Derby and is to take up his duties at his new post in the near future.

Belief that he had lost his watch in the New Year's crush to get automobile registration plates at the station where the yard issued in New London by the state motor vehicle department led to a local resident making a vehement protest that he had been touched for his valuable timepiece by someone in the crowd. There was quick response to his call for action, a door was reported to have been locked so that no one in the gathering might get away before being investigated and then the whole situation was simplified by the amusing discovery that in the crowding the local man's watch chain had caught on the button of another man's coat and there the timepiece hung upon a perfectly innocent man who was as surprised as anyone when he was released from the crowd to learn that one of his buttons had unintentionally been picking pockets.

Wednesday Selectmen John A. Gilbert, James Bacon and George Alvord held a regular monthly meeting at their rooms in the town hall building for the transaction of routine business. No matter of special importance came before the board.

At the Atwood home, corner of Broad and Hawkins street, Tuesday afternoon there was a tree party for the members of the Fortnightly club. There was an exchange of gifts and a pleasant social hour.

A trap shoot that had to be postponed from New Year's day on account of the storm was held Tuesday afternoon in a field off North Maple street, and a number of enthusiastic sportsmen participated.

The Bristol Town team will come here this week end to meet the Connecticut Mills basketball team.

Selectman James Bacon has returned after spending the greater part of the month of December visiting in New York and New Jersey.

Still another of the season's northeasters—this time a snow storm—broke about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and by night was threatening a heavy fall.

Joseph Martin has returned to his home in Southington after spending a few days with friends in Danielson.

A ceremonial session is to be held on Saturday by the Camp Fire Girls at the Congregational church.

Philip Zaltas of Putnam has retired from his partnership in a business enterprise established here and it is to be continued by Hyman Yaffe, who has been associated with Mr. Zaltas.

Representative George A. Williams of Dayville was named as clerk of the Windham county organization in the state legislature.

The Woodstock academy basketball team will be here Friday evening for a game with the Killingly High school team.

Wednesday evening in G. A. R. hall newly elected officers of McGregor post, G. A. R., McGregor W. R. C., and Colonel Edward Anderson camp, Sons of Veterans, were installed.

PUTNAM

The swearing in of Charles A. Richard as alderman-at-large to succeed Mayor Victor Chapdelaine, who in turn succeeded Postmaster Archibald Macdonald at the head of the city government, and the filing of annual reports by heads of city departments were the high lights in the first meeting of the common council in 1923. All of the members of the council were in attendance.

The annual reports were read at the meeting and contained a great deal of interest as relating to what has been done and the cost of doing in various departments of the city's business. Treasurer Charles H. Brown's report shows an increase of about $12,000 in the indebtedness of the city during the past year and the total now stands at $157,925. The fire department had the heaviest expense of any of the city departments, a total of $17,577.62 for the year this figure being due to the purchase of new apparatus.

The annual report of Captain René Delage of the police department is chiefly statistical and sets forth in detail the number of arrests, for what causes and the disposition of the cases. Of the 99 arrests made, 56 of them were due to persons becoming intoxicated and violating liquor laws. During the year 42 persons were arrested for being drunk and 12 others for violating liquor laws in some manner or other. Only 11 of all of those arrested were sent to the county jail from Putnam in 1923. Fifty-nine paid fines and costs, 12 were placed on probation, 6 were bound over to the superior court, 5 were discharged and 1 was released by the captain of police. In addition to the 99 arrests, 10 persons were taken into custody here to be turned over to other officers. During the year 179 men were lodged by the police department, 41 doors were found open and secured, and property valued at $3,385.50 was reported stolen. Stolen property recovered had a value of $3,129. The report shows a list of things taken from prisoners, these possessions including rifles, kodaks and an automobile.

Charles T. Thayer, superintendent of fire alarm, reports the fire alarm telegraph system of the city in the best condition in the history of Putnam. A great amount of work has been done on the system by Superintendent Thayer during the past year to advance it to its present high state of efficiency. JUDGE HINMAN DISMISSES WOODSTOCK DIVORCE CASE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, Jan. 3—The petition of Mrs. Marjorie Potter of Woodstock for a divorce from C. Allison Potter has been dismissed by Judge George E. Hinman of the superior court. This case was tried in the superior court here during the past fall and aroused widespread interest among Woodstock people where the plaintiff and defendant are well known, as well as in this city. Earlier in the past year the case first went to trial, but after the trial had proceeded at some length it was halted for a conference that it was hoped might lead to a reconciliation between husband and wife. This hope failing trial of the case was resumed in the fall before Judge Hinman.

Decision of this case has been deferred in accordance with the intention expressed at the close of the trial in the hope that a reconciliation between the parties might render a formal determination unnecessary. No such happy solution has been arrived at, however, so far as the court is informed.

A situation such as is presented here is one which is unusual in the seemingly infinite variety of matrimonial infelicities. A man and woman of approximate equal age, still in the prime of life, comfortably situated so far as material conditions are concerned, married for more than 15 years, with four fine children ranging from twelve to six years of age, have lived in apparent harmony and happiness until the recent past, when, without the intervention of any of the more common [illegible] and [illegible] of acts of physical violence covering a period of about a year immediately before the commencement of this action. To these the plaintiff testifies with particularity as to dates and details; the defendant denies them in toto. Some testimony is offered in attempted corroboration of one or more of the incidents; the defendant presents in support of his denial such negative evidence as the absence of complaints or of the exhibition of marks of violence by the plaintiff, as well as evidence of a character and disposition on his part tending to render it improbable that he would resort to such excesses of conduct as are alleged. He also regrettably deems it necessary to present evidence as to his wife's reputation for veracity having for its only basis disbelief in the charges which she now brings against him.

The impression gained upon the trial and which persist after mature reflection and review of evidence and briefs of counsel is that both parties are in part, at fault. The chief, if not the sole, cause of contention between them appears to be a difference regarding marital relations. There is no more certain cause for matrimonial infelicity than refusal or failure of husband and wife to observe their two-sided obligation.

The conclusion is reached that treatment by the defendant of the plaintiff legitimately to be regarded as amounting to such intolerable cruelty as constitutes legal cause for divorce has not been satisfactorily established.

It is still believed possible and practicable, and is earnestly recommended that the parties, for the sake of their children if for no other reason, resolve and undertake mutual concessions necessary to such a reconciliation or arrangement as will give these children the care and support of both their parents, of which they are in so much in need. If, unfortunately, this suggestion cannot be realized the custody of the children may be adjudicated, if found necessary, in the appropriate tribunal. Such action, it is repeated, ought not to be necessary, however.

The relatives and friends of the respective parties should bend their energies persistently and tactfully toward promoting a reconciliation between them, and if the defendant and his sympathisers are sincere in their belief that the plaintiff is suffering from some form of mental disturbance, they should leave nothing undone on their part which is calculated to remedy such a condition.

Judgment may enter dismissing the complaint.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Jan. 3—Stock prices moved to higher ground in today's market despite a bear attack which followed publication of cable dispatches announcing that the French cacique had rejected the British reparations plan. This speculative selling caused temporary unsettlement but the splendid resistance offered to bear pressure finally induced shorts to abandon their attempt to depress the market and prices turned upward under the stimulating influence of lower call money rates and aggressive pool operations.

The steady and almost uninterrupted advance in prices during December had led bear interests to believe that the technical structure of the market had been weakened and the unfavorable foreign news was used as an excuse to test its strength. While public participation in the market recently has been considered as a negligible factor, today's sharp rebound in prices was construed as an indication that operators for the advance continued in a strong position.

Baldwin Locomotive became the market leader in the late dealings, advancing nearly 3 points to 139 1-2. American Locomotive followed in its wake with a gain of 1 3-8 points and Americas Car and the other equipment shares showed gains ranging from small fractions to 1 point.

Steel shares, which took a prominent part in yesterday's advance, made further progress today on publication of statistics showing that pig iron production in December set a new high record since October 1920 and that production of finished products was continuing at a high rate. U. S. Steel common crossed 107 for a net fractional gain. Gulf States Steel advanced 2 1-2 points, Bethlehem A and Replogle, 2 each, and Bethlehem B, 1 3-4.

Heavy trading took place again in the automotive group with the changes mixed at the close. Chandler Motors was pushed up 3 1-4 points; Willys Overland Preferred 2 3-8; Stewart Warner Speedometer 1 1-4, Pierce Arrow Preferred, 2 1-2; Fisher Body, 2 1-4 and General Motors, Stromberg Carburator and Bosch Magneto, fractionally, while Studebaker, after touching 113, dropped back half a point at the close for a slight fractional loss. Nash Motors fluctuated between 90 and 110, closing at 100 for a net gain of 1 3-4 over its 10 point advance of yesterday. Hudson, Hupp and Packard Motors registered small net declines. Activity in motor shares is in anticipation of the annual winter shows, the first of which will be held here in a few days. American Can was one of the most active specialties, gaining more than 3 points on a turn over of nearly 30,000 shares. Fresh buying power attracted by the higher earnings of the company was the reason given for the brisk rise in that stock. Copper shares were again moderately active at rising prices on the theory that the market had become established on a 14 3-4 percent basis and that the current year would witness the calling for payment of the last of the secured notes of the Copper Export Association. American Smelting rose 1 5-8, and Anaconda, 1, while Utah, Kennecott, Butte & Superior and Ray showed fractional improvement.

Railroad shares generally showed mixed changes. New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and Pere Marquette prior preferred, each advanced two points.

Call money opened at 5 per cent., but eased off to 4 1-2, then 4 and finally 3 1-2, where it closed. Time money business was done on a 5 3-8 per cent. basis with the demand exceeding the supply, especially for the longer maturities. The Commercial Paper rate was unchanged.

Demand sterling moved up 1 1-2 cents to $4.5 1-8 despite the reparations crisis but French francs dropped 15 points to 7.55 cents and Belgian francs 14 points to 6.67 1-2 cents. An advance of 94 points to 19.04 in the Norwegian rate was the only other important change.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 3.—Second grade railroad bonds made the best showing in today's irregular bond market, the main price tendency of which was upward. Some of the high grade investment issues also advanced in response to the appearance of the January reinvestment demand but this has not become as pronounced as was expected. Prospective investors are believed to be holding back in anticipation of making better purchases among the large volume of new securities soon to be offered.

French governmental and municipal bonds were not seriously affected by the impending break up of the reparations conference and British bonds actually showed improvement in response to the higher rate for sterling. Czecho-Slovakian 8's climbed 1 1-8 points and Mexican 4's, ¾ but other changes in the foreign group were unimportant.

U. S. government bonds were inclined to ease in the early dealings but the price changes at the close were irregular. The second 4's, ordinarily inactive, advanced 18 cents on $100 and Liberty 3 1-2's, the second 4 1-4's and the new 4 1-2's, 4 to 8 cents, while the first, third and fourth 4 1-2's and the Victory 4 3-4's dropped 2 to 8 cents.

Announcement was made late today of the public offering of a new issue of $75,000,000 10 and 20-year Federal Land Bank 4 1-2 per cent. bonds at a price of 101 and interest to yield 4 3-4 per cent. to the redeemable date 1933, and 4 1-2 per cent. thereafter to redemption or maturity.

The advance in railroad mortgages was led by Great Northern first 4 1-4's and Denver & Rio Grande 5's, each up 2 3-8. Seaboard Air Line adjustment 5's moved up 2 points Lehigh Valley Consolidated 4 1-2's, 1 5-8 and Ann Arbor 4's, 1 1-2, while St. Paul Puget Sound, 4's, Norfolk & Southern Refunding 5's, Chicago & Alton 3 1-2's Chicago & Western Indiana 5's, Baltimore & Ohio Gold 4's and St. Louis-Southwestern 5's each gained 1 point. Fonda Johnstown & Gloversville 4 1-4's broke 7 points and Wabash second 5's, 2 3-4, while "Katy" adjustment 5's, St. Paul debenture 6's and the 4's of 1925 each yielded a point.

Bethlehem Steel refunding 5's and Republic Steel 5's, each up a point, preceded the only noteworthy changes in the industrial group.

Announcement was made today that the $60,000,000 offering of 7 per cent preferred stock of Armour & Company of Delaware had been oversubscribed. The principal offering today was a $5,000,000 issue of Southern Minnesota joint stock land bank 5 per cent. loan bonds, which were sold to the public at 103 and the accrued interest.

Total sales (par value) were $11,549,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Wheat took an upward swing in price today, helped by indications of liberal export business and by relative steadiness of quotations at Liverpool in the face of severe declines yesterday on the other side of the Atlantic. Today's close here was firm, 1 1-8 to 3c net higher with May 1.20 3-8 to 1.20 1-2 and July 1.11 7-8 to 1.12. Corn gained 1 3-8 to 1 1-2; oats 1 to 1 5-8 and provisions 5 to 20 cents.

From the outset today, it was apparent that urgent selling which has been conspicuous in the wheat market of late, had come to a halt, and that the majority of traders leaned to the view that there had been decline enough for the time being. Signs, were also in evidence soon that good sized export dealings were under way, and although definite estimates of the amount were lacking the effect in tending to renew bullish sentiment was quickly manifest. In this connection Germany was reported a shelving been a purchaser of wheat to be shipped from ports on the Gulf of Mexico, and to have taken since Friday more than 1,000,000 bushels of it.

Gossip of improvement in flour trade counted further as an aid to higher prices for wheat, and so too did fresh unfavorable advices about the condition of the domestic winter crop, especially complaints of dry weather and lack of snow protection in western Kansas and Oklahoma. With persistent, general buying on scale as extensive as obtained from shorts, the market squarely reversed yesterday's action and finished at almost today's top figures.

Corn and oats responded to the fact that receipts of corn here showed a falling off in volume. Besides exporters brought liberal quantities of corn.

Provisions were governed chiefly by the course of hog values.

NUMBER FOUR

use factory employer; third, lack of proper marketing facilities; fourth, the lack of essential credit accommodations. The federal government is now attempting to aid the farmers of the country in the solution of the two last named problems, and can, perhaps, render more effective aid than the state. However, the constant decrease from decade of the population of our rural communities, the abandoned farms, the shrinkage in property values, and, above all, the destruction of these finest schools of good citizenship, although incidental to our great industrial development, seem to me unspeakably sad. I believe that the splendid traditions of the town have of Connecticut are from every standpoint worth preserving. And in the event of war or other general calamity, this problem of agriculture would be vital to every man, woman and child in the state.

While Connecticut does not enjoy the natural resources of mines, forests and rich alluvial lands possessed by some of the states, still our state presents many attractions not only to the temporary visitor but to the permanent residents. We have the variety of natural scenery afforded by seashore, mountain, lake and stream. There are abundant reasonably priced farm lands worthy of more intensive cultivation. Our schools, primary and secondary, are excellent. Our institutions of higher learning are second to none. In many places opportunities for establishing industrial enterprises are unsurpassed. Our government, state an dlocal, is safe and efficient, and our public affairs honestly managed. Connecticut is comfortably accessible to all of the great cities of the east. Some sections of the state have already profited enormously by the accession of city business men who have acquired residences in the country districts and millions of dollars have thereby been added to the grand list of the towns so favored.

Other states, including Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, less favored in many ways than Connecticut, have for some years made liberal appropriations for the purpose of attracting our people and have met with marked success. Connecticut could with reasonable expenditure in this field accomplish much for the interest of all sections of the state.

I recommend the enactment of legislation providing for the appointment by the governor of a commission to make a thorough and comprehensive study of this matter with an especial view to the needs of the smaller communities. Such an organization would serve a great public need and material gathered from time to time would be of service to the state and general assembly. It might properly include in its activities the accumulation and dispensing of information regarding all the natural resources and advantages of the state. I warmly commend this subject to your thoughtful attention.

Child Welfare Work—The Insane.

The initial legislation designed to promote child welfare enacted in 1921 has already proved its value, but it was only a beginning. Possibly there is no legislative subject which is more heavily freighted with the good wishes of the thoughtful, disinterested men and women of Connecticut.

The helping hand of the state has been extended with reference to various forms of dependency, neglect, delinquency and handicap among children. From an economic as well as a humanitarian standpoint these activities should be increased and expanded. Increased hospital provisions for the custodial feebleminded, and enlarged educational provisions for the more numerous feebleminded who can be vocationally trained are essential steps in the initiation of this work. It will mean a great economy in the long run to develop the possibilities of vocational training and supervised vocational placement for our feeble-minded young men and women.

The helping hand of the state has been extended with reference to various forms of dependency, neglect, delinquency and handicap among children. From an economic as well as a humanitarian standpoint these activities should be increased and expanded. Increased hospital provisions for the custodial feeble-minded, and enlarged educational provisions for the more numerous feeble-minded who can be vocationally trained, are essential steps in the initiation of this work. It will mean a great economy in the long run to develop the possibilities of vocational training and supervised vocational placement for our feeble-minded young men and women.

The crippled children of the state have been largely overlooked and dependents are being produced, who, if properly aided, might become self-supporting, useful citizens. These handicapped children have in many instances been denied an opportunity for education and compulsion with other children in the public schools. Provision for free transportation to and from school wherever necessary should be provided. These crippled children are often of exceedingly bright minds and the state owes to itself the duty of removing as far as possible the handicap under which they suffer. I would also recommend that the method of admission to the Newington Home for Crippled Children be changed so as to allow the admission of children unable to pay the expense of institutional care.

Appropriations sufficient for these purposes seem to me essential at this time.

These same principle apply with equal force to care and protection of the adult feeble-minded, imbecile and insane. Experience indicates that this class of defectives is increasing rapidly, and inadequate and proper care of these unfortunates is necessary not only from the humanitarian standpoint but for the purpose of protecting the mental soundness of children born within this state.

State Institutions

I have already given considerable time to an inspection of the state's institutions for the care of unfortunate members of society.

The subject is so broad and their purposes cover so many lines of attempted human betterment that it is impossible for me to make detailed and specific recommendations at this time. At a later date, I shall hope to make some concrete suggestions relating to such institutions.

So many calls will be made upon the bounty of the state for increased appropriations to provide additional facilities in all of them that it will require excellent judgment and fine discrimination to provide for those which are most indispensable.

I may say in passing that no state in the Union has a finer corps of men and women than those who are giving their best for the benefit of their fellows. Their pecuniary compensation could not induce them to devote their talents to a service which might, but for the love of the work, be repellant. To the many who are serving without any reward, the state owes its especial thanks.

Treatment of Cancer

Laboratories and institutes for the investigation of cancer have made many important discoveries during the last few years, although accurate scientific information on the subject is still in an embryonic stage. It has proved, however, that in its early stages, cures may be effected. As a cause of death, cancer ranks equally with tuberculosis, and as the scourge of humanity it should be fought by every available agency.

In cases where patients are unable to pay for radium and X-ray therapy, provision should be made whereby such treatment can be furnished.

It would be impracticable for the state to maintain efficient laboratories rivalling those of the great foundations already established, but such aid as the state can render, could well be afforded at no inordinate cost.

Fuel Situation

For many months past, many of our citizens have been gravely apprehensive of a coal famine. It is needless to say that the comfort of our homes and the continuous operation of our factories is dependent on an adequate and regular coal supply.

Labor disturbances, strikes and shut downs in the coal regions have become incidents of almost annual occurrence. The causes of the irregularity in coal production, while interesting to us as students of political economy, originate outside our borders, and we are powerless to apply remedial measures.

Our state, however, cannot be indifferent to the serious inconvenience and hardship which our people have already suffered. It is not only difficult to procure this vital commodity in adequate quantities, but when procurable its staggering cost is prohibitive to many families.

Connecticut in its history, tendencies and traditions has shown no trace of socialistic desires, and assuredly Connecticut ought not to progress in any form of merchandising where the service can be satisfactorily performed by private enterprise. Nevertheless the needs of modern civilization have become increasingly complex, and Connecticut will not allow its citizens to freeze, either as the result of unfortunate mining conditions or rapacity. The comfort, well being, and prosperity of its citizens should be the first concern of the state, and if sovereign power should be exercised wherever a real emergency exists.

I would recommend adequate legislation empowering a board of control to conduct necessary investigations as to the conditions of the coal market and the possibilities of future coverage, and in the event of an emergency to arrange for and if need be purchase coal for the citizens of Connecticut.

In this connection as in the case of agriculture, the state may well develop its own additional facilities should these become essential. The state is well endowed with water power and, very fortunately, much of this has already been developed or passed into private use, thus indirectly saving us several score of tons of coal in the movement of trains. But there remain other sources of power and heat, which may well be developed with a fair return on the capital invested and to the benefit of the people of the state. To encourage the use of this possible substitute for coal is a clear duty. Thus I recommend that a commission of public-spirited citizens be appointed to give this matter their attention and effect a survey of the possibilities. The question of forest protection and forest production is closely akin to this subject and may well be included in the scope of the inquiry.

CONNECTICUT HAS GIVEN MILLION TO NEAR EAST

Connecticut people have contributed over a million dollars to the Near East Relief in the past three years for the aid of the thousands of homeless orphans in Asia Minor, according to a letter written by Meigs H. Whaples, state treasurer of the Near East Relief, to George J. Nagy, an East Haven workingman.

As it has been estimated tont it costs $50 a year to care for each child in the care of the Near East Relief, Connecticut may be credited with having saved the lives of nearly six thousand orphans who would have scarved but for the rescue work of the relief organization. Thus is almost a thousand less than the quota assigned to the Nutmeg state when the gigantic task before the national organization of the Near East Relief was originally laid out.

It is costing about $550,000 a year to keep the orphans who were originally taken in as a result of contributions received in Connecticut, and many who were subsequently taken in, as the first ranks were thinned down by sickness and terrible diseases resulting from the hunger and exposure to which the children were subjected before American charity intervened.

There are now altogether about 175,000 orphans in the care of the Near East Relief, and they are being maintained by contributions made to the relief from all the state in the union. The problem before the national organization is to raise enough money annually not only to continue the support of these little victims of Turkish massacres and other misfortunes but to reach out and extend a helping hand to thousands of others begging to be admitted to the great orphanages opened up by the Near East Relief.

The letter of Mr. Whaples, treasurer for Connecticut was written to Mr. Nagy in response to a touching letter accompanying a two-dollar contribution from the East Haven man, who wrote that he has always given everything that he could spare from his wages, for the benefit of sufferers, so that he has never been able to start a bank account. Thousands of contributions, like those of Mr. Nagy's, went with larger donations from people in better financial circumstances to make up the grand total of aid furnished by the people of Connecticut. State Director E. H. McDonogh said yesterday that the organization is experiencing considerable difficulty in raising the quota for the present fiscal year which ends June 30. Word has been sent out to local chairmen to redouble their efforts.

GUNNY SACK WITH CANDLE IS IN EVIDENCE IN ARSON CASE

A smoke-blackened gunny sack with a candle tied in it and a partly burned wooden bushel basket were pieces of evidence produced against Domenico Marinelli, a Groton store keeper, in his trial in the superior court here Wednesday on the charge of arson in having set a fire in his store at 313 Thames street on December 1, at 11 o'clock at night.

Mrs. Mary O'Neil, who occupied the tenement over the Marinelli store and was the one who discovered the fire and gave the alarm testified that she smelled the odor of kerosene at the time.

Trial of the case before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury was begun when court opened Wednesday morning. There are three counts in the information against Marinelli, who ran a store at 315 Thames street, Groton, near the junction with the Poquonoc road and the Eastern Point road. State Attorney Hadlai A. Hull is assisted in the prosecution of the case by Attorney Warren Burrows, while Marinelli is defended by Attorneys Perry Hollanderaky and Arthur M. Brown.

Long Trial Is Expected.

Trial of the case may run into two or three weeks, it is predicted, as the state has ten witnesses to present, and it is reported that the defense may have three times that number.

Explains Plans of Location.

Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher was the first witness called by the state. He explained four plans and eight photographs taken of the building where the Marinelli store was. Above the store were tenements occupied by the family of Thomas O'Neil and Louis Cohen, the latter the owner of the building.

The location of the stove in the store, a hole chopped in the floor, an oil tank and some bushel baskets were points to which special attention was given by the state attorney.

Mr. Pitcher was on the stand for his direct examination all the morning and was cross-examined for about 40 minutes by Attorney Brown at the opening of the afternoon session.

Was Awakened By Smoke.

Mrs. Mary O'Neil, wife of Thomas J. O'Neil, who occupied the second floor tenement in the building, followed Mr. Pitcher on the witness stand. She testified that on the night of the fire her husband was working in the forge shop at the New London Ship and Engine Co. Her sister-in-law, Miss Anna O'Neil and her 4½ year old daughter, Peggy, were sleeping in the room with her. Mrs. O'Neil said she had been out during the evening visiting her mother-in-law in the adjoining house. She returned about 9:20 and went to bed about 10:15. She was awakened about 10:45 by smoke coming through the bedroom floor near a clothes press. She detected the odor of kerosene in the smoke. Mrs. O'Neil said she woke up her sister-in-law and her little girl, sent her sister-in-law out to turn in the fire alarm and then called to the Cohen family upstairs. Then she went out to her father-in-law's house next door, seeing Annie O'Neil there, and going on towards the fire alarm box at the corner of Ledyard and Thames streets. On the way she met Harry O'Neil and turned back with him to her home where she arrived just as the fire alarm was beginning to sound. A sewing machine was carried out of her tenement.

In response to questioning by the state attorney, Mrs. O'Neil testified that the Economy store had been opened in that neighborhood after the Marinelli store had been running. At one time Marinelli used to close his store about 9 o'clock in the evening, but before the fire he had been closing between 7 and 7:30.

On cross-examination by Attorney Brown, Mrs. O'Neil said she noticed nothing out of the ordinary about the Marinelli store when she returned from her father-in-law's to her own home When she was awakened by the smoke she heard something like boxes falling, but could not say the noise came from the store, but it seemed to be underneath her room.

Navy Man Saw Two Fires.

Edward Ertel, of Quincy, Mass., with 20 years of service in the U. S. navy, now chief torpedo man and with the inspection force at the New London Ship & Engine Co., testified he was at the Pioneer Hose Co. house on the night of the fire, from about 5.30 p. m. He came out about 10.45 with a man named Arsenault, Dan and Matt O'Brien going south on Thames street. Two of the men left him shortly and he kept on with Arsenault till he saw a boy running shouting "Fire." The boy rung the fire alarm box and then ran back towards the Marinelli store with Arsenault following after him. The witness helped Mrs. O'Neil get out a sewing machine and a mattress and looked through a window into the store where he could see flames on the floor near the stove. He forced the store door open but closed it again before the fire truck arrived. When the fire truck arrived, Arsenault used a chemical tank on the fire with the witness helping him. Then the witness said he saw another fire in the left hand rear corner of the store. The witness played chemical on the fire in the corner until he had to give way before the smoke.

Four or five minutes later the witness said he went back into the store and saw a lot of gunny sacks near where the fire had been. There was also a cat lying dead on the floor. The witness also saw some baskets and gunny sacks carried out of the store and placed on the fire truck.

The witness identified a charred wooden bushel basket and a gunny sack with a candle tied into it as the articles he had seen carried out of the store. He said that there was the odor of kerosene about the gunny sack and he smelled kerosene in the fire. Chief Ertel said he put his hand on the stove when he first got into the store and the stove was cold. The hole in the floor was chopped by the firemen in order to flood the space under the floor of the store with water.

Attorney Brown had just begin his cross-examination of the witness when court adjourned for the day at 4.40.

THRIFT HONOR CERTIFICATES FOR THE FALLS SCHOOL

C. R. Butts, assistant treasurer of the Norwich Savings society, Norwich, Conn., notified our New York office on December 6 that the Sachem street school in Norwich had achieved the honor of being 100 per cent. in Thrift.

Every pupil in this school has a regular savings bank account of at least one dollar and that is an achievement worthy of note. It takes interest and team work to accomplish such things and we want to call special attention to the fact that there is a kindergarten in this school with two teachers in that department and those children are counted in the 100 per cent.

Miss Elizabeth Hayes is the principal of Sachem street school and teaches the 5th and 6th grades. Honor certificates have been presented to each room in the school and the name of each teacher in the list, of room to whom 100 per cent. certificates have been awarded is as follows:

5th and 6th, Miss Elizabeth Hayes, teacher; 1st grade, Miss Lillian Stetson, teacher; 2nd grade, Miss Agnes Curran, teacher; 3rd and 4th grades, Miss Nellie Ahern, teacher; kindergarten, Miss Browning and Mrs. MacDougall, teachers.

RECOMMENDS $250,000 FOR NEW LONDON POST OFFICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, Jan. 3.—The secretary of the treasury and Postmaster General Work united today in sending to congress recommendation for the erection of public buildings in 43 cities and towns. Among them is one for New London with an appropriation asked for in the sum of $250,000 for additional land extension and remodeling the present building. Other Connecticut recommendations include Bridgeport, $1,700,000, New Britain $235,000; Torrington $250,000; Waterbury $65,000. The letters from the secretary accompanying the recommendation state that with added facilities the health of employees, the improvement of service gained from modern equipment and the larger space will warrant the expenditure and asked that congress take the matter under immediate consideration

TROOP 9 INSTALLATION AT FIST BAPTIST CHURCH

A large audience greeted Scout Executive F. A. Barton and scouts of Troop No. 6, who conducted a troop installation at the First Baptist church, Tuesday night.

Assembled in the Sunday school room of the church were scouts, officials and parents of the members of the troop.

The following program was carried out:

Invocation, Rev. E. C. Dunbar, America, reading of Declaration of Principles to troop committeeman, acceptance of committeeman's duties by Robert W. Otis, talk by Assistant Scout Master Louis Mousley, pledging of Scout Master E. C. Dunbar by committeeman R. W. Otis, and presentation of scout master to troop, talk by Patrol Leader Harvey Mousley, address by scout master to troop, tenderfoot investiture by scout executive, assisted by 12 scouts of Troop No. 6, scout oath by all standing, pledge of allegiance to the flag, Star Spangled Banner.

The tenderfoot investiture by the executive and visiting troop made a very pleasing and impressive ceremony in inducting the new troop into the organization.

Troop No. 9 is fortunate in having an experienced scout master in Mr. Dunbar and assistant in Lawrence Browning. They will be well supported by the troop committee, consisting of chairman Robert W. Otis, George H. Amburn and Earle W. Stamm.

TAFTVILLE

Albert Leo Peloquin of Norwich avenue, and Miss Violet E. Newton of Westminster were married on New Year's day, in Norwich, by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church. They were accompanied by a few immediate relatives. Mr. Peloquin has made his home in Taftville for some time with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Peloquin of Norwich avenue. He is employed at the plant of the Hygienic Fibre Company in Versailles. The young couple left on a trip and on their return will reside on McKinley avenue, Norwich.

A number of five-pfenning pieces, relics of the old German monarchy, have been found in circulation in the village this week, where they have been passing freely as nickels, as they are about the size of the United States five cent piece. How they got into town is a mystery, as travellers returning from the Fatherland, state that coins with the exception of those made of an aluminum composition) are out of circulation altogether, and that all money used is paper. At first glance, it appears that someone is making a profit beyond the wildest dreams of Ponzi, for with marks selling at several hundred to the dollar, and pfennings several thousand, it would be a simple matter to purchase pfennings by the basketful and pass them out as nickels. But, when the whole matter is taken into consideration and the tales of German travelers are digested, it appears that the pfenning silver coin is more plentiful in Taftville, than it is in Germany.

One of the hardest trials that radio fans in this vicinity ever had to face came New Year's eve, when with their invited guests, they sat around their instruments, sipping grape juice, and listened to the New Year's celebrations in Montreal and Havana. From the sounds that came wafting through the ozone, these celebrations were not at all absolutely dry, and to sit and listen to the merrymaking accompanied by the sound of popping of corks, proved a terrible ordeal for those who gathered to enjoy the concerts.

Among the holiday visitors in town this week was Arthur Lambert of Hartford, who spent the early part of the week calling on friends and acquaintances. Mr. Lambert was a former resident of the village, residing on Merchants avenue, when he was proprietor of a laundry route, and president of a corporation that operated an apparel store in Norwich. At one time he was engaged in the motion picture business in the village.

Miss Margaret Slater of Uncasville, Conn., has been a recent guest of Miss Hildegarde Crowe of South A street.

William Henry Pickering of Pawtucket, R. I., has returned home after spending a few days with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gaskell of Norwich avenue.

Mrs. Ettabelle Davis of Washington, D. C., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adams of North Third avenue.

Ovila Chancerelle, who has been the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Chancerelle of Providence street, has returned to his home in East Hartford.

Peter Cadorette of the Ponemah House, has resigned his position with the Ponemah Company.

Some of the departments of the J. S. Martin Company plant are closed.

The I. O. Foresters met Wednesday evening in their rooms in St. Louis hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Dugas have returned to their home in Putnam, after spending a few days with Mr. Dugas' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Prime Dugas and family of South A street.

The funeral of Mrs. Annie Crawford Copeland, wife of Hugh Copeland, was held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from her late home on Norwich avenue, and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church. The bearers were George Gregory, George J. Meyer, Theodore Goodrum and Charles Copeland. Burial was in the Hickory street cemetery, Norwich, where Rev. Mr. Crowdis read the committal service. Among the beautiful floral forms that were grouped about the casket were: Standing wreath, husband; crescent, children; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Copeland and family; spray, Miss Elizabeth Mousley, Mrs. William Enos and Miss Margaret Krauss; wreath, Home Department of Taftville Congregational Sunday school; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gorman; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Goodrum and William C. Kendall; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. James Dunlop; cross, Miss Mary Smiles. Friends from Pawtucket and Newport, R. I., were in attendance. Undertaker George G. Grant had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fritsche have arrived from Germany to make their home here, and are at present the guests of Mrs. Fritsche's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. George Simino of Merchants avenue. They arrived in New York on January 1st, on the steamship Hansa, which cleared from Hamburg, and after being detained at Ellis Island for two days, were permitted to land and entrain for Taftville. Mrs. Fritsche, who was before her marriage, Miss Clara Schulze, was a former resident of this village, and resided with her aunt, Mrs. Mary Sigrist of North B street, some time ago she sailed for Germany to make her home there, where she was married. For some time she has planned to return to this country and does not conceal her satisfaction in again being in the United States. Mrs. Fritsche stated that industrial conditions in Germany were at a low ebb, and while the wages paid the workingmen were high in proportion to what they were even in the war days, living is so high that the purchasing power of the mark is very low.

Mrs. Victor Michaud is confined to her home on North A street by illness.

Michael J. Tierney of North A street returned early in the week from a short stay in Pawtucket, R. I.

Ludwig Hafner of Canterbury was a caller in the village Wednesday.

Fred Caron of Stafford Springs was in the village Tuesday.

Postmaster D. C. Murphy has been doing a rushing banking business at the local postoffice for the past few days. The rush of war savings and thrift stamps that are being presented for redemption, seems to increase daily. It has been the policy of the local office to attempt to have the holder of war savings stamps convert his securities into the new treasury savings certificates, but Mr. Murphy reports that he is not having much success along this line. The majority of holders prefer cash to exchange, and all those who are presenting their stamps are being taken care of as promptly as possible.

Every time it snows, householders in the village are forced to be hosts to cats—stray cats, that seem to hang out anywhere that they can get a bite to eat. Just as soon as the snow covers the ground, and the cats can't pick up anything to eat, in they come from the woods, and proceed to hold nocturnal concerts on fences, doorsteps and walls. People who own cats should make some provision for their pets when they move from town. A majority of the stray cats that are frequenting the village now can be traced to thoughtless people who moved away and left the animals behind. They seem to have increased this year, and seem to find ways of getting into cellars and woodsheds. That their nightly musicales are driving residents temporarily insane is proved by a sight on North Third avenue late one evening recently, when one of the residents of the neighborhood was seen chasing half a dozen cats, clad only in his pajamas, with his arms full of chunks of firewood, which he was hurling at the fleeing animals.

Miss Marie Louise Michaud of South Second avenue is in New Bedford, Mass., the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Elton McKenzie.

Robert Graham of Cristobal, Canal Zone, Panama, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Emerson of Lisbon, has left town for New York, where he will remain for a few days before embarking for his home.

The snow storm Wednesday evening threw the trolleys off schedule, some being two or three minutes late.

Mrs. Maria Roseberry of Pawtucket, R. I., has been a recent guest of Miss Mary Stubbs and Miss Louisa Stubbs of North B street. Mrs. Roseberry is a former resident of this village.

DIVERGENCE ON GERMAN REPARATIONS SUNDERS GREAT WORLD WAR ALLIANCE

France, Italy and Belgium, While Not Strictly in Accord, Remain Grouped on the Subject—England Has Broken Away, but Expects to Cooperate With the Other Powers, Especially With France, on Other Questions—Break in the Conference Was Marked by Great Courtesy—British Delegate Will Retain His Place on the Reparations Commission—France Will Await the Action of the Commission Before Putting Its Plan Into Execution—England Has Intimations That a Further Announcement is Coming From Secretary Hughes.

Paris, Jan. 4.—(By the A. P.)—The alliance between France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium fell apart today over the treatment of German reparations. The Latin powers, France, Italy and Belgium remain loosely grouped together on that subject, while England, although separating from them expects to co-operate, especially with France, on other questions.

The conference of the premiers, which has been in progress here since January 2, ended with friendly words. Mr. Bonar Law made a statement "on behalf of the British government and the British people," as follows:

Withdrawal of British

"His majesty's government, after giving most earnest and careful consideration to the French proposals, have come to the conclusion that they cannot approve them and that, if carried out, they will not only fail to produce the desired results but are likely to have grave and disastrous results on the economic life of Europe.

"His majesty's government at the same time desire to assure the government of the French republic that, while they regret extremely that there should be an irreconcilable difference of view on a subject so serious. The feeling of friendship on the part not only of the British government but, as they believe, of the British people toward the government and people of France remains unchanged."

Poincare's Reply

In his reply, M. Poincare said: "The French government for their part, have examined very attentively and carefully the British proposals, and they longer they have studied them the more they have felt obliged to recognize that the proposals would involve together with a considerable reduction of the debt owing to France, the overthrow of the treaty of Versailles. It is impossible for them to accept such a solution.

"The government of the republic deeply regret their inability to agree with Great Britain on this serious question, but they thank the British government for their friendly statement and can assures them that, in spite of this difference of opinion, the sentiments of the French government and nation towards England remain unchangingly cordial."

Regrets of Italian Delegation

Marquis Della Torreta, representing Italy, said:

"The Italian delegation sincerely regrets to see that the efforts it made to reach an accord among the allies on such a grave question have not been crowned with success. The Italian delegation has interpreted the thought of its own government in the conviction that the disagreement among the allies has not influenced the cordial sentiments of friendship so long existing, and expresses the hope that eventually even on this present question there will be reconsideration and agreement."

Premier Mussolini turned the scale decisively against the British plan. The Italian delegates had reserved their final declaration until today, and this morning it appeared that they were inclined to support Mr. Bonar Law's proposal with slight modifications. A telegram received from Rome just before the conference opened instructed them to vote for the French plan, as against the British in case they should find it useless to push their own plan. This strengthened Belgium and France, and Great Britain stood alone.

French Premier Not Elated

M. Poincare is not elated tonight over his success; he is described as in sober mood, conscious of great anxieties and difficulties ahead. He will proceed warily and will report to the French parliament on its reassembling next Thursday. In the meantime the reparations commission will meet on Tuesday to pass upon coal deliveries and also upon Germany's request for a moratorium.

Sir John Bradbury is expected to be present, as the breaking up of the conference does not mean withdrawal of the British delegate from the reparations commission. The Versailles treaty specifies that no member of the commission may withdraw without giving a year's notice.

The French will await the action of the commission before putting their plan into execution. M. Poincare, in applying the plan in the absence of British support, may, it is said in semi-official circles, find it necessary to support the customs officers and guards by a small military force in the Ruhr. He will still insist, however, that these soldier swill be so limited that such action could not plausibly be interpreted as military occupation, properly speaking.

Courtesy Prevailed

The final quarter hour of the conference was marked by great courtesy; each of the delegates seemed concerned that nothing in the manner or in mood should detract from the gravity of the moment.

There are various indications of sadness on the part of the premiers and ambassadors over the dissolution of the alliance which carried their countries through the war and up to this time in dealing with what have been found to be unsolvable problems of peace. Allusions were made privately to the contrast between this situation and the great enthusiasm and whole-hearted enthusiasm during the war.

The British see in the friendly manner in which the conference broke up and the mutual expression of good will a sign that M. Poincare has no intention for the present of departing from a policy of cooperation at Lausanne regarding the Near East. The, British delegates were anxious yesterday over this aspect of the situation, being apprehensive that the French might withdraw their support.

British to Make Special Efforts

The British will make special efforts to continue their work under the entente in all fields of European politics excepting German reparations. Mr. Bonar Law's conception appears to be that France may try a free hand with Germany for a few months until she learns that her plans will not fulfill expectations, and then she will turn again toward England.

Mr. Bonar Law deeply regrets the outcome of the conference. He said tonight it was apparent at the recent London meeting that the breach dividing the French and British reparation views was too wide to admit of a compromise, but this did not prevent him from coming to Paris in the hope of finding some last minute solutio nof the problem.

The British are fearful of the results that would follow the application of Premier Poincare's guarantees in the Ruhr and the Rhineland. The same British officials profess to doubt that France will actually carry out its threat of independent action. Although the only definite alternative which has been suggested is reference of the whole problem to the league of nations. The Italians are reported to have considered suggesting such a course today, but it is generally believed that there would be only a slight chance of such a solution.

The British delegates are returning to London tomorrow morning after a formal farewell to the French and other delegations. Mr. Bonar Law will preside at a cabinet council soon after his arrival in London. The British speculating tonight as to whether the United States will intervene with some suggestion as plan, now that France and Great Britain have failed to agree.

Expect Announcement from Hughes

Intimations have reached the British that Secretary of State Hughes might make some further announcement if the conference broke up, and the officials are wondering if these intimations have any foundation in fact. American officials have received no indication of this from Washington.

Dr. Karl Bergmann was given no opportunity to present the German government's plan. He held himself in readiness during the last two days in case he received a call from the conference to appear before it, but the allies were too deeply absorbed by their own differences to think of summoning further trouble with a new German plan.

HOW BREACH OF ALLIES IS VIEWED IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 4 (By the A. P.)—The dissolution at Paris of the conference of allied leaders was regarded here as bringing the reparations crisis measureably near the point touched upon by Secretary Hughes in his recent New Haven speech. But although the allied statesmen have failed to agree among themselves, there still stands before them an alternative to attempted forcible collection in Germany pointed out by Mr. Hughes.

There was no word available in official quarters today to indicate that any further initiative was to be expected at this time from the Washington government. The only authorized comment on the situation was a statement at the state department that Mr. Hughes' suggestion was put forward to "leave several doors open" to the premiers in the event of an emergency.

Presumably word will come from Paris if the French government sees hope in the American suggestion that not alone the question of the amount Germany can pay but also the method of payment, be referred to advisory recommendations to an international commission of financial authorities unhampered by political concerns or obligations. Mr. Hughes has already indicated that American financiers would serve on such a commission with the sanction of the government if they were invited.

There is believed to be time for a decision abroad to examine the possibilities of the American suggestion before France can move to carry out the program outlined to the council by Premier Poincare and rejected by the British prime minister. The present moratorium does not expire until Jan. 15, and despatch of a French civil commission into the Ruhr valley and other steps toward forcible collections included in the French plan, it is felt, cannot well be taken in advance of that date and formal announcement of Germany's failure to make required payments within the time limit.

Since Secretary Hughes made his suggestion to the premiers in his New Haven speech, both the French and British plans for settlement have been presented and rejected. It is to b noted that the French proposal carefully avoids any employment of the French army, at least in the first instance, in the plan for reparations collections advanced. The work could be done by civil commissioners sent from France.

That this relieves the French plan of elements of force against which the American secretary of state directed his remarks at New Haven is wholly improbable. Mr. Hughes said at that time: "We should view with disfavor measures which instead of producing reparations would threaten disaster."

Another point the secretary asked was what was to be done if the Paris conference failed to reach an agreement. "The alternative," he continued, "of forcible measures to obtain reparations is not an attractive one. No one can foretell the extent of the serious consequences which might ensue from such a course. Apart from political results, I believe that the opinion of experts is that such measures will not produce reparations payments but might tend to destroy the basis of those payments which must be found in economic recuperation."

ABOUT FRENCH LOAN OF £50,000,000 GOLD TO BRITAIN

Paris, Jan. 4.—(By The A. P.)—The French government today issued a note respecting the deposit of £50,000,000 in gold advanced to Great Britain by France during the war, and the retention of which by the British was proposed by Prime Minister Bonar Law in settlement of the French war debt. This proposal was rejected by France at the council of premiers which ended today. The French statement follows:

"An accord signed at Calais on August 25, 1916, between M. Briand and Ribot (French premier and finance minister) and Messrs. Asquith and McKenna (British prime minister and chancellor of the exchequer) placed credits in sterling at the disposition of France for a total of £150,000,000. Article 2 reads:

"The French government, in exchange for the advance of the £150,000,000 stipulated in Araticle 1, engages itself to request the Bank of France to place at the disposition of the British treasury the sum of 550,000,000 gold, constituting a loan to be repaid by the British government three years after the termination of the war, at the same time as well be repaid the advance provided for in Article 1."

"The placing of this sum under the above conditions at the disposition of the British government did not relieve it from the obligation of repaying in gold. The English government on several occasions has manifested a desire to relieve of itself of this obligation. It asked M. Ribot on March 13, 1917, to accept, in another agreement, that the gold in question could be placed in credit against the French debt to Great Britain, on account of the French government bonds discounted in virtue of these accords. M. Ribot refused.

"When M. Loucheur visited London in 1918, it was desired to insert in the draft of an agreement that the French government would not ask for repayment of the gold detained in execution of the Calais accord until the moment in which was paid the total of the French debt owing to the English government. M. Loucheur reserved his decision, and upon his return to Paris the French government refused to accept the article in question.

"The accord of 1916 (drawn up at Calais) remains therefore the only one governing the legal status of the gold transferred to the British treasury and conforming to these stipulations, this sum of gold continues to figure in the balance of the Bank of France."

BRITISH DEBT COMMISSION HAS ARRIVED IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 4.—(By the A. P.)—The British debt commission, headed by Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer and Montague C. Norman, governer of the Bank of England, arrived in Washington tonight prepared to take up with the American debt commission the subject of funding Great Britain's wartime debt of more than four billion dollars.

Members of the American commission said today they were ready to enter into negotiations, but would have no proffers to make beyond the limitations established by law. They had no information, they declared, as to the British proposal and declined to discuss in advance of their receipt the reported British plans.

A denial was made today by treasury officials of any thought being given to changes in the debt funding act to give the American commission more latitude in the negotiations. Some other members of the commission, however, including Secretary Hughes and Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, have taken the view that certain changes should be made.

Questions concerning suggested changes, however, when put to American commissioners today were met generally with the statement that nothing could be said or should be said in advance of the actual presentation by the British of any proposition they have to make.

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI AND WIFE HAVE SEPARATED

Philadelphia, Jan. 4.—Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra, and his wife, known on the concert stage as Olga Samaroff, have separated, Thomas Raeburn White, counsel for the orchestra leader, announced tonight. A separation was signed, he stated, before Mr. Stokowski sailed last week for Europe, where he will act as guest conductor of some of the leading orchestras in France and Italy. The settlement, Mr. White added, contains an arrangement whereby the conductor is to provide for the financial future of Mrs. Stokowski and their year-old daughter.

No information was given out regarding the cause of the separation. Neither was it announced whether action would be taken for a divorce decree.

The Stokowskis were married in April, 1911.

SIX KILLED AND MANY INJURED IN RACE RIOT

Gainsville, Fla., Jan. 4.—Three white men and three negroes are dead and a number of whites and blacks injured as a result of an outbreak at Rosewood, three miles from Sumner, Levy county, late today and tonight, according to reports received here late tonight by telephone from Cedar Key.

The reports added that the population of Cedar Key was aroused and that many armed men from there were planning to go to Rosewood. The Gainesville Sun was requested to ask Sheriff Ramsey of Alachura county to go to the scene with as many men as possible as it was feared the situation, apparently already beyond control of the Levy county authorities, would grow worse.

ENGAGEMENT OF PRINCE OF WALES TO BE ANNOUNCED

London, Jan. 4.—The Daily News today says the engagement of the Prince of Wales to the daughter of a well known Scottish peer will be announced within the next two or three months.

It was this newspaper which several days ago published the report that the Prince of Wales would shortly be betrothed to an Italian princess, a report which met with official denial.

The Daily News does not give the name of the peer, but says he is earl whose title dates from the 17th century.

"The bride-elect," the newspaper adds, "is of an age ideally suited to a union with the prince, who is 28 years old. She has both beauty and brains and is very popular in society, where she already has played a distinguished part. She is one of the closest friends of Princess Mary, sister of the Prince of Wales."

TWO ENGINEERS AND TWO FIREMEN INSTANTLY KILLED

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 4. — Two engineers and two firemen were instantly killed tonight when two Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad freight trains met in a head-on collision near Laclede, Mo., according to word reaching here. Several cars were thrown into the ditch.

Break at Paris Will Encourage the Turks

In All the Hotels in Lausanne the Breach in the Allies Was Topic of Discussion.

Lausanne, Jan. 4—(By the A. P.)—The Near Eastern conference remains without change; the negotiations made no progress today whatsoever. A renewed attempt to solve the problem of the patriarch of the Orthodox Greek church, whom the Turks insist must be deported from Constantinople, met the same fate as other efforts.

The Turks proved unshakeable in their determination, and the sub-commission voted to report to the full commission that it was "unable to accept." The Turks probably have disappointed many archaeologists by refusing to put into the projected Lausanne treaty any provisions for archaeological research or excavations among the limitless ruins of Turkey. They said that such researches must follow the laws of Turkey or be made the subject of special negotiations between Angora and the individual countries.

The big issues of the conference are still unsolved and no whole-hearted effort appears to have been made by either side to reach an agreement. The continuance of the deadlock is increasing the feeling at Lausanne that the conference will probably not succeed it carrying out its agenda.

Both the Turks and the allies seem to be playing for time, probably to see what will happen in Paris, and the Turks await the return of Hassan Bey, who has already left Angora to bring detailed instructions to the Ottoman delegation.

FARMHAND'S BODY FOUND HANGING IN HAYLOFT

Naugatuck, Jan. 4.—The body of John Sevaski, also known as Cassin Sochuck, 0, who had worked on farms in Kent and other towns of the state thereabouts, was found hanging from a beam in the hayloft of Andrew Lagonick's barn in the Allerton Farms section, today. The medical examiner inclined to a theory of suicide.

Early today Sevaski tried to get into the Lagonick home by breaking in a window with a scythe handle. Mr. Lagonick ran down stairs and was struck by the man over the head with the handle. Mr. Lagonick returned upstairs, dressed, and went to the house of a neighbor for help. Sevaski was traced by footprints in the snow to the barn and the body found.

Sevaski had not been in town of late and Mr. Lagonick was surprised to see him and more surprised to have been assaulted as they were good friends. Last July Sevaski was placed on probation in the borough court for breach of the peace. His friends thought he was mentally unbalanced.

SCHOONER BREAKING UP ON MASSACHUSETTS COAST

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 4—The captain and crew of the four-masted schooner Alice M. Colburn, bound from Portland for Hampton Roads in ballast, tonight were quartered at the coast guard station here, while their vessel was breaking up on Egg Rock, a mile off Coolidge's Point, Manchester. The coast guard cutter Tampa, which went to the vessel's assistance today, reported that aid to the stranded ship was impracticable.

Coast guardsmen today brought the crew to Gloucester from Manchester, where they had spent last night after abandoning their vessel. Captain Lunt and his men of the Colburn related tonight how on attempting to reach the port at Gloucester they had gone too near the shore, and then in the blinding snow storm Egg Rock loomed up ahead. Two anchors failed to hold the vessel and the captain and crew put off and made shore.

FUEL CORPORATION OFFICIALS ARE INDICTED FOR FRAUD

New York, Jan. 4.—Two officials of a large fuel corporation, whose names have been withheld pending arrest, were indicted by the Bronx grand jury today, in connection with the alleged defrauding of thousands of housekeepers on coal deliveries.

The alleged fraud was discovered through the arrest of a driver upon whose person two account slips for the same delivery of coal were found. Through this duplicate system, it is charged, customers were tricked into paying for more coal than was actually delivered.

HOUSE HAS PASSED THE SECOND DEFICIENCY BILL

Washington, Jan. 4.—The second deficiency appropriation bill for the present fiscal year, carrying a total of $74,645,674, more than half of which is for refund of internal revenue taxes, illegally collected, was passed today by the house.

Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, attempted to add $9,000,000 for use in the immediate prosecution of such of the 172,349 criminal cases pending June 30 last in federal courts as are still on the docket, but it was thrown out on a point of order.

KU KLUX KLAN DENOUNCED BY ARMY AND NAVY UNION

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 4.—After being emphatically told by the custodian of the state armory that they could hold no more meetings in the building unless they went on record opposing the Ku Klux Klan, members of the Edgar F. Kopler garrison, Army and Navy Union, tonight unanimously passed a resolution condemning the klan.

Several members were reported as defending the klan at the meeting last Tuesday night.

ARREST INTERFERED WITH MARRIAGE OF SHELTON COUPLE

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Jennie Dicipeco, 19, and James Pascuso, 25, were arrested at the marriage license bureau here today after they had braved paternal wrath and eloped from Shelton, Conn., because, they claim, the girl's father insisted on always "butting in." The arrests were made on complaint of the father. The couple will be held pending receipt of instructions from the Shelton police. Both, however, assert they will wed when released.

DESPONDENT MAN SHOOTS FAMILY AND HIMSELF

Menice, Ind., Jan. 4.—Despondency brought about by ill health and financial trouble, is thought by police to have caused William Miller, 30 years old, a factory workman, to shoot and kill his wife, Pearl, 21 years old, and their children, Evelyn 5, William 3, and Robert 11 months old and then to kill himself at their home here today. The bodies were found by neighbors who broke into the house when their calls were unanswered.

Swindlers Used Fake Horse Racing Scheme

One Man Was Victimized for $10,600 at Providence and Narragansett Pier.

New York, Jan. 4.—With two men under arrest in this city and Newark, N. J., police throughout the east tonight were seeking other members of a gang believed to have been concerned in wholesale swindling operations, which netted them many thousands of dollars from numerous victims in the last few months.

Frank Henderson, alias Frank McCray, arrested in New York, was said by the police to have been the brains of the notorious Charles Gondorf wiretapping gang that operated throughout the east and south in 1913 and 1914.

From information gained through Henderson and Louis Silverman, alias Wood, the Newark prisoner, authorities claimed to have learned that several other men were allied with them in a well organized scheme involving fake horse racing. The band, they charged, had operated successfully in a number of eastern cities during the last three months.

Both Silverman and Henderson were identified by Dr. E. B. Carman, Freeport, L. I., physician, as having aided in swindling him out of $14,000 in Providence and Narragansett Pier, R. I. Edward Meixner of Newark, N. J., also identified Henderson as one of several men who took $10,600 from him in a similar swindle, also at Providence and Narragansett Pier.

Dr. Carman told the police that Silverman had induced him to go to Providence on a stock-selling deal, and had there introduced him to Henderson, who posed as a highly successful gambler on horse races. The physician said he was taken to an exclusive gambling club at Narragansett Pier where he played the races and ostensibly won large sums. When he sought to collect his winnings, he charged, he put up $10,000 to satisfy the supposed bookmaker that he could have covered his bets had he lost. When he demanded the return of the money, he said, he was thrown out of a window to the street, a story below.

MOREHOUSE HEARING AT PARISH COURTHOUSE TODAY

Bastrop, La., Jan. 4 (By the A. P.)—The "open hearing" in the Morehouse kidnapping and murder cases begins at the parish court house tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The state hopes by the hearing to indict those persons believed responsible for the masked and robed mob action in August 24, last, when two of five men kidnapped, were killed and their bodies cast into a lake.

Only one prisoner will face the bar at tomorrow's hearing unless the state sets into motion its dragnet to enmesh 35 or 45 men believed by the authorities to have been members of the mob.

Adjutant General Toombs failed to promulgate the martial law order he was said to have in his possession. He desired to put off such action as long as possible, he said.

Those entering the court house tomorrow will be searched for firearms, it was learned. The courthouse will be protected by two companies of state troops now encamped on the courthouse and jail grounds.

A squadron of state cavalry was moved today from Mer Rouge to Bastrop, leaving the remainder of the troop at Mer Rouge where a company of infantry is encamped.

Attorney General A. V. Coco arrived here today and was in conference with his assistants.

Subpoenaes were in preparation today to result in summoning of witnesses for the hearing. In addition to those summoned, all persons are privileged to enter the court of justice and ask to be permitted to testify. It was believed there would be more than 100 witnesses, including many women. The hearing will be before the district judge. At the conclusion, the state, if it thinks the evidence justifies, will ask for a grand jury to return indictments.

Grand Jurist Burnett, former deputy sheriff, flanked by some of Louisiana's finest legal talent, will meet the charge against him of murder with an effort to prove an alibi. He must prove he was working at the Southern Carbon plant at the time the kidnapping occurred.

The timekeeper by whom he was to prove this however was kidnapped last Friday night and has disappeared.

Lee M. Allen former Mer Rouge mayor, charged with Governor Parker with murder was riding through the southern states tonight en route to Bastrop. With him were a deputy sheriff and a detective McKoin will enter his home parish a free man the charges being lifted when an extradition tangle developed and he agreed to compromise by returning voluntarily.

BILL TO LEGALIZE TAXATION OF FEDERAL BANK STOCK

Washington, Jan. 4. — The senate banking committee today reported a bill to legalize taxation by the states of shares of federal bank stock. A report by Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, stated that the committee planned to present another bill later to permit retention by states of such taxes already collected under laws which courts have held invalid.

The questions involved are of immediate interest to those states which enacted local bank taxation statutes after the supreme court handed down a decision that taxes were valid when on a par with those levied upon other taxable property.

BIG INCREASE FROM IMPORT DUTIES AT CUSTOMS HOUSES

Washington, Jan. 4 (By the A. P.)—Receipts from import duties at the customs houses during 1922 aggregated $458,000,000, according to figures made available at the treasury tonight, which show the year's collection to have been $155,000,000 greater than for 1921.

Including as they do three months' collections under the duties imposed by the new tariff law, the figures attracted wide attention among administration officials, who saw in them substantiation of their claims that the tariff law with its increased duties over the Underwood act had failed to check the inflow of imports.

SINN FEIN CONVENTION IN DUBLIN NEXT SUNDAY

Dublin, Jan. 4 (By the A. P.)—A convention of the Sinn Fein clubs of the county and city of Dublin will be held here next Sunday in an attempt to reconvene the Ard Fheis (National Sinn Fein convention) and also, according to reports, to work for peace.

Eamonn De Valera is president of the Ard Fheis, and it could be convened only with the consent of the Free State government, as it is made up of Sinn Fein clubs of the whole country.

COUE TO SPREAD DOCTRINE OF CONSCIOUS AUTO-SUGGESTION

French Pharmacist, Who Has Arrived in New York, Hopes to Establish an Authorized Clinic There—Hypnotist Who Would Have His Disciples Keep Reiterating "Day by Day, in Every Way, I'm Getting Better and Better"—Claims That Persons Addicted to Drink Can be Cured by His Method, Provided They Desire to be Cured.

New York, Jan. 4.—(By The A. P.)—Emile Coue, a smiling, active little man with white hair and beard and sparkling blue eyes, once an obscure provincial pharmacist who toyed with the mysteries of hypnotism in his tiny shop in Nancy, today arrived in America on the Majestic, an internationally famous figure, the apostle of the doctrine of self-mastery through conscious auto-suggestion.

The little pharmacist whose formula, "Day by day, in every way, I am getting better and better," has been repeated by disciples all over the world, hastened to announce to America that he did not want any sensationalism to attach to his methods and that he did not want it believed that he claimed to be able to effect cures of diseases.

"I have never cured anybody of any ailment in my life he said, "and I have never made such a claim. If I can succeed here, as I have many times in the past, in helping others so to understand themselves and exercise their minds that they can improve their physical condition and achieve better health and happiness, then I shall have succeeded.

"It is so very easy to pass over the invisible line into sensationalism and to bring discredit to an otherwise sound and reassuming theory, that I would like to make a special appeal at the very beginning that my aims be not misunderstood."

M. Coue declared that the purpose of his visit was to spread the knowledge and use of his doctrine in the United States. He hoped, he added, soon to establish an authorized clinic in New York.

Successful combatting of defects of character and by vicious habits such as drunkeness, M. Coue said, was one of the primary utilities of his method.

"My fondest desire," he asserted, "is to cause the introduction of my programme of auto-suggestion into the normal schools of the United States. I want to see it introduced in all "maisons de correction' and prisoners where I believe it will help greatly to cure criminal tendencies.

"Addition to drink," M. Coue vehemently stated, "can surely be cured by my method but the drunkard must want to be cured first."

M. Coue greeted questions launched at him in rapid succession by several score of newspapermen on board the Majestic with smiling eagerness to state his case. At times, his enthusiasm soared so quickly that his scanty knowledge of English was outdistanced and he took refuge in his native tongue. But he was always genial and eager to explain himself.

Standing bareheaded, clutching a little canvas bag in his left hand, and gesticulating with less than Latin ease, he looked more like the provincial pharmacist than the worldly preacher.

"No, no," he cried, do not call me doctor. I am Monsieur Coue, I am no miracle man. I bring a humble message to teach and help mankind in a practical way.

"I am not the bearer of a new message, because, for many years it has been known that the sub-conscious mind is able, through an exercise of the imagination, to overcome the conscious mind in the exercise of will-power, in the accomplishment of betterments. My method is an adjunct to and not substitute for existing methods. I bring no challenge to medicine or surgery and make no claims in contravention to the basic ideas of religion."

M. Coue said that he probably would hold several clinics in the United States, but that he would have to confine most of his work to lectures and collective sittings.

He made it clear that he did not accept any money for his work, asserting that everything received would be used for the Paris clinic and the proposed New York clinic.

TALE OF IRISH COMMUNIST MOVEMENT IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 4.—Strange telephone messages giving information, it was said, of an "Irish communist movement," in New York, were received today by Lindsay Crawford, Irish Free State consul, and communicated by him to the department of justice. Mr. Crawford has been besieged in his offices for more than a week by Irish republic sympathizers.

Opponents of the Free State began calling Consul Crawford by telephone today after police had prohibited the congregating in the narrow hallways leading to the consulate, of either Free State or republican sympathizers. Uniformed policemen were stationed in the building to enforce this order and Lieutenant Gegan, head of the police bomb squad, and detectives were behind the locked consulate doors with Crawford and his aides.

Crawford was understood to have told the department of justice agents sent to interview him that an Irish republican leader, with a reputation for communistic activities in Germany after the war, was enlisting men in New York for an organization to work against the Free State government in Ireland.

ELEVEN FREIGHT CARS DERAILED NEAR SHELTON

Shelton, Conn., Jan. 4.—Traffic on the Berkshire division of the New Haven road was tied up today when eleven cars of a freight train jumped the track about a mile from here. Work of clearing the tracks was held up for several hours when a wrecker also jumped the track a few miles from the scene of the freight wreck. The wrecker was not damaged and after being put back on the rails restored service on the road.

The first accident took place on a section of track along the Housatonic river, when, for some reason not yet determined, eleven cars left the rails. Three cars containing lumber, hay and feed plunged down the embankment and caught fire. They were completely destroyed. The other eight cars, containing coal and grain, were badly smashed but remained on the roadbed. No one was injured.

An investigation into the cause of the wreck was started immediately.

FIVE SEAMEN RESCUED IN HARBOR AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Jan. 4.—Five men from the destroyer Charles Osborne, now in harbor here, were rescued today after spending all night in an open launch during a heavy snow storm and terrific gale. The men, stranded throughout the night on the rocks off Fort Adams, plunged into the icy water this morning and swam to the fort, where they were placed in a hospital. All escaped serious damage, physicians said tonight.

ON TRAIL OF WOMAN IN $150,000 JEWELRY ROBBERY

New York, Jan. 4.—Detectives tonight turned on to the trail of a woman whom they seek as an accomplice of three men charged by Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf of Buffalo with having robbed her of jewels valued at between $150,000 and $400,000, after a New Year's party in the suite of Frank Barrett Carman.

The woman was described as the wife of one of the trio who sublet from Carman the apartment in which Mrs. Schoellkopf said she was robbed. She disappeared from the house a few days before New Year's eve and is believed to be in hiding here or in a nearby city after having prepared an abiding place for the fugitives.

Carman was still held in custody after two magistrates had refused to admit him to bail in spite of please of his counsel and a report that Mrs. Schoellkopf believed him innocent of complicity in the robbery.

Further details of Mrs. Schoellkopf's collection of jewels indicated that when robbed she was wearing only part of the $1,000,000 worth she owned. Among the gems, in her Buffalo safe deposit vault, were said to be four huge emeralds, once among the Russian crown jewels. Detectives scouted the theory that emissaries of the bolsheviki robbed her in an effort to recover these emeralds.

The robbery, according to the police, were evidently "100 per cent. lounge lizards."

N. H. ROAD COMMUTERS ARE FIGHTING INCREASED RATE

New York, Jan. 4.—Attorneys for commuters between New York and Westchester county points today opened war at a hearing of the public service commission, on the application of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad for a 20 per cent. increase in fare rates.

Under cross-examination, statisticians of the road admitted the transportation costs were greater between Woodlawn and the Connecticut line than between Woodlawn and New York.

The commission denied a motion by the commuters' counsel to dismiss the application on the ground that the case was under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission. The road's petition was based on the claim that the increase sought would bring the rates in New York state up to those in effect between New Yok city and Connecticut points.

SOUTHERN IRISH RAILWAY TO CONTINUE WITHOUT SUBSIDY

Dublin, Jan. 4.—The Great Southern railway today notified the Free State government of its intention to continue operation without a subsidy as it, in common with the other railways, is opposed to government control.

During the address Mr. McGrath said he regarded the purchase of the railways by the government as out of the question under existing circumstances.

Breed Theatre

Straight as a bullet out of a gun was Tom Mix picture scored a hit at the Breed Theatre yesterday. From start to finish the photoplay, "For Big Stakes" thrilled the audience along, without a moment's lapse in the intense interest. The end of the picture came all too soon for the capacity crowd present. The outdoor scenes reflect the atmosphere of Arizona delightfully. Of the lively action expected in Mix pictures there is plenty with adventure galore and much romance.

Tom Mix well deserves the great popularity he enjoys. Not only has he a pleasing personality, but he can act—and he does. No pacing hero is Tom. He is all man, mighty of muscle, and courage itself in deeds of daring which involve physical peril. And in his horse Tony he has an invaluable and most understanding aid. The keeness of this four-footed sage is uncanny.

There is a girl in the film—and what a girl! She is all smiles and twinkles, laughter and dimples. Among the many thrills in the production the greatest is a ride by Mix on Tony to save the girl from death in a prairie fire.

The picture will be at the Breed Theatre today and Saturday. Other pictures on the bill include Charles Hutchison in "Go Get 'Em Hutch"—The Pathe News and a Sunshine comedy.

Syncopated Seven Pleases at the Broadway

The Syncopated Seven is a colored aggregation of singers, dancers and jazz band, who gave a very snappy performance with some real jazz music.

John Geiger and his talking violin rendered some very nifty music and it seems that he actually makes the violin talk.

Brown's dogs was a pleasing canine novelty featuring some very clever dogs.

Marie and Marlow are fine comedians who caused many laughs.

Katherine MacDonald is a beautiful Lady Bountiful in his latest First National starring vehicle, "The Woman Side", a magnificent photodrama showing at the Broadway Theatre this week.

As Mary Gray, she is an angel to the children of the slums to whom she brings substantial happiness in the form of good things to eat, outings at the Zoo, etc. She is also an angel in the eyes of young Theodore Van Ness, son of a wealthy publisher, who has become the enemy of her father.

The story is a romantic and thrilling drama and provides some of the best screen entertainment of the season.

Two Star Features Now at the Strand

It was outside a little candy and fruit store near Battery Park, New York City. A bit of action in "Boomerang Bill," wire Lionel Barrymore, an underworld story directed by Tom Terriss, was being photographed. The scenario called for Boomerang Bill (Mr. Barrymore) dressed like a ragged peddler, to approach a fruit stand outside the shop door with a little Chinese girl and buy a youngster an apple.

Mr. Barrymore walked over to the stand with the youngster. Then, instead of making his purchase and leaving, the actor remained on the same spot.

"Walk off," cried the director, but Mr. Barrymore seemed rooted. The camera was stopped and Mr. Terriss went over to Mr. Barrymore. "What's the trouble?" he asked.

"The trouble is," said Mr. Barrymore, "that this shopkeeper refuses to let me have an apple for less than five cents and I'm broke!"

The director handed the shopkeeper a nickel, begged him to be good and the scene was properly photographed.

"Boomerang Bill" is showing at the Strand Theatre now. It is a Paramount-Cosmopolitan picture. Marguerite Marsh plays in support of Mr. Barrymore.

The hilarious incidents that pursue a newly married couple, as depicted by Viola Dana in her latest Metro production "Glass Houses", are of such variety that they well serve their purpose in providing capital entertainment. "Glass Houses" was enjoyed by large crowds at the Strand Theatre yesterday where it opened a three days engagement.

A Selznick News completes the program.

Perry who spent a considerable amount there in modernizing and beautifying the house and grounds.

Breed Theatre

Straight as a bullet out of a gun Tom Mix picture scored a hit at the Breed Theatre yesterday. From start to finish the photoplay, "For Big Stakes" carried the audience along, without a moment's lapse in the intense interest. The end of the picture came all too soon for the capacity crowd present. The outdoor scenes reflect the atmosphere of Arizona delightfully. Of the lively action expected in Mix pictures there is plenty with adventure galore and much romance.

Tom Mix well deserves the great popularity he enjoys. Not only has he a pleasing personality, but he can act—and he does. No posing hero is Tom. He is all man, mighty of muscle, and courage itself in deeds of daring which involve physical peril. And in his horse Tony he has an invaluable and most understanding aid. The keenness of this four-footed sage is uncanny.

There is a girl in the film—and what a girl! She is all smiles and twinkles, laughter and dimples. Among the many thrills in the production the greatest is a ride by Mix on Tony to save the girl from death in a prairie fire.

The picture will be at the Breed Theatre today and Saturday. Other pictures on the bill include Charles Hutchison in Go Get 'Em Hutch"—The Pathe News and a Sunshine comedy.

Syncopated Seven Pleases at the Broadway

The Snycopated Seven is a colored aggregation of singers, dancers and jazz band, who gave a very snappy performance with some real jazz music.

John Geiger and his talking violin rendered some very nifty music and it seems that he actually makes his violin talk. Brown's dogs was a pleasing canine novelty featuring some very clever dogs.

Marie and Marlow are fine comedians who caused many laughs.

Katherine MacDonald in a beautiful Lady Bountiful in his latest First National starring vehicle, "The Woman Side", a magnificent photodrama showing at the Broadway Theatre this week.

As Mary Gray, she is an angel to the children of the slums to whom she brings substantial happiness in the form of good things to eat, outings at the Zoo, etc. She is also an angel in the eyes of young Theodore Van Ness, son of a wealthy publisher who has become the enemy of her father.

The story is a romantic and thrilling drama and provides some of the best screen entertainment of the season.

Two Star Features Now at the Strand

It was outside a little candy and fruit store near Battery Park, New York City. A bit of action in "Boomerang Bill," with Lionel Barrymore, an underworld story directed by Tom Terriss, was being photographed. The scenario called for Boomerang Bill (Mr. Barrymore) to disguised like a ragged peddler, to approach a fruit stand outside the shop doos with a little Chinese girl and buy the youngster an apple.

Mr. Barrymore walked over to the stand with the youngster. Then, instead of making his purchase and leaving, the actor remained on the same spot.

"Walk off," cried the director, but Mr. Barrymore seemed rooted. The camera stopped and Mr. Terriss went over to Mr. Barrymore. "What's the trouble?" he asked.

"The trouble is," said Mr. Barrymore, "that this shopkeeper refuses to let me have an apple for less than five cents and I'm broke!"

The director handed the shopkeeper a nickel, begged him to be good and the scene was properly photographed.

"Boomerang Bill" is showing at the Strand Theatre now. It is a Paramount Cosmopolitan picture. Marguerite Marsh plays in support of Mr. Barrymore.

The hilarious incidents that pursue a newly married couple, as depicted by Viola Dana in her latest Metro production "Glass Houses", are of such variety that they well serve their purpose in providing capital entertainment. "Glass Houses" was enjoyed by large crowds at the Strand Theatre yesterday where it opened a three days engagement.

A. Selznick News completed the program.

MRS. MALLORY AND MLLE LENGLEN TO MEET ON EUROPEAN COURTS THIS YEAR

New York, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, national women's tennis champion, has practically completed plans, it was learned today, for departure early in February for France in quest of new court laurels, and incidentally, another test of skill with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French holder of the International Women's title.

By arriving in France about the middle of February, Mrs. Mallory would have time to acclimate herself before participating in the winter tournaments along the Riviera. Mlle. Lenglen is entered in these events, which include the Mone Carlo championships from February 26 to March 4, the Riviera championships at Menton, from March 5 to 11, and the championships of southeastern France, at Nice, from March 13 to 18.

Aside from the possibility of another meeting between the queens of American and European courts, interst also is attached to the participation of Miss Elizabeth Ryan, California girl, who has made her home in England for several years and is ranked next to Mlle. Lenglen by many foreign critics. Miss Ryan was to have played her French rival earlier in February at Cannes, but according to cable dispatches, she has been obliged to withdraw because of a blistered hand.

Mrs. Mallory's proposed winter campaign critics believe, would heighten her chances of victory in the world's title event in the summer at Wimbledon, where last year the American champion was defeated in the final round by Mlle. Lenglen.

NORWICH WANTS BAY STATE CIRCUIT MEET IN JULY

Several local men interested in the Bay State (Short Ship) circuit are planning to attend the annual meeting of the circuit to be held at the Copley Plaza, Boston, mass., on January 30. At this time the annual banquet to the horsemen is to take place and prominent speakers are to be heard.

The men in Norwich interested in having the circuit continue to come to this city have requested the officers and directors of the circuit to change the racing dates for Norwich. Last year the races were held in August but it is hoped that the schedule can be shifted to make it possible for the races to come to Norwich in July this year. It is felt here that races held in August are too near to the annual races at the New London County Fair and much better success can be had by holding them earlier.

If the races are not brought to Norwich prior to August it is not known at present what the action of the local men will be in regard to remaining in the circuit during 1923.

STANFORD FACULTY WIELDS AXE WITH TELLING EFFECT

Sanford University, Calif., Jan. 4.—The faculty of Stanford University literally tore a hole through the Stanford football line far more impressive than any made by a gridiron opponent, when suspended seven pigskin stars for scholarship deficiencies, according to an announcement by the university registrar today. Three trackmen, Glenn Hartranft, national intercollegiate shot put and discus winner; Thurman Clarke, quarter-miler and Al Smith, distance man, also felt the faculty axe. Eighty-five in all were suspended and some of them will have to stay out for a year.

The football men, seven in the regular varsity and four in the freshmen squad, will be ineligible to compete next fall. The varsity men are Murray Luddeback, George Houck, Joseph Douglas, Norman Dole, Charles Johnston, Bill Phemy, and Thatcher Taylor.

HUSTON TO RETAIN INTEREST IN YANKS

New York, Jan. 4.—(By the A. P.)—Colonel T. R. Huston has decided to retain his part ownership of the New York American League Baseball club, it was announced some time ago he would dispose of to Colonel Jacob Ruppert. Colonel Huston himself confirmed the report that the negotiations with Colonel Ruppert had broken down. He asserted he would retain his part ownership indefinitely, although his [illegible] sale to "any reputable person." He denied that the deal failed on the purchase price, reported to be $1,125,000.

Colonel Huston's decision came as a surprise for it had been announced a month ago at the joint meeting of the major leagues here that the sale had been agreed upon.

"In every big deal involving a great deal of money there is never any telling when a hitch will develop," explained Colonel Huston. "Such a hitch developed between Colonel Ruppert's lawyers and me and the transaction has been called off.

"Colonel Ruppert was entirely sincere in announcing he had acquired my stock, as we both believed that the deal would go through," he added. "My stock can be purchased by any reputable persons who will pay the price."

Colonel Huston said his decision would not alter policies of the club or change the status of Miller Huggins as manager. He added that he might now remain with the club indefinitely.

WILL BOTH STRENGTHEN THE CLEVELAND INDIANS

Cleveland, O., Jan. 4—Does the signing of Frank Roth to coach the Cleveland pitchers next year prophesy a pennant for Cleveland? The veteran catcher has played on many a team that has won a pennant. The name of Roth and pennant seem to work together very nicely.

Back in 1906 the Chicago White Sox, then known as the "Hitless Wonders", won the American league pennant. At a critical spot in the race McFarland and Sullivan, the two crack Chicago catchers were put out of the running with injuries.

Roth Shows Up

Things looked bad. Frank Roth was secured to fill the bill. He stepped right into the breach, and in a way assisted as much in winning the pennant that year for the Sox as did the pitching of Ed Walsh.

Roth then drifted back to the minors and has played on winning teams in many leagues. Two years ago Miller Huggins wanted a veteran catcher to handle his young pitchers. He secured Frank Roth. The Yankees stepped right out and won two pennants, the first ever captured by New York in the American league.

Now Roth has been turned adrift and goes to Cleveland. Does that bode evil to New York and good to Cleveland? Ball players, you known are mighty superstitious.

JOINT MEETING OF MAJORS ON SATURDAY

New York, Jan. 4—The joint meeting of the National and American League schedule committees will be held next Saturday at Atlantic City, N. J., it was announced yesterday by John A. Heydler, president of the National League.

The senior organization will be represented by Mr. Heydler and Barney Dreyfus, president of the Pittsburgh club, and the American league by President Ban Johnson and the latter's secretary, William Harridge.

To Adjust Opening Dates

Principal among problems confronting the meeting will be adjustment of the opening dates, which were fixed at the recent annual meetings in New York on Tuesday, April 17, by the National League, and for April 18, by the American League.

National League officials, it was understood, feel that the earlier date should be fixed for both circuits because of an agreement on that date with President Johnson, prior to the annual meetings. The American League executive, however, after his organization had decided upon April 18, expressed confidence while here that a satisfactory adjustment would be reached at the schedule meeting.

Another problem facing the schedule committee is the situation in New York, where with the Yankees and Giants in separate parks for the first time in years conflict in Sunday and holiday dates is in prospect.

BOXING FANS PAY WELL FOR BOUTS IN BAY STATE

The annual report of the Massachusetts Boxing commissioners shows that boxing in the state the past year was well patronized. The fans paid $844,198.50. The 5 per cent. tax that went to the state amounted to $42,209.94. The amount received from licenses for clubs and officials was $24,621. Licenses were granted to 407 boxers, 156 seconds, 75 managers, 26 referees, 31 judges, 20 timers and 24 physicians. There were 320 shows held. Permits were granted to 629 boxers, 224 seconds and 30 managers from outside the state to operate in this state. The outside boxers who were barred from showing here numbered 96, seconds 11 and managers 39. Placed on the suspended list were 10 boxers, three managers, two seconds and one club. The license of one club was revoked.

NAVY ASSURED OF NEW FIELD AND STADIUM

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 4.—The Navy Athletic Association realized practically sufficient funds from the Navy-University of Penns.lvania football game in Philadelphia and the Navy-Penn State game at Washington this last season to cover the cost of the new baseball field and stadium now in course of construction on the government reservation here, Commander Douglas L. Howard, secretary-treasurer, announced at the annual meeting of the association last night.

The new baseball fields here will cost in the neighborhood of $40.000. The stands will have a seating capacity of 10,000.

TOO BAD KEELER WASN'T PLAYING IN 1923

The greatest salary that ever was paid to Willie Keeler was $19,000, when he jumped the Brooklyns to join Clark Griffith's All-Star Yankee team in 1903. That was one of the highest salaries offered by the American league to any of the National league stars.

During the stretch that Keeler scored over one hundred runs a season and cracked out over two hundred hits for eight consecutive years, he never drew over $5,000 a season.

A player of Keeler's ability today would be a $20,000 a year man. Ever Willie came just about 25 years too

NEW TRACK TO BE BUILT AT PROVIDENCE

Providence, Jan. 4.—Horse racing on a larger scale than ever will be revived at Hillsgrove next summer, if plans now being made by Thomas McGrath and Frank Flynn of this city are carried out. They said today they intend to build a first-class track on the site of the old half mile circuit.

McGrath, who purchased the Hillsgrove property several years ago, after racing was discontinued and Hillsgrove dropped out as a wheel of the Short Ship Circuit, converted the area into an aviation field.

New York, Jan. 4.—Sailor Freedman Chicago lightweight, today filed with the New York state boxing commission an official challenge for a bout with Benny Leonard for the lightweight championship of the world and posted a forfeit of $2,500 as evidence of good faith.

Under the commission's rules, if it accepts the challenge, Leonard must answer it within a specified time, or lose claim to the title in New York state.

Freedman, who has been boxing only four years, has met Leonard before.

NEW CODE OF LAWN TENNIS TO BE SUBMITTED TO U. S. BODY AT MEETING

New York, Jan. 4.—The code of lawn tennis rules framed by the international rules committee in London on December 20 at a meeting attended by representatives of fourteen nations, will be submitted for adoption by the United States Lawn Tennis Association at its annual session here February 3. Copies of the new code, brought back by Henry W. Slocum, American representative at the London gathering, were made public today.

While a majority of the rules in the new code conform or are in many cases identical with those now recognized in this country, several depart to some extent from American regulations. These refer to the weight and size of the ball, the footfault rule and regulations governing the rest or intermission period between sets in prolonged matches.

The London conference was marked by a splendid spirit of co-operation and sportsmanship, according to Mr. Slocum, who held the national singles championship in 1888 and 1889 and is a former president of the U. S. L. T. A.

"I was extremely impressed," said Mr. Slocum, "by the evident desire of every delegate present and through him the organization he represented to assist wholeheartedly in the formulation of as fine a set of rules as possible for every country where the game is played, and with the thorough understanding of the various rules of the game shown by the delegates."

The U. S. L. T. A. will be the first to consider and possibly adopt the new code. The other nations which will act upon them include Great Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Switzerland Canada, Argentina Japan and Denmark.

Comparison of the differences between the American and new international rules governing the weight and size of balls shows that the international standard fixes 2 1-2 inches as the minimum diameter, whereas the American minimum is 2 9-16 inches. The maximum diameter, 2 10-16 inches, is the same for both codes, as is the minimum weight of two ounces and maximum weight of 2 1-16 ounces. The minimum bound, under certain fixed conditions, is 45 inches under the American rules, and 50 inches in the international code, but the maximum bound, 60 inches, is alike.

Changes in the footfault rule of the international code, as compared with the American rule, are confined to phraseology, both requiring the server to stand with both feet at rest behind the baseline before commencing to serve and to keep both feet behind the baseline and at least one foot on the ground until the racquet strikes the ball.

Regarding rest periods, both codes agree in allowing an intermission of not more than ten minutes after the third set or where women take part, after the second set, but provisions for delays due to accidents or unavoidable circumstances differ. The international code would leave to the discretion of the umpire the time of suspension of play, while the American rule provides for a cessation of play not to exceed two minutes. Both codes, however, stress the fact that this proviso should be strictly construed and that play should not be suspended for the purpose of allowing a player to recover his strength or his wind.

Loren Murchison, former St. Louis track athlete, who will soon sport the emblem of the Newark A. C., in open A. A. U. competition, has entered for the sprint medley which will be one of the features at the indoor athletic meet of the Municipal Athletic Activities, to be held in Madison Square Garden on Jan. 15.

Roger Connor of Waterbury was a team-mate of Willie Keeler when the little fellow broke into baseball. Willie played his first game with the Giants on Sept. 30, 1892. Roger Connor was playing first base for the Giants at the time. His debut was favorable, the sporting writers of that time commenting on his speed and his cleverness as a fielder.

Otto Bochart, machmaker for the Auditorium in Milwaukee is negotiating for match that will bring together Johnny Dundee and Ritchie Mitchell in a ten round contest at his arena Monday night. Mitchell has already signed and it is more than probable that Dundee will do likewise. Dundee received 40 per cent. as his share of the purse for boxing Hommy O'Brien at that club last Friday. This is more than any other boxer ever received for boxing in the Cream City.

DRAMATIC DEATH OF VETERAN REINSMAN

Carlinville, Ill., Jan. 4.—Clutching imaginary reins, feebly shouting encouragement to a phantom pony and brandishing to the last his old race whip, J. A. Sweeney, 86, veteran jockey, yesterday dashed past his last goal, a winner—dying in the role he had often lived—leading the field.

Upright in his bed, and staring fixedly before him, the veteran rode boldly ahead into another world—a world in which he had often said he hoped there would be horses.

His wife, with her arms about his frail body, supported him, assuring him that there was no mistake, all was ready, his horse was waiting. She continued the pathetic play to the end even simulating for him the clang of the starter's bell.

FOR NEW YORK CITY IN FIRE INSURANCE BUSINESS

New York, Jan. 4.—A proposal that the city of New York enter the fire insurance business in competition with private companies and derive therefrom a premium revenue sufficient, to operate many municipal departments, and lower the tax rate as well, was sent to the board of estimate today by Nicholas J. Hayes, commissioner of the department of water supply, gas and electricity.

The vast real estate holdings of the fire insurance companies in this city and their invested capital in the United States and foreign countries "reflect the enormous profits of this special business activity," Hayes wrote the board.

"When you consider," he said, "that these companies rely almost absolutely for the protection of their risks upon the vigilance and safeguard accorded to the house owners and residents of the city by a number of our municipal departments, the value of this public service, which is measured by the insurance companies in the nature of premiums, should, in my opinion, be paid directly to the city."

IN QUEST OF THE MISSING CROWN JEWELS OF RUSSIA

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Federal secret service agents have located in the National cemetery at Brooklyn, N. Y., the grave of an American seaman, where they expect to find some of the crown jewels of Russia, valued at $4,000,000, according to a copyrighted story published today by the Chicago Daily News from a staff correspondent at New York.

The investigation was ordered by the secretary of the treasury, according to the published story and is in charge of William B. Williams, head of the New York office of the secret service. The jewels are supposed to have been smuggled into the United States in 120 in the coffin of the seaman and are believed to have been buried without the plotters being able to obtain them.

The News correspondent says the secret service men have definitely established that some of the crown jewels, famed throughout the world, were smuggled into this country but that several months of investigation, preceded the actual finding of the grave in which the gems are now believed to lie. It is expected, according to the narrative, that the grave will be opened within a day or two.

The jewels, according to the reports on which the story is based were hidden by two members of a band of conspirators in the coffin of James Jones, a mess man who died August 30, 1920, aboard the transport Edellyn, just outside Gibraltar, on the way back to the United States from Valdivostok.

The body of Jones was buried September 23, 1920. The portion of the cemetery where the body was interred, according to the News story, is under armed guard.

A petition for the opening of the grave is expected to be presented before Judge Hand in the United States district court of New York by Special Agent William and Edward Jarson, special deputy collector of customs.

The jewels were said to have been brought to New York on September 7th, according to the story, one of two of the conspirators decided to "double cross" the others involved and accordingly hid the gems in the seaman's coffin.

A TIMELY VETO.

To those who stop to give due consideration to the grounds on which President Harding vetoed the Bursum bill providing for increased pensions for Civil war veterans and their widows it cannot fail to be appreciated that he has taken the sensible view of the situation, and properly calls congress to account for the heedless manner in which it adopted such a piece of legislation.

There are times when measures are passed at Washington when it seems as if no regard was paid to the effect that was bound to follow. There are those who are willing to play fast and loose with government money for the political benefit which they feel will accrue therefrom, without stopping to figure what it is going to mean or to what it binds the country for a long period of time. And yet such large expenditures which may continue through the remainder of this century call for far closer consideration.

When it is provided that pensions will be paid to widows of war veterans whose marriages were contracted prior to June 27, 1915, it extends this provision to thousands of women, but when it is also provided that widows of those veterans married within two years of their deaths, or those cohabiting for two years prior to a veteran's death shall get $50 a month for the rest of their lives it means the continuation of the Civil war pensions for a long term of years, and pours it out to those born since the war and virtually invites a good share to raid upon the treasury in a manner that cannot be regarded as wise. It discriminates in favor of a class in an unjustifiable manner.

Thus the president in applying his veto to the bill brings these matters to light before it is too late. When it is realized that such a disbursement might roll up to $50,000,000,000 before ended it can be readily appreciated that it is not in keeping with the requirements of the country. As the president points out there are other matters to which the country should give its attention at the time. In view of the revelations it will be surprising if the veto is not sustained.

RADIO REGULATION.

When legislation dealing with radio was adopted ten years ago it was impossible for the legislators to grasp the development within the coming decade any better than it is for most people to understand now how sound can be projected through the air for such great distances and so successfully. Consequently there is nothing strange about the fact that there is now a demand for new legislation looking to improved regulation.

Radio has undergone marvelous developments until receiving sets are about as numerous as autos. The transmission stations, of varying size, are likewise rapidly increasing. How numerous they are is shown by the statement of Secretary Hoover who in referring to the need of regulation declared that something must be done to overcome the "bedlam" filling the air from 21,000 radio transmitting stations."

It is possible each day and night to pick lectures, band music, concerts, solos, setting up exercises and all kinds of entertainment out of the air. There has been more or less rivalry in the broadcasting of such until even the stations themselves have recognized the importance of overcoming the confusion and have thus given way to others for the sake of relief. But even that isn't going to adjust the situation. The longer it goes the greater is going to become the problem. It is quite as important that there should be a definite understanding in regard to this vast growing use of the air by radio as there is for the establishment of effective regulations for the flying machines.

Both present news and important problems and the quicker an effective system of regulation is established the easier is going to be the task. Delay simply piles up the work. It cannot be expected that the whole problem can be solved by legislation passed at this time, but there is need of getting it under way and it seems fitting that the task should be picked out for the commerce department. Radio regulation should mean the greatest satisfaction to the greatest number.

AN OFFICIAL SUMMER RESIDENCE.

Once again the idea of a "summer White House" is being discussed, and this time it is caused by the action of a Baltimore lawyer in bequeathing the government $200,000 for the purpose of acquiring and establishing such a residence for the nation's chief executive.

For those executives who have time to spend otherwise than looking closely after the affairs of the nation from the present residence during the summer time, the idea of a summer home is not a bad one. It is appreciated that the head of the nation is desirous of recreational periods when it is possible, and it is known that he needs them. For most of the presidents there have been temporary summer residences.

When it comes to establishing a permanent "summer White House" the question at once arises as to who could be expected to possess the ability to agree upon a location that would prove satisfactory to the presidents of the United States as they continue to be elected to that office. It is remembered how different have been the tastes manifested by the presidents of recent years in this respect. How some have revealed in the delights of New England at different points and others have looked after the routine business from points further down along the coast.

The idea of fixing upon one point and expecting presidents to be satisfied with it throws restrictions about their vacations which are not calculated to satisfy. What would be an admirable and convenient location might appeal to some and not to others. One would have particular reasons for wanting to go to one spot and another would be equally impressed with something else. The idea of fixing a certain point for the official summer residence is not a bad one if it can be satisfactorily done. The impression is gained, however, that such would have to be a "summer White House" on wheels if those who are expected to occupy it are to be considered.

THE WARD CASE.

Because he is a scion of a wealthy family more than the usual amount of interest was attached to the case of Walter S. Ward, charged with the killing of Clarence Peters on the outskirts of New York some time ago. Because wealth was concerned and because the authorities acted in a manner at the start to indicate that they were trying to aid in covering the matter up, or were at least represented in that light by the publicity that was directed to the case, much mystery was created.

There wasn't any doubt about the fact that Peters was killed and after a time there wasn't any doubt about who killed him for Ward admitted shooting him as a matter of self defense after he had long been a victim of blackmail. Had that situation been brought to the attention of the authorities immediately and properly substantiated then, as it was later, less would have been made of the case. It was because of the fact that Ward apparently hoped to escape without being identified with the affair and the subsequent refusal to disclose what was involved in connection with the blackmail that aroused suspicion and it was upon such suspicion that most of the case against Ward was constructed.

It was impossible to show that conditions were anything else than he represented. It was not proved that he did not act in self defense. It has not been possible to get sufficient evidence to convince a trial jury that Ward was guilty and that being the case there was nothing else to do but to dismiss the indictment that had been brought against him. This action of course supports the view taken in the beginning by Westchester authorities which, under different circumstances, would probably have ended the matter there and then. It directs attention, however, to the fact that the rich young man must assume the same responsibility under the law than any other does, but that rich or poor there must be proof to secure conviction.

NATIONAL GAME PRESERVES.

Hunters throughout the country are interested in the legislation now before congress by which it is proposed to acquire waste land for development as game preserves and public shooting grounds throughout the country.

There are many sportsmen who, from time to time, have felt that with the increase in the amount of posted land and the restrictions placed about hunting the sport was being denied them. And again it has been repeatedly voiced that there were those who were making such raids upon the game that it was impossible to find any pleasure in hunting. States have done much in the way of establishing valuable regulations and game organizations have encouraged greater respect for the laws, while both have been doing excellent service in the propagation and protection of game.

Nevertheless there are many large areas of waste land in almost every state or section of the country that would serve as excellent preserves. A survey indicates that there are about 60,000,000 acres available for such use, which would mean that it would be making use of something that is now practically valueless, and much of which might be swamps.

The idea would be for the government to purchase such land and throw the preserves open at certain times of the year to hunters who would be required to obtain a federal license in order to hunt there. Such license fees, which it is estimated would run probably to a million dollars a year would be employed in connection with such expenses as would be involved, after the amount required for the purchase had been returned to the government. The bill is now before the house, having received favorable action in the senate.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If a snow storm is a good sign at the opening, the 1923 legislature ought to be a humdinger.

There are plenty who'll admit that we have now received a full supply of snow for the present winter.

This is the season of the year for making a collection of the envelopes with the plate glass fronts.

As time goes on there are those who realize it is one thing to make new resolutions and another thing to keep them.

The man on the corner says: Those who shovel the snow off their walks can lay claim to getting better and better each day.

Letters from the treasury department just now are reminders of the interesting evenings that will punctuate the struggle with the income tax blanks.

When coal operators are quoted as predicting a prosperous year it looks as if they were anticipating another coal strike with a further boosting of prices.

The impression is given that the appropriations for some of the postoffice buildings are put sufficiently high so that they can be scaled down and yet provide adequately for the needs.

It is only a waste of time to tell some people that red doesn't arouse a bull any more than any other color. That is due to the fact that personal experience has left a fixed opinion.

To those who have always maintained that it would do it, the yearly increase in business handled by the Panama canal causes no surprise. It is simply a case of fulfillment of expectations.

How important it is to exaggerate to make an interesting story is shown by the statement of Princess Zenia to the effect that what she left in a New York auto by mistake was a box containing keys to her trunks and not $100,000 worth of jewels.

HIS MUTABLE FORTUNE

"Now give me a good line of fortune," said the young patron as he settled himself in the camp chair opposite the fortune teller at the church bazaar. "I'm as blue as indigo and I want to be chirked up a lot. I'll give you twice your fee if I like your line of talk."

"I am not allowed to charge more than 50 cents," said the gypsy stiffly. "Kindly place your hands, palms upward, on the table. I note that you are rather slow making up your mind. Fate has to give you more than one opportunity because you are so slow that the chance has gone before you know it's there."

"Oh, come, now, Jean!" the young man pleaded. "There are lots of people who don't think I'm slow. Just because that old Sam Davis cut me out, that once——"

"Strange to say," the gypsy went on coldly, "though you are very slow making up your mind, you are too quick in speaking. You are apt to lose much by losing your temper."

"Of course I was mad," cried the young man. "Who wouldn't have been? That crazy Sam Davis of all the persons!"

"You are far from charitable," said the gypsy, unmoved. "At times you are inclined to make unkind speeches about others. You are very partial to blonds and will marry one."

"Good land!" exclaimed the young man. "Where do you get that stuff?"

"I am sorry to say I cannot promise you a very happy life," the gypsy continued gloomily. "There will be much connected with your married life that will be rough for you. The blond may be extravagant and you are not going to be a millionaire."

"What the dickens makes you drag in the blond all the time?" demanded the young man. "I'd a lot rather hear about a brunette who looks well in a gypsy costume. Great Scott, but you do, Jean!"

"A dark-haired girl is passing out of your life" the gypsy said solemnly. "She is not one to be trifled with, and she has been just as nice to you as she can."

"Listen, Jean——!"

"She has a chance to go to Europe for an indefinite time," said the gypsy. "And she'd be a goose not to take it. Your peculiar actions recently have made her see that you do not feel friendly toward her, and, anyhow, she has just met a very wealthy man who has a new car."

"That's right!" said the young man crossly. "Give my rival a lot of money and tell me I'm going to be poor. Now rub it in and I'll get my money's worth."

"The blond girl has confidence in you," said the gypsy encouragingly. "She is sure you are going to be rich. You must humor her, however, and not let her affection cool off or your marriage will be a very dark and dismal affair. You are going to travel a great deal."

"Yes, between Wilmette and Chicago," said the young man bitterly. "The chance I'll have to travel with an extravagant wife and no money! If I can manage to commute I'll be lucky."

"It is not for me to say how these things will be," said the gypsy modestly. "All I can do is to read the lines as they are placed for me. About the age of 40 you will inherit money——"

"At last!" exclaimed the young man. "Are you going to be good to me at the end of all this rigmarole?"

"But you will lose it if you have married the blond, for she will run through it in no time. However," the gypsy sighed, "the future must be. The lovely blond——"

"Say, let's cut out the blond!" cried the young man. "I never said I wanted to know anything about one."

"It is understood in the fortune-telling fraternity," said the gypsy, "that when a young man brings a young lady to a place where fortunes are told he wishes to have her described as his future wife. I have done so, because it is written in the stars and, besides, you brought a very pretty blond with you tonight, didn't you?"

"You are very clever," said the young man with a new light in his eyes. "Yes, I am glad to hear about the blond, very. You see I am greatly attached to her, having played with her when we were mere babes. You have not been fair to her in your talk, for she is really very perfect."

"I suppose so," said the gypsy faintly. "She's certainly pretty."

"You've done well," laughed the young man. "And you've given me the very information I wanted. Jean, dear, that blond is my cousin from the west. Just look at my hand again and see if you can't persuade that brunette to stay home from Europe and marry me. And, Jean, don't you have to hold my hand in order to see well?"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Biblical Information Intending to Be of General Interest.

Mr. Editor: It is not my desire to prolong a scriptural discussion merely for sake of argument, but I should like (if you see fit to give space to this) to bring before the attention of your readers some interesting points relative to the Bible, Divine healing, etc., which I feel sure have escaped the attention of Mr. Capell and many other readers of your good paper.

The time intervening since the birth of Christ is commonly referred to as the Gospel age. This age of "good tidings" has in a way been transformed into an age of "bad tidings" because of the direful calamities generally expected to mark its close. Indeed the Master did speak of some rather severe events which would transpire at that time—wars, revolutions, famines, pestilences, etc. Since His words are having fulfillment today many of us believe that "the time of the end" is now upon us. If so, the much increasing interest in Divine healing is not difficult to explain.

One of the most distinctive signs mentioned as marking the end of the age is the rise of "false Christs and false prophets who shall show great signs and wonders insamuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect." (Mat. 24:24.) The apostle also warns that the second coming of Christ will be accomplished by "the working of satan with all power and signs and lying wonders—strong delusions." (2 Thes. 2:9-11.) "They are the spirits of devils, working miracles." (Rev. 16:14; 13:14.) Who can doubt but that these scriptural references are peculiarly applicable to our own day, for many at this time have substituted for the Lord's method of healing a wholly spurious and diabolical method of healing. Indeed a careful, unbiased investigation of "Divine healers" and their periodic visits reveals that the net results for good have been surprisingly meager, and that, the cases where the physical and mental condition has been changed for the worse are not few. The public in general are surprised in the newspapers of the "great signs and wonders" while the physicians at the hospitals, infirmaries, and the insane asylums are as a rule the only ones outside the immediate circle of acquaintances that learn the true side of the story.

Faith cures terminating as above mentioned are based on the well-known principle of hypnotism and this is why the modern "healer" harps so exclusively on "faith." For those who wish proof that satan has imitated Divine miracles in the past I cite the instance where he imitated the miracle performed by Aaron before Pharaoh (Ex. 7:14-13) and his simulations of the plagues brought upon Egypt. (Ex. 7:22, 8:7). Because of Christ's prophecy, which I believe applicable to our day, we expect these modern miracle workers when arraigned before the Divine tribunal to say: "Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in Thy name? and in Thy name cast out devils? and in Thy name done many wonderful works? And will I profess unto them, I never knew you, depart from me, ye that work iniquity." (Mat. 7:23, 23.)

It is not to be wondered at that Mr. Capell and the Scientists disregard the many scriptures which teach that sickness, pain and death are real when they disregard so many other scriptures, besides those already mentioned the explicit statement of the Apostle Paul: "Suffer not a woman to teach." What else than this has Mrs. Eddy done in fastening the delusion of Christian Science upon the minds of so many. May Mr. Capell be able to find something with which he can agree in this also.

Very truly,
H. E. COFFEY.
Lampasas, Texas, Dec. 29, 1922.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

How An Explorer Feels.

Why is an explorer?

What compensates a man for adventuring into unknown perils, enduring untold hardships, and bringing back neither gold nor silver, but only precious bits of scientific information?

A chapter in the complete report of the National Geographic Society's Expeditions which discovered and explored America's future great national park, "The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes," relates the personal experiences of members of the expedition under Robert F. Griggs.

L. C. Folsom, writing to Dr. Griggs says:

"You, and only you, whose companion I was in the discovery, can have an adequate conception of the emotions of one who knows he is the first of his fellows to look upon such a marvel of nature. In fact, the emotions of a discoverer must bear some similitude to the emotions of a creator.

"To think again of what we had already seen to feel again the explorer's urge, to suffer again the pains of protracted exertion, to experience again the thrill and exaltation of achievement, produce a sort of exquisite languor, which, were it not that there is still so much to do, one might wish to be lasting.

"The thousands of little volcanoes were almost a more magnificent sight than the wonderful Katmai Crater we had visited the day before. We were in danger of being surfeited with 'world wonders.'

"There comes in upon my consciousness yet, occasionally, a sort of startling memory of the experience. It almost hurts. Then I fall to dreaming of the causes and probable progress of such phenomena; of the unusual opportunities for study; the wonderful scenic display of natural forces."

Paul R. Hagelbarger, assistant botanist: "Bright sunshine bathed the Valley when I first saw it. Even though several miles away, I was awe-struck by the surprisingly large size and striking beauty of the spectacle. There were so many more steam jets than I had even hoped to see that I could only gaze in silent admiration.

"After living in the Valley and working among the fumaroles, my impressions began to change. My amazement at the great area was intensified by the knowledge gained on many trips across the Valley floor. The beauty of each individual vent was even more than that of the Valley as a whole.

"The thing that stupified me, however, was the ever-present proof that some terrific energy or force had only recently exerted itself. Everthing seemed on such a huge scale. Our tents looked insignificant amid the roaring volcanic vents.

"As I came daily to know the area better, I was more and more impressed by the Titanic forces that had been at work here. Human endeavor and achievement seemed dwarfed to insignificance by comparison. I felt out of place and like an intruder in this Land of the Gods. This Valley appeared to be another planet that was in the process of formation."

A humorous reaction is given by Clarence F. Maynard, topographer, who wrote whimsicially to Dr. Griggs after his return: "The smokes did not impress me with their grandeur or with their wonder, as a natural phenomenon. Their ability to make surveying next to impossible did, however, make a very decided impression on me. On the occasional clear days when the sun was shining down the Valley they seemed to be always at their best, as Griggs would put it, but to my mind at their worst.

"On these, the few rare days when it was not raining and the wind was not doing its best to move our camp (rather good judgment on the part of the wind, I should say), they would shoot forth jets of steam which soon took the form of clouds and obscured the country we were trying to work.

"I finally began to believe that the smokes were out to buck me, and became convinced of it when, on one of the rare fine days, I ascended to a peak which immediately became enveloped in fog. This was not unusual, but I was impressed on returning to camp to hear from the more fortunate members of the party that the whole Valley had been clear with the exception of the peak I occupied.

"I am not a vegetarian; furthermore, tea cooked in a steam pit is not tea. A tent that never sheds a drop of water is not a tent. A wool comfort placed on the ground which is 100 degrees F. in the above tent will steam beautifully. It is an natural phenomenon, but it is not a good bed.

"I believe I mentioned that I am not a vegetarian. I like bacon in the morning; I like it fried. A steam jet, in spite of its being a glorious and natural phenomenon, will not do this. I am from New England and have decided ideas on baked beans. Again the steam jet fell down. It needs New England training. Baked beans are beyond the limit of its capabilities.

"I should say the coming of the smokes ruined what might otherwise have been a perfectly good country. My opinion, however, is probably valueless as being out of tobacco always colors my views."

TREES AFTER STORM

Their little bones cry out in pain,
For night has tortured them with rain.
Then laid a finger, icy smooth,
On every joint, in every groove.

Encased in stiff and shining mail
The wind makes every branch a flail;
They swing with heaviness, and moan
In agony, each tree alone.

I hear their broken cries of grief
That God will make the torment brief,
For flesh of leaves has left them bare,
Like skeletons that thrash the air.

When grass shall come in laughing green,
And spread its cloak of summer sheen,
To coax the blind old roots to grow,
Will they remember? Will they know?

ARSON TRIAL DELAYED BY JUROR STALLED IN SNOW

But half a court day could be given here Thursday in the superior court to the continuation of the trial of Domenico Marinelli of Groton on the charge of arson, as one of the jurors, Benjamin S. Hall of Voluntown, could not reach here until 2.15 in the afternoon, although he started from home at 7 o'clock in the morning and struggled through the snow for five hours to reach the trolley line at Jewett City.

Word was telephoned to court that the juror was on his way and all that could be done in the trial was to wait until he got here. When he finally arrived, the trial was resumed at 3.30 and several witnesses were called by the state in its case against Marinelli for the fire at his store, 319 Thames street, Groton, on the night of Dec. 1, 1922.

Attorney A. M. Brown of counsel for the accused man concluded his cross-examination of Chief Petty Officer Ertel, who testified Wednesday afternoon.

Harry O'Neil, 18, who lives in Groton in the house next door to the Marinelli store, testified that he came home about 10.10 the night of the fire and was in bed when his sister, Annie, came in calling "Fire!" He ran out to the firebox in his trousers and undershirt and pulled the box, but it did not ring. The witness was at the box when he saw Joe Arsenault and Chief Ertel coming along. Arsenault rang the alarm and the witness heard the bell ringing as he ran back towards the Marinelli store with Chief Ertel after him. He said he did not know where the fire was when he ran towards the fire alarm box.

On cross-examination, Mr. O'Neil said he had not told Chief Ertel that the fire was in Joe's store, but did tell him it was in O'Neil's house. He did not learn the fire was in the store until he had come back to the house and put on a pair of shoes, a coat and a hat.

Louis Cohen, who owns the Marinelli store building property and lives in the tenement on the third floor, was the next witness. He testified that for the last five years the store windows on the south side of the building had been in first class condition and had been covered by wire screens which were nailed on.

On cross-examination by Attorney Brown the court sustained the state attorney's objection to he question of how much fire insurance Cohen had on the building, but Cohen was allowed to answer that there was a $2,700 mortgage on the property. "Joe" had always paid his rent, the witness said, and made a good business there or he wouldn't have stayed. He was on good terms with "Joe," but once asked him last summer to sell his lease, but "Joe" wouldn't sell. Cohen said he thought of running a store in the place for himself. He denied that he took down the stove pipe in the stove on Sunday after the fire, or that he had any stove pipe out in the backyard cleaning it on the Sunday before the fire.

Annie Cohen, wife of the preceding witness, testified that Marinelli had occupied the store three years in January. Her husband owned all the shelves, one long counter and one small red counter in the store. Mrs. Cohen pointed out on one of the photographs a window in the north side of the building which led into a cellar space where Thomas O'Neil kept his coal. There is no way from this space into the store, she said. Mrs. Cohen said the first they knew of the fire was when Dennis O'Neil knocked on the door and waked them up and she went downstairs in her night clothes with a long coat on. She heard the fire engine arrive but didn't see it. On cross-examination she said she saw a fireman kick in the south eastern of the two windows on the south side of the store. Mrs. Cohen said she was standing next to the man who kicked the window in and she could tell him if she saw him again.

Attorney Brown asked all the members of the Groton fire department who were in court to stand up for Mrs. Cohen's inspection. Ten men from the spectators' seats came forward, while Mrs. Cohen looked them over from the witness chair. She pointed out one man wearing glasses, but finally concluded she couldn't be sure this was the man.

James Arnold Stitt, a machinist of Groton, and foreman of the Pioneer Hose Co., No. 1, testified he was in bed at his home, 45 Baker avenue, when the alarm sounded on the night of the Marinelli fire. He reached the store after the chemical line had been run in and he used his electric searchlight to light up the store, which was very smoky. Fireman Arsenault and another man were in the doorway and Arsenault also played the chemical hose on the fire. A blaze was discovered under the floor and a hole was cut in the floor to get at that fire. Stitt said he kicked in a cellar window on the north side and ordered the hose played in there where smoke was coming out. Stitt said he then went around to the south side and tried to kick the rearmost window in, breaking whatever was there, but he did not play any hose in there.

Foreman Stitt testified to looking over the place with Chief White. At the rear near the ice box where the fire had seemed to be the witness said were a lot of burlap bags which he kicked away to see that no sparks were among them. Arsenault came while he was doing this. Arsenault picked up a wooden bushel basket which was turned upside down. Under it was a burlap bag with a candle in it. The articles were turned over to Chief White.

Judge Allyn L. Brown held court till 5 o'clock and adjourned it then to Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock as there is to be no court session today (Friday).

SPRINKLER SYSTEM CHECKS FIRE IN SPINNING ROOM AT FALLS CO. MILL

The fire department was called out Thursday night at 10.46 o'clock when Box 52, Falls Mill company, private, was rung in for a blaze at the mill. When the firemen arrived the sprinkler system at the mill had opened and there was little for the men to do but go about and see that the fire was completely out.

The fire had evidently started from an overheated pulley on the second floor, and in the spinning room, and had spread slowly working to the third floor. The gear boxes conining lint were afire and the cotton in the spindles had been burned.

The damage was mostly by water, and the recall sounded shortly before 11.25.

The deep snow made trouble for the motor fire apparatus in answering the call and Engine 2, the Seagrave pumper from the Central station, failed to get there. It snapped a chain off as it came to the Broadway crosswalk at the head of Chestnut street to make the turn to go up Broadway hill. As the chain was on the rear driving wheel, the machine did nothing but churn in the snow and the driver let it run back down the hill again to the side of the city barn, where the chain was put back on the wheel. On the second start to get over the Broadway crosswalk, the chain again flew off and the pumper was then backed to the central station where another attempt to put the chain on was made. This time it was found that the chain was wedged in so tight behind the wheel that it could not be loosened, until the apparatus had been backed in on the floor of the station.

The men at work got the chain back on the wheel just as the recall was sounded, and the apparatus was then sent out to help the big motor ladder truck back from the fire as it had become stuck in the snow on Blackstone lane. On the way to the fire the big truck also had trouble in getting up the slope on Chestnut street to Broadway, so that it turned into Bath street and reached the Falls by way of Franklin street and McKinley avenue instead of trying to make Broadway hill.

The motor ladder truck was finally dug out and returned to the station at 1.30 o'clock this morning.

UNLAWFUL TAX EXEMPTIONS OF $2,631,000 IN STATE

LEWIS M. YOUNG BUYS BRADFORD PROPERTY

A real estate sale in the center of the city which took place on November 1st was culminated on January 1st when Joseph Bradford released all claims on his property at 105 Broadway, known as the Bradford property.

The purchase was made some time ago by Lewis M. Young of 179 Broadway but several weeks were given Mr. Bradford before the property was taken over entirely by Mr. Young.

The property involved in the deal has a frontage of 33 feet on Broadway and runs back for a distance of 100 feet, making it an ideal section of real estate for investment purposes. At present there is a two story wooden frame building on the property fronting on Broadway, and in the rear is a brick structure, adjoining the main building.

The house has been occupied on the lower floor by Mr. Bradford in his book binding business, and Miss Jessie B. Hill has occupied the upper floor as a residence.

Thursday afternoon while speaking of the property he had acquired, Mr. Young stated that at present he had no plans in view for the future, but had simply purchased the property as an investment.

START Y. M. C. A. MEMBERSHIP DRIVE WITH ENTHUSIASM

A selected group of men who are active in their interest in the local Y. M. C. A. enjoyed a fine chowder supper Thursday evening prepared by L. R. Church and E. M. Davis. After supper, Frank L. Arnold called the meeting to order and stated the purpose of the meeting as follows:

The membership committee has selected you to act as membership hustlers for the next week, and we believe you can accomplish what the management of the association desires, viz., the securing of a goodly number of new members who will take an active interest in the splendid work of the association.

At this point Mr. Arnold announced that two teams would be formed with Weston C. Pullen and Alfred G. Bliven as captains, and these men in turn would select their teammates.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell was called upon for a speech and with enthusiasm he told of the great value of the Y. M. C. A. to the city and urged the workers to "get into the game" for new members during the week to come. His remarks were heartily applauded.

President James C. Macpherson, upon invitation of Chairman Arnold, made brief and very appropriate remarks, expressing his pleasure at seeing so many workers present, and expressed the belief that a large number of new members would be brought into the association through their efforts. He, too, was loudly applauded. The workers selected names from a prepared list, and they will report to their captains each day the results of their efforts.

NORWICH-WESTERLY TROLLEY WILL BE DISMANTLED

Now that operation of the Hallville to Westerly section of the Norwich and Westerly trolley road has been discontinued since the 30th of December, under authority given Receiver Robert W. Perkins by the superior court, the next step will be complete dismantling of the road.

Little of this can naturally be done during the winter, said Mr. Perkins Thursday night. The actual work of dismantling and junking the road will wait until customers are found for the rails and the copper and other parts, all of which are to be sold.

There is absolutely no possibility, said Mr. Perkins, that operation of the road will be resumed by him or that its physical properties will be held intact with any expectation of future operation. Under an order of the superior court issued about a year ago, and renewed about a month ago, the receiver was given authority to operate the road until such time that he found it undesirable to do so. The operation of the Hallville to Westerly section during the past year has given a fair test of what receipts could be expected from its patronage and this has demonstrated that this section does not earn half its operating expenses during eight months of the year. The other four months, when travel is better, are not enough to make up for the slack eight months.

Since the completion of the trunk line highway through North Stonington patronage of the trolley has fallen off more than ever and the territory has become a flat failure as a business feeder for the operation of a trolley line.

HARBORS CONGRESS SECRETARY WILL BE SPEAKER HERE

The directors of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce held a meeting Thursday noon at the Wauregan house at which Treasurer George A. Flan made a report of the December receipts and disbursements which was accepted. The membership meeting committee reported that the speaker for the January membership meeting on the 15th would be S. A. Thompson, secretary of the National Rivers & Harbors Congress in Washington. At the meeting this speaker will present to the members and their friends an account of the advantages to be gained by deeper waterways. He is a recognized authority upon the subject. This program will have particular interest at the present time because of the interest now shown in the further development of the Thames river. In connection with this the chamber of commerce feels that nothing should be left undone that would advance the interests of Norwich in Washington, towards the securing greater development of the Thames river, because the competition of water-borne traffic over rail-drawn traffic will work to the benefit of every resident of Norwich. With this in view an effort was made to get in touch with the senators of the state at Washington, during the holiday season, without success.

President H. M. Lerou was authorized by the meeting to appoint a committee to go to Washington and interview our national representatives upon this subject, and to secure favorable action, if possible, from the war department. The greatest development of the Thames river at Norwich is one of the most important assets to this community and nothing will be left undone to bring this about.

A special town meeting is to be called in the near future at which matters of educational interest will be discussed and acted upon. As the Norwich Free Academy is overcrowded, the chamber of commerce is planning to publish facts in an unbiased manner, to the public of our city, so that when the meeting is held every voter will know that there is a necessity of providing school facilities for the boys and girls of Norwich desiring a high school education.

The president was also authorized to appoint a committee to consider the establishment of a credit bureau in Norwich. With this credit bureau the business men of Norwich will be protected from unscrupulous debtors. The president was also authorized to appoint a committee of three members to investigate the present fire insurance rates of Norwich.

Bible Study at Y. M. C. A.

The weekly Bible study class met at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening and discussed the character of Daniel and his three companions. The Scripture used was the first chapter of Daniel, and among other points the following were brought out in the study: "The fact that these young men were in Babylon far away from home and among heathen people, naturally made it easy for them to do wrong, but in spite of this they were true to their ideals. Daniel made a bold resolution, namely, that he would not partake of the food the king had ordered; not only that but he influenced the other three to follow his example. Every fellow has influence either for good or bad, and we are responsible largely for unconscious influence. Daniel was in a sense an independent man, especially when principle was involved; 'he was a slave to God, and yet this very fact made him a free man.' Many young men when away from home go wrong, because they seem to think that nobody knows, and that 'when in Rome they must do as the Romans do.' Daniel was not that kind of a young man. Most young men go with the crowd; they want to be with the majority; they dislike to be called peculiar; though the Bible hints that the Christian is a peculiar person, in the sense that he is different from the man of the world. Daniel's purpose was not a negative, but a positive purpose; he not only refused to do wrong, but he aggressively did the right thing. There are too many negative Christians today. The request for different food than the king had ordered was refused by the man in charge, because he feared the king; however, Daniel refused to be discouraged, and made his request of the assistant to the Prince, and asked that a test be made; the request was granted, and the result was absolutely in Daniel's favor, and brought him into special favor with the king. Daniel had the spirit of "sink or swim, I will be true." Daniel cared little for popularity with men, but he was willing to sacrifice anything and everything that he might be popular with Almighty God, and that is the reason that the story of his life thrills us. America needs more men like Daniel.

OBITUARY.

Clarence P. Roath

Clarence P. Roath, a retired railway conductor, and for many years a resident of Norwich, died at his home at 194 Washington street, Hartford at 3:20 Thursday afternoon following a short illness with heart trouble. Mr. Roath had been in poor health for some time but his condition did not become serious until a short time ago.

He was born in Norwich on Dec. 12, 1857 the son of the late Louis P. and Laura Seagrave Roath. He received his education in the public schools of Norwich and soon after leaving school he entered the office of the Norwich and New York Transportation Co. After remaining with them a year he entered the employ of the Norwich & Worcester railroad where he worked in the office. Later he took up active railroading and became a conductor on the New York, New Haven and Hartford road. He remained in the employ of the railroad until about 15 years ago when he retired. For a number of years he made his home in Webster, Mass., but the greater part of his life has been spent in Norwich.

He was twice married, his first wife being Miss Fannie E. Edwards, who died in August 1896. He later married Miss Elizabeth S. Service who survives him with two children, Miss Marjorie Roath and Louis P. Roath. He also leaves a brother, Walter Roath of this city.

During the past few years Mr. Roath spent his winters in Florida and California but owing to an accident to his son which necessitated an operation at a Hartford hospital he had made his home this winter in Hartford. He was a member of St. James lodge No. 28, F. and A. M., and was a 32nd degree Mason.

Since his retirement from employment on the railroad his interest had been chiefly in his home and he had not been attracted to public life or political affairs. He was a devoted husband and loving father and had many friends who will sincerely regret his death.

Mrs. James Gordon

Following a short illness Mary J. Lacy, widow of James Gordon of Norwich, died Tuesday at the home of her son, William A. Lacy of Providence. Mrs. Gordon was married to Mr. Gordon in 1890 and for many years made her home at 98 Boswell avenue. She was a member of Mt. Calvary Baptist church. After the death of her husband, December 24, 1921, she left for Providence to live with her son.

She was a Christian woman and her many friends in Norwich learned of her death with sorrow.

The heavy snowfall totally crippled the trolley service for Groton, Poquonoc and Mystic.

FIVE FROM NORWICH IN GRADUATION OF NURSES

The commencement exercises of the class of 1922 of St. Francis' hospital school for nurses, Hartford, were held Wednesday in the chapel, which was filled with relatives and friends of the graduating nurses.

Of the 32 nurses graduating, the following were from Norwich: Helen May Lynch, Margaret Mary McNamara, Anna Josephine Plante, Alice Mary Kilroy, Winifred Mary Egan.

The diplomas were presented by Bishop John J. Nilan, assisted by Father McAuliffe and Father Griffin, chaplain of St. Francis' hospital. Bishop Nilan addressed the class and emphasized their duty to their patients as well as to their responsibility. Benediction followed, being offered by Father McAuliffe. The exercises were simple but very impressive. Bishop Murray and twenty visiting priests were seated in the sanctuary.

After the exercises the nurses entertained their relatives and friends. The decorations were blue and gold, the class colors. The class motto was "Faithful to the End."

Among those attending the graduation exercises from this city were Alexander Kilroy and family of Union street, Mrs. Charles Smith and Miss Mary Filburn.

TOOK VOLUNTOWN JUROR 7 HOURS TO GET HERE

Benjamin S. Hall of the Ekonk district in the town of Voluntown will remember his service on the superior court jury in this city in the arson trial of Domenico Marinelli of Groton.

Juror Hall left his home at 7 o'clock Thursday morning, struggled for five hours through the snow to traverse the 12 miles to Jewett City, waited an hour in Jewett City for the trolley car, and finally reached here at 2.15 and took his seat in court seven hours and 15 minutes after he left his home.

Trial of the case was halted while the court waited all the morning for the jury to arrive. Word was telephoned to court that he had started from home and was somewhere on the way in the snow, but that was all that was known about him until he arrived at the court house.

Juror Hall left his home in one of the ever-serviceable Fords to make the first stage of his journey, which was six miles of country road to Voluntown. A score of times in that distance they had to get out to dig out the snow that rolled up in a big ball under the forward axle, then jumped ruts and slid off the road into the ditch, they broke a chain and had to stop to repair that, and they finally reached Voluntown at 10 o'clock, having used three hours to come the six miles through the deep and drifted snow.

It was better traveling from Voluntown to Jewett City, where he arrived about noon, just in time to give him a wait until 12.55 for the first trolley going to Norwich.

Juror Hall did not expect to make an attempt to get home Thursday night, but he will get back there some time today (Friday) and will hope that travel conditions will be better by next Tuesday when he will have to come again to resume his jury duty.

SPECIAL STATE COMMISSION HAD SOME MONEY LEFT

The special state commission appointed to buy the six contiguous buildings on Washington street and Capitol avenue, Hartford, for the use of administrative departments crowded out of the capitol, reported to Governor Lake on Tuesday that its expenditures aggregated $360,613.20, leaving a balance of $10,042.80 from the appropriation of $375,000 made by the last session of the legislature, plus subsequent additions.

The additions were items of $455.70 realized by the sale of materials and $200 realized from the collection of rents prior to the occupancy of some of the buildings by state departments.

Father Fitzsimmons Has Strained Ligaments

Rev. W. C. Fitzsimmons, pastor of St. Joseph's church in New London, had his knee severely injured in a fall Thursday morning while crossing Montauk avenue near the church. His knee struck the trolley rails and several ligaments were severely torn. He was taken to the rectory and then to the Memorial hospital where it is expected he will remain for several days.

There You Have Something to Learn.

Thousands who have piles have not the same for you.

Learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. E. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent.,

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Snow-plowing on one's own account was a necessity for hundreds of people who were on their way to work before daylight Thursday, as is the rule for them these winter mornings. There was no semblance of pleasure for the average early riser who had to trudge along through a foot of fluffy snow, the first experience of the kind during the present winter. There was a rush for public service cars and other conveyances that serve these workers each morning and the vehicles were more than ordinarily appreciated because of the difficult walking.

Not long after daylight, however, public spirited citizens helped make the going easier by hitching horses to snow plows that were run along sidewalks on some streets, making paths that were appreciated throughout the day.

On the trolley line cars had been running plows and cars up and down the route throughout the night and there was no blockade of this service, upon which many depend to get to their early labors. The state highway department crews also were on the job and their big plows were moving over trunk lines in this territory throughout the night. Motorists found no great difficulty in getting to principal points in this part of the territory by the time they were ready to start on their trips. The plows did wonderful service and by afternoon had the state highway lines practically free of snow, so that machines could skim along at what is considered normal rate of speed. Another plow could be used to advantage in the Danielson territory, out of which state highways radiate north, east, south and west. The plows necessarily operate at slow speeds and one of them cannot be expected to clear ever line hereabout within a few hours after a storm ceases. One more plow would relieve this condition, however, and it may be hoped for as an asset of the future.

Lemuel J. Coburn, the man who made the factories grow in Danielson a little more than a decade ago, continues to exude energy and ideas as though they sprang directly from the fountain of youth and vigorous ambition. Having established during the past few years two mills at Sangerville, Me., where he now makes his home, another mill at Lincoln, Me., and still another at Rochester, N. H., he has now turned his eyes to the golden west and is contemplating establishing a woolen mill in Los Angeles. In fact Mr. Coburn intends to establish a series of woolen mills in Southern California, his opinion being that it is the height of folly and a crying example of economic waste to ship wool from California for manufacturing in the east and then sending the finished product back to the Pacific coast.

"As to machinery," Mr. Coburn is quoted as saying, "it costs little more to ship from New York and Pennsylvania to the west coast than it does to send it to our plants in Maine. I have learned that Los Angeles factory structures can be erected for one-fourth what they would cost in the east. Fuel for dyeing and finishing is cheaper, for your oil and natural gas are more economical than soft coal at a high price as New England. There is no reason why you should pay $25 more for some suits of clothes in Los Angeles than in New England, nor the plants are centered there."

Mr. Coburn conceived and carried out the boom that resulted in two factories being established at Hohenstral place, now known as Connecticut Mills village about a dozen years ago. This entire enterprise eventually fell flatter than a pancake, but to it must be credited with the later location here of the Connecticut Mills company, now grown to be one of the most important industrial concerns in this corner of the state.

Since departing from Danielson Mr. Coburn boosted another factory building proposition in Mystic and later was active in other sections of this state, finally going back to his home state of Maine, where he has met with splendid success in developing woolen manufacturing concerns. He is a man of tremendous energy, a wonderful vision and capable of great things as a builder and organizer. If he goes to Los Angeles, that big town will know that he has arrived shortly after he gets there and as blase as it may be, he will make it sit up and take notice—for that's a way he has.

Among the important matters that will receive the serious attention of the chamber of commerce during the current year are developing a high class road from Danielson to Goodyear by way of North street and past the Walter Day farm—what old residents will recall as "the back road to Williamsville," changing one of the opening nights of the stores in the borough from Monday to Wednesday and seeking the development of Stearns street as an auxiliary route carrying traffic off the Danielson-Putnam trunk line to the Danielson-Providence trunk line, thus relieving congestion in Reynolds street, a narrow thoroughfare and a dangerous one, now that there is such a heavy volume of traffic through it.

Alfred L. Reed succeeds to the presidency of the local business organization, with Burdette C. Hopkins as vice president, A. M. Thompson, secretary and Clifford H. Starkweather as treasurer. The board of directors is made up of Harry E. Back, F. E. Storer, Dr. G. M. Burroughs, Damase Boulais and A. W. Eddy.

The chamber will conduct a canvass in the near future for new members and membership renewals.

Two carloads of coal have arrived at the railroad station, one of chestnut and a car of soft coal. Dealers say they have no definite promise as to when more hard coal may be expected.

The Rev. Chauncey Bunce Brewster, D. D., will administer the rite of confirmation at St. Alban's church on the evening of Sunday, January 14.

PUTNAM

This city was engulfed Thursday in digging itself out after being snowed under in the heaviest storm of the present winter. About a foot of feathery light snow fell over this territory. It impeded traffic but did not hold it up and an army of shovelers and numbers of horse-drawn and motor-driven plows were prompt in attacking it during the morning to clear the sidewalks and highways. By the noon hour getting about was not especially difficult and by nightfall walks on principal streets were cleared and the streets themselves made comfortably passable for traffic.

The storm endured for about 18 hours, the snow fall ceasing about 8 a. m. Motor vehicles manager to plow through the snow at all stages of the storm and proved of great value in keeping things on the move. Sleighs made their appearance in greater numbers than at any time this winter and in some cases were substituted to carry on business usually conducted with a motor car.

Out on the state highways big motor-driven plows were at work while the snow was still at its height and late travelers on the trunk lines in this territory found them plowing along after midnight that important routes should not be blocked by the storm. As early as 9 o'clock Thursday morning it was possible to cover many of the important highway routes in this territory without inconvenience and by early afternoon the trunk line system was a clear run, a race track through the work of the big plows, which skimmed along and sprayed showering of snow off the surfaces of the state highways. In no case were the workers obliged to resort to shoveling, as the snow drifted very little and only in a few places. One warm day will leave the state highway surfaces as bare of snow as in the summer season.

Trolley crews worked throughout the night to keep the Connecticut Company's lines in this territory from being blocked by the storm and they were successful in their efforts. Cars were running pretty close to schedule time during the early morning and later were on time. On the steam road trains went off schedule after having made a good record of being on time, or near it, since the opening of the new year. Crews of railroad laborers were engaged during Thursday in clearing snow from about the station and its approaches and from switches and other vital points on the system.

No damage was reported as due to the storm, while long drawn out was not accompanied by gales or other features that would tend to destructive qualities.

Rev. Simeon E. Cozad, new pastor of the Second Congregational church has arrived here with his family. They will occupy the rectory on Grove street. Rev. Mr. Cozad will take up his duties as pastor on Sunday, when he will preach at the morning service and otherwise participate in the church program of the day.

John Anderson of Quinebaug is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in this city. Mr. Anderson is suffering from a bullet wound said to have been self-inflicted. His condition is regarded as serious and on Thursday he was reported as resting comfortably.

Mrs. Abby E. Child, 79, wife of Ezra Child, is dead at her home here. Mrs. Child was a native of Woodstock and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Child. She had been a resident of this section of the county all of her life. Mrs. Child leaves two daughters, Miss Elizabeth Child of this city and Miss Grace Child, librarian for an insurance company at Hartford. The late Chester E. Child, a well known resident of this city at the time of his death, was a son of Mrs. Child.

A movement through which the Arcanum club may acquire by purchase the Gardner property which it recently leased on South Main street as its headquarters is under way and has progressed so satisfactorily that the property may be taken over in the near future. The purchase money will be advanced by club members. The club has been in existance for more than 30 years. Recently it was forced to vacate its home in the St. Onge block through the purchase of that property by the Putnam Savings bank, which is to erect a new building. The club acquired a lease of the Gardner property, which is owned by the town of Putnam, and recently has been engaged in fitting up the new quarters to meet the needs of the organization. The proposal that the property be purchased recently was advanced and has met with such a favorable response from members that it appeared Thursday as though the purchase will be arranged in the near future.

Recently elected officers of Anselm Mayotte post, American legion, will be installed at a meeting of the organization and it was said Thursday that he probably will be seen here some time during the winter, possibly during the present month.

A carload of coal that arrived at a railroad station in this territory was found to be frozen into practically a solid mass as the result of being out in several rain and sleet storms and a long period of freezing weather while in transit. Unloading this coal presented a problem which the consignees were puzzling over Thursday, one suggestion being that a fire be started under the steel car in order to force a thaw to set in.

Charles M. Perrin of North Woodstock has been appointed a senate messenger at the capitol, representing Windham county in this capacity. Mr. Perrin formerly was a member of the house from the town of Woodstock, where he has filled various town offices.

Governor Templeton, new state executive will register favorably with hundreds of people in eastern Windham county through the pronouncement in his inaugural message that he is in favor of legislation that will aid toward maintaining standard time uniformly throughout Connecticut and asserting that the daylight saving program produces unwarranted hardships and inconveniences. Ever since last summer workers for the universal observance of standard time have been engaged in this section of the state in obtaining signatures to petitions asking that standard time be universally throughout the state.

Much to the satisfaction numbers of householders who have become accustomed to the use of soft coal in their heaters declare that they are getting as good and in some cases better results than with hard coal. They assert that the soft coal gives off more heat and can be used without difficulty in home heaters once one learns the method of handling it.

In the period that remains before the opening of the Lenten season there will be a busy period for those who like to be entertained. The programs mapped out call for bazaars, numerous dances and other diversions.

John A. Harron of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Putnam on Thursday.

A large number of the employes of Southern New England Telephone company in the Putnam, Danielson and Moosup divisions gathered at Odd Fellows' hall Wednesday evening, despite the storm, for a regular meeting and for the special purpose of giving a farewell party to Wire Chief D. M. Stahl, who has been transferred from this territory to Derby. Mr. Stahl was presented with a telephone stand and chair.

Work is steadily going on at the First National bank building. A force of workers is engaged in the interior and until the latest snow storm held them up a crew of wreckers was engaged outside, removing old foundation walls and carrying off material that will not enter into the reconstruction of the building.

At the regular meeting of the warden and burgesses this week, Warden J. H. McCarthy tendered his resignation to take effect January 23.

The Jewett City Savings bank the first of January has the fine record of over two million dollars in assets.

A foot and one-half of snow fell during Wednesday afternoon and all night. Two state snow plows kept the state road in good condition, but woe unto autos and trucks that got into the snow banked up either side. Mill snowplows made walking possible on the streets, and shoveling took the place of the "daily dozen" as a reducer of avoirdupois.

At the meeting of Very Rev. Michael McCabe Council, No. 2264, held in Foresters' hall on Wednesday evening, the first degree was exemplified upon a class of seven candidates. Plans for the series of three whists to be given were completed and the first of the series will be held in Rioux hall on Thursday, Jan. 18th.

A Biddeford, Me., paper has an article concerning a Jewett City boy which will be of much interest. Erme B. Myott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelbert Myott of this place, has been the resident engineer for Fay, Spofford and Thorndike of Boston, during the construction of the Mile Brook sewer just completed in Biddeford. Before his return to his home in Boston he was tendered a banquet at Hotel Thatcher by Mayor Edward H. Drapeau and other members of the city government. Auditor Scott paid a fine tribute to Mr. Myott for his engaging qualities and social attractiveness, and praised him for the efficiency he had displayed during the construction of the sewer, giving him much of the credit for the smoothness with which the work had been accomplished. In behalf of the company he presented him a costly gold watch, suitably engraved. Mr. Myott was taken so completely by surprise that it took him a few minutes to collect himself to respond, which he did with eloquence in his appreciation of the gift and the spirit promoting it.

The funeral services of Miss Bertha Burdick were held in the Baptist church on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. E. E. Scates conducted the service. Hide Thou Me and Safe in the Arms of Jesus were sung by Mrs. G. H. Prior, Mrs. George Sparks, Miss Ida I. Foster and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. The burial was in Read-Herskell cemetery in Lisbon.

Mrs. Daniel F. Finn, Jr., lost a valuable cameo pin the night of the fire in Hyde's garage.

The officers put in nomination at the republican borough caucus on Thursday night are: Warden, Dr. G. H. Jennings; burgess, George A. Haskell; clerk and treasurer, E. M. Gray; collector of taxes, E. H. Hiscox, Jr.; auditor, George H. Prior; bailiff, Hector Stebeland.

LITTLE FARMERS NEED MORE GUMPTION.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

It's the buyer who has the final say-so Me.—or in our somewhat over-refined modernism, she—is the ultimate umpire as to what shall be bought.

Did you ever reflect upon the axiom that the one who decides what shall be bought thereby and at the same time decides what shall be sold?

Nothing is plainer or more certain than this truth. For there cannot be a sale unless there is a purchase. There cannot be a seller till a buyer appears.

Yet a good many men and among them altogether too many farmers seem to forget this self-evident truth.

They raise what they've been accustomed to raise, what they're used to, what comes handiest or easiest, what they think they can.

Having done which they sit on the fence and wait for heaven to send along somebody to buy 'em out.

We must believe, because so many people tell us so, that western farmers want the chance to borrow more money on easier terms and for longer time. We can't have any doubt, after reading the figures, that our farmers almost everywhere need cheaper and more efficient transportation.

But what we little farmers of [illegible] need is More Gumption. Don't tell me there's no such word in the dictionary. There is. I've just looked it up. And it means just what I thought it did. And what you think it does.

When our grandsires, six or eight generations back, landed on New England's stern and rockbound coast, they had to get their living out of conditions and under circumstances they were wholly unaccustomed to.

They had never seen Indian corn. They promptly took it over, however, learned to plant it when the oak leaf was as big as a mouse's ear, and to put a herring in each hill to fertilize it. They added learned cornbread, hominy-cake and hasty pudding and that most delicious of all early-fall foods, pop corn. Their only tools were farm tools and two centuries and a half later, a combination of which is in the most [illegible] as a [illegible] use, into newspapers, now and to learn how to make corn shocks and fodder cocks to keep the stock and fodder cocks to keep the stock [illegible] seasons and conditions.

In other words, they had their surprises to meet new and strange conditions and they mobbed them.

They would doubtless have preferred wheat and oats and barley, such [illegible] As they had been used to raising, because they couldn't have those, they didn't sit down and starve to death. They did do any good [illegible] attention, but [illegible] Pilgrims [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED

New York, Jan. 4.—Stock prices pursued an uneven course during the greater part of today's session and then yielded materially in the final hour on a heavy selling movement which followed announcement of a break-up of the allied premiers conference on reparations. A number of the early gains were wiped out and several active issues closed 1 to 3 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Speculators for the decline offered a liberal supply of stocks at the opening but these were well absorbed and the market appeared to be turning upward under the leadership of U. S. Steel, which touched 108 1-4, but reacted at the close to 107 1-4 for a small net loss. Some of the buying of this issue, approximately 135,000 shares of which changed hands during the day, was said to be for the account of the steel corporation, which announced tonight that the finance committee had decided to offer to the employees of the corporation the privilege of subscribing during this month for 60,000 shares of common stock at $107 per share.

Short selling continued in spots despite the rally in the steels, being particularly effective against some of the oil shares, which were supplied liberally on publication of reports that the Royal Dutch company was closing its Mexican refinery because of a lack of oil resulting from the salt water invasion of its fields. Losses of a point or more were sustained by Royal Dutch, General Asphalt, Cosden Pacific Oil, Phillips Petroleum and Producers and Refiners. California Petroleum continued its rise to higher ground despite denial of reports by the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport company that it was seeking control of the California company.

Revival of rumors, often denied, that the Baldwin Locomotive and Pullman companies were both endeavoring to acquire Lima Locomotive was attributed for the early activity and strength of those stocks. Baldwin was run up to 140 3-8, a new high on the movement but reacted later to 135 1-2 and closed at 137, where it was off more than 3 points on the day. Pullman got to 133 5-8 but closed at a slight fractional gain at 131 1-8. Lima closed 1 1-8 lower.

Automotive stocks also enjoyed a brief period of strength but yielded with the rest at the close. Studebaker and Chandler each lost more than a point on the day and Stewart Warner, 3 1-8. Most of the other changes in that group were fractional although Willys-Overland preferred at its best price 47 1-8, 2 points above yesterday's final.

St. Paul common and preferred each receded more than a point, some of the selling being influenced by the announcement that the bonds of the road were no longer legal investments in New York state. Most of the other rails were sluggish and moved within irregular fractional limits although Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific preferred and Reading each ended the day more than a point lower.

Pressed Steel Car, American Woolen, American Tobacco, Corn Products and South American were among the active issues to show losses of 2 points or more while gains of that amount were registered by Continental Can, Associated Oil and Republic Steel.

Call money opened at 4 per cent., but eased off later to 3 1-2 where it closed. The government will withdraw $40,000,000 from depositary banks in this district tomorrow. Call money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

[illegible] eased off materially in the [illegible] but broken up with [illegible] were [illegible] quoted [illegible] under 1 1-4 cents a hundred

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 4.—The heavy oversubscription of a number of large bond offerings soon after the books were opened today, the strength of French government and municipal bonds in the face of discouraging political news and the advance made by Denver and Rio Grand mortgages on reports of favorable progress toward reorganization were salient points in today's bond market. There were many sales of standard securities over the counter also reported. Taken together, these indications were believed to bear out the New Year's feeling that the future bond market will be a good one.

The Denver and Rio Grande obligations which have been in default for some time made the following advances; refunding 5s 3 3-4 points; certificate 5's 4 1-2 and 1st 5's, 3 points.

Although it was announced during the day that the Baltimore and Ohio and St. Paul bonds had been stricken from the list of issues legal for investment by savings banks in New York state the announcement had little effect on quotations. Strength was shown by the Erie convertible 4's, and series A, advancing 1 1-2 points and the series B, 1 3-4. Chicago and Alton 3 1-2's gained 1 3-4 points and similar railroad liens made fractional advances.

In the foreign list Czecho-Slovaki 8's and Cuba Railroad 6's gained 5 points. Despite the unfavorable news from the continent French government and municipal bonds made only fractional recessions, the Bordeaux 6's being the only one to lose [illegible]

Brooklyn Rapid Transit 7's advanced 2 points [illegible] 7's 1 3-4 points [illegible] favorable [illegible] Pacific [illegible] Haven 4's of 1956, Consolidated and Western Consolidated 4's, International and Great Northern adjustment 5's and Norfolk Southern 5's lost a point each.

Cerro de Pasco 8's were the weakest spot in the industrial group 4 1-2 points at the close of the day's trading. Wilson convertible 6's, DuPont 7 1-2's and Wick wire Spencer Steel 7's were also weak losing a point each.

Liberty bonds were generally stronger with 3 1-2's gaining 26 cents on a $100 at the close of the day. Other advances were: 1st 4 1-4's, 8; 2d 4 1-4's, 2; 3d 4 1-4's, 6; 4th 4 1-4's 4 and the uncalled victory 4 3-4's 2. The 2nd were off 8 and the new 4 1-4's, 4.

Total sales (par value) were $13,834,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Misgivings over the breakdown of the reparations conference at Paris had an evident bearish influence today on the wheat market here. Prices closed unsettled, 7-8c to 2 1-4c net lower with May 1.18 1-4 to 1.18 3-4 and July 1.20 3-4 to 1.10 7-8; corn lost 7-8 to 1 1-8c, oats 1-4 to 1 7-8c and provisions 10 to 20 a 22 cents.

Traders flocked to the selling side throughout the day in the wheat pit. Foreign holders in particular were said to be unloading, and this circumstance together with unreadiness of foreign exchange and with a succession of disturbing reports regarding to Paris conference kept most buyers wary, the bulk of purchasing being apparently to even up open accounts that showed a profit.

Big receipts of wheat at primary points, about three times as large as a year ago, tended to discourage bulls, and to nullify rallies based on progress of farm credits legislative measures at Washington. Gossip as to possible appointment of an American representative on the reparations commission was practically ignored, and estimates that 500,000 bushels of wheat had been bought today for shipment to Europe failed also to give the market any important upturn as the day drew to an end.

Despite lessening of arrivals and notwithstanding liberal export business, the corn marset gave way with wheat, oats followed suit.

Provisions were weakened by the decline of hog values and of grain as well.

Thirty-five dollars have been subscribed thus far for the purpose of repairing and opening the White Rock bridge for travel. This method was thought to be the only satisfactory one after it was found that the selectmen of Stonington had decided not to make the town responsible for its share of maintaining the bridge.

Edward Freshman, who is employed at the C. E. Cottrell Sons Press Co. on Mechanic street, had the misfortune to injure one of the fingers of his right hand Wednesday afternoon. His finger became caught in a part of the machinery and was quite badly lacerated. He will be obliged to give up work for some time.

Samuel H. Davis of Westerly, representative in the Rhode Island general assembly, has introduced a bill to provide for alternate sessions of the superior court for Washington county. The bill is about the same as several other unsuccessful bills to permit Westerly to have its own session of the superior court. The present sessions all convene at West Kingstown and after taking up the matters from that part of the county, the court "adjourns," to Westerly.

STONINGTON

Thursday evening the members of Dush chapter, No. 44, O. E. S., met in regular session and before the business meeting the ladies prepared a most delicious chicken salad supper with all the fixings.

During the storm the telephone and electric light service was exceptionally good with but few mishaps reported to wires and poles.

Thursday afternoon the monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Calvary Episcopal church was held at the rectory at 3 o'clock and at this time Deaconess Cora L. Roberts was scheduled to give a talk to the women of the church.

Palmer, John McShane and A. C. Mitchell; educational committee, N. M. Smith, Mrs. Eugene Wood and Miss Lucy Crowley.

Mrs. Alberta Haramond.

The mills and shops in the village kept open Thursday in spite of the storm. The schools had only a small percentage of attendance. The school boys and girls were out bright and early with snow shovels and made quite a little pin money shoveling the walks for people here.

The annual meeting of the Methodist church was held Thursday afternoon. Owing to the heavy fall of snow many were kept from going out but even so the ladies had prepared an excellent supper which was served at 5.30 at the parish house. Those who attended were repaid for going.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Community house board of directors which was held Tuesday evening it was reported that the total attendance for the month was 4,350, which shows a gain over last month's attendance list. Tuesday evening the annual meeting of the members of the Community house will be held, and at that time new officers and three new members will be elected to the board of directors. There were several members of the board present. At this (Friday) evening the North End Juniors will meet the Bulldogs in a game of basketball. BILL FOR U. S. REPRESENTATIVE ON REPARATIONS COMMISSION

Washington, Jan. 4—The drive for official American representation on the reparations commission was formally launched in the senate today with the administration's attitude undisclosed but with a declaration of war from the Republican "irreconcilable" camp.

After a White House conference today between Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, republican leader, and President Harding and George Harvey, American ambassador of Great Britain, and an hour's debate in the senate, a special meeting of the senate foreign relations committee was called for tomorrow by Senator Lodge to take up the bill of Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, which would authorize the president to appoint American representatives on the commission.

The foreign relations will determine tomorrow the procedure to be followed with the resolution, whose importance, Senator Lodge told the senate was fully realized in view of the break today at Paris on the reparations question. Senator Lodge has not yet conferred on the questions with Secretary Hughes of the state department but it is expected that the committee will arrange to obtain Mr. Hughes' opinion on the Robinson bill and also obtain information as to the administration position with reference to the reparations and other questions in Europe.

Senator Robinson spoke at some length in support of his measure, which he said, was not designed to embarrass the administration but to "untie" the president's hands because of the reservation to the Berlin peace treaty, prohibiting appointment of Americans on foreign commissions without congressional authorization.

Senator Johnson, of California, a prominent "irreconcilable", immediately opposed the Robinson proposal and Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, another republican "irreconcilable", indicated his opposition to official representation. Again denouncing the reparations commission as a "super government" Senator Johnson said military occupation of Europe might flow from enforcement of its decisions. He said he was opposed to any action which might embroil America in Europe's political maelstrom.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, whose recent proposal for a world's economic conference agitated the senate for several days, followed the discussion closely but did not make known his position on the Robinson resolution.

It is asserted that the proceedings at Paris have been conducted in complete friendliness, but that the entente cordiale was never in greater danger since the armistice was concluded. The Brussels conference must be abandoned.

With the collapse of the conference Germany has until January 15 to meet heavy reparation payments.

The German contention is that it will be impossible to meet this demand, and British opinion more or less supports that view. Mr. Bonar Law to the last insisted that any attempt on the part of France to enforce the fulfillment of obligations on Germany would only hasten Germany's collapse.

The situation which now prevails is somewhat different to that which followed the breakdown of previous conferences. There now is a definite British plan before the world, which France, together with Belgium and Italy has rejected. Hitherto Great Britain, to a large extent, had the support of Italy in her contention with France over reparations; but with the advent of the Mussolini government, a change evidently has come over European relationships. Mussolini rather ostentatiously absented himself from the last gathering of the premiers, and apparently owing to the exceedingly difficult financial position of both France and Italy, it will be next to impossible to bring these two countries into an acceptance of the proposed four years' moratorium for Germany.

The Franco-Italian complaint against the British plan is that during these four years they would get practically nothing to help their adverse budgets, because, in order to obtain cancellation of their debts to Great Britain, they must forego in Great Britain's favor anything coming from Germany in the shape of reparations.

Thus the impasse reaches more critical than any previously experienced, and it may be supposed that the eyes of all Europe will be turned more anxiously than ever before, in the direction of Washington, where alone, in the opinion of most of the European statesmen, the solution can be sought for the present abortive conference has thrown a stronger light than ever on the way the two problems—reparations and interallied debts—seem inexplicably interwoven. Mr. Bonar Law immediately on his return to London, will call a cabinet meeting to discuss the situation.

In official quarters tonight nobody would hazard an opinion on what would happen next. At the foreign office the officials declined to make any statement; either on the actual reasons for the breakdown of the conference or the possible effects of it.

The only thing clear from the proceedings of the conference is that France must act alone, so far as England is concerned, if she intends to put her announced plans into operation.

A point anxiously discussed here tonight is how the reverberations of the Paris collapse will affect the Lausanne conference.

The universal belief seems to be that the Turks have been intentionally delaying the proceedings at Lausanne because they foresaw and intended to take advantage of just such a break as occurred. Therefore apprehension is expressed that a similar rupture will occur at Lausanne.

According to a statement made in official quarters today the surprise and indignation expressed by the French and Italian governments that the gold they deposited in London during the war as security for British war purchases made in their behalf had been transferred to the United States, was unjustifiable because, before making the transfer, the British government sought for and obtained unequivocal permission for the transfer, and, Mr. Bonar Law's proposal to regard this debt as part of the immensely greater debt owing by by France and Italy was officially regarded as an entirely logical and proper one.

Altogether it is considered that the present situation of European affairs promises little of that "tranquility" which Premier Bonar Law adopted as the watchword for his administration.

LAUSANNE CONFERENCE REMAINS DEADLOCKED

Lausanne, Jan. 4. (By the A. P.)—The news that the interallied reparations conference in Paris had adjourned without agreement created a sensation among the delegates to the Near East conference, where the diplomats of all countries have been awaiting the results of the deliberations between the premiers.

There was a high state of tension among the delegates in all the hotels tonight as they gathered in groups, discussing the effects of the breakdown. The unanimous opinion expressed in allied circles was that the immediate effect of the situation would be to stiffen the attitude of the Turks, who would seek to profit by fancied division of the French and British. "In this the Turks may be all wrong," was the comment of both French and British spokesmen.

Ismet Pasha, the Turkish representative, seemed stunned over the announcement of the breakdown. "We are here to plead our cause on its merits," said Ismet. "We do not wish to profit by any divergencies between the allies. Turkish ambition is to bring peace to a suffering world, and we are earnestly striving to that end. Unhappily there are still many imporant questions at Lausanne on which the allies have failed to accept our just conditions, but I do not feel hopeless."

It is easier for a man to get on financially than it is for women to get out a car facing forward.

NORWICH TOWN

Under date of Dec. 27, 1922, a most interesting letter was forwarded to Herbert L. Yerrington, clerk of the First Congregational church, by a former pastor, Rev. Charles A. Northrop, of Danbury, formerly of Norwich. At the New Year's gathering at this church the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, read the letter before his parishioners and friends, which when finished received hearty applause.

In a personal note to Mr. Yerrington, Mr. Northrop writes:

My Dear Brother Yerrington:

I am sending to you enclosed a little remembrancer to be applied to the program of the New Year's gathering so soon to come off. Were I not so far away and the probabilities of bad weather so imminent, I would try and be there in person. My best wishes to you and yours and invocations for a Happy New Year to all.

Cordially yours,
CHARLES A. NORTHROP.

Following is the letter:

To my old-time friends in the Norwich Town church and parish, Greetings: One good turn deserves another. You were so kind as to send me a very beautiful and appreciative letter last New Year's at the hands of the immortal Yerrington (still clerk, I suppose), to which, I think, I made some attempt at adequate reply.

New Year's cards are beginning to arrive from some of my friends there, and to prevent my being swamped with answering postals, as well as to do what seems more seemly and expeditious, I am going to be present there by letter at your always delightful New Year's gathering. I am aware that I shall miss much (especially the coffee) by not being there in person, but it seems inadvisable for me to make the trip under the uncertainties of the weather. O, no, I am not debilitated, as might be inferred, only a little careful, for I do value living, even when I do not appear to have anything to do.

I have not yet connected myself with any other church (have never been asked to, for that matter) and am better pleased to remain in your membership, if you please. I think that by keeping you informed of my goings on, and by putting down a small price for the liberty of staying with you, I may not find it necessary to break the bonds which have bound us together so many years even after I left the pastorate of preaching and went to the practicing down at No. 9 Washington street.

I have been looking over my diary to see how I have been behaving the past year. Some random jottings I here note down for your comfort. Raking over lawn; more lawn work; cutting wood; spraying trees; sifting ashes; making garden; nothing doing; out bareheaded and awfully sunburned; weeding flower beds; mowing grass; picking currants; helping build chicken house; weeding currant bushes; cutting weeds; picking wild grapes; picking apples; attend Danbury fair; fixing up coal bins; raking leaves; inventorying Christmas presents.

Such things as these form the background of my rather bucolic life in Danbury, and by the backlogs of the fireplace in our colonial cottage I have read 100 or more books, thus keeping myself fresh. I go to church nearly every Sunday and hear almost as good preaching as I used to hear in the old days. With no cares, and no duties big enough to burden, I am passing my days in the cheerful home of my eldest daughter, and flitting from place to place visiting my other children who are readily available, thinking backwards, as most folks of my age are doing, and looking forward with hope for a grand reunion at home.

Very cordially and always yours,
CHARLES A. NORTHROP.

It was with sincere sorrow that friends here learned of the death of Joseph Albert Alexander, which occurred last Saturday at his home in New York city, following a very serious illness with pneumonia. Although specialists were in attendance, and every possible thing done for his recovery, all efforts proved in vain, and the closing of his young life came within a few hours of the closing of the old year. His funeral was held on Tuesday.

"Joe," as he was called, was an unusually bright scholar, and at an early age entered a military academy, having maintained a high standard, with special merit for deportment. He was a lovable boy, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Alexander, and the sympathy of Norwich friends is broadcast for his bereaved parents, who were visitors in Connecticut last summer.

Mrs. Alexander, better known as Constance Phillips, spent many summers during her girlhood at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clarence P. Capron, parents of Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, and it was during these visits that she made many friends here. Since her marriage, Mrs. Alexander and her son, then a little fellow about 5 years of age, were guests for a few weeks of Dr. and Mrs. Lamb. At that time Joe was greatly admired by everyone who saw him, as he was not only spoken of as a beautiful child but it often occasioned remarks because of his intellect for one so young.

Mrs. Lena Gardner Taylor of New London spent Tuesday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Thurston B. Barber of Peck's Corner. Mrs. Barber is in receipt of a letter of acknowledgment from Mrs. W. C. Townsend of Antigua, Guatemala, Central America, for a roll of colored pictures taken from popular magazines. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend have been missionaries among the Indians since 1918, of the 2,300,000 inhabitants of Guatemala 50 per cent. are said to be full blooded Indians. Mrs. Barber has received several letters printed by the Indians within the last few months.

The First Congregational prayer service this (Thursday) evening is to be held at the parsonage instead of the chapel, the usual custom. The subject will be The Creator.

Following the Christmas vacation of two weeks, the schools in this district reopened on Tuesday morning for the mid-winter term.

Miss Margaret Lucy Mahoney of Scotland road spent New Year's day and is remaining a week as the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Lucy, of Asylum avenue, Hartford.

Having passed a week in Marshfield, Mass., at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Frisbie, Mrs. Maud Smith and little daughter Beatrice have returned to their home on Town street.

Miss Doris Estelle Rose and Miss Muriel Blanche Rose returned New Year's day to their home at Haughton farm, Uncasville, after spending the Christmas vacation at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Rose, of Wauwecus Hill. They were accompanied by their great-aunt, Mrs. Frederick H. Buzzell, of Huntington avenue.

Miss Agnes Murphy has returned to Boston after spending the New Year holidays at Pine Tree cottage.

Miss Mary Curry has resumed teaching in South Norwalk after spending the Christmas recess at her home here.

Yantic mothers will be interested to learn that arrangements have now been completed for the Well Babies' Conferences which are to be held in Yantic. The Parish House has been offered for these meetings, and they will be held every two weeks on Friday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30. The conferences will be in charge of the Public Health Nurses connected with The United Workers. The nurses will weigh the babies and discuss problems relating to the care of well babies. The first conference will be held Friday, Jan. 12, and it is hoped that mothers will take advantage of this opportunity to secure expert advice and service, as the meetings have been arranged for their convenience.

VINEYARD HAVEN CHURCH TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE

The church at Vineyard Haven from which Rev. J. Harlow Graham recently came to the pastorate of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church in this city was totally destroyed by fire Sunday.

Rev. E. J. Curry of East Greenwich, who had been appointed to take the pastorate left vacant by the transfer of Rev. Mr. Graham, is to go at once to Vineyard Haven, having completed his duties at East Greenwich last Sunday.

The Vineyard Haven church was a frame building of old Colonial type, seating from 300 to 400, and located in the center of the business section of the town overlooking the harbor.

TAFTVILLE

The heavy snow Wednesday night put the damper on traffic again, and automobile owners who were planning on long trips over the week end, jacked up their cars and drained their radiators. Desperate efforts were made to keep the trolleys running on schedule time, the snowplows of the Connecticut company passing over the tracks at frequent intervals, but some of the grades in the Wequonnoc school failed to hold sessions Thursday morning, because of the inability of some of the teachers to arrive on time. The state roads were open and the Ponemah Mills snowplows were out early Thursday morning, breaking open paths about the village streets. In many places in the village, especially between the houses, the snow was knee deep. Milkmen and grocers were late in making their rounds. Truckmen experienced great difficulty in breaking through and on Wednesday night some trucks had to be abandoned, as the drivers were unable to see the roads in the blinding snowstorm, and could not operate their vehicles. One truck left the road entirely in Lisbon and had to stand outside over night. Post Office hill again proved a Waterloo to motorists. Those who came north on Norwich avenue and swung to the left to make the turn on the hill, invariably found themselves against the curb on the right side of the road, and a great amount of digging, scraping and backing was necessary before the car could be driven away from the curb. The roads in Lisbon were in good shape, having been broken through early Thursday morning.

Several boys visited the aquarium of Earle M. Wood on North Third avenue, Wednesday evening, to see the various species of native cold water and tropical fishes kept in balanced aquaria. Many of the tropical fish have been bred in this aquarium. Later the boys enjoyed games, and a spread at nine o'clock. Those present were Edwin Krodell, Manuel Martin, Peter Lukoff, Edward Martin, Forrest Heinrich and John Holland.

Dominic Benoit of Providence street has resigned his position with the Ponemah company and has left town for Moosup, where he has accepted a position.

The Home Department of the Taftville Congregational Sunday school is planning a social for its members next week, to be held at the church.

St. Veronica's T. A. B. society met Wednesday evening in their rooms on Providence street. The annual election of officers which was to have been held at this meeting was postponed until next meeting.

START ON PLANS FOR ANNUAL COUNTY FAIR NEXT SEPTEMBER

Members of the executive committee of the New London County Agricultural society met Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the office of Secretary Gilbert S. Raymond at 20 Shetucket street when plans were made for the fair of the present year. It was evident that the members of the committee are greatly interested in the program of the society for the year of 1923 for nine of the twelve members of the committee were present, the other three being unable to attend because of the storm of Wednesday night. The business transacted follows:

President, Elmer R. Pierson; treasurer, Albert J. Bailey; secretary, Gilbert S. Raymond and Lyman L. Chapman were appointed a building committee for the current year. President Pierson, Treasurer Bailey and Charles D. Greenman were appointed a finance committee.

President Pierson, Treasurer Bailey and Secretary Raymond were elected delegates to attend the meetings of the New England Fair association and the Connecticut Fair association.

Secretary Raymond was authorized to hire all vaudeville acts for the 1923 fair, to sell the privileges of the midway garage, and to take charge of all advertising for the fair.

Speed Secretary A. J. Bailey was authorized to take charge of the entire 1923 racing program, with power, also to select a man for the position of starting judge.

It was voted to purchase the small building on the fair ground property owned by Edward N. O'Brien of Montville, the society making this purchase in their endeavor to own and control in time all buildings on the fair grounds property.

From all indications the fair of 1923 will see some of the fastest racing ever scheduled at the fair grounds by the society as Speed Secretary Bailey has arranged to offer several $1,000 purses for stake races. Already word has been received from owners and trainers of fast horses stating that they intend to make Norwich during the fair this year and race their horses in these events.

The best of vaudeville acts are to be secured, a midway of a varied number of entertainments signed up, and everything possible is to be done to make the 1923 fair bigger and better than any fair held previously at the grounds of the society.

The fair will open as usual on Labor Day, Monday, September 3 and continue through the 4th and 5th.

The following twelve members have been elected to the executive committee: Elmer R. Pierson, president; Albert J. Bailey, treasurer; Gilbert S. Raymond, secretary; Lyman L. Chapman, Charles D. Greenman and George G. Grant, all of Norwich; George G. Avery of New London; Simon Brewster of Griswold; Griswold H. Morgan of Salem; George A. Kahn of Franklin; Edward N. O'Brien of Montville; and Joseph A. Clark of Ledyard.

The executive committee has been empowered with general control and direction of all matters leading up to the next fair.

STATE IS ESTABLISHING MENTAL HYGIENE CLINICS

One cardinal reason for the brilliant success of the anti-tuberculosis movement has been the fact that the public have received adequate and accurate information regarding tuberculosis. An enlightened public demanded and secured facilities for combatting the disease with well known results, says a bulletin of the state board of health.

In the field of mental diseases, it is usual to find much popular ignorance and misinformation, plus public indifference. The reason for this may be that mental disorders seem hard to comprehend and are thought of as unpleasant. The same might be said of smallpox or consumption, but the fight against these diseases goes on year after year with unceasing vigor. It would seem in the last analysis that the attitude of the public in regard to mental and nervous diseases is really due to lack of knowledge of the subject.

Much would be gained if a clearer understanding could be had of the term "insanity." Insanity is a legal concept, not a medical one. That a person is adjudged insane does not in any way allow the fact that he is sick—mentally sick—and is entitled to as much medical consideration as his fellow with heart disease. The mediaeval stigma which still tends, according to the mentally sick results in such reluctance on the part of family and friends to provide hospital treatment for the sufferer that the prospect of successful treatment and ultimate recovery is greatly diminished thereby. Think of insanity as a mental disease and our state hospitals as hospitals and not benighted asylums. The straight jacket and padded cell are relics of the past and the old custodial atmosphere of the asylum has given way to active medical treatment and reeducational effort.

How to get mental patients under treatment at an early date has been a problem trying the souls of psychiatrists for many years. It seems probable on the light of recent experience that mental clinics do much to solve the problem. In the state of New York where 40 mental clinics are operated under state supervision 14,000 individuals were advised about their condition, of which number 6,000 were formerly state hospital patients.

In Connecticut the state department of health has established free mental clinics in Hartford, Waterbury, New Haven, Bridgeport and Stamford. There is a definite need for more of these clinics and the department hopes to have sufficient funds to establish clinics wherever the demand will justify them.

These clinics are not only for those actually suffering from mental disease but for all persons having "nervous troubles" which interferes with health, happiness or efficiency.

Inquiry concerning these clinics may be addressed to the State Board of Health, Division of Mental Hygiene, Hartford.

EXECUTIVES REPLY TO SHOPMEN'S UNION PRESIDENT

William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, a labor union of railroad shopmen, has sent a letter to the interstate commerce commission asking that body "to make an immediate investigation of the expenditure of funds by the railroad companies of this country for the maintenance of their equipment since July 1st, 1922." The Association of Railway Executives today issued Thursday is:

"In response to numerous inquiries received by the Connecticut Fuel Administration with reference to storing soft coal and also on removal of soot from chimneys a bulletin has been issued by Fuel Administrator Thomas W. Russell, giving definite instructions which have been endorsed and recommended by the National Fire Protection Association.

Large quantities of soft coal are being stored by mercantile establishments and industries because of the fear of a fuel shortage during the winter. The danger of spontaneous combustion in this causes a serious fire hazard, and unusual care should be exercised by the owners of such properties. The hazard can be reduced by proper selection of the grades and sizes of soft coal and the exercise of proper precautions in its handling and storage.

Where large quantities of soft coal are stored in the open it should be in separate piles, so that a fire starting will not spread through the entire supply, and the affected pile can be extinguished or moved. Where the coal is stored in basements the fuel administration suggests the following precautions:

Coal the size of a walnut or larger is well adapted for storing. Mine run, slack or screenings, on account of fine coal and dust, are not suited for storage in a basement.

Never place coal near a hot pipe, against a hot furnace or any other hot surface.

Do not mix ashes with the coal as there may be live coals in the ashes.

If coal must be wet down, wet only the portion that is to be used immediately.

It is very important that pieces of waste, oily rags, sticks, paper and other rubbish should not be mixed, or allowed to come in contact with the coal.

Special attention should be paid to the proper cleaning of flues and chimneys regularly.

Removal of Soot.

Large numbers of shingle roof and detective flue fires are being reported, due to the increasing use of soft coal. The accumulations of soot on heating surfaces reduce the value of the fuel and frequently clog the flues and stacks. The federal fuel administration board suggest the following plan for removal of soot:

The fire is put into good condition with a substantial body of hot fuel. Common salt, thoroughly dried, is then thrown or sprinkled on to the incandescent fuel bed in a quantity depending entirely on the size of the furnace. In the case of a house heating furnace one pound at a time is ample, and in the case of a large power plant boiler four or five scoops full may be required. The dampers are kept open so as to maintain the furnace temperature and the salt is allowed to remain until the fumes have entirely disappeared.

Immediately upon charging the salt, the furnace becomes filled with dense white fumes which may require as much as half an hour to entirely disappear. If results are not secured on the first application, it should be repeated as many times as necessary.

Once the heating surface is thoroughly cleaned a small application every few days is usually sufficient to keep it so.

Everyone using soft coal is urged by the administration to use this remarkably simple and cheap process for getting rid of the soot, cleaning and heating surfaces of boilers, thus saving large amounts of coal, preventing fires from chimneys and generally conserving all along the line of heating and the production of power.

STATE SENATORS KILL PROPOSED FRIDAY SESSIONS

The general assembly session of 1923 struck a disagreement Wednesday within a few hours after it had been convened when an effort was made to secure adoption of a resolution providing for four legislative days a week instead of the customary three.

Introduced by House Leader John Buckley with the explanation that it meant the expediting of the session, the resolution quickly passed the house, but was stopped in the senate by the adoption of a motion to table it. The effect of the resolution would be to order legislative sessions on Fridays from January 26 on. The latter date was fixed as the limit for the introduction of new business.

$75,000 WATER DAMAGE IN P. M. & B. PORTLAND STORE

Stock of the Porteous Mitchell & Braun Company department store at Portland, Me., was damaged $75,000 by water Tuesday night because of a fire that started on the top floor of the five-story Congress street structure from defective wiring or spontaneous combustion. Loss by flames will not reach $500. All was covered by insurance.

Firemen were prevented by smoke from entering the top floor by interior stairways, and dragged hose up fire escapes and burst in windows. Water which they poured, and that from the sprinkler system seeped through every floor to the basement and thoroughly soaked a large part of the $800,000 stock of drygoods, wearing apparel and home furnishings of all sorts.

John A. Porteous and Robert Braun, both former Norwich men, were at the head of the Portland store.

John Porteous of this city, who is president of the company, left here on Wednesday night for Portland, after he had received word of the fire.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFFS IN MONUMENT CASE

A jury in the court of common pleas at New London Wednesday afternoon returned a verdict of $307.18 for the plaintiffs in the case of Mrs. Lottie Phillips and her mother, Mrs. Ida Daniels, of East Lyme, against Settimio Giordani, a New London monumental contractor. The suit was to recover $385, which the plaintiffs paid on the contract for carving and erection of a cemetery monument and the verdict was for the full amount paid and interest.

The defendant made a cemetery memorial for the plaintiffs which was intended to represent a horse. The plaintiffs claimed that the monument was not lifelike and realistic and declined to pay a balance on a contract price of $350 and sued to recover the amount they paid.

The suit was a sequel to the arrest of Giordani several months ago on a charge of theft when he went to the cemetery and removed the stone from the grave after he had been unable to collect the balance of the money from the plaintiffs.

The case wound up the jury term of the court and the jury was paid off and dismissed. The jury had been in attendance for about six weeks.

ARE PLANNING COERCIVE ACTION AGAINST GERMANY

France, Italy and Belgium Have Abandoned Any Idea of a Hasty Entrance Into the Ruhr Region of Germany—No Civil or Military Movements Will be Undertaken Until After January 15, When It is Anticipated That Germany Will Default on Payment of 500,000,000 Gold Marks—Great Britain is Not Disposed to Force the Issue Created by the Breakdown of the Paris Conference.

Paris, Jan. 5—(By the A. P.)—France and her remaining allies, Italy and Belgium, have abandoned any idea of a hasty entrance into the Ruhr region of Germany, and tonight have settled down carefully to plan their coercive action against Germany.

There seemed little likelihood after today's conferences between M. Poincare, the French premier; the Marquis Della Torretta, the Italian delegate, and M. Theunis and M. Jarpar, the representatives of Belgium, that any civil or military movements into Westphalia would be undertaken until after January 15.

Germany on that date, it is taken for granted, will default on the 500,000,000 gold marks due under the old schedule of payments, suspended during 1922.

American suggestions, it is felt here, would have ample time to be presented to M. Poincare before he finally issues marching orders to engineers and customs officers and their military escort whether the letter is to be merely a guard or any army.

Washington despatches inspire a certain amount of hope that President Harding may offer some plan which would forestall independent action by France. It was learned in an authoritative source, today, however, that American officials in Europe see no change for any American move in the premises, being successful at this time, short of a promise to cancel debts and arrange a loan, and have so informed the Washington government. Since cancellation and a loan seem out of the question under present conditions, it apparently is the belief of the Americans that it would be futile merely to offer advice.

The opinion apparently prevails here that the Washington government has been counselled to remain quiet until the French go into the Ruhr and have an opportunity to test the value of whatever plan they finally evolve. If the French plan proves failure, as Americans observers think it will, it is pointed out that then would be the opportune moment to suggest to France that all the allies, with the United States, might usefully get together at an economic conference and reconsider the whole question.

Exactly what France purposes to do has not been finally determined. Premier Poincare's intention to seize German government property in the Ruhr included, when it was first proposed, heavy military support; but the French plan offered at the premiers' conference partook somewhat of fiscal supervision. This latter plan, however, is a compromise offered by Great Britain, and France no longer is bound by it.

M. Poincare's "amicable disagreement" with Mr. Bonar Law, however, and knowledge that the United States may yet take a hand in affairs will, it is believed, make M. Poincare tend toward progressive action, beginning mildly with limited action and increasing its scope if the Germans are not impressed and as the efficacy of the movement is demonstrated. This also would make it easy for Great Britain and the United States to prepare some substituted plan before the French government was fully developed.

Italy and Belgium lined up with France in opposing the British proposal, but how far Italy will go toward supporting a purely French plan seems to some of the political observers a matter of doubt, although it has been said that the Italian premier, Signor Mussolini, might even send a small Italian detachment into Germany as proof of his cooperation with France. Marquis Della Torretta, who represented Italy at the premiers' conference, left tonight for Rome to confer with Mussolini.

M. Poincare's ideas will be put before his cabinet at a meeting tomorrow morning. There undoubtedly is a well though-out plan which is ready for action, but the finishing touches are needed in view of the situation, for this is France's first day of what the newspapers call "freedom" from the necessity of getting Great Britain's consent; and there is a new sense of responsibility and its accompanying need for caution.

General Weygand, right hand man to Marshal Foch, was called back to Paris from Lausanne tonight, although military plans long ago were worked out for any possible movements in the Ruhr. French headquarters at Mayence, as usual in all political crises, has stopped leaves of absence and prepared for quick action as a matter of routine. There has been, however, no suggestion of an immediate move in any quarter.

Premier Poincare's determination to proceed under the Versailles treaty is causing him to seek from the reparations commission, authority that will give France the legal right to compel Germany to pay. This policy, initiated when the reparations commission declared Germany in voluntary default on wood deliveries, is expected to be strengthened tomorrow by similar action on the part of the commission in registering a default on coal deliveries.

M. Poincare is understood to feel that these two declarations by the commission will give him the desired legal authority to move against Germany; but it is likely that he will wait a decision of the commission refusing the moratorium Germany requested some time ago. Having waited for such measures there could be but a few days delay until the payment of 500,000,000 gold marks by Germany falls due January 15. It is thought, therefore, that M. Poincare will delay action until this expected culminating default.

BRITAIN NOT TO FORCE REPARATIONS ISSUE

London, Jan. 5 (By the A. P.)—The British government clearly intends to do nothing to hurry or force the situation produced by the breakdown in the Paris conference of the premiers on the question of reparations.

Andrew Bonar Law, the British prime minister, returned quietly to his official home in Downing street from Paris. He called no gathering of the newspapermen to listen to the results of the Paris conference, contenting himself with stating that he had said all he desired to say about the conference before he left Paris.

"Nothing can usefully be said at the present moment about the Paris conference or its result," he declared as he alighted from his train at the Victoria station.

Likewise the other British officials who travelled with the premier were unresponsive to questions put to them, although several of them did assert that Great Britain would wait for France to take the initiative in her independent policy against Germany on reparations. The premier gave no intimation that a cabinet meeting would be called for tomorrow to discuss the trend of events.

A day's reflection has not induced the British press and public to take a more despairing view of effect of the rupture of the negotiations at Paris. Two possible issues from the impasse are being widely discussed. First of these, and the one attracting the far greatest attention, is the possibility of the United States coming to the aid of Europe. Such a solution of the controversy is being discussed on all sides, and from every possible angle, for it is recognized that there now exists two distinctly opposing blocs on the reparations question.

The first consists of France, Belgium and Italy, who are united to carry out the letter of the Versailles treaty, and the second of Great Britain and the United States, which are equally desirous of some revision of that treaty, whic hwill enable Germany to gain time to reconstitute her economic life.

The firm conviction is generally held here that the inevitable surge of the economic movement in time will give the Anglo-American bloc the ascendency. In this connection the belief prevails that the continued downward trend in the French franc and the Italian lire, coming with every failure to adjust the reparations problem, eventually will have great influence on public opinion both in France and Italy.

The second issue offering a possible solution of the situation is strongly stressed by the weekly nation. It is that M. Poincare's policy does not necessarily carry the whole of France with it. The nation points out that Louis Loucheur, former minister of devastated regions, is completely opposed to M. Poincare's policy, and that other official French statesmen, like former Premier Briand, Louis Barthou, president of the reparations commission, and Andre Tardieu, are far from being in sympathy with Poincare's nationalism.

The Nation in an article pleading for an Anglo-American policy thinks the present action of the United States administration gives Bonar Law a good chance of getting behind Poincare's stone wall and of forcing Poincare to face a definite dilemma.

"If Poincare won't budge from his demand for sanctions and refuses to submit the economic question to the verdict of an unbiased economic tribunal," says The Nation, "then he will make it clear to the world that the objects of French policy are not economic but political, namely by military force to complete the subjugation of Germany and maintain her weakness."

There is a certain amount of speculation on what Great Britain will do if France decides to act alone and take military steps against Germany. It seems to be generally supposed that the British government would lodge a formal protest against such action and possibly withdraw its troops from the Rhine. The general view, however, apparently is that France will take no precipitate action, and that there still is time before January 15 for some new development.

BROTHER SAYS MAX SPIEGEL TWICE ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

New York, Jan. 5.—Max Spiegel, theatrical producer, who failed for nearly $1,000,000 recently, twice attempted suicide and was then placed in a Connecticut sanatorium, Dr. Leo Spiegel, his brother, testified at a bankruptcy hearing today. Dr. Spiegel said his brother was suffering from a mental breakdown caused by worry over his business affairs.

Mrs. Mitchel H. Mark, the bankrupt's mother-in-law, testified that he had told her of alleged irregularities in his affairs after his second attempt at suicide. A few days before Spiegel was removed to the sanatorium, she said, a meeting of his associates was held and he was told of the discovery of the alleged irregularities.

FURTHER DESCRIPTIONS GIVEN OF HERRIN MASSACRE

Marion, Ills., Jan. 5.—(By the A. P.)—Thirteen eye witnesses took the stand today for the defense at the trial of five men in connection with the Herrin riots in which 20 non-union and three union miners were killed, and testified they had seen six prisoners driven through the streets of the little mining town toward the cemetery where they were shot down the morning of June 22. All of the witnesses, long residents of Herrin, united in declaring they had not seen a single one of the defendants among the marchers.

Previously, one witness for the state testified that he had seen Leva Mann, a defendant, with a gun, escorting the six prisoners, and another asserted he had seen Joe Carnaghi, another defendant twice empty a pistol into the bodies of the prisoners as they lay in the road at the cemetery at the edge of the town. A third witness for the prosecution testified that he had seen Bert Grace, also a defendant, with a gun at the cemetery.

The defense witnesses asserted they had watched the marchers from various points from the time they entered Herrin until they left, going toward the cemetery. All agreed that the six prisoners were marching two abreast ahead of a group of men variously estimated at from ten to twenty. Several said they had seen two or three of these men with guns, one declared he had seen one man brandish a pistol while others declared they had seen no firearms of any description.

McKOIN OUT ON BONDS, TO REMAIN IN LOUISIANA

Bastrop, La., Jan. 5.—Dr. B. M. McKoin, former mayor of the village of Mer Rouge, arrested in Baltimore, December 26, on a charge of murder in connection with slaying of Watt Daniels and T. F. Richards, masked band victims, returned to Morehouse Parish late today and conferred with A. V. Coco, state attorney general.

After the conference, Mr. Coco announced that an agreement had been reached for the release of Mr. McKoin, with the understanding that he would furnish bond to insure that he would remain within the jurisdiction of the Louisiana authorities.

Dr. McKoin left with his attorneys immediately after the conference with the attorney general and it was stated, would return to his home in Monroe, pending decision as to the amount of bond to be required.

Judge Odom announced tonight that he had fixed Dr. McKoin's bond at $5,000, which he furnished and was released. It was stated by Judge Odom that the charge against Dr. McKoin was the same as that originally made against him when he was arrested in Baltimore, that of murder. His release on bond, Judge Odom said, was on recommendation of the attorney general.

ARGUMENTS IN CASE OF THEATRE TICKET BROKERS

New York, Jan. 5.—Constitutionality of the state law requiring the licensing of all theatre ticket brokers and restricting their commission to 50 cents on each ticket was assailed by Louis Marshall, of Guggenheim, Untermyer & Marshall, today when he appeared in special sessions court to defend Reuben Weller, a broker accused of selling tickets without license at an advance of more than 50 cents over the box office price.

"I have been informed," said Prof. Robert D. Petty, of New York Law school, who headed the corps of prosecuting attorneys assigned to the case by District Attorney Banton, "that about fifteen men control all of the choice seats of the theatres of this city. The common people cannot afford to pay the prices asked by teh ticket speculators. You have got to be a man of welath to sit in the front row of the theatres. I cannot afford to sit there at the prices that are charged."

General belief was expressed by democrats opponents that the agreement would be blocked through objection.

Lausanne Conference Approaching Climax

British and French Not to Allow Reparations "Rupture" to Affect the Lausanne Proceedings.

Lausanne, Jan. 5. (By the A. P.)—Plainly, affairs are approaching a climax at the Near East conference. Whether the results are negative or satisfactory, the various sub-commissions are holding their "last" meetings and the great issues of the conference on which no accord has yet been reached will be fought out at sessions of the full commissions.

The allied representatives are agreed there has been enough detailed discussion and that the conference must begin to wind up its labors. Both the British and French spokesmen declared today that the "amicable rupture" over reparations at Paris will not affect the Lausanne proceedings and that if the British and French disagree on reparations it is no reason why they should disagree on the compelling necessity of restoring peace in the Near East.

That France gives far reaching importance to Near Eastern matters is seen in the fact that M. Barrere will leave for Paris tomorrow night to consult with Premier Poincare. He will return to Lausanne Tuesday. M. Barrere has the admiration of all the delegation, including the Turkish and American, for his skilful, although perfectly open, diplomacy in seeking to harmonize the widely divergent views which the plenipotentiaries have been called upon to reconcile.

M. Barrere has rallied vigorously to the support of the French economic and financial claims and has been endeavoring to induce the Turks to see the reasonableness of the allied and American view on capitulations. It is expected his consultation with M. Poincare will have a decisive influence on the conference which now is about to emerge from a deadlock period to enter a crisis stage.

The attitude taken by the Turks today relative to the Ottoman debt had a chilling effect on those expecting signature of peace. Previously the Turks had insisted that the Turkish debt accumulated during the war while fighting on the side of Germany should be distributed as a debt between present-day Turkey and those districts like Syria and Mesopotamia, now detached from Turkey, but it was only today, at the final session of the financial sub-commission that they announced the figures of their total internal debt.

These figures show an increase from 150,000,000 Turkish gold pounds to 400,000,000. The new total was reached by adding the amount of paper money issued during the war, the various internal war loans and 25,000,000 pounds for war materials requisitioned during the war. The allied representatives insisted that they could not admit these charges as the allies could not recognize that Turkey's war expenses should be borne by the succession states.

Today's proceedings were farcical," was how one allied representative referred to the Turkish claims.

The American ambassador to Italy, Richard Washburn Child, was present at today's conference of allied leaders where the first ensuing move by the allies was to send a note to the Turks asking them to attend a session of the full commission on capitulations tomorrow afternoon.

Capitulations and the Mosul oil area are the two main danger points in the Near Eastern pourparlers. One of the questions being asked is whether the Turks will offer any counter project on the question of foreign courts, and it is considered probable that Lansanne will find out tomorrow. The allies have suggested a purely temporary judicial regime under which foreign justices to be appointed by The Hague court would sit with Turkish judges. The Turks have declared this to be against their sovereignty rights.

Tomorrow will be held the final gathering of the sub-commission on minorities, to examine into the problems of amnesty, military service exemption for Christians in Turkey and an Armenian national home.

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM SPRINGFIELD COURT ROOM

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 5.—While a jury in superior criminal court was finding him guilty of charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, Frank Emiconi disappeared from the crowded court room late this afternoon. The police dragnet was extended throughout this section tonight but all efforts to locate the missing man have so far been unsuccessful. Emiconi with John Supinsky was charged with robbing Wajciech Kash at the point of a gun last September. Supinsky is serving a sentence on a charge of assault and was in the prisoners' cage during the trial. Emiconi was out on $2,000 bail but was present at the trial, sitting next to the cage. As the jury filed into the room both men were ordered to stand up and then for the first time it was found that Emiciono had disappeared. His bail was ordered defaulted.

Still Apart on Basis of Miners' Wage Scale

Joint Conference of Miners and Operators Has Adjourned—To be Renewed in New York, Jan. 17 to 22.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Return to the old central competitive field as a basis for fixing wage scales in bituminous coal fields seemed a certainty here today with the adjournment of the joint conference of fifteen districts and the understanding among operators and miners that a call would be issued for a conference to be held in New York Jan. 17 to 22.

The call for the New York meeting is expected to be issued by John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America, and signed by Phil H. Penna, president of the Indiana operators' association and chairman of the conference just ended, but acting in this instance only as an individual.

The joint conference adjourning sine die today without reaching any agreement upon which to base wage scale agreements, ends a series of meetings and conferences which began in Cleveland in October, 1922. The conference embracing fifteen districts was too large, some said. This, with the many divergent opinions among operators, was blamed by many to be the cause of failure.

The new call is understood by operators to include the old central competitive field of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania, with the possibility of including a few adjacent states. Operators of the old four-state group appeared to be the only ones working harmoniously during the recent conference.

Lewis directly blamed the inability of operators to decide upon some plan for failure of the conference but expressed the belief that in the near future it may be possible to assemble a joint conference which will give promise of concrete accomplishment.

In a telegram despatched to John Hays Hammond, chairman of President Harding's fact finding commission, immediately after adjournment of the joint conference, the operators declared they had made earnest efforts to reach an agreement, but the cumbersomeness of a nation-wide conference had made this impossible.

"The operators' proposal to the conference was the only one upon which agreement could be reached among themselves," the telegram stated, referring to the district settlement plan offered yesterday. "We further believe it offered a practicable solution of our difficulties. We regret that the miners could not agree with us on this proposal. No other solution can come from this conference."

The likelihood of a strike April 1, when present agreements expire, is but slightly increased by the failure of this conference, according to the beliefs expressed by operators and miners, almost all of them placing confidence in the meeting to be called.

CLASS ONE RAILROADS SHOW INCREASED EARNINGS

Washington, Jan. 5.—Class 1 railroads of the United States earned during November a net operating income of $78,860,000, according to returns filed with the interstate commerce commission and compiled today by the Association of Railway Executives. This compares with $66,884,000 during the same month in 1921, and represents, the association calculated, an annual return rate of 4.46 per cent on the estimated value of property invested in transportation.

The carriers' total receipts during the month amounted to $522,631,000, while their expenditures in operating amounted to $409,146,000. Both of these items increased over the same figures compiled for November, 1921, the receipts by 13.2 per cent. and the expenditures by 11.2 per cent.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Jan. 5.—(By the A. P.)—Twelve persons were killed and forty injured today in an explosion of old shells at the establishment of a junk dealer. Many persons are missing. The dealer purchased the shells from the interallied disarmament commission which is liquidating the Bulgarian war stocks under the terms of the peace treaty.

CHICAGO OPERA SINGER RECEIVES "BLACK HAND" LETTER

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Tito Schipa, tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera company, today turned over to postal inspectors a "Black Hand" letter demanding $50,000, under penalty of death. There were rumors other singers had received similar letters. The letter was written in Italian and translated read in part:

"We need desperately $50.000 to help our friends. Not more than three days are given you for this, that is to raise this amount of money. If you refuse this request, calamity will befall you."

PREPARE FOR WISE BUYING

Probably you have read the fable of the grass hopper and the ant. How the ant prepared for the winter and the grass hopper only played, and later starved.

And the moral—do you interpret it?

When you buy do you purchase any kind of product? Or do you prepare for wise buying by reading the advertisements and selecting the article that will do you the most good?

Advertised products are the best possible buys. They must give greatest value because they have a good name to protect. Manufacturers of well-known articles and merchants value their names at millions of dollars. They cannot afford to jeopardize the worth of their names by selling any but the best quality at the most reasonable prices.

Buy with forethought. And read the advertisements in The Bulletin daily to see what to get and where to get it. Get the benefit that is to be found in the advertisements.

POSITION OF UNITED STATES ON REPARATIONS QUESTION

Cannot Properly Go Beyond Suggestion Made by Secretary of State Hughes That International Leaders be Asked to Propose a Reparations Solution—Secretary's Hint Was Made With a Friendly Object, Particularly to France—Ambassador Jusserand of France Was Among Secretary Hughes' Visitors Yesterday—President Harding Hopes That a Way Out of the Tangle Will be Found Before Drastic Action is Taken by France.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The Washington government is waiting on developments in the reparations crisis. It sees no present opportunity to make American help available to Europe.

This was the substance of authoritative glimpses of the situation given today both at the White House and at the state department. It was said flatly at the White House the administration had no plan at this time for calling an international conference. At the state department it was said with equal emphasis that the American government could not properly go beyond what it has already in Secretary Hughes' suggestion that international leaders be asked to propose a reparations solution.

That suggestion, made in Mr. Hughes' recent speech at New Haven, still is before the allied governments. It was intimated today that Washington officials were without knowledge as to whether the French authorities were inclined to the drastic measures of the French reparations plan upon which the council of premiers split yesterday in Paris.

With action thus halted on the reparations question so far as administration officials are concerned, senate consideration of the crisis also came to a temporary stop during the day. The resolution offered by Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas to authorise official American representation on the reparations commission, was before the foreign relations committee, but action, and even debate, was deferred until Chairman Lodge could confer with Secretary Hughes and obtain official word as to the desires of the administration on the proposal. He is expected to see the secretary tomorrow morning and report back to his committee.

Direct comment on the Robinson proposal is withheld, both at the White House and at the state department. At the White House, however, the significant statement was made that the question of representation on the reparations commission had ceased to be of pressing importance, in view of developments in Paris. It was indicated that the view taken by administration officials is that the rupture of Paris on reparations plans has dislocated the whole relation of the commission to the problem as that relationship was planned in the treaty of Versailles. Presumably, that will be the view expressed to Senator Lodge by Secretary Hughes.

It is a curious sidelight on the American angle on the reparations crisis that President Harding and his cabinet did not find anything in the situation for joint consideration when they met today. The subject was not taken up. That fact alone is interpreted as clearly outlining the waiting attitude in which the Washington government finds itself, with all initiative for new efforts at a settlement resting in the hands of European statesmen. There is no effort, however, to disguise the grave concern with which the European tangle is viewed in Washington.

It was explained officially at the state department that there is no basis upon the Washington government can rest a formal proposal of any character to the allies at this juncture. The problem is theirs, deeply as it may affect American interests, present or future. Control of the situation is in their hands and the United States cannot properly and with any hope of accomplishing good, do more than it has done in making a suggestion as to ways and means by which it believes the European governments can find a way to agreement and also to American economic aid in world recuperation.

It is now clear that Secretary Hughes made his suggestions in the way he did and also selected the time for his utterance after most careful weighing of the possible effect of what he would say. It was desired to avoid any possible impression that America was seeking to force its views upon the allies.

It also was Mr. Hughes purpose to emphasize in every way the wholly friendly object of his hint, particularly to France, for there is no lack of understanding in Washington of the peculiar difficulties of French statesmen in the face of the trend of French public opinion.

It would be going much too far to say that President Harding and his advisers are without hope that a way out of the tangle will be disclosed before drastic action is taken by the French; yet there appears to be no definite grounds for their hopes so far as was learned today. There is still time, however, if France concludes that some such course as Mr. Hughes suggested would be a wise one to pursue.

Ambassador Jusserand was among Secretary Hughes' callers late today. Presumably, he went to the state department under the instructions cabled by Premier Poincare to amplify the statement he had already made of France's reasons for rejecting the German proposal for a one-generation peace pact among the powers directly interested in the Rhine problem. There was no word either from the embassy or from the department, however, as to the nature and purport of the visit.

"Words I have said to the secretary are his property to do with as he will," was all Ambassador Jusserand would say afterward.

Mr Hughes, however, declined to make any statement.

Before the ambassador called, Mr. Hughes had spent considerable time in conference with Ambassador Harvey. As had been the case with every previous meeting, however, no statement of the nature of the conversations was obtainable from any authorized source.

WOULD DISCONTINUE WOMEN'S WARD AT WETHERSFIELD PRISON

Hartford, Jan. 5.—Removal of all women prisoners from the state prison and the discontinuance of the women's ward was recommended to the governor in the biennial report of the directors on the institution, made public today. It was also proposed that life prisoners be made eligible for parole after twenty-five years' imprisonment.

"It is the judgment of the directors," says the report, "that the state should develop its farm for women and send there all women who merit prison confinement including those guilty of capital crimes. Other states have worked this problem out successfully and we feel sure that if Connecticut will make the necessary investigation the conviction will be reached that the penitentiary is not the place for the few women sent there, and that an institution in which all women of the criminal class are confined would best serve the interests of society." The alternative is to extend the women's quarters at the prison and provide more room for their recreation. At present, female prisoners have only a small court in which to exercise.

There are now ten women in the prison who would be transferred to the state farm at Bride Lake, Niantic, if the recommendation of the prison directors would be adopted by the legislature.

"It has long been the conviction of the directors that life prisoners should be eligible to parole after twenty-five years' imprisonment and have so recommended in previous reports," says the statement of the directors.

"The philosophy which supports this recommendation," the statement continued, relaxes none of the horror of this major phase of criminal indulgence nor does it modify and minimize the sternness of society's attitude towards it. It proceeds in the hope that even this class of offenders may both propitiate their crimes according to the requirements of the law and yet be restored to a useful and creditable place among their fellow creatures. Admitting this class to possible parole rights would go far to clarify the study of penology and hasten the solution of the problem involved."

Earnings from prison labor during the last fiscal year aggregated $130,464.12, and for the previous year $152,215.14. Additional miscellaneous earnings brought the total for the last year to $146,523.50.

NEW YORK LAUNDRYMEN CHARGED WITH ARSON

New York, Jan. 5.—Philip Elson, president of the Wet Wash Laundrymen's Protective Association, was arrested with two others tonight, charged with arson in the first degree, as the result of police investigation of an alleged war between rival laundry concerns, which culminated recently in a series of mysterious fires throughout greater New York.

The arrest of the association chief was based on evidence that Elson was the master mind who directed hired incendiaries to destroy by fire and acid laundry buildings and their contents, at the rate of from $150 to $200 a job, according to Assistant District Attorney Murphy. The two others arrested today were Morris Echleman of the Bronx and Boris Aimia, of Seagate.

Murphy asserted he would ask the court that none of the trio be released in less than $50,00 bail. Seven other arrests already have been made in connection with the arson ring investigation. Three for arso nand four on burglary charges. None of the accused has been indicted.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office

Main street presented a busy scene Friday when members of the street department and considerable extra help began the work of removing the high walls of snow which lined the curbings. When Thursday's sixteen inches of snow had fallen the city snow plow got busy and plowed all the snow from the center of the street to the curbing which gave Main street the appearance of a park. Late Friday practically all traces of the storm had been wiped out from the main thoroughfare and a number of residents were heard to pass favorable comments on the fine conditions of the city streets and sidewalks.

John Cost Wingertsman who is a coal hoist engineer at the Columbia Junction engine round house of the New Haven railroad was seriously injured about 10 o'clock Friday morning when his right foot became jammed between a revolving shaft and a concrete base, set two inches below the shaft. Mr. Wingertsman suffered agony as a part of the shaft and a bearing had to be dismantled before his foot could be released from its painful position. At the time of the accident Wingertsman was operating the machine used to hoist coal to the tender of locomotives. Something went wrong with the machine. It was working with jerky movements and he was attempting to remedy the trouble when his foot slipped and got caught under the shaft which was revolving in an inward direction. His foot was dragged in and the man fell and called loudly for help.

Foreman Edward H. Carlson heard the cry and ran over and shut off the power. Dr. John Weldon was called and Wingertsman was removed to his home at No. 41 High street. It was found that the foot was badly crushed and Mr. Wingertsman will be confined for a number of months.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Quincy Adams Sawyer, Famous New England Story, Coming to the Breed.

One of the most widely heralded of this season's photoplays is announced as coming to the Breed theatre Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is Quincy Adams Sawyer, a Metro-SL picture based on the famous story of New England life which was a phenomenal "best seller" when it appeared a decade or so ago. So great was the popularity of the printed narrative by Charles Felton Pidgin that it was dramatized, and in this form it won more favor. The elaborate photoplay version is even more interesting than the book or the play.

Everybody knows the story of Quincy Adams Sawyer. Everybody knows and loves its quaint rustic characters. The story of the young lawyer from Boston, Quincy Adams Sawyer; his coming to the small town of Mason's Corner; his experiences in running down a dishonorable scoundrel; his great love affair—all this is part of the attractive novel which is now a screen play. The delightful rural characters are fun-provoking to the extreme, and the fresh, clean, humor will appeal to all lovers of better photoplays.

A lavish production has been given this famous story. To enact the roles in the picture, the entire motion picture industry was searched for its best material. As a result, one of the highest-priced assemblies of talent is seen, and in the list are players who have been starred in their own right. Among the more important are Blanche Sweet, Lon Chaney, Barbara La Marr, John Bowers, Elmo Lincoln, Louise Fazenda, June Elvidge, Hank Mann, Zasu Pitts, and many others.

Quincy Adams Sawyer was adapted from the novel by Bernard McConville. It was directed by Clarence B. Badger. The production was made by S-L (Arthur Sawyer-Herbert Lubin) and is released by Metro.

Other pictures on the bill include Topics of the Day and an Educational Comedy.

Today's bill consists of Tom Mix in For Big Stakes, Chas. Hutchison in Go Get 'Em Hutch, the Pathe News and an Educational comedy. Continuous show today, 1.30 to 10.15.

Rodolph Valentine and Wanda Hawley Are Lovers in The Young Rajah.

A splendid contrast is afforded by Wanda Hawley and Rodolph Valentino, leading woman and star of The Young Rajah, a Paramount picture coming to the Broadway theatre Sunday. Miss Hawley is a blonde of the Dresden shepherdess variety; Valentino is, of course, dark and Latin in appearance. They make a very pleasing picture as lovers in this strange screen tale.

A moment of brilliancy, a mad tumult, a riot of color, of naked blades, of falling figures, of victors triumphant upon the throne they have usurped—that's your tiny revolution in the small Indian state.

A night of storm and fury in New England—and an old couple ready for bed; a knocking at the door; two dark men and a child standing dripping upon the threshold; jewels poured from a bag; stacks of bank notes—a farewell and a small and miserable Hindu lad who strives to hide his tears at parting from the only friends he has known—that's the story of the adoption.

The vision of the battle in the clouds in the years of ancient Hindu history, when Arjuna, commanded by Krishna, slays father and brother for the good of the race, is one of the most striking things ever portrayed on the screen; the same for the heavenly meeting between Arjuna and Vishnu. And by clever double exposure, Valentino plays both roles.

It is a picture that will repay a visit to the theatre if only to study the possibilities of the screen. But there is also good acting on the part of Valentino, of Wanda Hawley, Charles Ogle, Vanny Midgely, Pat Moore, Robert Ober, Edward Jobson, Joseph Swickard and others.

An Educational Christie comedy, Ocean Swells, adds to this fine entertainment.

Triple Emotional Conflict in "One Clear Call" at the Strand Monday.

Conflict of emotions are recognizedly the strongest tentacle of story interest and in presenting the First National attraction, One Clear Call, next week, the Strand theatre offers a striking example of this statement. At least three different clashes of emotional loyalty are depicted in this story which is enacted in a small Alabama town.

There is the conflict on the part of the mother between love for her husband and love for the memory of a son whose name is never mentioned in the family. There is the conflict on the part of the son's wife between loyalty for him and loathing towards the moral code he adheres to. And an important element of the story is involved in the conflict between the son's sworn friend towards the boy and love for the woman whom he is supposed to reunite him with.

KU KLUX KLAN ACTIVE IN NEW ENGLAND

The story of the entrance into New England of the Ku Klux Klan is announced by the Boston Advertiser to begin in its issue of next Sunday, January 7th.

The Boston Advertiser states that the series of articles which will begin next Sunday is based upon the original work in New England of the Grand Goblin who brought the Invisible Empire to this section of the United States.

It was recently stated that the organization has over 100,000 members in New England and that it is rapidly growing.

Who is under the mask?
Whom does it seek?
What does it want?

Are some of the questions which the series of articles beginning in next Sunday's Advertiser will endeavor to answer.

From time to time there have appeared in the newspapers of Boston and New England articles concerning doings of the Ku Klux Klan, but this is the first time any New England newspaper has sought to present the Klan's entrance into New England in a pretentious manner.

GIANTS AND YANKS IN SQUABBLE OVER CONFLICTING SUNDAY DATES

New York, Jan. 5 (By the A. P.).—A breach has developed between the two New York major league baseball clubs over the scheduling of Sunday games next season that may cause considerable trouble at the joint schedule meeting of the two organizations at Atlantic City, N. J. tomorrow. Telegrams sent by officers of both clubs to the presidents of their respective leagues, now in Atlantic City, disclose a state of open warfare that had its start in the alleged ejection of the Yankees from the Polo Grounds, home of the Giants, which forced the American leaguers to construct their new stadium.

It evidently was after hearing that the Giant ownership was maneuvering for the scheduling of conflicting Sunday dates in New York that the Yankee proprietors yesterday wired President Ban Johnson of the American league to oppose any such move that might be made at the Atlantic City meeting.

Stoneham's Explanation.

When news of this was published today, Charles A. Stoneham, president of the Giants, sent this telegram to John A. Heydler, head of the parent circuit:

"The two major league clubs in New York draw from a population of 10,000,000 people, and the New York National league club believes that if the attendance is sufficient no harm can come by having as many conflicting Sunday dates as possible.

"There are many local semi-pro and amateur baseball clubs that play in the vicinity which draw from one to five thousand people on Sunday, notwithstanding the fact that at the same time one of the New York and Brooklyn teams were playing professional ball.

"We are in favor of as many conflicting dates as possible, as five dates will mean approximately $100,000 to this club, which we consider is a good and sufficient reason for your trying to obtain the consent of President Johnson of the American league for the plan of conflicting dates."

Huston Says Reasons Are Mercenary.

When he obtained a copy of this, Colonel Huston, who yesterday announced his decision to retain his part ownership of the Yankees, wired to President Johnson, quoting the last paragraph of the Stoneham message.

"His reasons," said the Huston telegram, "were entirely mercenary. The only business reason possible for the Giants to advance after having peremptorily ordered us off the Polo Grounds was to secure these extra Sundays which would compensate them for the loss of the rent the Yankees were paying them.

"If we permit them to secure this money," Huston added, "we acknowledge that our league will again confess to its feebleness, against which construction of the new Yankee stadium is supposed to fortify us.

"Because we have outdrawn the Giants remarkably during the last three years, it is not the money fear which actuates us in our opposition to conflicting dates, but the real, sincere fear that, for the time being, Sunday baseball may be overdone in New York city."

Colonel Ruppert, joint owner of the Yankees, expressed the same belief before leaving for Chicago today.

First Time Question Has Arisen.

The two New York clubs never have fought before, and the question of conflicting Sunday games is one that never has caused much trouble among rival club owners. In the past, schedules have been devised to avoid conflicts, and only a few have occurred, except in Chicago, where about three are arranged every year. In Chicago, however, the two clubs are miles apart, while in New York one park can be seen from the other.

In neither Boston, St. Louis nor Philadelphia, the only other cities having two teams, has the question arisen.

In some quarters it was believed that foreknowledge of the situation partly prompted Colonel Huston to decide to remain in baseball.

YOUNG NAMED AS COACH AT PENN

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 5.—Louis Young, captain of the 1913 University of Pennsylvania football team, today was named head football coach of Pennsylvania. He succeeds John W. Heisman, who has become coach of the Washington and Jefferson team.

Last year Young was one of Heisman's assistants, and for several seasons prior to 1919 he was coach of the freshman football team at Pennsylvania. During his college days he was one of the stars of the Red and Blue eleven, playing a brilliant game at end in 1912 and 1913. The next year he was switched to halfback, where his work was equally as good.

Who Young's assistants will be has not been announced.

TILDEN'S PLAYING NOT MARRED BY HIS INJURY

Chicago, Jan. 5. (By the A. P.)—Loss of part of a finger did not interfere with the playing ability of William Tilden, world's tennis champion.

Playing in real competition for the first time since he lost part of the middle finger of his right hand through a surgical operation, Tilden tonight defeated Francis Hunter, of New York, astonishing his admirers with the snap and drive of his game. Tilden won two of three sets, the scores being 3-6; 7-5 and 6-4.

The game was played in an indoor tournament at a local hotel.

Sam Hardy and Vincent Richards defeated Howard Voshell and Francis Hunter, 3-6; 6-4 and 6-4.

Tilden declared he could grip his racquet with the partly amputated finger "very well" and could hit with far more power and precision than he thought would be possible.

FIELDING LEAVES SUB BASE TO GO TO PACIFIC COAST

Chief Petty Officer Lemuel Osgood Fielding of this city, who since enlisting in the U. S. navy 13 years ago has established an enviable record as an all-round athlete, and who has been stationed at the submarine base during the past few years, has been transferred to the Pacific coast. He will be stationed at San Pedro, Cal., for the remainder of his four years' enlistment.

LEMUEL OSGOOD FIELDING

While at the submarine base, Fielding proved to be one of the best football players the base has ever had. He was chosen by practically all the sports writers in the state as a member of the All-Connecticut team. His ability at broken field running and his fleetness of foot enabled him to make many spectacular runs. Not only has he won fame on the local team but he has also made a reputation through the whole navy, having played on the championship teams of the Pacific coast fleet and the Atlantic fleet.

Not only has Fielding excelled at football but he has performed equally as well on the cinder path and in the squared arena. When Fielding leaves, the sub base will lose one of its mainstays in the athletic line, and it will be hard to find a man that can take his place.

Mrs. Fielding and son left for the coast about two months ago and are now located in San Pedro, where Mr. Fielding will join them soon.

J.; 26, Yale at New Haven; 28, Boston University; May 2, Wesleyan at Middletown; 5, Vermont; 9, Connecticut A. C.; 12, Bowdoin; 16, Boston College at Newton; 19, Holy Cross at Worcester; 23, Springfield Y. M. C. A. College; 26, Bowdoin at Portland; 30, Colby (pending); 31, Norwich at Northfield; June 1, Vermont at Burlington; 2, Dartmouth at Hanover; 6, Holy Cross; 9, Boston College; 15, Dartmouth; 16, Harvard.

EJECTED BASEBALL FAN SUES GIANTS FOR $2,000

New York, Jan. 5.—A baseball fan, who was ejected last season from the Polo grounds during a national league game, today sued the National Exhibition company, owners of the Giants, for $2,000, charging embarrassment and deprivation of entertainment.

Reuben Berman, the complainant, declared a foul ball fell into his seat, and that instead of throwing it back on the field, as requested, he tossed it to another spectator, arousing the displeasure of a club employe who had to chase the ball all over the grandstand.

Club officials construed Berman's prank as disorderly conduct and they ejected him from the park after refunding the price of his admission.

RAY HAS EXTENSIVE SCHEDULE MAPPED OUT

New York, January 5—Joie Ray, star Chicago distance runner, whose suspension was lifted January 1 after he refunded to the amateur athletic union $100 which it was charged he received through exorbitant expense claims this winter in the east. He has accepted tentatively six invitations to take part in meets the latter part of January and early in February.

The Illinois A. C. crack is slated to make his first appearance January 31 in a special race [illegible] at the Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden. A few days later he expects to seek another leg on the Hunter mile trophy at the Boston A. A. games. On February 7 he will run another mile at a meet under the auspices of the Newark A. C., and three days later is scheduled to try for a new world's record for 2,000 metres at the Wilco A. A. games in Brooklyn.

Ray also has promised to compete in a special race under the auspices of the Seventy-First Regiment A. A. here February 12 and on February 17 will take part in the National Senior A. A. U. championship meet at Buffalo.

ENGLISH PRO SETS UNIQUE GOLF RECORD

London, Jan. 5—Alexander Herd, open champion in 1902 and still a redoubtable player, has just holed out in one for the seventeenth time in his golfing career, thereby setting a mark which experts assert has never been even approached by another golfer. James Braid, with eleven ones to his credit, is believed to be the runner-up. Harry Vardon, winner of six world's championships, only once holed his tee shot. "Sandy" Herd's seventeenth was achieved at the Coombe Hill links in Surrey where thirteen of his other similar shots have been made. He said that an American friend had promised to give him a solid gold putter when he raised his record to twenty. "But I don't suppose I'll ever win it," Herd said. Whenever a player holes out in one it is customary to give the caddy a bottle of whisky, and Herd obeyed the decree of fashion. This moved a golf humorist to remark: "British golf is now so bad that thousands of caddies in this country are dying of thirst."

SPITBALL PITCHERS ARE FAST PASSING OUT

"Moose" Fuller's request that the Brasscos trade or sell him to some other club, brings to mind the fact that the spitball pitcher has practically passed in the Eastern league.

Fuller and Kewpie Pennington of Hartford, are the only damp ball artists on the lists which once included such performances as Marty Walsh of Bridgeport, the veteran Freddy Reiger of Pittsfield, "Mike" Hogan of Worcester, Chadwick of Waterbury and "Bill" Horan of Albany.

Young pitchers, having an eye for advancement, in the national pastime, are sidetracking the moist delivery because it bars them from the big show and other high class leagues throughout the country.

SQUASH PLAYERS START TOURNEY WITH BIG ENTRY

New York, Jan. 5.—Seventy-four squash players, sixteen more than last year and a record entry for the event, will start tomorrow in the opening round of the annual handicap tournament of the National Squash Tennis association on the courts of the Columbia university club. It will be the only handicap tournament of the year.

Thomas R. Coward of the Yale club, national amateur squash champion, and Jay Gould of the Columbia club, national racquets and court tennis title holder, are at the top of the pairings. Each is handicapped the maximum—minus ten acres. The only prominent player not entered is Fillmore Van S. Hyde of the Harvard club, former national champion, who is abroad.

BRITTON TO TRY TO MAKE COMEBACK

New York, Jan. 5—Jack Britton, former holder of the world's welterweight boxing title, has started training for a come-back.

The veteran ring general plans a campaign which he hopes will lead to a return match with Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., who captured the title from him in a bout at Madison Square Garden. He is tentatively matched to box Bobby Barrett, of Clifton Heights, Pa., in Philadelphia in two weeks.

HARVARD TO HAVE $100,000 SWIMMING POOL

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 5—Announcement that architects had been asked to prepare plans for a $100,000 swimming pool for Harvard College was made today by Fred W. Moore, graduate manager of athletic. The proposed pool would be built near Hemenway gymnasium. If present intentions are fulfilled it will be ready in time to permit reestablishment of swimming as a competitive sport next year.

MITCHELL DUNDEE BOUT HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 6—The bout scheduled here between Richie Mitchell of Milwaukee and Johnyn Dundee of New York for January 8, was today ordered cancelled by the Wisconsin Boxing Commission, according to the commission. Mitchell's bruised shoulder received in his recent fight with Charlie White in New York is giving him trouble.

BERNSTEIN EASILY WINS FROM "PEPPER" MARTIN

New York, Jan. 5—Jack Bernstein, of Yonkers, received the judges decision over Vincent "Pepper" Martin, of Brooklyn, at the end of their 12-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight. Bernstein dropped Martin in the first round and outboxed him throughout. The winner weighed 129, and the loser 129 3-4.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Frankie Mason, the Ft. Wayne bantam, is hot on the trail of Champion Pancho Villa. The pair may meet in Boston.

Johnny Leonard and Willie Stanton have been booked for a ten-round decision contest at Worcester, Mass., next Tuesday night.

Lenny Edwards, the colored bantam, is scheduled to try conclusions with Teddy Jones in a ten-round decision bout to be staged at the Gordon A. C., Lynn, Mass., next Monday evening.

Twenty-three games have been scheduled for the Columbia baseball team for next season, according to the complete list announced by Graduate Manager R. W. Watt.

Billy Edwards, in his day one of the best known lightweight boxers and later a manager of boxers, died this week in Bellevue Hospital of a complication of diseases.

Coach Eddie Farrell had 130 candidates for the Harvard track team out on Soldiers' Field Thursday. The men were given a light workout on the board track, after which Farrell outlined the season's plans to them.

SOLVING EUROPE'S PROBLEMS.

When Secretary Hughes made suggestions in his recent address in New Haven concerning a method that might be employed for the adjustment of the situation in Europe, he did so with full regard for the fact that it was nothing more than a suggestion and that it was not intended to apply unless it was impossible for the premiers to come to an agreement.

Up to the present time it has been shown that such an agreement could not be accomplished. There is an adherence to their respective views on the part of Great Britain and France that prevents it. The willingness to yield is not manifest.

It was in anticipation of the possibility of this failure to come to an understanding that Secretary Hughes put forth his views. This was done with the hope that it might be of assistance in preventing a permanent break. It is a way out if there is the desire to avoid more trouble and it is a way in which this country would be willing to cooperate. Not being put forth for the purpose of adding one more than another the proposition deserves to be considered on that ground, rather than to have it regarded as taking sides with any of them. The idea is to reach a solution of the reparation and economic situations and it is the aim to have them considered from an unbiased and unpolitical standpoint by experts dealing with the facts.

Inasmuch as the plan has been suggested by Secretary Hughes in case disagreement resulted among the premiers, and in view of the fact that has occurred, it is evident that such a name as is made for the urging out of the Hughes plan or a discussion of it must necessarily come from those directly concerned. It is to be expected that France would resort to it if it desired to avoid the exercise of force which it has threatened. This country isn't going to undertake to tell Europe what it must do and shoulder the responsibility of making it do it.

SECRETARY FALL'S RETIREMENT.

While there have been frequent references to probable resignations from the cabinet there was no great amount of surprise when it was announced that Secretary Fall of the department of the interior had presented his resignation to become effective at the conclusion of this term of congress. Thus will he round out two years as a presidential adviser and become the second one to leave the board.

Secretary Fall went to the cabinet from the senate. He was regarded as an authority concerning the Mexican situation, although possessing rather firm convictions upon that subject, but it doesn't appear that his advice has been followed, if it has been sought, in dealing with the problems arising from the south of the Rio Grande. Secretary Fall has likewise sought certain changes in his department, including the transfer to his jurisdiction of some of what is now under the department of agriculture, and it came to the point where there must be a decision made between his views and those of Secretary Wallace. This involved the transfer of the forestry bureau and in making the decision Secretary Wallace won.

It was one of those instances where there were irreconcilable views and where an adverse decision was considered a sufficient repudiation of his policies to warrant a decision to retire. It will mean the overcoming of friction in the cabinet and it will give former Senator Fall the opportunity to devote that much needed attention to his private undertakings which reports claim are suffering since the death of a brother.

Secretary Fall not having figured as a conspicuous, constructive member of the cabinet, it doesn't mean that it is going to be seriously weakened by his retirement.

HAYWOOD IN RUSSIA.

It is going to be most difficult for those followers of "Big Bill" Haywood in this country to believe that he has encountered failure in soviet Russia. It cannot be that they have given sufficient attention to his wonderful ideas and his gifted administrative ability. It is next to impossible to believe that anything but success would respond to his call and efforts. Somehow, somewhere, there must have been a horrible mistake made in Russia.

What a welcome there was for him when he reached that country after fleeing from a prison sentence in this country. How roseate everything appeared in that land of promise. How great was the dependence placed upon him to lift the soviet out of the slough of despond and how thoroughly had he banked upon becoming one of the great captains of industry in Russia. The anticipation was too great to harbor the thought that there could be such a realization as indicated by the report coming from Moscow. Of course no one can believe that Haywood could fail, or that such a failure could occur in that great land of freedom and promise.

And yet when we are told that Haywood has been succeeded by a Dutch engineer in the direction of the ore fields in which he was placed, in fact the best ore-bearing section of Russia, we are forced to the conclusion that there must be something to it. Haywood has thus been tried and found wanting. He had a chance to put his ideals into operation and they didn't operate successfully. It must have been a disheartening experience for the great leader and his followers who placed such great confidence in him.

Of course there must be something the matter with Russia, and yet Haywood isn't the only one who has gone there with great expectations and happy to get away from the frightful conditions experienced in this country only to encounter failure and disillusionment. Of course as long as it is a place where Haywood is learning something it is to be hoped that he will not attempt to come back and give himself up. The United States was fortunate when he departed.

AROUSING COURTS TO ACTION.

Almost every day from a different section of the country comes word to the effect that courts are being impressed with the need of greater firmness in order to convince the drivers of automobiles that the laws which have been enacted for the regulation of such vehicular traffic mean something and must be obeyed.

There has been a policy of leniency practiced until it has come to be regarded in many instances almost as a joke. There are states likewise which have failed to keep up to date in the legislation that has been adopted for the control of the automobiles and the drivers. In those cases the situation is even worse since additional encouragement is given to recklessness and an increase in the number of accidents.

A New York magistrate this week sent to the workhouse for 60 days a chauffeur, convicted of being drunk while driving his machine. It marked a departure from past practice, but so firmly has the magistrate become convinced that action of this kind is needed and so anxious is he to send it home to those directly concerned that he announced that no shorter sentences would be imposed for that offense, and that if necessary the sentences would be increased to six months.

That means getting away from the idea of paying a license for law violations. The aim of the magistrate is to reduce by a quarter the number driving while intoxicated and to create greater safety.

The fact that one magistrate has undertaken this policy of law enforcement should be helpful, but results more in keeping with requirements would be obtained if all of them would do so. It is in fact no more than should be expected by the public which is endangered by the recklessness of others, who certainly have no right to expect to escape punishment for such practice.

HAYS' DECISION ON ARBUCKLE

If Mr. Hays was unwilling to recall his decision concerning Arbuckle at the request of much earnest solicitation from all parts of the country, what is he going to think of the action taken by the film committee on public relations which was appointed by him, which repudiates his action and which asks that all pictures in which Arbuckle appears be kept from the screen?

Mr. Hays made a serious mistake when he undertook to lift the ban on Arbuckle. Even if he didn't say so he indicated that the leading figure in such immorality as was brought to light in the Arbuckle trial, even though he was acquitted of the manslaughter charge, was fit to be set before he public if the public would tolerate it, such toleration being expected to come to a large extent from that portion of the public which does not appreciate the danger in lauding such a hero—the children. The idea of permitting a person with such a reputation to stand before the children as an idol naturally arouses indignation.

According to the articles of association, when the effort was made for the improvement of the motion picture industry, the objects included "establishing and maintaining the highest possible moral and artistic standards in motion picture production."

Mr. Hays writes that "no charter breathing more important purposes could well be found. It is a large service in which everyone is interested."

When dealing with the problem of securing the highest possible moral standard in motion pictures there is something more than the actual picture itself to be considered. It is quite as necessary that the lives of those starring in those pictures should be as clean as the standard of the pictures themselves.

That is the ground that is taken by those who have protested the decision on Arbuckle and it is the view of the public relations committee, which Mr. Hays appointed, which says that "Arbuckle's reappearance "would be extremely detrimental to the youth of America."

Mr. Hays not only makes a blunder in lifting the ban on Arbuckle that the public may pass judgment, but a still greater one in believing that such a move is in accord with the idea of bringing the highest moral standards to the motion pictures. Likewise it is an affront to the public to think that it would approve the return of such a film character.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

We have all heard very much about the "Big Four" originally applied to four of our greatest railroad systems, and sometimes to other things—even to persons—where the figure four especially applies. It seems to the writer, however, that it is not inappropriate to one phase of the Christmas activity. If we could take a census of all Christmas gifts and reduce our findings to statistical order, we should find four articles far in advance of all others, and hence the application of the term "Big Four." Now the four gifts that are made at Christmas that are clearly outstanding as to number and general utility are handkerchiefs, umbrellas, silk stockings and neckties. They are outstanding in that they are never exchanged for other things; because they are generally, if not almost universally, in demand; because they are short lived, being easily "lost, strayed or stolen"—most generally the latter. But when they die of old age—which is usually quite within the century limit—their mortality is due to frail constitutions.

It is straining the province of analogy to compare the New Year, or New Year's day, to the parallels of latitude or the degrees of longitude? That the day is a marker of the imaginary or the artificial goes without saying. The difference between the 29th and 30th degrees of longitude east or west, or between two consecutive parallels of latitude north or south is not observable. At the same time they are more than convenient, they are necessary for measurements on the surface of the earth. They are also essential to all navigation, even if they have no historical value. Longitude has no connection with the world's Marathons or Waterloos, neither has some nations, but that does not lessen their value. Jan. 1 is very much like Dec. 31, and yet as a marker of time it is invaluable. We must not forget, however, that on Jan. 1, 1863, President Lincoln issued his emancipation proclamation that is now regarded as one of the great state papers of the world.

At the beginning of a new year we can hardly help casting a parting glance over our shoulder at a twelvemonth that will grow at a constant ratio more and more shadowy. Of course we are going to have images of both the good and the bad. Among the good things that made commendable headway during 1922 was along the line of criminology. The growing practice of holding separate courts for juvenile offenders is meeting with general acceptance, as it deserves. Its policy is to withhold their names from publication, so that the public will not associate their names with old rounders. It goes on the humane conception that these mistaken lads may be saved from a criminal's career by putting them under kindly supervision that teaches them the better ways of life. Bad environment is largely responsible for these lapses from good behavior. The policy now is to give all lads a fair chance.

Can it be possible that the following statement, culled from a recent issue of a current American magazine, is true? "The soviet of Russia is mobilizing its forces for an attack upon this republic through our negro population. . . . They hope to find among our colored fellow citizens, as a result of the many and serious grievances from which they have suffered and still are suffering, a restlessness, a bitterness of spirit which will supply fertile fields for racial propaganda." If this statement is true or even if it contains a semblance of the truth, our state department has some immediate duty to perform, to say nothing of the police agencies of the country. We must confess to some surprise at the bare possibility of such a propaganda escaping the notice of public officials. Neither can we realize how such a propaganda would appeal to the negro temperament that is kindly, sympathetic and appreciative, while easy-going and excitable. We feel that there must be some mistake about this statement.

At the same time we ought not to minimize the fact that we still have on our hands a negro problem that has dangerous phases. The very day on which these paragraphs are written is the 60th anniversary of the issuance of the emancipation proclamation which declared the liberation of the southern slaves. Giving them at once the full benefits of citizenship is now seen to have been a great political blunder. But it was done in the spirit of large-heartedness in the attempt to atone for a long-standing abuse. Of course the liberated slaves did not know how to make a legitimate use of their newly acquired liberty. Crime and license followed which were answered by reprisals that are a disgrace to our boasted civilization. Lynch law has neither excuse nor palliation. On the other side it must be said much has been done by the churches of the north for the betterment of the colored race. Schools of various grades have been established for them. Christian education alone will keep them from becoming a public menace.

It is a great thing to have a shining mark, or some other distinctive goal, towards which one ought to press with zeal and energy. If there is one time more than another when such thoughts come into one's mind, it naturally is at the beginning of the new year. In the year of 1923 there are things before us to be reached, and to be gained only by energy and determination. We do not have knowledge enough of the future to say definitely just what they are. Such pre-knowledge is denied the human race. But we know they will be there when we get there, if we may judge from what has come to light in the past. There will be some shining mark that we must strive to get by the exercise of every legitimate power of our being. These prizes of course will not come begging to us to be taken, we must go out after them, just as men build up a big business, simply by going out after it. The happiest New Year will come from the determination to get some prize.

A certain young gentleman once took the crazy notion into his head to race around the back yard shouting and swinging an axe. His father exclaimed: "William, what on earth are you doing that for?" The boy, out of breath replied: "Oh, I just wanted this neighborhood to know that I'm active." This was nothing more than the exuberance of a strong healthy youth, but as an example of practical activity there is very little to be said in its favor. In all probability that in the year on which we have entered there will be very much "beating the air" fully as senseless as this, and the attempt will be made to palm it off on to the public as really serious business. If everybody should engage in every scheme that is proposed from the platform or the printed circular, or from the office of every religious secretary, both Middletown and Brewster's Neck would have to put up some emergency additions. It may be that Fairfield county has been attacked by those who want to show their activity to that extent that it has petitioned for a insane asylum.

On the calendar of a large Presbyterian church in the south the following are a few of the sentiments that appeared at Christmas time: "Love is not listed for sale in the stores." "Sympathy carries no price tag." "Tenderness cannot be tied up in bundles." "Good cheer cannot be weighed by the pound." I do not know how ably the pastor of that church preached on Christmas day, but one can easily surmise this, that if his sermon bristled with sentences as wise and pungent as these the people did not assemble themselves in vain. Each one of these mottoes is thought-provoking. They show clearly that the big things of life are above barter; absolutely beyond the pale of the bargain counter, and still have they not some invisible connection with the gifts we exchange? The first thing we think of when a gift comes is not its worth in dollars and cents but the spirit that was back of it. In these crisp sentences do we not have another "Big Four"—love, sympathy, tenderness and good cheer?

THE CRUX OF THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

The well-informed observer, looking forward into 1923 in an effort to forecast the probable trend of business in the United States, is forced to conclude that the uncertain factor of chief importance is the political situation in Europe writes the National City Bank of New York. This, of course, is not because our business with Europe is more important than the volume of business at home, for it is small in comparison, but because in some respects our business with Europe vitally affects our domestic business, and because domestic conditions by themselves are comparatively stable.

Our relations with Europe are mainly through our exports of agricultural products which in the case of cotton normally amount to about one half our production, and in the case of the other staples are large enough to be an important factor in the value of the entire production. The income of our farming population is largely dependent upon Europe's purchases, and the prosperity of all our industries is very much affected by fluctuations in the purchasing power of the farming populace. The European demand under existing conditions is precarious and uncertain. Nobody can say whether it will be maintained or not. It has been well maintained as to foodstuffs to this time, but at declining prices, and by resort to various expedients for means of payment which are temporary and cannot be relied upon. If European countries cannot pay they cannot buy for very long, and it is evident that the situation in Central Europe is steadily growing more critical.

We have pointed out from month to month ever since the last harvest, that the world situations as to wheat has justified higher prices than have been prevailing, and that the market situation in which wheat for May delivery has been below the spot price is an illogical one. It has indicated a lack of speculative interest, an indisposition to carry wheat to meet future demands which does not exist under normal conditions. If Europe was in position to buy what it wants, prices would be higher, but nobody knows how much it will take. Italy has removed the duty on imports, but gone back to the war milling requirements. France has adopted the war milling requirements. Saxony has proposed a 10 per cent admixture of potato-flour with bread-flour and prohibition of the use of bread grains for beer. In German Silesia bread-flour will be rationed. These are symptoms of the presure to curtail consumption and avoid imports.

Of late buying for Europe has increased, and the price of wheat is 20 to 25 cents higher than three months ago, but meanwhile the American farmer has sold a large part of his crop, at prices below what the statistical situation under normal conditions would justify, simply because there has been an incalculable risk in carrying wheat over to the late months of the crop year, when the actual scarcity, if any, will appear. And while this situation is more obvious as to wheat than other products, the prices of others are affected in like manner. The poverty and lack of purchasing power of Europe is a constant factor in our markets and a continuing menace to our prosperity. No matter how favorable our domestic conditions may appear, we cannot safely disregard the fact that agriculture must have an outlet in Europe for the usual quantity of its products.

The Reparations Question—The reparations question is the crux of the European situation. There will be no stabilization of foreign currency, no solid basis for trade or confidence, until the reparations question is settled upon a basis which is so far acceptable to the German people as to prompt them to resolutely put their backs into the task of payment. It is possible to make an individual debtor pay, though unwilling, by process of law, providing he owns property which can be seized, sold and applied to that purpose, but society has given up the idea of coercing a debtor who is not possessed of saleable property.

There are only two ways of getting people to work: one is by holding out an inducement, a reward or compensation of some kind that can be obtained when the work is done. The other is by driving them to it and holding them to it by the power of authority until it is done. The former is the method by which all social progress has been accomplished; the latter has been tried frequently, the last time in Russia, and never been successful. Individuals, much less great bodies of people, cannot be made to work unless they see some eventual advantage to themselves in doing so. In this country we do not attempt to compel coal miners or railroad employes to continue their tasks against their wills, even at pay judicially determined. Work is not effectively done unless the workers put voluntary effort into it.

The reparations payments, to whatever extent they may be possible, must be made with the proceeds of the labor of the German people in the future. The claims cannot be satisfied to any great extent by the seizure of existing property. It would be impossible to dispossess the German people of their lands and fixed property. The productive equipment, even so much as is movable, could not be taken out of the country without making it impossible to collect anything more; it is worth more to the creditors of Germany where it is than it would be anywhere else. To garrison the country would cost a great sum and get nothing, except as the Germans would willingly pay to get rid of the troops. An appeal to that motive, however, would be a shift from the policy of coercion to the policy of bargaining—of seeking to find what the Germans will undertake to do to clear up the situation, get their affairs in order and be able to build again for the future. Once such a bargain is made upon terms which put the German people in practical unity behind it, the task will be a voluntary one, and the German people will be as anxious to make the payments as the French were when they anticipated the payments upon the $1,000,000,000 indemnity of 1870.

Present State of Paralysis—There is little reason to doubt that the German people are eager to get such a settlement. It cannot be supposed that any considerable portion of them are happy and contented under existing conditions. Everybody in Germany must know that the country is going rapidly down the road to utter ruin and calamity. If anybody has profited by the degradation of the mark and the ruin that has been imposed upon the creditor class, the number is negligible as a factor of influence in the country. The theory that the policy of inflation and non-payment has been deliberately adopted is untenable, because the consequences to themselves are so terrible and widespread to be voluntarily brought on. The reasonable explanation is that the German people have thought their situation hopeless, that no efforts or sacrifices they could make would enable them to satisfy the terms of the treaty. With such a feeling pervading the country no government can carry through a program requiring hard labor, patience and sacrifice on the part of the people. The government cannot make the wage earners work 10 hours per day as they did before the war instead of 8 as they do now. The government of the United States could not do that here, nor the French government in France. The German executive administration has not been supported upon any policy of taxation of finance that it has proposed. The Reichstag, or legislative body, is split up into numerous parties and factions. No legislation has been possible except by compromise or common consent. It may be said, however, that there are other countres in which a lack of harmony in the government has been displayed. When M. Briand and Mr. Lloyd George came to terms with each other less than a year ago, the French Chamber rejected the policy, putting M. Briand out of office, and since then Lloyd George has gone the same way. Moreover, even at Washington there are blocs and entire harmony upon policies does not exist.

The best explanation for the policy of the German government in continuing to print paper money is that it could not stop; it has lacked the strength to put in force any other policy. In the United States months are required for the executive department to make a budget and to pass the necessary legislation to make it effective. A budget amounts to nothing when the currency drops one-half in value within a week. But a government must continue to do business in some way.

And so the efforts of individuals to get capital out of the country are best understood, not as a concerted movement to depreciate the German currency or to defeat all reparation payments, but as efforts to get what personal belongings they could out of the ship before it went over the falls toward which it has been steadily drifting.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

THE LESSON OF THE SEASONS

Winter is, in cold climates, often too apt an emblem of the spiritual coldness and deadness which often come to churches and to individuals. The reign of ice and snow too often symbolizes the dreary power and irreligion which binds its fetters upon human hearts. But, however long and hard may be the season of lifelessness and desolation, God is able to make the winds to blow and the waters flow as expressed in Psalm 147:16-18. "He giveth snow like wool; He scattereth the hoar-frost like ashes. He casteth forth His ice like morsels; who can stand before His cold? He sendeth out His word and melteth them; He causeth His wind to blow and the water to flow." Genial spring will again breathe over the hills and fields, now bound in the rigors of frost; and again we shall sing, "Lo, the winter is past, the flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come." The wonderful change which in a few weeks, or even a few days, often brings about in a northern clime is an illustration of the truth that "nothing is too hard for God. "And cannot the same power that causes winter to give place to spring, the coldness and rigidity of January to be succeeded by the warmth and bloom of May, bring life to churches, communities and souls, that now seem wrapped in the death-like slumber of the Arctics? We need a stronger faith in God, a more implicit trust in the power and faithfulness of Him, Who is not only the God of nature, but the God of grace.

If it be true that a divine influence can come into my heart and fill my faculties and harmonise them all in sweet cooperation of service, and can breathe into me the assurance that I am God's child, then I know not what more a soul can need for its joy and this is possible for every one of us.

"Ye who think the truth ye sow
Lost beneath the winter's snow,
Doubt not Pine's unerring law:
Yet will bring the genial thaw,
God in nature ye can trust;
Be the God of mind less just?

THE EDITOR

Keep Arbuckle Off Screen.

Mr. Editor: I would like to answer "A Regular Movie Fan" who seems to be mistaken as to the reason why there are those who object to the reinstatement of Arbuckle or the showing of films in which he appears.

We don't object on the question of immorality but rather on the outcome of his party which resulted in the death of Virginia Rappe.

We will admit Arbuckle was acquitted of murder when the evidence appeared very convincing; he also furnished and transported booze for the party; the deceased accused him of injuring her and therefore there will always be a doubt in the minds of a great many people as to the actual facts regarding the case, and for that reason we strongly object to the showing of his pictures.

Let Arbuckle leave the screen and the case will be forgotten; let him come back and it will be revived in years to come.

Let us enjoy pictures which will not remind us of this case, and mar the enjoyment for a great many by him appearing before us on the screen.

EAST SIDE.

Jan. 5, 1923.

No Decent Woman Would View an Arbuckle Picture.

Mr. Editor: Concerning a recent writer, let me say, Yes, you are right—they are an immoral class and it was in the face of the "Regular Movie Fan" that an official high up in the movie business threw the accusation that such as you made Fatty Arbuckle and his kind through your support.

No decent woman would remain to see any Fatty Arbuckle picture. Who can hear or see his name but to recall the disclosures of that awful night of debauchery. Innocent? Money goes a great way toward freeing moneyed murderers—how many millionaire murderers are serving fifty years or a lifetime in prison or have paid with their life at the chair or gallows?

"Live and let live." In prisons today are many more worthy to be given that chance. If Fatty Arbuckle wants to make good, let him see what he can do to brighten the life of his poor stepmother washing for her living, let him go to Hollywood, Los Angeles, or any of the movie pest rendezvouses of our fair country and clean them out morally. Let him do some manual labor, work by the sweat of his brow in a mine or lumber camp.

Let us hope that our Rose of New England will not tolerate one picture of that vile character.

ANTI FATTY ARBUCKLE.

Fity the Dog!

One of the guests at a family dinner lingered long at the table. Soon after he arose the hostess began a search for a dog belonging to another of the guests, having the animal's dinner on a platter.

The guest whose appetite was held to satisfy assisted in finding the dog and after it began its meal the man with the big appetite stood looking on while the hostess observed another member of the dinner party standing nearby.

She was solicitous for the interest displayed by the second spectator whereupon he replied, "I just thought I'd watch Bill so he wouldn't try to deprive the dog of his dinner."

COURT RULES AGAINST LIQUOR ON AMERICAN SHIPS

Washington, Jan. 5.—Contending that the prohibition amendment was co-extensive with the constitution, extending to all places where the United States has jurisdiction, Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, presented the government's argument in the supreme court today in the appeals brought by the American steamship companies to have set aside the decision of Judge Hand at New York. The decision sustained the ruling of Attorney General Daugherty that American ships were prohibited from having liquor aboard for beverage use of passengers on the high seas and in foreign ports, and from bringing such liquor into American ports in their sealed bar stores.

The power of the government to punish violations of the prohibition amendment upon American vessels outside the territorial waters of the United States was as complete as its authority to punish treason wherever committed, Mrs. Willebrandt insisted. Owing to a sudden indisposition, Solicitor General Beck, who began the argument for the government, was compelled to withdraw after proceeding only a few minutes, leaving the burden of the argument to the assistant attorney general.

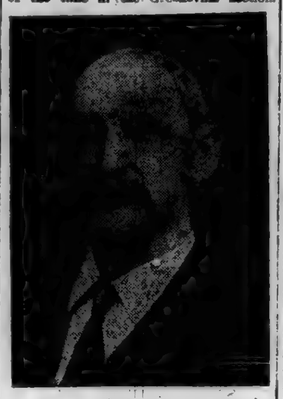
OBITUARY.

Joseph H. Henderson.

Joseph H. Henderson, one of the best known business men of Norwich for many years past, died just before 8 o'clock Friday evening at his home, No. 319 Central avenue. He had been in failing health for a week but in bed only for the last two days with a complication of liver trouble and hardening of the arteries from which he had suffered for some time.

Mr. Henderson was born in Lisbon Center, N. Y., Dec. 26, 1855, the son of James and Margaret Henderson, but came to Norwich when quite a young man and had lived here ever since, all of the time in the Greeneville section.



JOSEPH H. HENDERSON

He had been engaged in a varied line of business activities, but is best known as a member of the firm of Kramer & Henderson in the ice business for 25 years. He retired from active business life eight years ago.

As a young man he learned the trade of a carpenter from Deacon Carey of Greeneville and subsequently did some farming, worked for the late E. A. Dudley in the West Side market, with the late Charles N. Champlin in the Thamesville Trip Works, and then in the ice business with Fraser and Ford of East Great Plain. From this introduction to the business, he branched out into a partnership with William Kramer, which continued till both partners retired eight years ago, leaving the business to be continued as Kramer Bros. by William J. and George H. Kramer.

In later years Mr. Henderson became interested in political life in which his general popularity secured his election to office. He was a republican in politics. He was elected second selectman of the town in 1905, when A. D. Lathrop was first selectman and he was appointed street commissioner in October 1906. Previous to this he had served two terms in the common council.

He was elected representative from Norwich to the general assembly of 1916, re-elected in 1917 and was assistant to the capitol superintendent in 1918.

Mr. Henderson was twice married. His first wife was Miss Addie Bowley of this city, to whom he was married in 1887. Her death occurred eight years ago in April. On July 14, 1919, he married Mrs. Hattie Sprague of this city, who survives him. He also leaves a daughter, Ruth, who is the wife of Cecil M. Cross, United States consul at Lourenco, Portuguese East Africa. He also leaves two grandchildren.

He was a member of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., and of the Putnam Phalanx of Hartford. Large hearted and generous, making many friends and holding them by the warmth and sincerity of his nature, he had a host of acquaintances who will feel a deep sense of personal loss in his death. His won success in business by straightforward dealing and in his years of retirement he continued active and was able to enjoy the rewards of the hard work of his earlier years. In his home he was a loving husband and father and he was a citizen whose death will be a loss to the community.

Jan Dlusnieski.

Jan Dlusnieski, 38, died Friday morning at his home at 241 Yantic street after a short illness. He was born in Poland but came to this country when a young man and had lived in Norwich for the past seven years, being employed as a machine tender at the Falls Company. He is survived by his wife and two sons, ages 4 and 6 years of this city, a brother of New London, two brothers and his mother in Poland.

Adfer J. Brady.

After a short illness Adfer J. Brady died Friday afternoon about 4.30 at his home, No. 15 Cedar street, heart disease being the cause of his death. He was born in Providence 32 years ago, the son of John and Etta Bolster Brady, but had lived in this city many years and was employed in the Thamesville plant of the American Woolen company. In 1917 he was united in marriage to Miss Estella Topliff who survives him with two children, Adfer Edward, and Donald Stevens Brady; his mother, Mrs. Etta Brady and one sister, Mrs. Edward Harper, all of Norwich.

Mr. Brady was a member of White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, of this city and was popular, having a wide circle of friends, to whom the news of his death will come as a sad shock. He was honest in all his dealings, a loving father and husband, and a true son and brother. Those left behind have the sympathy of their many friends in their time of deep sorrow.

At the close of the mass Edward J. Connelly rendered Face to Face, and as the body was taken from the church John Fontaine sang Nearer, My God to Thee.

Major Howland of the national board spoke on the subject and assisted in the demonstration of altering off-standard couplings to standard dimensions. SEARCH WARRANT IRREGULARITY CUTS DOWN MAN'S FINE

Because the federal agents who raided and arrested Wilfred E. Harris, of Groton, did not present their search warrant until after the search was made, Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas in Hartford Thursday let Harris off with a fine of 100. Harris pleaded guilty to a second offense violation of the liquor law on three counts. Assistant District Attorney John Danaher recommended to the court a smaller penalty than would have been given in view of the above mentioned fact in the case. Harris was brought [illegible] federal court following a hearing in a justice court and Attorney Thomas H. Treland of New London was his counsel. It is argued that the federal officers acted illegally in making the search, and the courts uphold his contention.

Erbin Nolan of Montville claimed that the three gallons of moonshine found in his barber shop was for personal consumption but he was fined $50 just the same.

Antone Fretard of Stonington, who pleaded guilty to violations of the liquor laws on three counts blamed the offense on his wife, claiming that she manufactured the liquor without his knowledge and during his absence from home. He was fined $100.

IMPORTS FOR 1922 WILL SHOW INCREASE OVER 1921

Washington, Jan. 5.—Imports for 1922 probably will show an increase of about $400,000,000 over 1921, Dr. Julius Klein, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, reported today on the basis of complete statistics for the first nine months of the year. The value of exports for 1922 he estimated would be around $4,000,000,000 below the exports of 1921.

The falling off in exports, Dr. Klein said, was more pronounced in the case of raw foodstuffs and manufactures than in prepared foodstuffs and semi-manufactures. He traced the decline in the value of the total exports to a large extent to the change in the price level.

Dr. Klein estimated that the year's favorable trade balance would be reduced from nearly $2,000,000,000 in 1921, to $750,000,000 at the end of 1922. From the trend-indicators shown in last year's foreign trade, he believed the American trade balance hereafter would be more in harmony with the country's international economic position.

Market Conditions

The demand for fruits at present is centered around oranges and apples. Florida oranges were preferred to navals today. Oranges are showing very good quality. The demand as well as the quality of these products has improved greatly. The choice grades of butter especially first were selling for a little less today but the lower grades of firsts and seconds were sustained. The lard market is a little firmer as well as the veal market. The beef market holds firm. The grain market is inclined to be on a lower level today. Grain dealers are trying to get rid of their old stock. The markets in some cases have been in an overbought condition. The buying for some time will be slow due to the selling out of the old stock first which has accumulated.

A Boston paper carried an item stating that Harold Hatfield of Moosup was in that city seeking for his brother, Raymond, who disappeared from his home in Moosup and is believed to have gone to Boston. The missing youth is described as 15 years of age, weight 145 pounds and about 5 feet 9 inches in height and clad in a gray knicker suit and brown overcoat when he left home. He is a student at Plainfield High school. The case was reported to the Boston police.

The work of clearing Main street of snow proceeded during Friday, when a state highway department plow further cleared the traveled way and a crew of men in the employ of the town shoveled the accumulation into vehicles that carted it away for dumping into the river. Full use of the street will be available today through this prompt work of clearing. As indicating how the state highway plow crews are working because of the storm, it was stated Friday that they put in 15 hours clearing highways on Thursday.
